B. L. Crump, Oxford: "I arrived at my charge Jan. 29. The officers of the church met me at the depot and gave me a cordial welcome to their homes. We have here a good church and people, but no parsonage. I called the attention of the brethren to this fact and pointed out the great need. A subscription was started, and over $40 has been collected and we expect soon to have a good home for the preacher to live in and no rent to pay. We shall have four rooms in the parsonage; a fine set of furniture has already been secured. SOUTHWESTERN day was cold and rainy but we secured seven subscribers. God bless the SOUTHWESTERN in her golden dress of truth. Our first quarterly conference was held Feb. 23 and 24. Dr. Revels, our presiding elder, was on hand and faithfully attended to every part of his work. In the pulpit he went beyond himself. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered to 115. The collections for the occasion were $23.50. Our Sunday-school, under the care of Rev. J. E. Foster, is doing a grand work for God and our people. We are hoping to make this the best year of our lives in doing work for Christ and His church."

From Waco District.

MR. EDITOR—I commenced my work on the district, beginning at East Waco. Bro. Lockhart is pastor. His quarterly conference was to have been held Jan. 3-4, but the inclemency of the weather prevented my holding it. This work embraces 3 preaching places, 2 of which hail with welcome the return of their pastor.

At Marlin Bro. D. Humphreys is pastor. His quarterly was held Jan. 12-13. The brethren were duly notified and on hand. Reports from the leaders were not very encouraging. The Sunday-school is not what it ought to be. The pastor promises to make many improvements this year in both church and school. We had love feast after holding the conference; every one seemed to enjoy it. At 11 a. m. on Sunday we had preaching, after which we administered the sacrament of the Lord's supper to quite a number of souls. Also, at 7 p.m. we had preaching, at which hour many were present, and the writer again labored to show the true way.

At Waco, St. James M. E. Church, Rev. J. R. Carrus is pastor. The brethren here were well notified and on hand. The pastor had not much to report, not being able to reach his appointment until a few days before the quartealy conference, owing to sickness of his family and himself. He had preached once. The weather had been very inclement so that the people could not attend church. The reports were not at all encouraging, as only a few had written reports. In connection with Bro. Carnes quarter Bro. Brown's was held. On Sunday accompanied by Bro. Carrus, we took a five mile drive to Bosque ville, one of Bro. Brown's preaching points, upon the northwest end of his work. At 11 a. m. Bro. Carnes preached a very ableand instructive sermon. Returned to the city again, and at 3 p. m. we met at the St. James M. E. Church quite a number of anxious hearers who had assembled for worship. Here the writer preached. At 7 p. m. he was again brought face to face before a large congregation, filling St. James almost to its utmost capacity. After the sermon quite a number partook of the sacrament of the Lord's supper. On Monday evening we had love feast. Many spoke for the Lord. The Holy Ghost pervaded. Sister Amanda Perry, formerly of South Carolina, a graduate of Central Tennessee College, came to this city some 8 months ago, and has done a grand work among our people. She came with the expectation of teaching in one of the city public schools, but the small salary paid teachers would not justify her to teach, so she accepted an offer made her by the trustees of St. James Church to teach a private school at the rate of $40 per month; which school she taught, giving general satisfaction, until a few days ago. Our people finding themselves almost utterly unable to pay for their children's schooling, of course the school was discontinued.

On Marlin circuit Bro. G. Wilson is pastor. His quarterly conference was held Jan. 26-27. The brethren were all on hand. The Sunday-school at this point is not very good. On Sunday at 10 a. m. we had a grand time at love feast. Every true Methodist knows how sweet these love feast meetings are. At 3 p. m. we had preaching again, after which the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered, and many partook. In company with Bro. G. Wilson, we rode to his next preaching point, a distance of nine miles. Here the writer preached to quite a congregation of anxious hearers, at 7 p. m. On Monday Bro. Wilson took me to Eddy Station, where at 10 a. m. I took the train for Austin, my home. Here I spent a few pleasant hours with my family, say three days. I found my little boy, who had been ill for more than 8 months was still on the mind. At Bremond, W. J. Mitchell, pastor, was at his post, and his men were on hand. Business passed off pleasantly. I preached at 11 a. m. to a crowded house, after which the sacrament was administered to 60 souls. From here, in company with Bro. Mitchell we took a pleasant drive to his other preaching point, a distance of 8 miles, where at 7 p. m. the writer preached to quite a large congregation of anxious hearers. After the sermon we administered the sacrament and many partook. Sister M. A. Perkins, who has been teaching for 3 years at Milford, is now teaching at Bremond. She has a fine school, well attended, and is giving general satisfaction. Sister Perkins has the reputation of being one of the best colored teachers ever in Bremond. She is a good Sunday-school worker.

At Calvert Bro. Smith has made some improvement by way of an early commencement of his benevolent collections. On Sunday at 7 p. m. Bro. R. Reeder preached a good sermon, which every one seemed to enjoy. At 7 p. m. the writer preached to a house crowded to its uttermost capacity with persons who seemed anxious to hear more of the preached word of God. After this sermon the sacrament was administered to many who came and devoutly knelt at the alter to receive the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of our Lord. Sister Amanda Peyry, I found at Calvert on my arrival, and accompanied to the office of the city superintendent, where she stood a very rigid examination. She is now teaching in one of the city schools in Calvert. I think Sister Perry a will be blessing to our Sabbath-school there. Here we have a good instrument which has been sitting unused for sometime, from the fact there was no one to play on it. But on last Sabbath its silence was broken by the timely arrival of Sister Perry, who played to the heart's content of our little ones, and many elderly persons.

At Groesbeck, Bro. Jefferson Buell, pastor, the brethren were on hand, reports were normal. In connection, Bro. Medlock's quarterly was held, reports good. On Bro. Buell's appointment, we had the love feast Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock, preacing. In company with Bro. Medlock we went a distance of nine miles to his appointment, we found the people assembled waiting our arrival; sermon commenced at 7 p. m. In the morning we went seven miles to another preaching point, here we had the pleasure of listening to Bro. David Lacy, one of Bro. Medlock's local preachers, after which the sacrament was administered and many partook.

At Hubbard City Bro. A. Brown, met me at the depot, and took me a distance of three miles, where we held his quarterly conference, Feb. 23d and 24th. Bro. Brown reported an increase of 2 members, Sunday-school in good condition. He promises to make some improvement in connection with Bro. Brown's quarterly conference.

Bro. G. Bragner quarterly conference was held; his report was small, being very late in getting his appointment, and not as good it should have been. It is strange to me how some of our preachers can live around in their old charges and not go to their work. I trust I will be able to meet them at the annual conference. The quarterly being over at 7 o'clock we had preaching by Bro. Brown. On Sunday we had love feast and it was one in which the spirit of God was present, many testified for the Lord. At 11 a. m. the writer preached to a large congregation of anxious hearers, after which the sacrament was administered, 63 came forward devoutly kneeling and partook thereof. After dinner Bro. Brown and I came to Antioch church, distance seven miles, at which place we found the people assembled waiting our arrival, at 7 p. m. we began preaching, the house was crowded to overflowing with anxious hearers. After which the sacrement was administered and many partook. Rev. A. R. Norris, late pastor at Dallas writes me that he cannot stay there and requests me to supply the appointment with some one else. He says he has no complaint with me or the people at Dallas as he stayed with them three weeks; says necessities compelled him to go into other business. The district conference will not convene before April 17th it will be at Antiock three miles from Hubbard City.

Central Alabama—Ashville District.

At the last annual conference held at Tuscaloosa, Ala., by Rev. Bishop C. D. Foss, Dec. 5, 1883, at which time my four years then having expired on the Dadeville district, I was then appointed to this district, begining work the first Saturday and Sunday in January, having unusual cold weather, rains, high waters to contend with all over the district; and notwithstanding we went forward and the Spirit of the Lord attended every quarterly meeting. All through the mountains and across the high waters, both rivers and creeks, as I passed along through the mountains all alone; and therefore I can freely bless the name of the Lord God of Israe. After going over all the work, I found all the preachers at their post but two, and in good spirits; at each appointment all received me heartily and gladly, and our class leaders, stewards and trustees are all coming to the light of duty so as to care for the church and its interests, and to know in part how to make and estimate salary for the preachers to live on, as the following will show:

Birmingham	$300
Enon	325
Village Springs	150
Ashville	250
Whitney	150
Gadsden	325
Centre	120
Howell's Cross Road	110
Talladega and Oxford	200
Ashland Circuit	125
Wedowee Circuit	110
Blount Springs	150
Blountsville	200
Total for pastors	$2,515

And this I call a light salary for 13 men of God, who are to give all their time and talent to the work of the ministry, to read God's Holy Word and to preach the same to the people, and by it and through which the church must live and sinners be saved or lost once for all. Therefore we ought and must do better or suffer hereafter and at the time present. Notwithstanding the above is far better than ever before, and for this reason I say that the spirit of the Lord is with us, for we are coming on to the front; so hold the fort and look for us, for we are coming by the help of God. So when you get to land we will be near if not at the place. Yet some think what little we have promised to pay our preachers is too much, but, thank God there are more with us and for us than with them; and therefore I say we are coming; hold the fort; we don't ask you to wait for us at all, but rather you would not, for we are gaining ground, and that on the Lord's side; quite a number have joined, and others are waiting to do so. I thought at the last annual conference that I had the worst district in the conference, but our beloved Bishop, C. D. Foss, did what was right. I am well pleased with my new field, though there are many high mountains to be encountered.

Respectfully,

O. NELSON.

Letter from Louisville.

DEAR EDITOR—I have desired for some days to write you, but have been let hitherto, on account of removing to new quarters, as above, on the southwest corner of Chestnut and Center streets, and all through our late severe and trying ordeal. Ah! the nearly overwhelming floods; but, through mercy, we have kept our heads above the waters. I am glad to see by the SOUTHWESTERN, that Bro. C. can corroberate, as an eye witness, something of "the situation," we were all in, from Ciucinnati down to the Falls of the Ohio. And now the cold and cheerless weather that has followed with only the glass-works in Jeffersonville running at present, the very many poor unemployed, those among them finding temporary shelter, getting back into their damp and cheerless homes, with few or no supplies of provision or fuel, "the situation" is distressing indeed. These will be sufficient reasons for further delays in collecting dues for the SOUTHWESTERN; still you may calculate that I will look after your interests in Jeffersonville and hereabouts. If you think me worthy of the paper still you will please forward to me here. Owing to the high waters my mail accumulated by the basket full; hence have only given them a cursory perusal. Am very glad to see and read, however, many valuable articles on the live questions of the day. Our excellent friend, Dr. M. W. Taylor, I perceive, despite his flood suffering but during his partial escape to this side the river, writes quite a scathing letter relative to Fred Douglass' apostatizing from the true faith and former "local" work. By the way, the good doctor is engaged, par excellence, as he gets the time, by snatches, in preparing another book, to which he has been pressed by his legion of friends. The new book will be composed of many of his most valuable sermons, platform speeches and fugitive newspaper articles—a souvenir that all "colors" will be glad to obtain, preserve and appreciate. Ah! 'tis education that forms the common mind, and mind that makes the man, despite the color of the skin. Those Pearcing articles, too, are being met with the new Jerusalem sword, that cuts both ways, but heals as it goes, rightly handled by yourself and others. Succes attend you, at every thrust.

Yours, in the strife,

W. H. ONGLEY.

An Exhortation.

Dear Members of the Church:—I now bring before you a subject that has within its reception much of the temporal and spiritual growth of your circuit or station this year. The faultfinders are the parties to whom I wish most directly to speak. Your new preacher has arrived; when you heard of the change of pastors you become angry with him, before seeing him. On his arrival gave him an unpleasant and bitter reception. The bottle of sweetening out of which your pastor of last year drank with overflowing joy, is now filled with vinegar, with the stopper ont, turned bottom upwards over the innocent head of the new man of God. You will do well to remember that he is not with you by his own appointment, but the bishop's. You are going from house to house trying to create a bitter sentiment against him because your minister of last year was not returned; he did not send him away. Why should his head be bruised with the cold weapens of hatred for the actions of another? Often after a hard effort in the pulpit you leave him standing at the church door not knowing where to go; you allow him to walk ten or fifteen miles, when you could have him ride without any inconvenience to yourself. You keep his heart continually bleeding and then wonder why his pulpit preparations are no better. Good treatment generally makes good sermons. Sometimes his color serves as an objection, his face may be darker than yours, but you would stagger and fall if your heart was placed by the side of it. "Never trust to appearances, behold the drum notwithstanding all its noise, it is empty within." Your anger sometimes flies high because the minister having been with you five or six months, cannot call your name. Have you made yourself conspicuous in Christian labor, paid all of your dues, attended prayer and class meetings regularly? If so I am wonderfully surprised at his dullness. We solemnly admonish you to come out of that dark wilderness of sin; that pernicious gully of filth and obscurity, step up into the front rank, in the faithful discharge of your whole duty to God and man, and there will be no doubt that you will be seen. "A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid." Your pastor is a great deal more anxious to see you than you are to be seen, to know you than you are to be known. He wishes to use you for the Christian elevation of the church and community. For this purpose more any other God lets you live. You are sometimes displeased with your pastor because he does not give you an office. You should allow the office to seek you, if you are worthy of it, it will very likely find you. You may be good enough, but your goodness must be accompanied with the requisite qualifications, before matters of concern can be safely committed to your trust. The preacher is to the church, what your head is to your body. If you receive a stroke on the head, the pain runs through every part of your body, it has given him is felt by the entire membership, in other words if he is pulled down, the church will most invariably follow him. It is true that he may do more than is wrong, but would you throw fire on a house in flames to extinguish them. It would be a curious action to pour water into the nostrils of a drowning man to save him. Is your preacher weak? then you should be strong. Is he ignorant? then you should be wise. Does he not understand how to apply the views of the discipline in cases of important and immoral conduct? Do right and its application will not be needed.

Duties of Life.

No one has a right to say that he can do nothing for the benefit of others. No one is ever hurt by doing his proper duty in the proper place. One may fly from his enemies, from disease, in fine, from everything but the consciousness of duty disregarded. A sense of duty follows us wherever we go. It is omnipresent like the dews. Had we wings would we fly to the higher regions of the atmosphere, or dwell in the uttermost parts of the unfathomable deep—duty performed or violated is yet with us for our weal or our woe. In short, if we avoid human society, you, isolate yourselves from all human groups, where we can find no vestige of humanity, our obligations are yet with us—we can neither escape their power, nor fly from their presence. They accompany us in this probationary world-life, will be with us at its end, and in that scene of inconceivable solemnity which yet lies beyond all human vision, we shall yet be surrounded by the consciousness of duty. Indeed there is nothing more becoming in one than the performance of his proper duties. The achievements of genius may be more dazzling—the chances to become rich may be more exciting—the smart talker, for awhile, may arrest more quickly public attention, but none of these can be compared with the achievements of a fervent and a pure energy.

The work of the faithful is never in vain, the fruits will be in his custody while the hasty garlands of genius are fading away, and the wealth of the sharpers is turned into vanity. The most admirable duty is done in secret—it don't advertise itself in order to secure the frivolous praise of puny men. In short, parents should teach their children to do right because it is right to do right. The parent who denies his children the opportunity of education is worse than an ordinary robber, for it robs the child of nobler time and mars the harvest. These are duties that should be considered closely.

Man cannot live for self alone; he either lives for the amelioration or the degradation of mankind. Man cannot control the to-morrow—not his own, much less that of others. He can only say, "for human happiness our best of this time is enjoying to-morrow, will spoil the other half in regretting yesterday," says W. W. Brebe, M.D. Again he says Gough, "There are three great motives that move men to labor—First, the love of money; second, the love of fame; third, the love of truth. He who labors for money only, is selfish; he who labors for fame only, is foolish; he who labors for truth only, is the true disciple." The largest part of human konwledge is derived from social contact. Experience in social assimilation is more extensive than literature. In short, seek to please your conscience. He who feels that his duties are performed is far happier than he who lets the smiles of the great lead him, or let the phrase, "Howdy Jimmie," vacillate his integrity.

In performing the duties of life, there are numerous things we should not do. But among the things we should do, think and act stand most prominently. One should act as if he saw the Savior daily, and as he will wish he had done when he is summoned to make his celestial tour—when, despite of all obstructions, his motion may be either uniform or accelerated amid the ethereal void—to the dread bar of eternal justice at the last day. That is a true saying, "Speak not all you have—believe not all you hear—tell not all you know." Don't be a debtor who is helpless—you would be throwing something after nothing. Never offer a man pills for the toothache; if a man be so conceited that he is powerless to know that his heart is not void of this foul water that so frequently emanates from an impure character, he will quarrel if you correct him. If you lecture a man while drunk you act as if you were drunk yourself. "Then should serve the Lord with an enthusiastic spirit—a zeal to do good." In fine, nowadays, men ride stage when they hunt for gain, and snails when they are plodding their heavenward way. Hence, weary and slowly do we plod our heavenward way; but rapidly and exhaustively do we plod our sinful way. Nothing is to be got without care, except filth and poverty. To sit and cry, "God help me" without helping one's self, is to wait for good luck that will carry a man over a ditch if he jumps well. Do thy duty for conscience sake. Self control should not be disregarded. He that would govern others, must first govern himself. Do not be fussy about your supposed rights. Burke said that manners are more important than laws. Mr. Breese has well said, "He is a fool who can't be angry, but he is a wise man who will not be." There are few people who are oftener in the wrong than those who cannot endure to be so.

We should cultivate frugality. But there is a true frugality and a false frugality. We may save a small sum of money at a great cost of time and labor. If one be caught in a shower he may hesitate as to buying an umbrella, yet the economy may be wasteful.

We should take pains in whatever we do, and should teach it to our children. Said Luther: "The greatest temptation the devil has for the Christian is comfort."

"Habit is a cable," says Mr. Breese, "and we weave its threads every day—at length we can't break it—its chains are generally too small to be felt till they are too strong to be broken." All mankind should acquire good habits. For he who makes for himself "King Habit," must obey him. Self denial is to be cultivated, not self indulgence. The truly great character is he who does good for others—yea, that do harm to him. Daniel Webster says, "What a man does for others, not what others do for him, gives him immortality."

Why Suffer Pain?

When by using the Vitalizing Treatment of Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., the chances are all in favor of your getting prompt relief, especially if the pain has its origin in nervous derangement. In Neuralgia, sick Headache, and the various affections of which these are among the most distressing, this new treatment acts with remarkable promptness. Write for pamphlet giving information about this Treatment, and it will be sent.

The Nation's Power.

The magnificent oration of Rev. C. S. Smith, delivered in Chicago on New Year's day, should be widely circulated. It tells the awful truth of the tyranny and oppression to which the negro race is subjected in this land of boasted freedom, and it is enough to bring the blush of shame to the cheeks even of those half way republicans who assent to state supremacy as against the nation's promise of equal rights. The present condition of the negro—yea, and of his white friends—in the South is as clearly unconstitutional as chattel slavery itself would be. The constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land, and it declares negroes to be citizens. But it is trampled under foot by the so called best people of the South, and the authorities by their silence give ASSENT and SUPPORT to this wholesale denial of the equal protection of the law. Our laws are obstructed, derided, and made of no avail. The states where these things exist are as much in rebellion against the government of the United States as they were in 1861. To fire a gun at a fort is no more rebellion than to shoot down citizens of the United States by State permission—and this is done at and before every election. There has never been a day since George Washington's administration when such a state of affairs need to be submitted to by the government of the United States. The supreme court has no more to do with it than it had about calling out the militia by Abraham Lincoln of blessed memory to retake the forts and other property of the United States. The shooting of men for opinion's sake by bodies of men, under the auspices of a political party, and without let or hindrance from state authorities control'ed by the same political party is not private murder, IT IS PUBLIC WAR. The statute of the United States, enacted in 1795, signed by George Washington, never modified nor repealed and now constituting section 5,298 of the revised statutes provides for such a state of affairs. Here it is:

Whenever by reason of unlawful obstruction, combinations, or assemblages of persons, or rebellion against the authority of the government of the United States, it shall become impracticable in the judgment of the president to enforce by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings the laws of the United States within any State or Territory, it shall be lawful for the president to call forth the militia of any or all the states, and to employ such parts of the land and naval forces of the United States, as he may deem necessary to enforce the faithful execution of the laws of the United States, or to suppress such rebellion in whatever State or Territory thereof the laws of the United States may be forcibly opposed, or the execution thereof forcibly obstructed.

Unless the laws of Fort Sumter were worth more than the citizenship of over a million of voters, and unless the mutilation of a flag was more insulting to the nation than the defiance and subversion of its constitution, then there was less reason for the use of federal force in 1861 than there is during the mock elections which are annually held in portions of the South. If the nation makes no resistance it will soon be subjugated.

The Ballad of A Sad, Bad Girl.

She was pretty, she was bright,
She was brave as she was bonny,
Her eyes were full of light,
And her smile was bright and sunny;
She was rare, she was fair,
And her hair was full of curl,
But she was—O, she was
Such a sad, bad girl!

Her cheek was like a rose,
Her month was like a cherry,
She'd a pretty, pert, snub nose,
And her laugh was gay and merry;
She was sweet to her feet,
And her teeth were made of pearl,
But she was—O, she was
Such a sad, bad girl!

Her locks were touched with gold,
And a three-foot rule would scrape her;
She was only five years old,
And her finger tips were taper;
She could run just like fun,
With a rush and with a swirl;
Still she was—O, she was
Such a sad, bad girl!

For she wanted her own way,
Any you couldn't turn or twist her,
She'd say yes, or she'd say nay,
Spite of mother, friend, or sister;
How she'd fly if you'd try
And fancy to imperil!
For she was—O, she was
Such a sad, bad girl!

If her mamma, or her aunt,
Asked for any little favor,
She'd say shall, and she'd say shan't
With the very sourest flavor;
She would pout, and she'd flout,
Till their brains were in a whirl,
For she was—yes, she was
Such a sad, bad girl!

But she's getting older now,
And although they're almost frantic,
Still they hope she's learning how
To be gentle and less antic;
So that soon a day may come
When they'll call their little Pearl
Not a sad, and a bad—
But a good, good girl!!

The Boys.

"You can't keep boys quite straight you know. They must have a chance to sow their wild oats." Must! A word from Satan's vocabulary! Look ahead a few years. There he goes—young boy! swearing, swaggering, coarse, obscene! You hope he will marry and sober down! Yes, if some pure girl will pour the fullness of her sweet life into the turbid stream of his, there is a bare chance that he may be saved. How much better to have trained him to the right, when you had him under your hands! In the outset he was not unlike his sister in morals. You held her to the proprieties and decencies, while you let him run at his own will in paths of missdeed. Now, in purity of life, they are leagues apart. There are as many boys as there are girls in the infant class of our Sunday-schools; but not half as many boys as girls in the Bible Class. Women out number men in the church two to one. In the State prison men out number women fifty to one. This sad proportion tells its own story.

A Handsome Soul.

One day a boy who was taking his first lessons in the art of sliding down hill, found his feet in too close contact with a lady's silk dress. Mortified and confused, he sprang from his sled, and cap in hand commenced an apology.

"I beg your pardon ma'am; I am very sorry."

"Never mind that," exclaimed the lady; "there is no great harm done, and you feel worse about it than I do."

"But your dress is ruined. I thought you would be angry with me for being so careless."

"Oh, no" she replied "better to have a soiled dress than a ruffled temper!"

"Oh. isn't she a beauty!" exclaimed the lad as the lady passed on.

"Who, that lady!" returned his comrade. "If you call her a beauty you sha'nt choose for me. Why, she is more than thirty years old, and her face is wrinkled."

"I don't care if her face is wrinkled," replied the hero, "her soul is handsome, anyhow."

A shout of laughter followed, from which he was glad to escape. Relating the incident to his mother he remarked, "Oh, mother, that lady did me good. I shall never forget it; and when I am tempted to indulge in angry passions, I will think of what she said, 'Better to have a soiled dress than a ruffled temper.'"

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the SAVANNAH MORNING NEWS makes a new departure in journalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

including its mammoth eight-page Sunday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the future as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles, and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, MARCH 20, 1884.

Now is the time to subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN. This is the centennial year of organized American Methodism, the General Conference meets this year, the State and national election takes place this year, the cotton centennial and the World's industrial exposition open next December, and other matters of interest will command the attention of all intelligent Christians and citizens. You doubtless want to keep posted on all these important events, if so, subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN. Terms $2 a year, or $1 for six months. Address through your pastor or direct to this office.

The latest color line sensation and outrage is from Memphis, Tennessee. The commotion was created in the London street public school by the discovery of a colored young miss who has been in attendance at the school as a scholar since the opening of the session last September. The person in question is Mary Wells. Her mother, it is alleged, is colored, and is known as Mary Brown. The rules governing the public schools do not admit the races mixing, and so little Mary Wells was dismissed and assigned to one of the colored schools. Her mother claims to be white, and will, it is said institute legal proceedings against the School Board.

Recently the papers published what purports to be the proclamation of Gen. Gordon to the people of the Soudan to whom he has been sent on a mission of pacification by the government of Great Britian. In his proclamation, referring to slavery he says:

"Henceforward nobody will interfere with you in the matter, but every one for himself may take a man into his service henceforth. No one will interfere with him, and he can do as he pleases in the matter, without interference on the part of anybody, and we have accordingly given this order."

If this is authentic the Christian world will ask Mr. Gladstone to modify his statements as to the character and mission of Gen. Gorden.

It is fair to infer of liquor sellers as a class, that they have no fear of God nor regard for men. The city council of Tennessee passed a law prohibiting the sale of liquors, cigars and newspapers on Sunday. The liquor dealers brought a suit to test the right of the council to pass such a law. The case was taken to the supreme court of the State who have decided the suit in favor of the city.

"The opinion of court is thus summarized: 'To preserve the quiet and peace of a city or town on the recognized Sabbath of the people of the United States is a legitimate object to be consummated by the governing body of a city in such a manner as shall serve that end, and when the power is granted its exercise by that body is a legitimate exercise of legislative power."

Rev. Eugene R. Smith, Baltimore sends out The Gospel in all Lands. It contains maps of all countries of the world, with an account of the places and the members of missionary stations, with the denominations to which they belong, together with the latest accounts of the various missions in foreign lands. Those who wish to get reliable information as to the progress of the Gospel of Christ will find this book of great service. There are 75 missionary societies, with 3,040 ordained, 619 lay and 1,015 female missionaries belonging to Protestant churches. There are associated with these 2,611 ordained and 21,471 other native helpers. The contributions of Protestant churches in America and Great Britian in 1880 for foreign missions were nearly $8,000,000. We urge our readers to send for The Gospel in All Lands. Price 25.

A Talk About Divorce.

The divorce statistics of some of the Northern and Eastern States reveal a condition of things which, unless speedily stopped, must soon produce a state of things as demoralizing as Mormonism itself. We are thankful, however, to learn that the religious sentiment of the country is being stirred and solidly arrayed against this horrible iniquity. The divorce system of good old New England is working ruin in her families, tarnishing and injuring her fair name. It is an evil for which none of her sons can offer a single apology. In 1880 the courts of the State of Maine granted 587 divorces, thus giving 1,174 persons a right to trample on the God ordained institution of marriage. In 1882 New Hampshire granted 314 divorces. The same year little Rhode Island granted in open defiance of the law of God 271 divorces, and New York 316. In 1878 we are told that in Massachusetts there was one divorce for every twenty-one marriages. Nearly all of these are granted hastily and on unscriptural granted hastily and on unscriptural grounds. Many of them are doubtless sought by men who are tired of their present wives and will to secure some fresh victim for their lust. Doubtless there are some cases where wives are dissatisfied, and seize upon most any pretext to get rid of one husband that they may secure another. Young and foolish girls rush into married life without the least thought of what it involves, and when the honeymoon is over they seek by divorce their old freedom. Nearly all the divorce laws are in violation of the law of God, and help to unprinciple men and women who tire of each other. The causes for divorce are not alike in all the States. In some the causes stated are so numerous that almost any marriage can be broken up. If the divorce cannot be obtained in one State all that a man has to do is to cross the border line of a state, and on almost any evidence, in two or three weeks can get a divorce, and in some instances the wife knowing nothing about it until she learns the fact from the man she had been wont to call her husband. The attitude of the Roman Catholic church on this question is much more honorable and scriptural than that of the Protestant churches, who allow the courts to interpret the word of God for them. On this question there needs to be a reform, but it will not come from the State politics or politicians. No national law, unless it is based on God's law, will stop the divorce seekers for a moment. Civil law needs to recognize the fact that marriage is not a mere civil compact, but a divine institution, older than the decrees of any court. The pulpit needs to lift up its voice and let the people understand that in no instance can divorce be granted only for Bible reasons. Ministers should proclaim from the pulpit that they will not marry divorced persons. In all of our churches it ought to be distinctly understood that persons divorced for other than on scriptural grounds cannot come to the Lord's table.

Curly and Straight Haired Children.

Recently we heard one of the representative men of our church, as he was making a labored effort in justification of the course of the Freedman's Aid Society in building schools for the poor whites here in the South. "Now," he said, "here is a venerable old mother with a large family of children, some of them have curly hair and some of them straight. This mother in her wisdom and kindness concludes to build a school for her curly-haired children, and seeing the good influence the school has upon these, she concludes to build one for her straight-haired children also. Now do you think that it would be right for those curly-haired children to object?" Of course they all said no. "Now," said the speaker, "The Methodist Episcopal Church is that venerable old mother, and, bless you, she has a large family of children, they are scattered all over the world; some of them have curly hair and some straight; she has been building schools all over the South for her curly haired children, and now the time has come when in her mother's heart she wants to build some for her straight-haired children, and I want to know if you do not think that it would look bad for the curly haired children to object?" And all answered yes; and the orator really thought he had won his case. Going out of the church, and wondering at the duplicity of men, an old, gray-haired colored man accosted us thus: "Brudder, you am de editor ob de SOUTHWESTERN; I reads dat paper and I hab learned a heap. I says dat it am out ob place for de curly-haired chillen to say to de ole moder 'you must not build a school for de straight-haired chillen.' Broder dat am not de way de curly-haired chillen talk. Dat am not de fact in de case. De fact am de curly-haired chillen am willing dat de ole moder should build schools for all ob her chillen, and da will do all da can to help in de work. Now, broder, I tell you afore de libben God what I tinks. No good moder, who hab good hard sense, will build a school for her curly or straight haired chillen either. De good moder builds her schools for all ob her chillen. Dis I know, she will not build a school for de curly-haired chillen and den say to de straight-haired chillen, 'you must not come to dis school,' and I hope afore God dat de ole moder will not build a school for de straight-haired children and den turn round to de curly-haired chillen and say, 'you must not come here.' Dat would be bad as bad could be." That old man spoke of the speaker as "eloquent," as flowery as a prairie in June, as "de highest larnt man he had ebber seed." But he thought it would be a "shameful victory ob de debil" if he could persuade "de ole moder wid her lily white hans and lubbin heart, to help in building a school and den say to her chillen ob curly hair, 'chillen,' dis school am for my chillen dat hab straight hair, and you little brats dat hab curly hair shall neber go dare." One thing needs to be remembered. Our colored people have reached a point where they can appreciate and feel the force of strong and vigorous thinking, and he makes a sad mistake who, for a moment, thinks that they do not know the difference between rhetorical soap bubbles and good thinking, manifesting itself in simple words of truth and power. One other thing needs to be done: accept the idea of the brotherhood of man and make the same provision for the education of curly-haired people as we do for red or flaxen-haired. We have need of schools all through the South, but we want them Christian not heathen schools, where Christ reigns, not caste.

The Sugar Planters Political Movement.

Judge Taylor Beattie, of the delegation to Washington in the interest of a protective tariff for sugar, reported the results of the mission to the Sugar Planter's Convention held in this city last week. He said the delegation received but little assistance from the Democratic members of Congress from Louisiana. In securing introductions to members of Congress, with whom they desired to consult, they were compelled to rely upon their own efforts, and the kindness of Mr. Kellogg. The Louisiana members were polite enough when met on the street, but Mr. Kellogg gave them practical assistance. These indifferent representative were averse to making combinations, and declined the use of their names by the sugar delegation in forming combinations, with the wool interest especially, which offered 15 votes for sugar in exchange for Louisiana's 5 for wool. They found the general feeling among tariff men was that while Louisiana men asked protection for sugar, they would not reciprocate for other industries, and Congressman Kelley thought they could let sugar go on the reduced list easier than any other article, because it passed into the mouth of every man, woman, and child. Mr. H. C. Minor, confirmed Judge Beattie's statement, and the faithfulness and efficency of Mr. Kellogg, the only Republican whom Bornbons have allowed to be counted into Congress from Louisiana, is well established.

The President of this convention was authorized to appoint a Central Committee of the "Louisiana Protected Interests," to consist of two or more members from the parishes, to have full power to act, and use such means as shall, in their judgment, best subserve the industries of the State; to nominate an electoral ticket, to recommend or endorse congressional nominations. An executive committee of eight was appointed pending the formation of the Central Committee. A resolution was adopted recommending the people not to support any candidate for the General Assembly who is not in favor of protecting the industries of the entire country, and declaring opposition to the election of any one to the United States Senate who is not in perfect accord with these principles.

It is a well known fact that all the election machinry of the State is under the complete control of Gov. McEnery, who is also the Democatic candidate for re-election. Mr. McEnery was a bold and conspicuous leader in the murderous bull-dozing policy, by which the Republican vote has been almost silenced in North Louisiana, and other sections of the State. He represents the ballot box stuffers and night raiders of Louisiana. These sugar planters, now in peril, were warned of the mischievous results which would be sure to follow the cutting down of the only protective tariff party in Louisiana. They voted Mr. McEnery into office, were deaf to the appeals of their own laborers, practical co-partners and colored fellow citizens, and jointly with Mr. McEnery's election came the choice of a Democratic Legislature and nearly a full delegation in Congress. The faithful Senator, who time and again gave the sugar planters almost invaluable service, was turned out of place with rejoicing, because forsooth, he had been elected by a so-called "Negro party." These sugar planters see the peril of their position, and contemplate some independent political action. This is the Republican opportunity. Let the colored voters of Louisiana unite in demanding a reciprocity of interests. If sugar requires protection, so does the ballot box. The rights of citizenship are as dear to Republicans, as the wealth of the sugar farms can ever be to their Democratic fellow citizens. They will not throw away their votes on an independent electoral ticket, for the Republicans will have one of their own, and their party has always been faithful to American industries and the free exercise of citizenship.

We commend the following verses to the prayerful consideration of our correspondents. Read brethren, carefully consider, inwardly digest, and boil down when you write for the press.

BOIL IT DOWN.

Whatever you have to say, my friends,
Whether witty, or grave, or gay,
Condense as much as ever you can,
And say it in the clearest way;
And whether you write on rural affairs,
Or particular things in town,
Just take a word of friendly advice—
Boil it down.

When writing an article for the press,
Whether prose or verse, just try
To utter your thoughts in the fewest words,
And let them be crisp and dry;
And when it is finished, and you suppose
It is done exactly brown,
Just look it over again, and then—
Boil it down.

For editors do not like to print
An article lazily long,
And the general reader does not care
For a couple of yards of song;
So gather your wits in the smallest space
If you'd win the author's crown,
And every time you write, my friend,
Boil it down.

—[Methodist Recorder.

The Fitz John Porter bill passed the senate, on the 13th by a vote of 33 to 22.

Temporary Expediencies vs. Eternal Principles.

The ethical philosophy of Jesuitical Romanists lays down as an axiom the proposition that the ends justify the means, however abhorrent they may be to every sense of cultured manhood and humanity. Witness the horrors of the Inquisition, and the persecutions against the true reformers and expounders of the faith, who were branded as heretics, and who were punished accordingly. Such principles the Romanists believed in, and these they sought to advance by fire, by wild beasts, with the thumb-screws, and by the edge of the sword. Evangelical Christianity protests, and is at war with such unscriptural and unreasonable enunciations. Methodism, no less than the other branches of the Protestant family, repudiates this doctrine. Shall we now temporize with this unholy proposition in our dealing with a people who are too prejudiced to fraternise with our colored membership? Shall we say to the world that we believe in the unity and equality of the races; and shall we continue to teach that it is the design of the Gospel to bring together in one all who are in Christ, and still continue in force the absurd, unscriptural and unMethodistic "color line legislation" of 1876? Have we any warrant, in reason or scripture, to justify such un-Christian separation? Does Christ, the Apostles, or the Christian fathers anywhere furnish us with the precedent or direction to separate the church upon distinctions based upon race or color, so that the self-constituted superior race shall be in one body, and the denominated inferior race shall be in another? This is no part of the doctrines of Christ, or of their consistent interpreters as we understand them. Peter seems to have been initiated with their heresy, until God cautioned him not to call unclean what He had cleansed, and from henceforth he ever held as a central truth, that "God is no respecter of persons." The Apostle Paul was no less positive that in Christ "there is neither Jew nor Greek, bond nor free, male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." To satisfy an unreasonable spirit, and to secure some supposed advantages, however, the church has adopted the temporary expediency of establishing separate schools and conferences for her black and white children. In reference to the schools supported by the Freedmen's Aid Society, Rev. G. M. Steele, D. D., in a communication to Zion's Herald says,

"We find twenty-four schools, of various grades, all things considered promising and flourishing, for the benefit of the colored people, and largely supported by the association. But we find, also, twenty institutions aided by the Society's funds from which colored students are as rigidly excluded as if they were victims of infectious diseases or belonged to the criminal classes."

The colored schools, be it remembered, are freely opened to all races and people, while from the white schools "colored students are as rigidly excluded as if they were victim of infectious diseases or belonged to the criminal classes." And this in the Methodist Episcopal Church! Such means may increase white membership in the South, but they are offensive to every sentiment of biblical Christianity, and deserves the withering denunciation of every true-hearted Methodist. We have expressed it before, and we now repeat it, that in our opinion the church made a serious mistake in these particulars, in that it adopted a doubtful and temporary expediency at the expense of eternal principles. Instead of changing the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society to that of Freedmen's Aid and Southern Educational Society, as some have suggested, a name which amplifies provisions for the perpetuity of caste in the church, we hope the next General Conference will vindicate the character of the church by a radical wiping out of everything in previous legislation which gives any encouragement in name or theory to this abhorrent spirit of caste.

Senator Frye is shocked and disgusted by the evidence taken in the investigation of the Copiah County murder. These emotions are shared by every civilized person who has read the report of the evidence and reflects that nothing to the purpose can be done about it. This reflection, however, the Senator from Maine does not institute. On the contrary, he thinks something can be done about it, inasmuch, he says, as "there is no republican form of government in Mississippi," and Congress is empowered and bound to guarantee a government republican in form to every State. This will not do. What Mr. Frye really means is that the government of Mississippi is republican only in form. This is true. But this defect cannot be remedied by "troops" which are the only expedient available for Congress. The remedy consists in the extension of civilization to Copiah County by such agencies as books, newspapers, schools, sermons, and other appliances of intelligence and religion, which Congress cannot provide, and which are of slow but sure operation, whereas, "troops" do not touch the root of the disorder.—New York Times.

We have no desire to keep up old contentions, nor to foment sectional discord, but we heartily endorse what the Times says. We believe in a free ballot and an honest count, but every man knows that there are sections all through the South where it cannot be had, where elections are nullified by men wielding rifles, revolvers, tissue ballots, or by a process of counting out. Mississippi is not the only State where men are ready at any time to take human life to secure their political ends. Perhaps there are but few who have the honesty to say openly that they believe it is a moral obligation to get rid of the independents any way," but this opinion is shared by many. The Times is right when it says that troops are not the remedy for these evils. We would not cast a single reflection upon any of our Southern churches, they have been in Mississippi from its first settlement, and there has been developed in that State a civilization that puts men "under a moral obligation" to kill Negroes merely to secure political ends. These facts have been brought out over and over again, and the State press has condoned or approved of crimes that have shocked the great heart of the Nation. Men may swagger and talk about Southern civilization as much as they please, the state of things in Copiah by civilized mankind will be regarded as semi-savage. The one remedy for these evils is the extension of the New Testament, Christian civilization, by such agencies as the church has uniformly employed in all of her fields of missionary labors.

Contentment is not taking a contracted view of our privileges or mere indifference to our lot. If that be contentment the less we have of it the better. It never gives a concentrated view of life, it is rather recognizing our bounds and acquiescing in our destiny; it is the satisfying of ourselves with what we have or fairly can have. It depends not half so much on where we are, or what we have or what we are doing or enduring, or upon our personal views of our place and work. It helps a man to feel that the place he is now in is his place for now, that the work he is now doing is the work for now. But this does not preclude the possibility of desiring something better. The good soldier who is now far away from home in obedience to his commander's order, would be willing if ordered to start for home to-morrow; while he hopes for better service and reward by and by, the present moment is to him the centre of the universe. So the real Christian renders present service, accepting his present assignment of place and duty. This present place of all places is the one where he ought to stand, stay and work. He hopes for better service by and by, and is making ready for it by doing the best he can for the present.

A Louisiana paper, which supported, with all its corrupt methods, the McEnery canvass for the nomination of governor for the Democratic party, deplores the political depravity manifested in a recent Republican parish nominating convention. It charges delegates with buying and selling proxies and votes, etc. It concludes its ethical homily as follows:

"How long is such a state of affairs to be permitted to exist, and what lesson does it teach the public? Does it not teach us that the average negro politician is untrue and unworthy of any trust reposed in him and therefore incapable of self government? We feel the necessity, as a public journalist, to call the attention of the Judge of this district to this matter so that it may be brought to the notice of our next Grand Jury, to the end that the Legislature, at its next session, may pass such laws that will completely stamp such practices forever."

Such corrupt practices, whether by Republicans or Democrats, we have persistently denounced. They are the source of the most shameful misrepresentation of the popular will, and are fraught with much danger to our institutions. Our country cousin, however, desires to be informed whether such practices do not indicate that the average Negro politician is untrue and unworthy of any trust reposed in him, and therefore he is incapable of self government. The conclusion of our brethren here, amounts to an absurdity for the reason that the "Negro politician," in these corrupt practices, but faintly imitates the examples set him by the average white politician, better known as "the oldest and best." In its righteous indignation, the exchange in question feels the necessity of calling the attention of the Judge of its district, its Grand Jury and the next Legislature, to adopt such measures as shall completely abolish such practices forever." Such salutary enactments could scarcely fail to command our endorsement; provided, however, that the law operates equally against the original corruptionists, the white, as well as against their imitators, the "average Negro politician." Let the reform begin with the ballot box stuffers, and repeal of the election law, which now defies all opposition by shielding their infamities beyond recourse in the courts of law.

—The following fraternal allusions are made by the St. Louis Christian Advocate, M. E. Church South, to prominent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This paper appears to think that all memories of the great rebellion should die out in twenty years, whereas, it long since became a matter of history: "In reading Bishop Bowman's letter in the Central Christian Advocate, describing his trip in South Carolina, where he was invited to the pulpits of our church and the homes of our people, we find he all along calls the late war between the States "the rebellion." The next paper we took up had an address by General Clinton B. Fisk in New York, before the Mission Board of the Northern Church. He spoke of our civil conflict as "the late great war." Fisk is a layman, and was a warrior at the front. The Bishop was a non combatant and in the rear. It is that sort who, twenty years after the event, roar against the "rebellion" at long range."

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the March number of The English Illustrated Magazine, published by Macmillan & Co., New York. The price is $1.50 per year, or 15 per month. The engravings and illustrations are of a high order. The table of content presents a variety of valuable and interesting matter. The type are clear, the best writers are employed, it is first class in every particular.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

The future of our church at Booneville was never brighter. Rev. John Sparks, the new pastor of our church there, has entered upon his work with commendable energy, and the church is crowded at every service, and much good is being done. Peace and harmony prevail, and a deep spirituality pervades the church. The Sunday-school under the superintendence of Bro. W. L. Amos is doing well and improving. Class No. 1, led by Bro. Adolphe Baham, and class No. 7, led by Bro. Thomas, continues to contend for the mastery in their support and liberality to the church. They provoke each other as they do all the other classes to good work. A good school is about to be opened here by Sister Carry Carter, of Alexandria. The Woman's Home Missionary Society of Booneville, is to assist in its development. The school deserves success. We hope it will be largely attended, and well supported. Next to the Christian religion, education is the great need of our people. The Lord bless our church and school at Booneville!

Bro. Austin Jones, at Cheneyville, has not been idle since conference. He does not belong to that class of preachers who loiter around the seat of conference for weeks after its adjournment, but immediately upon the close of conference he repaired to his appointment, and has since gone right to work upon his second year's term. Much good work has been done in all the departments of the church, several accessions are reported, and the revives. He has perfected arrangements whereby our church can be permanently planted at LeCompte, a promising and growing town, which now forms a part of his circuit, and before long the batteries of Methodism will be there. For the present promising outlook at LeCompte, under God, the church owes a debt of gratitude to Bro. Matthew Coe, as well as to Bro. Jones.

S. S. Wright, Campte, "After conference I returned to my family, and I found the that my oldest boy was burned very badly, he is now better. I then proceeded to my work, I found here a nice people and the official bretaren have started off grandly in fitting up the parsonage."

TEXAS.

John Jackson, Jefferson. "I have been encouraged on my new field of labor. I found 45 male members of whom 28 attended the church, and 128 females of whom about 70 attended church. I appointed a committee to talk over the matter of building a new church, which is greatly needed; one half was in favor of this, while the other half wanted to repair the old church. We are therefore at a stand still on the question. Last year a lot was brought and $50 paid on it. I have paid something and there is still a balance due. The town is going down, and people are moving away. The saloons are not going down, however. There are 8 for whites and 1 for colored people. There is much work to be done here. We are reviving the Sunday-school; it died ont last year. The church is getting into a working condition and I am in hopes something will be done."

R. K. Whiting, Crockett. "The elder has been with us. Three have joined the church since conference. Lumber is on the ground for a new church."

R. A. O'Neal, Bryan: "We have a good pastor, but I hope the grace of the Lord may enter deeper into the hearts of the people."

Alice Blain, Fairfield: "We had a Sunday-school entertainment on Thursday night, Feb. 28, for the purpose of raising money to buy books for our Sunday-school. We had a grand time and realized $15.15. Our school is still growing. I expect to organize a Woman's Home Missionary Society this Summer. Pray for us."

G. W. Townsend, Goliad. "Our first quarterly conference was held Feb. 23-24, by Elder G. W. Richardson. We had a pleasant time. Sister L. A. Westbrooks was elected secretary. Several sisters were elected stewards. The elder gave an interesting lecture to the Sabbath school, at 9 o'clock a. m.; at 3 p. m. he preached a very instructive sermon, after which the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered to 108. At night Rev. C. T. Westbrooks preached. Rev. Wm. Stephens also gave a few remarks. On Monday night the love feast was held; 87 were present; all but one sister seemed to enjoy the presence of the Holy Spirit, and the whole church united in prayer for her. On Tuesday night the temperance society met. The meeting was opened by the elder. We had some very interesting exercises, after which the pledge was circulated and quite a number joined. Elder Richardson signed the pledge and also gave a few remarks earnestly exhorting all to be temperate. The election of officers was held after this and Rev. C. T. Westbrooks was elected president and Sister L. A. Westbrooks was elected secretary. We would be glad to receive any matter on temperance from any of the friends of temperance to aid us in this work. Any information concerning our society can be had by referring to the secretary."

TENNESSEE.

A. F. Lane, Linden: "Elder Price held our first quarter Feb. 11-12, and left us much cheered. We visited several families. I find a cheerful people to labor with this year. Rev. G. C. Harden, the former paster, left everything in good shape, and he is beloved by all."

S. P. Bell, Nashville: "Rev. James Pickett, held our first quarterly conference Feb 13th, making a good impression on all who attended the meeting. This is our first year on this circuit, everything seems flattering for a year of spiritual and financial success."

"Observer" writes: "Rev. E. Provine, presiding elder of the Chattanooga district, East Tennessee Conference, is showing commendable zeal in prosecuting his arduous work. He reports the attendance upon his quarterly meeting rather slender, in consequence of the unusually severe weather which has so long prevailed in that section. He finds the people in marshy places financially embarrassed and contributing but meagerly toward the support of the ministry. We note with regret the illness of the elder's wife. She has been confined to her room for two or three weeks. Her recovery is earnestly prayed for by many whose sympathies have been drawn out toward the family in this affliction."

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The churches of Charleston are looking and working for revivals.

MISSISSIPPI.

A. McBeth, Edwards: "Knowing that you are always interested in the progress of the Lord's work, I write you this letter to let you know what we have done for the advancement of Christ's kingdom in this neighborhood. On the 23rd and 24th of February our quarterly conference convened. All the brethren were present, and it made one's heart beat with pleasure to see such an intelligent, zealous body of men assembled, in such a noble cause. Although I have been working in my new field but a short while, having taken charge of this work about Feb. 1st, I am glad to say that I handed in very good reports, having baptized nine infants and one adult. On Sunday 24 at 11 a. m. our talented presiding elder preached one of the most splendid and wonderful sermons I ever listened to; it was a magnificent outburst of soul stirring eloquence. He took for his subject Faith, Hope and Charity, and handled it in a manner that only they whose lips have been taught with eloquence and fire from the altar of God can handle a subject. While the divine words were falling from his lips, the vast congregation listened with breathless attention, and when at last he closed ninety-one persons came forward and partook of the holy sacrament. The same day we took up a collection and ont of the proceeds we paid him ten dollars, a well deserved fee. I cannot close without saying how much both my fellow subscribers and my self are pleased with the SOUTHWESTERN It seems that every copy is better and better. We are doing all in our power to increase its subscription list in this part of the country."

C. W. Ivy, Mashulaville: "After making my first round, I conclude I will be able to meet all claims this year. The people are willing to do their part of the labor.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FIRST QUARTER. LESSON XI. March 23. CHRISTIAN DILIGENCE (2 Thess. iii, 1-13).

APPLICATIONS.

1. The duty of praying for ministers. He is engaged in the noblest work, and to this he has been called. As he also belongs to and is the representative of the Church, all its members have an interest in him. Prayer will mightily aid him; why then should it be withheld? 2. Safety of true believers. The Lord is faithful to help them; their constancy is observable; they are helped by the prayers of their pastors and spiritual guides. 3. The mischief of false doctrine. Some one had gone beyond the letter of the Word and said the advent was just at hand, and unsettled some. 4. Practical difficulties of Church government. There is no more unlovely creature than a disorderly member of Church. It is incumbent on the sound portion of the Church to be firm. There is hope of much good if proper attempts at purification be made; but endless mischief is in store if such attempts be declined. Direct reproof and exhortation offer chances of success. 5. Ministers are to be supported. Paul is careful to explain that he has this right, but does not avail himself of it for reasons weighty then, but not applicable now. The experience of the Churches ought to satisfy the mind of any one as to which method is the more successful.—Western.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an old East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. $2,500 versus $1,50.

"I spent $2,500, with other doctors," writes Mr. J. W. Thornton, of Claiborne, Miss., "Samaritan Nervine however alone cured my son of fits." This is on a par with hundreds of others, speedy but thorough.

During the night of the 12th instant a terrible explosion occurred in the Pocahontas coal mine, Va., killing 150 persons and causing much damage. The disaster was caused by fire damp.

The Davis crevasse in St. Charles parish, about 40 feet wide has not been closed. Another break of 20 feet is reported a few miles above. Freight trains over the Morgan road, between New Orleans and Alexandria, will be abandoned until high water goes down between here and Morgan City.

Inspector Meser has returned from France. He failed to find evidence that the Fenians in Paris make dynamite or were implicated in London explosions. He believes that the men on board the steamer Danube brought the dynamite to London. These men the police are now tracing.

Ye Must Be Born Again

Ask a Roman Catholic if he is born again, and his reply is, "What do you mean?!"

WANTED!

FIVE THOUSAND BIBLES,

To place in the hands of Roman Catholics in Chicago.

Inducing Catholics to read the Holy Scriptures is the only way; under God, to prevail on them to accept Jesus Christ as a personal Savior.

No power on earth could, in any manner, be accessory to my conversion, had I not read the Word for myself, one year ago.

My experience of one year is, that all Catholics whom I approach will give me their undivided attention while I read passages for them from the Bible. They are astonished beyond measure, and say, "My God! how is it that we have been so blind!"

I visit my Catholic brethren at their homes; they introduce me to their friends. In this way I get their confidence. I read and pray with them.

My Irish name commends me to numbers of my countrymen of the intelligent class, and is a great help in my endeavors to bring the gospel to this warm-hearted and generous people.

Will you assist me in this noble and holy cause? Yours, in Christ,

R. H. MOLONEY.

The Daily Christian Advocate.

The forthcoming General Conference promises to be one of great interest It is the closing General Conference of the first Century of organized American Methodism. Its reports from every department of our widely-extended work, and the suggestions of plans and recommendations of methods for enlarging the work at home and abroad; the presence and addresses of distinguished Fraternal messengers from other religious bodies, some of them from beyond the sea, and of eminent missionaries connected with our various foreign mission fields; and the discussions by the many able and influential delegates, lay and clerical, (representing nearly a hundred different Annual Conference), of the many great questions which are to be considered at this transition period of our Church history, are sure to engage the attention of our people in all parts of the world.

In order to respond to the demands of this enlarged and increasing interest, and thus give to all our people the earliest, and most ample reports, the Agents of the Book Concerns at New York and Cincinnati will publish The Daily Christian Advocate, to be issued every morning, Sundays excepted, during the entire General Conference session. It will furnish reliable reports of every item of interest in the doings of that highest legislative and judicial ecclesiastical body, also of the sermons and addresses of the distinguished fraternal representative and visitors. It will print numerous pen-and-ink sketches of distinguished delegates, lay and clerical, and of fraternal representatives and visitors present, and will give in each number a summary of the latest telegraphic and other Church and secular news received up to the hour of going to presi.

The Daily will be under the editorial supervision of Dr. W. H. De Puy who, in his editorial experience, extending through a score of years in connection with our Church papers, and including three different volumes of the Daily Christian Advocate, is well known to the Church. He will have able and experienced assistants, and no effort will be omitted either in the Editorial or Publishing Departments to make the paper as complete, attractive, instructive, and of as great permanent value, as possible.

The first number of The Daily Christian Advocate (an eight-page, neatly printed folio) will be issued at Philadelphia on Thursday morning, May, 1, 1884; and the volume will end with the number issued on the day following the close of the General Conference session. The last number will contain an ample and well-arranged table of contents, for the convenience of the many of our ministers and people who will desire to preserve the whole volume for future and frequent reference. The price will be $1.50, postage prepaid by the Publishers.

We respectfully and earnestly request all preachers to bring the paper immediately before their people, and either personally or by proxy make a thorough canvass of their congregations. Let the names be forwarded by April 1, if possible, and certainly by the middle of the month, as it is important to have our mail-list so complete that there shall be no complaint by subscribers not receiving promptly their first number. In no instance should any subscription list, however small, be delayed in order to send by some delegate or visitor to the General Conference.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1.25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. E. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Talks About Cooking.

I have a recipe for making fruit cake, which I have found very good, and it is simple. The ingredients are One cup of sugar, half a cup of molasses, half a cup of butter, half a cup of milk, and four eggs; mix these together, then take a pan and put into it three cups of flour, a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, a half teaspoonful each of ground cloves and cinnamon. Take a cup of currants and pour warm water over them, let them stand a little while, then wash and drain the water from them. Take one cup of raisins, and chop them, and mix both raisins and currants in the flour. Then mix all together, and stir thoroughly. It may require a little more flour, for the batter should be quite stiff, or the cake will fall. It should be baked in a slow oven for it will burn easily. It should remain in the oven fully three quarters of an hour. If it is in danger of burning on the top, cover with a piece of paper. The first time I tried this, I made a failure, but since I have found it superior to more expensive cakes, made more elaborately. Writers of recipes usually omit many important little things which we must learn by experience. Not long since I heard a woman say that she was fond of fruit cake only when it had brandy in it. She always kept it for that purpose. She was a temperance worker, and believed in prohibiting all spirituous liquors as a beverage but eating a little brandy in fruit cake, was quite different thing from drinking it. I thought, "how inconsistent the evil one makes us to have people build but weaks for safety around themselves and leave loop holes in them, to let when the test comes, they may be found wanting. Can persons who have signed the pledge eat anything with brandy in it, and stand on firm ground with regard to their temperance principles? Could [illegible] eat and urge people to taste [illegible] that has ruined so many husbands, brothers and sons, and women's hearts and made desolate. At this time, there is a hard battle being fought over the subject of temperance, and it is the duty of the cause by doing all we can to place a safeguard around our children in our homes. L. C. B.

TOMATOES SAUTÉ TO BEURRE. Cut with a vegetable cutter into [illegible] the same size, put in a saucepan covered with [illegible] occasionally [illegible] will be sour.

TOMATOES.—The outside, otherwise [illegible] perhaps a which is usually rotted, if delicacy if rubbed through a grater over thin slices of bar placed on well buttered toast.

BOILED POTATOES.—Take any cut of cold meat, chop and season with peper, salt and cut pickles. Mash potatoes, making them into paste with an egg. Roll out with a dust of flour. Cut with a saucer. Put your seasoned meat on one half and fold like a puff. Fry a light brown.

HURRY SCURRY PUDDING.—Cut a stale French roll in slices rather more than half an inch thick, and soak them in milk, flavored with vanilla or any essence that may be liked. Place the slices on a strainer and then fry a bright golden brown color. Arrange neatly in a dish and pour over all some jam sauce, or the slices can be served with powdered sugar instead of sauce. Any piece of light bread can be employed in this way, only they should all be cut the same way, to insure a neat appearance.

Houston Seminary.

To the Pastors of our patronizing territory—Dear Brethren: The plan of taking collections by envelopes has been tried by some of the pastors with good results. They report that they get the money with less trouble than in any other way. We have a lot of envelopes, printed for the Freedmen's Aid Collections. Send me word how many you can use, and they will be sent you free of charge. The Seminary has never done better work than it is now doing. But we need money. How many of you will continue to show your faith in the old church by your collections? Any explanation you wish will be made you as to how to use the envelopes. The money is needed now. Please attend to it at once. We have commenced to fit up another recitation room, but lack means to finish it. We are crowded and need more seats. Who will come to the rescue?

A Doctor at Richmond says that if people will take a bath in hot whiskey and rock salt twice a year they will never catch a cold. Until somebody has tried this new remedy we should say:—stick to the old and reliable Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Rev. G. W. Barney.

MR. EDITOR—Evil tidings are quickly communicated, and the swift winged messenger has borne to us the sad intelligence that Rev. G. W. Barney is no more. I feel oppressed, dear editor, by a sense of my inability to present a true portraiture of his life and public services. Impelled, however, by a sense of duty which is in strict accord with the pulsation of my own heart, I shrink not from the task. Rev. George William Barney was born in the State of Maryland, near the city of Baltimore, in the year 1836; came to the State of Mississippi during the late civil war, and settled in Clark county in 1866. Bro. Barney connected himself with the M. E. Church, was licensed to preach in 1867, and joined the Mississippi Conference in 1869, in 1877 was assigned to this charge as pastor, reappointed in 1878 and again in 1879, in 1880 was sent to Yazoo City to take charge of the M. E. Church at that place, reappointed in 1881, and in 1882 was made a presiding elder, and assigned to the Greenwood district, and remained on said district till his death, which occurred in February last.

Untimely fate! Struck down in the full meridian of a glorious manhood, with "all his blushing honors thick about him," he lies a prey to the tomb. It is another solemn warning to us who linger.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to pale; but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, oh Death!"

But come when it may, to whom it may, it shall not come to a more gallant spirit, a nobler heart, a truer nature, a more sincere, honest upright gentleman than George W. Barney. Ah! dear editor, death which comes but once, yet comes to all, and has admonished us again and again, "what shadows we are and what shadows we pursue." And should not this teach us how empty and fleeting are the earthly honors and prizes for which we contend, and how soon they must surely elude our grasp. Should it not teach us also that the few years alloted us on earth, should be devoted to the work which shall lead us to a higher and better life. Life is too short, dear editor, to have its days or even its hours wasted in cherishing enmity, or wounding the heart or reputation of another who must soon lie side by side with us in the grave that covers every defect, buries every error and extinguishes every resentment. Therefore let us be ready, for in such an hour as we think not, the Son of Man cometh. It is hard to realize the fact, dear editor, yet it is true that Bro. Barney is dead. While nothing we can say will benefit the dead, a proper manifestation of regard for departed worth is consoling to surviving friends, and should stimulate us all to emulate the virtues thus praised. May the flowers of Spring bloom beautifully over his grave, and the daylight gleams of the setting sun smile gently o'er him from the west.

Fraternally,

J. W. LONGSTREET.

Useless Fright.

To worry about any Liver, Kidney or Urinary Trouble, especially Bright's Disease or Diabetes, as Hop Bitters never fails of a cure where a cure is possible. We know this.

If there be one truth more certain than another, one conclusion more securely founded than an other, not on reason only, but on every other faculty of our nature, it is this—that there is nothing but mind that we can respect, nothing but heart that we can love, nothing but a perfect combination of the two that we can adore.—Duke of Argyle.

"Some books are to tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested; that is, some books are to be read only in parts, others to be read, but not curiously; and some few to be read wholly, and with diligence and attention."—Bacon, in The Choice of Books.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my people. I have not heard from them since 1881. About three years ago they were in New Orleans, La. Jack Rhad and sister Jane, cousin Eveline, brother Claiborne and sister Susan, Clabut and Charlotte Clalup, and my husband, Bob Moore. The last I heard from Bob he was in Holmes county, in 1864, also my sons Bragg and Solomon. Plesase address me at Plantersville, Texas.

MARIAH GREEN.

MR. EDITOR—Please allow me to inquire for my relatives. They lived in the family of Ben. Humphries. I left my father in Grand Gulf, Miss., in 1838. His mother lived in Kentucky. At that time my father's name was Capt. Bryant; his mother was Hannah, sisters Mintie and Rose. Address me at Plantersville, Grimes county, Texas.

MARIAH GREEN.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find the whereabouts of my husband, sisters Lizer, Prescilla and Francis, also brother Jacob and Ellen Gracy. Jacob belonged to Elias Bridgers, in Madison parish, La., not very far from Mr. Stoneham's and Bear Lake. Your daughter-in law at that time, Mariah Moore, but now changed to Mariah Green, at Plantersville, Grimes county, Texas.

I was bron in Wilmington, N. C. I belonged to John Stanley. I was sold and two children to a Negro trader by the name of Davis. He brought me and children to Petersburg, Va. I left my husband in Wilmington; some called him Peter Picket and some Peter Stanley; he belonged to the Pickets, who lived in Dupelin county. My father had three children, and I am the oldest. I had one sister and a brother; my sister's name was Mary and brother Wright. I had one aunt by the name of Peggie, who lived in Dupelin county. J. A. W. Moore, P. O., No. 21 Linden Street, Memphis, Tenn.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my three brothers. They were taken to Texas 20 or 25 years ago. Fred and Tom Malone carried them there. My brothers were John, Coleman and Gustus. My mother's name was Sue Crecy Malone. I had a sister Harriett. My name is Tom. They left me when a boy. We were then living at Lonis T. Winn's farm. Address me at Oxford, Miss.

T. M. MALONE.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my father and mother and sister and brother. My father's name was Joseph Ball and mother Kitty Ball, and had a son named Joshua and one named Canales; my sister was named Silvia Bryan; our owner before the war was Mr. A. Williams, who lived on Bellair plantation, 4 miles above Baton Rouge, La., and went to Texas during the war. Address Joshua Ball, Terrebonne Station, La.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people who I left in Petersburg, Va. I left at that time my sister with Henry Thornton. My name was George Thornton. I left my sister in the morning in the care of Henry Thornton. I left my mother in the evening at Petersburg, her name was Serlena. My father was Jasper. I was then sold to speculators Tom Brown and John Booker. I was brought to Columbus, Miss., and sold, and I have not heard from my people since. I now go by the name of George Peden. I would be glad to hear from my people. Address me, care of J. L. Pratt, West Point, Miss.

Virginia Negroes Indignant.

Richmond, Feb. 27.—The colored people here are very much excited over the speech of Congressman John S. Wise in the House of Representatives, wherein he said that "Colored members of the Legislature came to his house to consult him, but they always came to his kitchen." To day, in the House of Delegates, nearly all the colored members of that body rose to a question of personal privilege. Mr. Dodson of Mecklenburg was the first speaker. While disclaiming any idea of social equality, he said he did not know where Mr. Wise lived, "But," he added, "I will say that when I go to see him I shall not go into his kitchen."

Mr. Harris, another member, followed in an indignant speech, saying: "As a representative of my people I am not anxious to force social equality. As a member of the General Assembly of Virginia I will say that when I go to see a gentleman on business I would like to see him at his office or place of business, where any other gentleman would be received, and not be asked to go in his kitchen. I do not know where Mr. Wise lives. I conid not find his house except by direction, and I am not one of that number that saw him in his kitchen."

By this time the House was in a roar of laughter. The colored delegates were hot and rose one after another in rapid succession.

Mr. Bland, a very black Delegate said: "I never went into Mr. Wise's kitchen and never cared to go there."

Mr. Scott, a cornfield member, said. "As I have had no business with Mr. Wise in my life I never approached him on any subject. So far as his kitchen is concerned if the gentleman has a kitchen, I don't know anything about it."

Mr. Griggs said: "I have never found Mr. Wise's house, neither do I know that he has a kitchen."

When the colored members had concluded Mr. Gibson (Dem.) from Culpepper moved that stenographic reports of the speeches of the members who have just spoken be taken and sent at once to the Danville committee in Washington. This evoked renewed laughter.

Our opinion is that the colored people at present, and possibly for a long time to come, cannot and should not, and must not, in any national or general contest between political parties as now constituted in this country, vote any other ticket than the straight Republican ticket, and the black man who does, certainly has no gratitude or no sense; and men who advise it are either knaves or tricksters who care nothing for the people's interest. Suppose there are mean men who manage party affairs or hold high places, shall we discard the party that in the main is the embodiment and defender of every principle which men hold dear?—Atlanta Herald.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The work has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved, and they ought to be sung."—Bishop J. W. Hamley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Must be the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Deadwood Jim's Band.

Oil City, March 9.—A band of would be cowboys, whose members do not average 10 years of age, has been broken up in Franklin by the spanking process liberally administered by parental hands. They had fixed their plans in a manner that would have done credit to the desperadoes of the West. They held their meetings, matured their plans, and a few days ago had everything in readiness for their departure. Their captain, familiarly called Deadwood Jim, gave the final orders. That they might have no cause to return, he said each member of the band must poison his mother. He promised to produce the poison and have it on hand the next day, when it could be divided. All the boys were to poison their mothers in the evening, and the morning was to find them far away.

No doubt they would have carried out their diabolical plot but for one small seven year-old youngster, who was afraid his mother would suffer too much. The captain to satisfy him, agreed to try the poison on the servant girl first, and if she died easily then the mother must follow. The servant girl happened to overhear the agreement, and informed the boy's parents. The result was that each particular member of the gang was interviewed with straps in the woodshed.

The remains of Ah Sam, the Chinese cook of the Jeannette, after have been brought some 15,000 miles from the mouth of the Lena river to New York, are now to be sent home to China, some 13,000 miles further. The whole distance that will have been tarveled by the corpse when it reaches China is estimated at over 28,000 miles, or more than the distance around the globe.

The firing at Zariba was owing to the attempt of 300 rebels to cut off the British convoy. The British cavalry quickly dispersed the rebels. A number of Egyptian camel drivers promptly bolted during the attack. A general order has been issued thanking in flattering terms Baker Pasha and Col. Burnaby for their valuable services.

The Copiah County massacre occured because the commnnity in which it took place is not a civilized community. Nobody can read the reports of it with any share of sympathy, or with any other feeling than indignation and disgust. It is true that indignation and disgut will do no good. It is not practicable to embody those sentiments in legislation which will be effective. And the savagery of Mississippi is its own punishment. One witness testified that he would sell for $2,500 a farm that cost him $5,000, but that nobody would buy it even at half price. Another witness, an industrious negro, whose property is taxed at $4,000, said that he too would sell at half price and move into some more civilized community if he could find a purchaser. So long as such brutes as those who murdered Matthews are allowed to go unpunished, so long civilized people will decline to risk their lives in Copiah County.—N. Y. Times.

It is a well known fact that the children of parents in humble circumstances often succeed better than the children of the rich; and their greater success must arise from their being stimulated by their scanty means to improve the utmost talents which God has given them.

Without consulting the figures many persons would refuse to believe that the army and navy, or war expenses of our government, including, of course, the pensions, constitute about one-half the total expenditure.

The thing desired is to make men forget they are anything but American.

Sheikh Senoussa has sent a letter to the Khedive branding El Mahdi as a bad Moslem, an impostor and an assassin.

Plain Talk from Copiah County.

Many Southerners insist—between campaigns—that the colored people vote as they please and are not disturbed for exercising their political rights. A few days ago, however, a Copiah county (Miss.) democrat informed Senator Hoar's outrage committee that "if you should send your biggest man—General Grant—down into our county to organize the negroes he would be killed at once," this expression of sentiment was applauded by a crowd of democratic listeners. As organization is absolutely necessary to men who expect to work together politically, the rights of colored voters appear to amount to nothing in Copiah county, unless this witness is a mere braggart, more fond of the sound of his own voice than of the truth.

The same witness laid all the troubles of last autumn to the independents, and said of this faction, "We would have taken human life if it had been necessary in order to get rid of them. Yes, we would do it if they had a majority of the votes." It will do no good to wave the bloody shirt over this statement, for the witness and those who believe with him cannot be disfranchised or punished for their opinions, but the testimony will keep emigrants and capital from entering Copiah county. No man of property or self-respect will trust himself in a community that believes in overcoming majorities by murder.—New York Herald.

The Iowa Legislature has passed this Prohibitory bill.

Section 1. That section 1,555, chapter 6, title 11 of the Code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

Sec. 1,555. Wherever the words intoxicated liquor occur in this chapter the same shall be construed to mean alcohol, ale, wine, beer, spirituons, vinous, and malt liquors, and all intoxicating liquors whatever; and no person shall manufacture for sale, or sell or keep for sale as a beverage, any intoxicating liquors whatever, including ale, wine, and beer; and the same provisions and penalties of law in force relating to intoxicating liquor shall in like manner be held and construed to apply to violations of this act; and the manufacture, sale, or keeping for sale with intent to sell, or keeping or establishing a place for the sale of ale, wine, and beer, and all other in toxicating liquors whatever.

Sec. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.
As a Brain Food.

Dr. S. F. Newcomer, Greenfield, O., says: "In cases of general debility, and torpor of mind and body, it does exceedingly well."

We have no need to complain of what we can remedy, and it is folly to complain of what we can not change. We can not comprehend all the mysteries that surround us in this life; but God reigns; and trusting in his divine wisdom and goodness, we should cheerfully, with an uncomplaining spirit, endure. You can not have a sweet Christian spirit and be a constant grumbler.—Methodist Recorder.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this pader. n44-14t

Thousands Hastened to their Graves!

Relying on testimonials written in vivid glowing language of some miraculous cures made by some largely puffed up doctor or patent medicine has hastened thousands to their graves; believing in their almost insane faith that the same miracle will be performed on them, and that these testimonials make the cures, while the so-called medicine is all the time hastening them to their graves. We have avoided publishing testimonials, as they do not make the cures, although we have.

THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS

of them, of the most wonderful cures, voluntarily sent us. It is our medicine, Hop Bitters that makes the cures. It has never failed and never can. We will give reference to any one for any disease similar to their own if desired, or will refer to any neighbor, as there is not a neighborhood in the known world but can show its cures by Hop Bitters.

A LOSING JOKE.

A prominent physician of Pittsburgh said to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill-health, and of his inability to cure her, jokingly said: "Try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, as it cost him a good patient.

FEES OF DOCTORS

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in. We believe the schedule for visits is $3.00, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe."

GIVEN UP BY THE DOCTORS.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die, from Kidney and Liver trouble!"

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. je14-1y

MARRIAGES.

Mrs. Jane Mathews and Mr. W. C. Bowdoin, [illegible] Kaufman, Texas, March 4, 1884. May this union of love be augmented by a successful life, and a happy home.

M. HENSON.

DEATHS.

Melvin Boody, a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Forest, Miss., died Feb. 7, 1884. For many years he had been a steward and trustee in the church, and was esteemed a Christian gentleman by all who knew him. On his dying bed, and almost his last words, were "All is well." Resolutions of Christian sympathy were passed by the official board, of which he was a member.

Sister Melinda Edwards fell asleep in Jesus, and passed from labor to rest and reward. Thank the Lord our people die well.

J. C. GARRETT.

Sister Henrietta Carnes, a member of the M. E. Church, at Columbus, Texas, departed this life Feb. 25, 1884. She is the mother of Rev. J. R. Carnes.

M. HENSON.

Another servant of the church has gone to his final home. Bro. Isaac Ogburn departed this life Feb. 19, 1884, aged 56 years. He has been a member of the M. E. Church for several years, and has held every office in the church. He was a steward and assistant Sunday-school superintendent at the time of his death, and a member of several societies. He was buried with Masonic honors.

P. BLUE.

Enterprise, Miss.

Sister Harriet Neal, a veteran of the cross, passed away Feb. 27, 1884, aged about 74 years. She lay speechless for eleven days, all in silent prayer. Five months ago she buried her last child. All that is left to mourn this dear sister is little Tommy, her grand-child, about six years old. He being a member of the Lutheran Benevolent Society, as his mother and grand-mother were, they take the child and will care for him and see that he is in proper hands and cared for until of age. Peace to her remains.

T. WRIGHT.

Natchitoches, La., Feb. 29.

Brother Taylor Davis, who has been a faithful member of the M. E. Church over ten years, died March 8, 1884. He was a faithful and true Christian brother. He was always found in his place at church. If any needed of the church or other [illegible] was sure to visit them. His testimony just before the last breath was drawn was, "I am ready to go, my way is clear." This brother leaves a wife and five children to mourn his loss. His wife is also a member of our church.

NEW BOOKS.

COOKING FOR BEGINNERS. By Marion Harland. Published by Lothrop & Co., Boston. Price $1.

Of the art of cooking from personal experience we know but little. We have however had personal and pleasant relation with what we call one of the best cooks in America for nearly thirty-five years. We put this book into her hands and requested a careful perusal of it, and her opinion as to its real value, which we herewith give. She thinks it affords a range of information unsurpassed by any other book of the kind; she has examined and found that it is perfectly adapted to the needs of all engaged in cooking. Young housekeepers will find it of great value. With it in hand there need be none of those mortifying failures so common to young and inexperienced wives. The book will be especially valuable to all of those who have their experience yet to gain.

History of the United States in Rhyme. Boston, D. Lothrop & Co. This is one of those books that is adapted to all times and seasons, and will please the young and old.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Our Little Men and Women, for April, Boston, D. Lothrop & Co., is at hand. This monthly is always welcomed by the boys and girls. Also, from the same publishers, we have the excellent Pansy for March.

The March number of the Ladies' Floral Cabinet contains descriptive articles on early spring shrubbery, illustrated; also recipes, miscellany, notes and gossip. Price $1.25 per year. New York, 22 Vesey street.

The Season for April has been received from the International News Co., and may be found at the news stands. Price 30c. It is a superior, illustrated fashion magazine.

Littell's Living Age for March 1st and 8th, contain The English Church in the Eighteenth Century, Quarterly; The Uncertainties of Science, London Quarterly; Fray Gerundio—a Clerical Don Quixote, Church Quarterly; A Walk to Coomassie, Nineteenth Century; Sir Theodore Martin's Life of Lord Lyndhurst, Blackwood; The Character of Dogs, English Illustrated Magazine; The Pottery Districts of Fiji, Leisure Hour; The True Story of Adam Bede, Sunday Magazine; "Chinese Gordon," and Recreations of Men of Letters, All the Year Round; Christianity and Politics, Spectator; The Defence of Canton, China Mail; with instalments of "A Wizard's Son," "The Baby's Grandmother," and "Valerie's Fate," and the usual amount of poetry.

In The Current, of March 8, Charlotte Adams begins a series of descriptive and analytic papers on "Some New York Studios." They treat of artistic decoration, and leading studios in New York are minutely described to illustrate certain decorative principles. These papers show a most unusual descriptive ability and discriminating perception on the part of the writer. They will be interesting to students and professors of art, and also contain many suggestions which will be found of value in the furnishing and decorations of American homes.

The eminent Bible scholar, Rev. Dr. Philip Scaff, is to contribute to the April number of the North American Review an article on the Development of Religious Liberty.

The prizes recently offered by St. Nicholas, for the best original illustrations by young artists under seventeen years of age, brought more than nine hundred pictures under the notice of the judges. The names of winners and reproductions of the successful drawings will appear in the April St. Nicholas.

Matthew Arnold's paper on "Literature and Science," which will appear in The Manhattan for April, has some of the matter contained in the lecture with that title which he has delivered in the United States, but differs from it in important respects. It has some sharp thrusts at those who clamor for a "practical" education for youth.

Mr. Francis Lathrop, has prepared for The Manhattan a design for a new cover, which has been approved of and will be placed at once in the hands of the engraver.

The Boston Musical Herald, for March has articles on a historic piano, the national popular music, modern composers, etc. Price 10c.

The American Journalist, of St. Louis, for February is an interesting number to all professional writers.

Temperance.

MR. EDITOR—Intoxicating drink is one of the worst enemies we have as a race. It has directly or indirectly led hundreds of our best young men and women to the penitentiary, and thousands to an untimely grave. If it was only confined to the world there would be some hope of soon binding the worthless demon and of putting him under foot, but we must first fight it out of the church, commencing in the pulpit, and going on down to the members, then the church can unite in driving the demon from the land. There are thousands of our race to day who would have comfortable homes, happy wives and educated children if it were not for the practice of intemperance. So, I say, let the church do her duty, and the evil will be removed, and we become a happy, prosperous and respected people. I pray God that the world may be revolutionized on this matter.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $60,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St. Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

THE BEST ELECTRIC BELT EVER MADE ONLY $1

Having obtained the sole right to sell the German Electro-Galvanic Belt in America from the inventor, Prof. Conrad Hamecher of Berlin, we are determined, whatever may be the cost, to introduce them here at once. The price of the Belt has always been $4 to $5 dollars ($4.00), but to induce invalids to give it a trial we will, for the next ninety days, send the German Electro-Galvanic Belt for ONE DOLLAR, provided you will cut out and send us the annexed coupon and give us your written promise to recommend the Belt if you find it as represented. This Belt is without doubt the best, strongest, and most scientifically constructed Electric Appliance ever introduced, being the invention of the great German Electrician, Prof. Hamecher, and has met with the most marvelous success in Europe, being recommended and endorsed by the entire Medical Profession of Germany. The Inventor has in his possession letters from Prince Bismarck and several members of the Royal Family. A quarter of a million of them were sold in the German Empire last year. These Belts, unlike many so-called electric appliances, are very light and not disagreeable to wear, and generate a current that can be immediately felt. Their action is stimulating and at the same time soothing; causing the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Nervous System to act as nature intended they should. Curing thousands of cases that internal medicines failed even to relieve. Under no circumstances can it do any harm and must do good no matter what is the complaint. They are made of cloth, silk lined, and the Electric Discs are so arranged that they retain their strength for years.

This Coupon is worth $5.00.

If you will cut out this Coupon and send it to us with ONE DOLLAR in a registered letter we will send you, postpaid by return mail, One GERMAN ELECTRO-GALVANIC BELT with full directions in both English and German. Write Name and Post Office Address very plainly and give your nearest express office.

Editorial Notes.

The congressional election in the second district of Kansas, by which a free trader was buried under an adverse majority of over 3,000, gives rise to editorials on "A Grave Disappointment," in Democratic journals.

We are told that in Dallas, Texas, a bell is rung every night at eight o'clock to warn the young boys to go home and they go. They must have a good class of boys in Dallas, or else there is something behind that bell that we do not understand.

In some of the Sunday-schools in the city of New York it is quite common to have a Chinese division. At a recent entertainment given by one of the city churches, eight of these converted Chinese were present, four had put off thier queues, and one of them intends to go to China as a missionary.

A late decision of the Supreme Court of the United States declares it constitutional for Congress to issue at will greenback paper as legal tender. A member of constitutional amendments will be submitted to Congress to hold in check mischievous financial legislation, and place some restrictions on the power of Congress to issue legal tender money.

At the recent session of the Philadelphia Conference, Professor Strong addressed the body in the interest of Drew School of Theology. In answer to the question as to how many of the students had left the Methodist Church after graduation and gone to other churches, the Professor said that ont of the 300 who had graduated only six had left the Methodist church.

Church quarrels are to us always unseemly. They belong to that class of evils that Christian charity seeks to cover. Just how the New York Advocate could devote eight columns to the Madison Avenue Congregational Church, and Dr. Newman's unpleasantness, we do not see. Giving publicity to this event can in no way check its bad influence upon the minds of the young. Evidently God was pleased with the sons of Noah, who with a garment upon their shoulders went backward and covered their father's nakedness.

Judge Noah Davis, of New York, in a recent speach at a temperance meeting said: "that his twenty-nine years' experience on the bench has taught him that of all the causes of misery, destitution, crime, and death, intoxicating liquors stand forth the unapproachable chief. He favors high license and rigid restrictions as to the manner of selling liquors as one step toward reform, but hopes to see the time when no person can drink intoxicating liquors under sanction of the law." That is only half way. We hope to see the time when there will be no place in this country where a person can sell liquors under the sanction of law. Stop the selling and we stop the drinking.

Rev. John D. Edwards, D.D., of Virginia, correspondent of the Charleston Advocate, of the Church South, devotes three-fourths of a letter to that paper in distributing adjectives between the Western Christian Advocate and Bishop Pierce. What set him going was the Western's acute criticism of the Bishop's remarkable expressions of negrophobia. Following Bro. Edward's mental essays to grasp the substance of that controversy is as interesting as to gaze upon fire works on a holiday.

Mr. Gates, a Democrat, introduced a bill into the House of Representatives, which would permit U. S. District Attorneys to stand aside objectionable jurors until the panel is exhausted, as is the practice of State courts, only in cases of treason or felony. This bill was intended to destroy the power of United States courts in the prosecution of election frands. Its author confessed the purpose, in reply to questions from Mr. Reed and Mr. Bisbee, and it was rejected by 153 to 61, almost a strict party vote, a two-thirds vote being necessary to suspend the rules. It is folly of this kind which promises to keep the Democracy ont of power in this country.

Hon. B. F. Jonas, U. S. Senator from Louisiana, in his letter to Chairman Jastremski, of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee, announcing that important interests in Washington will prevent his taking part in the State canvass, takes occasion to say, "The people will not soon forget that the last river and harbor bill (containing the appropriation for the Mississippi river) was vetoed by a Republican President." This statement is so utterly disingenuous and stupid that it seems almost impossible to believe that it came from a member of the Senate. The people have not forgotten, If Mr. Jonas has for this occasion seemingly, that the last river and harbor bill was a colossal raid upon the treasury, which the press, without regard to party, condemned. President Arthur's veto was heartily applauded. It was regretted that the Mississippi appropriation had fallen into disreputable association, and the President repeatedly urged separate and ample Mississippi appropriations. The Chambers of Commerce and other public bodies of the Mississippi valley have repeatedly endorsed the President's position. Mr. Jonas chooses to misrepresent the President for partisan ends, in a discourteous inexcusable way; and indicates, that he is not the man to present the sugar or levee claims of Louisiana in Congress.

Mr. Parnell, preparing for the anticipated dissolution of Parliament, has already selected sixty parliamentary candidates. His party will contest all seats and expects to carry seventy five. Cambridgeshire elected Coole, Liberal, to Parliament.

In Memory of Mrs. Annie V. Pickett.

Who departed this life on Sunday evening, the 9th inst., at the residence of her brother, Matt Sharber, in this place, in the 35th year of her age. From her earliest childhood she was brought up in the family of the writer, as a house-servant, and remained with us until the close of the war; and we all bear a willing testimony to her integrity and fidelity in all of the duties and responsibilities which devolved upon her, never wavering in her devotion and attachment to the family, even during the darkest hours and most trying scenes of the late war. Her advantages for obtaining an education in her early life were much better than that of most persons in her condition, as around the fireside and in the room with our daughters while they were engaged in their studies, she was aided in gathering up the rudiaments of a good English education. These were opportunities which she appreciated, and as she had a quick and ready mind and a good memory, she there laid the foundation of an education which has ripened into a knowledge of books of which any one might well be proud. She graduated in the normal department of the Central Tennessee College in 1877, and afterwards attended school for a single term at Oberlin, Ohio. For several years past she has been successfully engaged in teaching, and has acquired a good reputation as a teacher. The late Rev. Mr. Mack, who was school superintendent, said to the writer that she was the best colored teacher he had in any of his schools. Her deportment has ever been modest and discreet, and such as to command the respect of all, without regard to color or social position. She married a few years ago to Rev. James Pickett, who is the presiding elder of the Nashville district of the M. E. Church, and who stands high with his people as a man of piety and intelligence. He was absent in Nashville, on ministerial duty, at the time of her death, not anticipating the sad event so soon; but the fell destroyer, consumption, had marked her as his victim, and no power on earth could stay the inevitable stroke.

"As fades the summer cloud away,
As sinks the gale when storms are o'er,"

So gently passed away her meek and pure spirit in joyous hope of a happy life beyond the grave. "Well done, good and faithful servant," is the language of all our hearts as we offer to her memory this slight tribute of our praise, while in accents sweeter far than earth can utter, this welcome plaudit has reached her spirit, not only welcome, but "enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

T. B. BOND AND FAMILY.

H. J. Wright writes from Natchitoches, Louisiana: "The Woman's Home Missionary Society of Natchitoches are anxious for a missionary lady teacher who will be able to teach music. We have a splendid organ, we want a teacher. Can such a one be had? If so please address me, and give some reference"

The rebels are surrounding Gen. Gordon, at Khartonm, and he is arming the people for defense. His expedition succeeded in rescueing the garrison of 1,200 men at Holfaya, and bringing them away in steamers.

Letter From Leeville.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to say something, especially to the Tennessee conference, about our affectionate brother in Christ, and father in the Gospel, Rev. John Seay. He is now confined to his bed, and has been for a month today. Bro. Seay is the senior of our conference in both age and office, and is now in his 90th year. His example as a worker in the Master's vineyard is great. I stood by his bedside yesterday and conversed with him about heaven. He blessed God for a conscience void of guilt in all respects. His biography, from birth up to his 89th year, is clear from the use of tobacco in all its forms and strong drink as a beverage. God has given Bro. Seay great riches, and I believe they were given him as a resource for the poor; the colored people have enjoyed them from emancipation to the present time, and they will be remembered as long as the conference organization remains. He has given means to buy church lots, build church and school house, and hire teachers to teach the emancipated people. These donations amount to thousands of dollars. He has also appropriated a large amount of property to be used as a resource for widows, orphans and destitute preachers in the Tennesse Conference, and asks that his name be kept at the head of the roll. Bro. Seay thinks he is better, and I think so too. He has no family and never did have, but has a good nurse in Sister McCleunon. The following brethren have visited him during his illness: Dr. Braden, of Nashville; B. Anderson, of Lebanon; and W. H. Key, of Murfreesboro. The elder spent a night and served as nurse. Elder Key is a good man, and his prayers were felt and acknowledged by the invalid. Pray, brethren, that the Lord may, if it is His will, restore Bro. Seay, and if not, give him the victory in death. His smokehouse and corn-crib are ofttimes open to the poor of all classes. He gave me $6.24 per month, a house to live in, 3 or 4 acres of land for my largest boy to work, and has divided provisions for me from his stores. The weather has been bad, and caused irregular attendance at church, but some never fail to come, and attend also the Sabbath-school and class meeting. Those who cannot come hold prayer meetings at their homes. Sunday-school is increasing and we are having a nice school at Seay's chapel. At Jacob's Hill the small pox prevails, and I can not go there; but we hope the people there will soon be rid of it. Pray for our success.

J. A. C. WADE.

Leeville, Tenn., March 4.

It is not easy to understand why the Democrats in the House of Representatives should go to the trouble of maturing bills to impede the course of justice in election fraud cases, when they know that they cannot become law, and when their real motive is sure to be exposed. The attempt yesterday to deprive United States attorneys of the chance to get impartial juries in such cases met the fate which it deserved, and was promptly defeated after its purpose had been disclosed. Our Democratic friends should reserve these tricks until they are in a position to carry them through successfully. If they do not, they may never arrive at that position.—New York Times.

The Richmond, Va., Christian Advocate tells the following "incident." That editor probably avoided the word "story," because of its donble meaning:

"We will give the bishop [Bowman] an incident: The Rev. William Closs, for many years a leader in the North Carolina conference, was present when Bishop Ames held one of the mixed sessions. A negro preacher's name was called. The elder rose and said, "There is trouble in this case." "What is it?" "You see, bishop, Brother Ben rid away the wrong horse, the sheriff was a-hunting Brother Ben, and Brother Ben could not fill his appointments under the circumstances." Bishop Ames said, "We can arrange that: I will send him to another circuit at the other end of the conference." Dr. Closs, who rode horseback to the conference, arose at once, mounted, and left before "Brother Ben" had a chance at his nag. We heard this account from the lips of Dr. Closs. And from "Brother Ben" and corrupt revenue officials does a bishop gather his stories to inflame our brethren of the north against us, and rally them in the approaching presidential campaign."

That a negro miseducated among southern Christians might appropriate a horse is not incredible. A horse was property and a negro was property. That property can steal property is morally impossible. A dog takes a bone, but it is no more immoral than if the bone had stolen the dog. We do not believe southern white brethren who recall "incidents" like the above are morally incompetent to teach honesty to southern black and white masses. That they are preferable teachers in the eyes of the poor whose moral estimate of ownership was once confused by those who defended slavery, we do not believe. In this last statement is the explanation of northern Methodist presence in the south. In this, too, is Bishop Pierce's objection to our presence. This, however, is incidental to that "incident." The implication is: Ben stole a horse, and since the sheriff needed both the horse and Ben, the "appintments" might no be filled regularly by the thief. Bishop Ames—E. R. Ames—accordingly proposed to cleanse Ben's character by sending him to another circuit! Our friend Lafferty "heard this account from the lips of Dr. Closs." Well, that's the place from which even doctors are usually heard, even if they are unworthy of being heard or believed Dr. Closs will do well to look up a passage which teaches that lying lips are an abomination unto God. Our editorial friend does well to save his own credit among his own and Dr. Closs's friends by being particular to locate the ownership of the abominable lips. "The lips of Dr. Closs" sounds definite, but it smacks of judicious caution, even at this distance. It Dr. Closs intends to intimate that Bishop Ames sought to protect, by "a transfer," a preacher justly accussed of theft, we shall not hasten to identify the lip-owner at any Chicago bank, if the draft calls for only ten cents. It might be considered fraternal to print the "incident" without these comments, but just that kind of fraternity is not our strong point. In such cases, however, the comments generally outlive the incident. Presently, in the approaching presidential campaign, we shall hear that "The Northwestern called a Southern Methodist doctor in divinity a liar." We make the timely admission that the charge against us is not utterly groundless. Doth Dr. Class survive even unto this day? We hope so, because Bishop Ames is dead.—Northwestern.

Worshiping Mary.

The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE contained an article to which the Monitor has demurred, by stating that it is not true. Said article, according to the Monitor, stated that Romanists paid divine honors to Mary. The Monitor states that it is not so; but I affirm that they do, by attributing to her the attribute of Deity. In the vulgate (Latin) edition of the New Testament, the words of Christ are as follows: "Dominum tuum adorabis et illi servies." And in the Greek we find the word proskuneseis, which means to do hom age, to prostrate oneself before, to reverence or to worship.

I claim that they do pay divine honors to Mary, and to each one of their so-called saints, inasmuch as they make them omnipotent, omnipresent and omniscient. Our Lord tells us that we shall only render homage, service, adoration, or prostrate ourselves (proskuneceis) before our God, while they do exactly what Christ has forbidden to every image and so-called saint in the calendar. And something more. The heathen of antiquity bowed down before their images, not really believing that the image was God, but only as a representation of the God they worshiped. In the Church of which the Monitor constitutes itself the champion, they have their images, which they also state are only the representations of the gods they worship. Now, as a conundrum, I ask that you tell me, where is the difference between the two—the ancient heathen worship, and the modern? and if they are not the same in all essential points? H. L. H.

This bill was intended to destroy the power of United States courts in the prosecution of election frauds. Its author confessed the purpose, in reply to questions from Mr. Reed and Mr. Bisbee, and it was rejected by 153 to 61, almost a strict party vote, a two-thirds vote being necessary to suspend the rules. It is folly of this kind which promises to keep the Democracy out of power in this country.

Hon. B. F. Jonas, U. S. Senator from Louisiana, in his letter to Chairman Jastremski, of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee, announcing that important interests in Washington will prevent his taking part in the State canvass, takes occasion to say, "The people will not soon forget that the last river and harbor bill (containing the appropriation for the Mississippi river) was vetoed by a Republican President." This statement is so utterly disingenuous and stupid that it seems almost impossible to believe that it came from a member of the Senate. The people have not forgotten, if Mr. Jonas has for this occasion seemingly, that the last river and harbor bill was a colossal raid upon the treasury, which the press, without regard to party, condemned. President Arthur's veto was heartily applauded. It was regretted that the Mississippi appropriation had fallen into disreputable association, and the President repeatedly urged separate and ample Mississippi appropriations. The Chambers of Commerce and other public bodies of the Mississippi valley have repeatedly endorsed the President's position. Mr. Jonas chooses to misrepresent the President for partisan ends, in a discourteous inexcusable way; and indicates, that he is not the man to present the sugar or levee claims of Louisiana in Congress.

Mr. Parnell, preparing for the anticipated dissolution of Parliament, has already selected sixty parliamentary candidates. His party will contest all seats and expects to carry seventy five. Cambridgeshire elected Coole, Liberal, to Parliament.

In Memory of Mrs. Annie V. Pickett.

Who departed this life on Sunday evening, the 9th inst., at the residence of her brother, Matt Sharber, in this place, in the 35th year of her age. From her earliest childhood she was brought up in the family of the writer, as a house-servant, and remained with us until the close of the war; and we all bear a willing testimony to her integrity and fidelity in all of the duties and responsibilities which devolved upon her, never wavering in her devotion and attachment to the family, even during the darkest hours and most trying scenes of the late war. Her advantages for obtaining an education in her early life were much better than that of most persons in her condition, as around the fireside and in the room with our daughters while they were engaged in their studies, she was aided in gathering up the rudiaments of a good English education. These were opportunities which she appreciated, and as she had a quick and ready mind and a good memory, she there laid the foundation of an education which has ripened into a knowledge of books of which any one might well be proud. She graduated in the normal department of the Central Tennessee College in 1877, and afterwards attended school for a single term at Oberlin, Ohio. For several years past she has been successfully engaged in teaching, and has acquired a good reputation as a teacher. The late Rev. Mr. Mack, who was school superintendent, said to the writer that she was the best colored teacher he had in any of his schools. Her deportment has ever been modest and discreet, and such as to command the respect of all, without regard to color or social position. She married a few years ago to Rev. James Pickett, who is the presiding elder of the Nashville district of the M. E. Church, and who stands high with his people as a man of piety and intelligence. He was absent in Nashville, on ministerial duty, at the time of her death, not anticipating the sad event so soon; but the fell destroyer, consumption, had marked her as his victim, and no power on earth could stay the inevitable stroke.

"As fades the summer cloud away,
As sinks the gale when storms are o'er,"

So gently passed away her meek and pure spirit in joyous hope of a happy life beyond the grave. "Well done, good and faithful servant," is the language of all our hearts as we offer to her memory this slight tribute of our praise, while in accents sweeter far than earth can utter, this welcome plaudit has reached her spirit, not only welcome, but "enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

H. J. Wright writes from Natchitoches, Louisiana: "The Woman's Home Missionary Society of Natchitoches are anxious for a missionary lady teacher who will be able to teach music. We have a splendid organ, we want a teacher. Can such a one be had? If so please address me, and give some reference"

Letter From Leeville.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to say something, especially to the Tennessee conference, about our affectionate brother in Christ, and father in the Gospel, Rev. John Seay. He is now confined to his bed, and has been for a month today. Bro. Seay is the senior of our conference in both age and office, and is now in his 90th year. His example as a worker in the Master's vineyard is great. I stood by his bedside yesterday and conversed with him about heaven. He blessed God for a conscience void of guilt in all respects. His biography, from birth up to his 89th year, is clear from the use of tobacco in all its forms and strong drink as a beverage. God has given Bro. Seay great riches, and I believe they were given him as a resource for the poor; the colored people have enjoyed them from emancipation to the present time, and they will be remembered as long as the conference organization remains. He has given means to buy church lots, build church and school house, and hire teachers to teach the emancipated people. These donations amount to thousands of dollars. He has also appropriated a large amount of property to be used as a resource for widows, orphans and destitute preachers in the Tennesse Conference, and asks that his name be kept at the head of the roll. Bro. Seay thinks he is better, and I think so too. He has no family and never did have, but has a good nurse in Sister McClennon. The following brethren have visited him during his illness: Dr. Braden, of Nashville; B. Anderson, of Lebanon; and W. H. Key, of Murfreesboro. The elder spent a night and served as nurse. Elder Key is a good man, and his prayers were felt and acknowledged by the invalid. Pray, brethren, that the Lord may, if it is His will, restore Bro. Seay, and if not, give him the victory in death. His smokehouse and corn-crib are ofttimes open to the poor of all classes. He gave me $6.24 per month, a house to live in, 3 or 4 acres of land for my largest boy to work, and has divided provisions for me from his stores. The weather has been bad, and caused irregular attendance at church, but some never fail to come, and attend also the Sabbath-school and class meeting. Those who cannot come hold prayer meetings at their homes. Sunday-school is increasing and we are having a nice school at Seay's chapel. At Jacob's Hill the small pox prevails, and I can not go there; but we hope the people there will soon be rid of it. Pray for our success.

Leeville, Tenn., March 4.

It is not easy to understand why the Democrats in the House of Representatives should go to the trouble of maturing bills to impede the course of justice in election fraud cases, when they know that they cannot become law, and when their real motive is sure to be exposed. The attempt yesterday to deprive United States attorneys of the chance to get impartial juries in such cases met the fate which it deserved, and was promptly defeated after its purpose had been disclosed. Our Democratic friends should reserve these tricks until they are in a position to carry them through successfully. If they do not, they may never arrive at that position.—New York Times.

The Richmond, Va., Christian Advocate tells the following "incident." That editor probably avoided the word "story," because of its double meaning:

"We will give the bishop [Bowman] an incident: The Rev. William Closs, for many years a leader in the North Carolina conference, was present when Bishop Ames held one of the mixed sessions. A negro preacher's name was called. The elder rose and said, "There is trouble in this case." "What is it?" "You see, bishop, Brother Ben rid away the wrong horse, the sheriff was a-hunting Brother Ben, and Brother Ben could not fill his appointments under the circumstances." Bishop Ames said, "We can arrange that: I will send him to another circuit at the other end of the conference." Dr. Closs, who rode horseback to the conference, arose at once, mounted, and left before "Brother Ben" had a chance at his nag. We heard this account from the lips of Dr. Closs. And from "Brother Ben" and corrupt revenue officials does a bishop gather his stories to inflame our brethren of the north against us, and rally them in the approaching presidential campaign."

That a negro miseducated among southern Christians might appropriate a horse is not incredible. A horse was property and a negro was property. That property can steal property is morally impossible. A dog takes a bone, but it is no more immoral than if the bone had stolen the dog. We do not believe southern white brethren who recall "incidents" like the above are morally incompetent to teach honesty to southern black and white masses. That they are preferable teachers in the eyes of the poor whose moral estimate of ownership was once confused by those who defended slavery, we do not believe. In this last statement is the explanation of northern Methodist presence in the south. In this, too, is Bishop Pierce's objection to our presence. This, however, is incidental to that "incident." The implication is: Ben stole a horse, and since the sheriff needed both the horse and Ben, the "appintments" might no be filled regularly by the thief. Bishop Ames—E. R. Ames—accordingly proposed to cleanse Ben's character by sending him to another circuit! Our friend Lafferty "heard this account from the lips of Dr. Closs." Well, that's the place from which even doctors are usually heard, even if they are unworthy of being heard or believed Dr. Closs will do well to look up a passage which teaches that lying lips are an abomination unto God. Our editorial friend does well to save his own credit among his own and Dr. Closs's friends by being particular to locate the ownership of the abominable lips. "The lips of Dr. Closs" sounds definite, but it smacks of judicious caution, even at this distance. It Dr. Closs intends to intimate that Bishop Ames sought to protect, by "a transfer," a preacher justly accussed of theft, we shall not hasten to identify the lip-owner at any Chicago bank, if the draft calls for only ten cents. It might be considered fraternal to print the "incident" without these comments, but just that kind of fraternity is not our strong point. In such cases, however, the comments generally outlive the incident. Presently, in the approaching presidential campaign, we shall hear that "The Northwestern called a Southern Methodist doctor in divinity a liar." We make the timely admission that the charge against us is not utterly groundless. Doth Dr. Class survive even unto this day? We hope so, because Bishop Ames is dead.—Northwestern.

Worshiping Mary.

The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE contained an article to which the Monitor has demurred, by stating that it is not true. Said article, according to the Monitor, stated that Romanists paid divine honors to Mary. The Monitor states that it is not so; but I affirm that they do, by attributing to her the attribute of Deity. In the vulgate (Latin) edition of the New Testament, the words of Christ are as follows: "Dominum tuum adorabis et illi servies." And in the Greek we find the word proskunesceis, which means to do homage, to prostrate oneself before, to reverence or to worship.

I claim that they do pay divine honors to Mary, and to each one of their so-called saints, inasmuch as they make them omnipotent, omnipresent and omniscient. Our Lord tells us that we shall only render homage, service, adoration, or prostrate ourselves (proskunesceis) before our God, while they do exactly what Christ has forbidden to every image and so-called saint in the calendar. And something more. The heathen of antiquity bowed down before their images, not really believing that the image was God, but only as a representation of the God they worshiped. In the Church of which the Monitor constitutes itself the champion, they have their images, which they also state are only the representations of the gods they worship. Now, as a conundrum, I ask that you tell me, where is the difference between the two—the ancient heathen worship, and the modern? and if they are not the same in all essential points? H. L. H.

SOILED-PRINT BLEEDS THROUGH

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

Taylor Moore, Paris: "The first Sunday in February I was at St. Paul church, about ten miles northeast of Paris. I always meet the stewards and official members on Saturday evening. Three joined the church, 1 was baptized, and collection for pastor was $7.50. A stove was also bought. At Owsley Chapel, on the second Sunday, there was a good congregation and school; collection for pastor $3. On third Sunday was at the Northwest. Here are very few members and no church. On fourth Sunday was at Rich Hill and remained a week. It has given me tronble. There has been talk of building a church there for abont two years, and I have had to expel some who were members for 20 years. Sunday night I asked for an ax and got a crowd, and got ont all the timber and laid a foundation. I determined to build that church."

Lewis Burton, Hockley: "We had a good revival on the 1st. There were 10 accessions, and a lovely congregation. The stewards worked faithfully. Collection $6."

H. Johns, Clarksville: "Elder Webb filled my quarterly preached on Sunday, and administered the sacrament. The people were greatly pleased with his preaching."

A. Brown, Hubbard City: "Elder Gates was with us on the 23d and 24th, and nearly all the brethren were present at the quarterly conference. On Sunday morning we had lovefeast meeting, and many felt the love of Jesus. At 11 a. m. Bro. Gates preached to a large nnmber, and many came forward and par took of the sacrament."

Green Bragner, Hubbard: "Elder Gates held our first quarter and preached to a large congregation. Collection $5.10."

G. Norman, Manor circuit. "The work is in very good condition, considering the drawbacks of bad weather, and my illness of several weeks. We shall raise all of our benevolent collections; they are being collected now. Pray for us."

LOUISIANA.

J. Patterson, Cotile: "There are four preaching points and one church on this circuit. One was burned up and another blown down. The circuit is 40 miles long, and I have no horse to ride, and no money to buy one with; there is no horse for the preacher and no Bible for the churches. We have commenced a church 30x40, have it framed, and will soon complete it. The members are scattered, but seem to be in good spirits, and determined to do whatever is needed. Elder Duncan was with us, and held a fine quarterly meeting. Collection was $15."

Saunders Carroll, New Roads: "I am surrounded here with Catholics and Baptists. My membership is very small, 16 in nnmber. This point has not been kept up regularly for about 3 years. The word Methodist was almost gone ont of the mind of these people. I have opened a Sunday-school, and have no books. There is no other way to establish our church here, than to establish it in the hearts of the children."

R. P. Yonngreen, Rosedale: "We have an excellent breeze for sailing; sailors and officers are hard by their posts. Our first quarterly conference convened Friday, the first; reports from pastor, Sunday-school superintendent, local preachers and leaders were in excellent order, and called forth pleasant comments from the presiding elder, J. Landry; the Sunday-school is steadily increasing in nnmbers and efficiency under the able management of ex-Representative Wm. Page. The outlook is flattering for Zion Sunday-school. The elder preached to a large and crowded congregation Sunday night. It was a time of great rejoicing; his great heart is as large as his splendid body, and as warm as love itself."

W. Chapman, Monroe: "I can say there is a great difference in my reception by the church at Monroe from that I met at Mansfield. I have been met by all with a pleasant smile, and have been bidden God's speed in the overthrow of error and of the establishment of truth. Our first quarterly conference has been held, and from what I have seen I can predict a successful year's work for the Master in this field. As a whole the people are doing all they can to have their children educated, both morally and intellectually. Sister Williams, one of our missionary sisters, being present at the session of our conference, has returned home filled with a missionary spirit to do more in establishing the Master's kingdom on earth. We met our Sunday-school and preached to the children. We hope to send a score of subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN. The indications are we shall have an overflow. Pray for our success, and that superstiton, vice, and immorality may take to themselves wings and fly away."

MISSISSIPPI.

Wm. Campbell, of Deasonville: "I have tried to arouse the brethren to the necessity of having a respectable house in which to worship God, and they seem determined to have one. I found 2,000 feet of lumber on the ground, the church is nearly half completed. It is 26x36, with seven glass windows. Our collection Sunday was $65.65 for the church and $7 for the pastor. The begging committee for the church reported as follows: James Allen, $14; James Elam, $17.70; Sarah Allen, $13.65; and Sister Tibles, $13.55."

J. W. Longstreet, Macon: "Allow me space to give a sketch of the working of Methodism at this place. Through the wisdom of the last Annual Conference Rev W. H. H. Gallion was appointed pastor for this place. He arrived here on the night of Jan. 31st; was met at the railroad station by several of the brethren, and on the following Sunday he visited Sabbath-school, was introduced by your humble servent, after which he delivered an able address to the shool. It was announced that he would preach at 3 o'clock and as a matter of course the church was filled to its overflowing, every one eager to hear the "new preacher." At the appointed hour service commenced, by singing one of the songs of Zion. "Guide me, Oh Thou Great Jehovah," followed by a prayer by our much esteemed and beloved Elder, James Campbell. Bro. Gallion, selected for his text 133d Psalm. We all left rejoicing that we had gone out to the house of God, and at 7½ services again, at which time we had another outpouring of the Holy Ghost. I am satisfied from the indications of things, Bro. Gallion is the right man in the right place. He is highly respected by all, and ere this year draws to a close great good will have been accomplished for the cause of Christ. Sister Gallion is a real missionary in the cause of Christ. She has satisfied us that she has purchased a through ticket and has also had her baggage checked all the way through. We have estimated our pastor's salary at $500, including parsonage. Pray for us, dear editor, you shall hear from us again."

TENNESSEE.

A. Roach, Sweetwater: "After hearing the lecture and sermon of Bishop Warren and other distinguished visitors to our conference, I was assigned to a new field called the Sweetwater circuit. I believe the appointment was through the divine guidance. I commenced the work on the new field with new zeal to win for Christ. I have three appointments. I held protracted meetings. I commenced a meeting at Sweetwater which lasted 15 days; the result was 12 professed religion and 8 joined the church. I commenced at Philadelphia, my meeting lasted 13 days, 1 professed religion and 4 joined from other churches. I commenced at Athens; the meeting lasted 19 days, 3 professed and 2 joined the church; the membership is greatly revived. On the 23rd and 24th our presiding elder, Rev. E. Provine, came to our assistance. For the first time a presiding elder of our church preached in Philadelphia; he traveled around the circuit with me. He is loved by the people. We have no church property, but I am trying to secure lots and get the deed made according to laws of our church. We are determined to build up this circuit. The finances are low but we think it will be better when the winter passes away and the time of the singing of the birds come. Pray for us."

B. Anderson, Lebanon: "I found this work in very good condition. First quarterly conference was held at Smith Chapel, which has 29 members, and was he'd by B. B. Manson, in the absence of Elder Key. I visited John Seay, who is very sick. He said he never wanted the temperance cause to go down, and he was pleased that his name stood at the head of the Tennessee Conference roll, and he wanted it to remain there after he is in his grave. Let us remember the trust this good brother has bestowed on us in sending help to so many churches, and poor people of both races."

D. Collier, Waynesboro: "I have put committees to work for the benevolent collections, and gone to work in the Sunday-school. The presiding elder seemed to be pleased with the first quarterly meeting, for something had been raised for every cause. The people seem to be encouraged and uphold me. I do all I can to have them conform to the discipline. My circuit is 51 miles long with 7 appointments and five dangerous streams of water, and there are 3 local preachers and 4 exhorters to help me. Rev. J. B. Bradford came with the elder and preached two reviving sermons."

S. B. Danley, Purdy: "Our quarterly conference was held by Elder Price, and it was a time of rejoicing. He visited all points. Paid elder $8.50; pastor, for moving and salary, $52; bishop, 15c.; missionary, $1; Church Extension, 90c.; Sunday-school Union, 10c.; tract, 40c.; Bible cause 10c. We have four Sunday-schools in good condition, and over 100 scholars. Shey are well supplied with our literature. The good people at Nebo think no school should be without the leaf cluster. We have 11 subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. The former pastor, J. B. Bradford, enjoyed an excellent reputation, and I have met with a kind reception from all. A new court-house, to cost $15,000 is to be built here. The Wesleyan Methodists have the foundation laid for a new school-house, and with other attachments it will reflect credit when completed. Elder Price visited the jail and talked to the prisoners. We hope to be the means of doing much good here. Pray for us."

Why Should Theology Take the Rear?

When we look over the work of the M. E. Church, and especially its educational work among the colored people of the South, our hearts rejoice and we are constrained to say, "praise God from whom all blessings flow." But when we look a little farther, the caption under which this article is written presents itself to our mind with so much force until it seems almost like an impossibility for us to refrain from asking a solution of it from some other source than ourselves. In scanning the work of the Central Tennessee College, of which we have the pleasure of being a student, we find that it has, since its organization, sent forth from its several departments graduates as follows: Classical 8, scientific 3, academic 6, normal 18, medical 39, and theological 3. Now to the figures above we are ready to say amen to all but one, and that the theological, from the simple fact that we believe that had not this most important department been overlooked or neglected in some way, it certainly could have done more work than this in the time it has been considered as one of the established departments of the college. Thirty-nine doctors! this is good. But are not the souls of men worth as much as their bodies; yea, are they not far more valuable? The people are being educated, and this advancement among the people calls loudly for a corresponding advancement in the ministerial columns. Each year makes it more and more difficult for the bishops in making appointments so as to best meet the popular demand. Will the church, then, sit still and not take some steps to supply it? Can we afford to have it said that the theological department of the head of our schools of the South has been suspended for want of a teacher? This means that Methodism must take the rear or leave the field. The colored people love the Methodist Church, not because they understand its doctrines, but because it was, as they believe, the instrument in the hand of God in bringing to them the enjoyment of freedom, and as they are educated will begin to inquire into her doctrine and theology, and if our ministers are not able to explain intelligently the doctrine of the church, as the ministers of some other denomination, the colored people will gradually go over to some other church, and thus be lost to Methodism. This we cannot afford. Three graduates from the theological department of the head of our Southern institutions, and two of them ministers of the A. M. E. Church. Taking this for an example, let us suppose that all of our institutions of the South are moving at this rate, and where will Methodism be in the next half century? Brethren, the Gospel of Jesus Christ is a lever whose fulcrum is the Rock of Ages, and whose operator is the minister of the Gospel. Now if the operator be untrained, inexperienced and awkward, how can the great masses of humanity be elevated from their dead level in sin to a living and spiritual perpendicular in Christ Jesus. The Tennessee Conference, with all of its advantages and access to the college, cannot boast of one graduate from this department.

Two-thirds of the classes recommended by the district conferences and seeking admission into the itinerant ranks are men who have never seen into the theological schools, and many of them seem to have as their greatest ambition "to get in." Let me say to those of this class, that the people will, in a few years, have as high an ambition to "get you out," as you have to "get in," and not only you but also the ones who let you "get in." Now, let us suggest to the editor, that if he cannot "get at the ears of the heads of the Freedmen's Aid Society," then get at their eyes, and let them see in plain, clear points the danger which is coming to the church from this neglected source. Let them see that nearly seven million of people are crying for the pure Word of God. Hundreds of thousands of Sunday-school scholars who visit the day schools, come up to the Sunday-schools, crying loudly for the sincere milk of the Word. This demand cannot be met by the inferior material which is continually being pressed into the ranks of our conferences year after year, and each year seeming to grow worse and worse, all for the want of attention.

Brethren, the ship is freighted with millions of precious souls, full of hope and anxiety. Can you trust an unskilled pilot at the wheel? We might safely say that the theological department of the Central Tennessee College has never been thoroughly established since the organization of the school, and I think the results of its work will bear me out in this statement beyond the possibility of a reasonable contradiction.

It might be said you have Moses and the Prophets (the president and his teachers). Yes. this is true, and we can say too that there perhaps was never a more earnest and consecrated set of men and women upon Southern soil. But yet they are not all teachers of theology, nor any of them wholly. The President cannot do everything, and besides every one who has any knowledge of the educational work in such schools as these of the South among the colored people, where almost the whole training must be in the school, where students coming from the wilds, and from parents who have had no opportunity for training themselves, and consequently know nothing of training their children. I say in schools where these must be pressed and bent and corrected nearly every hour of the day for violating the most simple rules, on account of the want of this early training, such a one must know that a President with these responsibilities upon his shoulders, cannot teach theology or anything else and do it regularly and successfully. Now, the people say, give us the educated preacher; the Sunday-school says, give us the teacher; and the preachers say give us the school of theology, and give us the teachers, and let the presiding elders and district conferences direct our attention thereto instead of to the itineracy. Then the ranks shall be filled with better material, the demands both of the church and Sunday-schools supplied, Methodism be made to hold her ground, and God be glorified.

Yours, in Christ Jesus,
S. P. BELL.

Necessity of Prayer.

1. Prayer has been defined an offering of our desires to God for things needful, with an humble confidence to obtain them through the above merits of Christ, to the praise of mercy, truth and power of God; and its parts are said to be invocation, advocation, confession, petition, pleading, dedication, thanksgiving and blessing, though the definition being impefect yet as far ar it goes it is not objectional, but the parts of prayer as they are called, except the word petition, have scarcely anything to do with prayer.

2. I will divide this subject into three heads. First, the object of prayer; second, the effect of prayer; third, the necessity of prayer. Our object in prayer should not only be to tell God our wants and show Him our condition, for He knows this much better than we, but we should pray to feel more of the pressure of these wants and the necessity of having them supplied. We obtain this by looking into our hearts and lives. The object of prayer is not to inform God, but to give man a sight of his mercy, and to humble his heart, for the Lord dwells in an humble and contrite heart. God is the object of prayer, and His word, and especially His promises are all the objects of prayer.

3. The effect of prayer is whatsoever thing, therefore, ye shall ask in my name, nothing doubting, it shall be granted in grace; and again He says, "Ask and you shall receive, seek and you shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you." Whenever we pray we should expect an answer, inasmuch as we expect answers and favors from our earthly parents, we should much more expect answers from our heavenly Father, who giveth all things liberally and upbraideth not. We know that the effectual fervent prayer of the righteous availeth much. It has always availed, and shall continue to avail as long as time is.

If we are in trouble and distress, bowed down and broken hearted, through the medium of prayer we can have all this removed. We look at Daniel in the lion's den, the Hebrew children in the fiery furnace, Peter in prison, Stephen being stoned to death, yet through the medium of prayer these came off more than conqueror.

5. Although we may stay away from the folds of Christ and go out into paths of evil and folly, yet through prayer we may have access to the throne of God, and find grace to help in time of need. Sometimes we hear people say they have been praying for a long time, and their prayers have never been answered. These were not prayers, they were mere formality of words and only came from the lips, and God does not answer prayers that are made merely for a form; but if we pray with sincerity and only ask for what we need, we will surely receive an answer.

6. Therefore, seeing the result of the object and the effect of prayer, we more earnestly feel the necessity of prayer. We cannot live without prayer even in our daily routine of business, whether in the schoolroom or at the farm. We need prayer. Whatever thing we undertake to do it is necessary that we should pray before we undertake it. If we lack wisdom we can obtain it through prayer; if we are poverty-stricken, and all the world seem to be against us, we can go to the Lord in prayer, and He will prove to us a friend that sticketh closer than a brother, and if He is for us He is more than all they that be against us. Then, dear brethren and sisters, let us not be afraid to come to the Lord in prayer and tell Him our wants and our desires, whether they are temporal or spiritual, He will always hear our complaints, and never turn us away, therefore, let us come boldly unto the throne of grace that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

LAURA A. WESTBROOKS.

From Marshall.

DEAR BROTHER:—No doubt you are wondering why you do not hear from Marshall District. I was not released from my school work until Jan. 20th, then I had to move my family, and hold quarterly meetings every week; these, with all the other duties and responsibilities growing out of this dual relation, made it so near impossible to find time to write that we were silent. But God has sustained us, and we are finally out at sea with all sails spread. The change from professor to presiding elder is so extreme, it takes a little time to become accustomed to the new duties. I have three principal topics that employ my thoughts, and is the burden of my preaching and conversation, viz.; salvation, education, and the SOUTHWESTERN. I preach the Gospel of full salvation, by faith in Jesus Christ, visit the schools, encourage the teachers, inspire the children, and present the SOUTHWESTERN as the third person in this trinity. I will not now speak of any brother or church in particular, for all are doing their best, and seem to have entered into the new and living way with victory inscribed on their banners. I pray in public and private for bishops, editors, teachers, preachers, and secretaries of our great connectional institutions, and in particular for the SOUTHWESTERN, it is our ally in this brotherhood, we must push it into every household. May God bless you, more and more. Hereafter I shall give you the news regularly, and if you get too much, or any you do not like, put it in the waste basket and no harm will be done.

Yours in faith. H. WEBB.
Marshall, March 13th, 1884.

A Letter From Helena.

DEAR EDITOR:—We have been here a week. We have entered vigorously upon the arduous duties of the pastorate; the opposition to our work here is great. It comes from the color liners; but the greatest hindrance to our progress comes from a general opposition from all quarters to the use made of the house bought here by the Church Extension Board sometime ago, and put in control of one Judge Clark as agent. Judge Clark is a white man, a lawyer and a member of the Congregational Church. The house is rented by this gentleman for all kinds of purposes, such as balls, or dances, skating rink, parties of all kinds; any and all kinds of devilment is carried on in it, and the pastor and trustees have no power or control in the premises. The first time we went to the house to meet our people, we were waiting till the people gathered, during which time a white man entered and asked us what we were going to do there. We told him that it was the place used by us for a church house, and that we were waiting till the people gathered to have service. He said he had rented it from Judge Clark to have a dance in and wanted to know whether he could get it, and whether Judge Clark was authorized to rent it to him. We told him yes. He then demanded possession and we had to vacate. The dance went on, but we did not preach to the people. It was a great disappointment to both the people and us. Rev. Seth Neal, my predecessor, says this was trouble to him all last conference year. Every body is indignant at this desecration of the house of God. The members of our church and many other friends have made positive declarations never to put their feet into the house till this deviltment is stopped. Who can intelligently blame them? Besides, during the times of our religious services, a white man who rents and occupies the upper story of the house plays his secular music, possibly as means to prevent annoyance by us. This upper story is only about 12 or 14 feet above the lower floor. This will give the church an idea of the absurd annoyance this music is to the church and congregation during religious worship. Judge Clark says he is authorized to rent the house for any purpose that will bring money. He is in sympathy with us in our objections to the house for church purposes. Does the Board of Church Extension, being a branch of the great Methodist Episcopal Church, sanction this use of the house, it purchased for our church purposes, with the money our people are asked to raise for it? Death of a Blasphemer.

The Philadelphia Press gives the following account in its issue of January 24th:

The sudden illness of Lemuel Thomas while he was blasphemously impersonating the Saviour at a supper party of roysterers, his subsequent paralysis of the heart and the finding of his corpse in his bedroom three days after the feeble and unholy attempt at a joke, has given Jenkintown, Pa., and its vicinity a sensation. In religious circles Thomas's fate is considered a punishment for his conduct, and some of the participants on the occasion of the impersonation have become struck with terror. One or two have since expressed their mortification and deep regret, but there are many people in Jenkintown who openly prophesy that the Divine will yet strike the aiders and abettors of the dead man's impiety.

Thomas was a carpenter, over sixty years of age, who rarely attended church, and who was somewhat noted in Jenkintown for his disregard of religion. He was well known and had a large number of friends and relatives. His wife who was a very pious, God-fearing woman, died many years ago, leaving several children, some of whom are now grown up. Mrs. Thomas in her latter years exerted a good deal of influence over her husband, and this he would occasionally become mindful of and attend the Jenkintown Methodist Episcopal church. Its pastor, G. Bickley Burns, made great efforts to induce him to join the congregation, but Thomas steadfastly and scoffingly refused.

On Monday evening, Thomas and twelve friends of kindred dispositions congregated, by arrangement, in a hall opposite to Coltman's Hotel, of Jenkintown. They had made every provision for a supper, and the tables were loaded with poultry and liquors. Every one was in good health and spirits. Before they sat down one of the guests suggested that Thomas, who was the oldest man present, should offer up a prayer. This he did amid the laughter and jests of those present. Richard Myers, Elwood and Albert Weak, local grocerymen; Henry and Thomas Hagar, plasterers; William Dilworth, a wheelwright; Frank Williams, a barber; Jake Felton, a stonemason, and Henry Thomas, a son of the dead man, were among the banqueters. They are all well known in Jenkintown.

After they had been seated a short time one of the men said that the reunion, on account of there being thirteen present, was suggestive of the Last Supper. This was received with yells of delight, and Thomas presently proclaimed himself to be the Saviour, and chraged one of the roysterers with being Judas Iscariot. It is claimed that he next broke some bread in pieces and distributed it, with glasses of beer, among the guests in mockery of the last Sacrament.

In the midst of the feast, while the thirteen men were eating, drinking and shouting, Thomas uttered a terrible oath, and made use of some blasphemous expressions that shocked even his comrades. They all started up with amazement at his words, when suddenly he grew pale, and putting his hand to his head complained of pain. It was not until 11 o'clock that this occurred, and the supper had opened shortly after eight. "I'm afraid its my last supper, after all!" the miserable man moaned, then clutching his chair and rising with difficulty he announced to the rest, "I must vacate the chair, boys. You must get some other president. I'm going home.' They all tried to dissuade him, saying that he would be better presently, but he persisted, and left the room. On the way out he remarked that he thought he could not live long. When he had gone, the twelve who remained were at first very solemn, but soon the uproar began again, and it was 4 o'clock in the morning before the party broke up.

When Thomas reached his house he said that he felt as if he had been struck a violent blow on the head. He complained of being weak and feeling as if on the verge of the grave. He lingered on, his relatives fancying that his sickness was imaginary. A few mornings after the feast he was found dead in his bed. A horrible smile played over his features and his eyes were starting out of their sockets "as if," said a woman relative in describing it afterwards, "he had seen something awful and died while staring at it."

His death created a stir in Jenkintown. Ministers and congregations talked it over, and agreed that it had been caused by some wonderful influence from heaven An inquest was held, and the evidence showed that Thomas died of paralysis of the heart. It was everywhere concluded that the paralysis either came as a punishment for his impersonation, was the result of some sudden and terrible apparition, or an appalling stroke of conscience.

The dead man was buried at Northwood, and crowds came to his funeral. Rev. G. B. Burns officiated at the grave. His remarks had been carefully prepared beforehand, in order that no allusions that could call up unpleasant recollections to the relatives of the deceased might be made. He spoke, however, of the shortness of life in general, but avoided saying anything of him who lay cold in death at his feet. As the coffin was finally deposited in the frozen ground there was a general feeling of relief at the close of one of the most painful burials that has taken place in the neighborhood of Philadelphia for years.

The colored people are progressing and will if they continue in the same ratio soon possess the South and not be under the necessity of obtaining a territory for themselves. It is said they have nearly 1,000,000 children at school, publish over 80 newspapers, furnish nearly 16,000 teachers, about 15,000 students in the high schools and colleges. They have about 2,000,000 members in the Methodist and Baptist Churches, and own over 5,000,000 acres of land in the South.

The Evils of Smoking.

Of the three methods of using tobacco that of smoking has insinuated itself most extensively among the youth of the country, and is in reality the most hurtful use that can be made of the weed. Tobacco being employed in this way, being drawn in by the vital breath, conveys its poisoning influence into every part of the lungs. There the noxious fluid is entangled in the minute, spongy air-cells, and has time to exert its pernicious influence in the blood—not in vivifying, but in vitiating it. The blood imbibes the stimulant, narcotic principle, and circulates it through the whole system. It produces, in consequence, a febrile action in persons of delicate habits.

When there is any tendency to phthisic, and of tubercular deposits in the lungs, debility of these organs consequent upon the use of tobacco in this way, must favor the deposit of tuberculous matter, and thus sow the seeds of consumption. This practice impairs the natural taste and relish for food, lessens the appetite, and weakens the power of the stomach greatly. The great prevalence of a raging thirst among smokers can traced to its action on the lungs; and because it is there, instead of in the stomach, the liquors drank do not alleviate but, rather, aggravate it. It is time that medical testimony was turned to this point and the great danger pointed out that makes us a nation of Sybarites and pigmies.

The Hon. Thomas W. Pittman of New York has created a sensation in Maine by his lectures on intemperance and crime. He shows there are 48,000 criminals in the State prisons of the United States; in county jails, 134,000; in houses of refuge, 10,000; floating criminal population, exclusive of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, 400,000; total, 592,000. One fifth of the criminal population live in cities of over 100,000 inhabitants, one-twelfth in cities of over 75,000, and nearly 1,000,000 in cities of over 40,000, mostly manufacturing towns, and that crime and intemperance are on the increase in these manufacturing towns.

O. B. Frothingham, who, until recently was the most prominent Agnostic on this continent, in an article in the Atlantic Monthly, takes up the assertion often made concerning the decadence of Christianity — that ministers are losing their power over the people, that the pulpit is no longer a prominent factor in the formation of public opinion, that congregations are falling off, and the Church dying out. To all this he replies: "On the contrary, I am inclined to think that, all things being taken into account more people in proportion "go to meeting" — go intelligently, earnestly, sympathetically, expectantly—than ever went before. My impression is that there is more live mind in the churches to-day than there ever was. Buildings are larger, congregations are more numerous; the Word is listened to more eagerly."

A. J. McDevitt, an Irishman and a Catholic living in Corning, Ohio, sued his parish priest, Father O'Boylan, for running a wheel of fortune in his church. The priest preached a sermon the following Sunday in which he denounced his prosecutor, and on the same night a party of eight men entered McDevitt's drug store, and at the mouth of a revolver compelled him to walk through a blinding snow storm to a lonely spot a mile from town. Arriving there they stripped him naked, cutting his clothing into strips and scattering the shreds to the winds. They compelled him to kneel down in the snow and, with his right hand raised to heaven, swear by the Virgin that he would never set foot or face in Corning again. Then they left him in the pitiless storm.

Sunlight All the Way.

"Good-by, Jennie; the road is long,
And the moor is hard to cross,
But well you know there is danger
In the bogs and the marshy moss.
So keep in the foot-path, Jennie;
Let nothing tempt you to stray;
Then you'll get safely over it,
For there's sunlight all the way—
Sunlight all the way;
So never you fear,
Keep a good heart, dear,
For there's sunlight all the way."

The child went off with a blessing
And a kiss of mother-love,
The daisies were down at her feet,
And the lark was singing above.
On in the narrow foot-path—
Nothing could tempt her to stray;
So the moor was passed at nightfall,
And she'd sunlight all the way—
Sunlight all the way;
And she smiling, said,
As her bed was spread
"I had sunlight all the way."

And I, who followed the maiden,
Kept thinking, as I went,
Over the perilous moor of life
What unwary feet are bent.
If they could only keep the foot-path,
And not in the marshes stray,
Then they would reach the end of life
Ere the night could shroud the way—
They'd have sunlight all the way.
But the marsh is wide,
And they turn aside,
And the night falls on the day.

Far better to keep the narrow path,
Nor turn to the left or right;
For if we loiter at morning,
What shall we do then the night
Falls black on our lonely journey,
And we mourn our vain delay?
Then steadily onward, friends, and we Shall have sunlight all the way—
Sunlight all the way,
Till the journey's o'er,
And we reach the shore
Of a never-ending day.

How Hattie Became a Christian.

She was only nine years old. I had been preaching to the children. At the close of the meeting Hattie came to me and said:

"I do want to be a Christian; how can I be?" and the anxious look in her great brown eyes assured me she was in earnest.

"Hattie, are you a sinner?"

"Oh, yes; I am a very wicked girl."

"What! such a little girl as you a sinner? How can that be?"

The tears could be kept back no longer, and she sobbed as if her heart was broken.

"I am so wicked!" she said.

"Hattie, what did Jesus come into the world for?",

"To save sinners," came the answer between two great sobs.

"Then if you are a sinner he came to save you, did He not?"

"Will He save me?" she asked.

"Yes, Hattie; Jesus is waiting to save you now. Will you go home and give yourself to Him to be saved?"

"I'll try," she replied.

Why did I ask her to go home to give herself to Christ?

The next afternoon Hattie was present at the children's meeting, but her sad face showed that the question was still undecided. She came to me and I said:

"Well, Hattie, did you give yourself to Jesus?"

"I tried to, but I don't feel any better. I asked Jesus to take me, but I don't know whether He did or not."

I said to her:

"I think I know what is the trouble;" and as her face was turned so eagerly to mine, seeking so earnestly the light, I added. "You gave yourself to Jesus and then took yourself right back again."

"Yes, that's just what I did," said Hattie, as the truth flashed upon her.

"Well, is that the way to do? Isn't it best to give yourself to Him to save you? Will you do that, and when?"

"Oh, now—this moment;" and dropping upon her knees she said: "Jesus, I am a sinner, and I give myself to you, and I'll never take my self away again as long as I live."

"It was as all she could do, and when she did it there was a new light in her heart, and to-day Hattie is one of the most joyous and earnest and useful little Christians in all the wide, wide world.

Will my young readers do as Hattie did?—Young Reaper.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn., and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close connection. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two stations. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. All through the Christian centuries the religion of Christ has been spread by individual work for a special end, not by general work for an indefinite result. A John the Baptist, a Paul, a Peter, obeying the command "Go ye into all the world," not a monastic recluse, has been God's instrument in moving society. It was Luther against the world when the church of Rome had lost sight of the truth. It was Wesley who brought spiritual life from beneath the death and decay of the formalism of the Church of England. To Calvin, Zinzendorf, Edwards and Finney, and men of like fire and force, the church owes its general and special advancement. In our religious work we need more the force of individualism. It is the individual who kindles the fires and strikes the blows. And while every one may not be a Paul, a Luther or a Wesley, every individual can strike some blows and kindle some fires. But not by sitting in his seat or staying at home.

Send us the subscription money you have collected with as little delay as possible.

H. S. Thrall, an associate editor of the Texas Advocate, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in a plea against the disuse of the pistol, makes the following statement: "By way of emphasis let me add, that on Thnsday night, February 21, among other converts at Bro. Hester's meeting at Lock Hill, I baptized a most interesting youth, Austin Lacey. The next day, while the family were absent at a picnic he was killed by the accidental discharge of a pistol. The next day, at Cotulla, while his father's family was visiting old friends at Brenham, Moses, the eldest son of Monroe P. Kerr, was killed by the accidental discharge of a pistol in the hands of a younger brother. On the same day a youth was killed in Victoria in the same manner. While expressing profound sympathy for these bereaved familes, it is a very appropriate occasion for urging the disuse of the dangerous and useless weapon."

Too Much Backsliding.

There is connected with most of our congregations a class of backsliders who have to be reclaimed as often as the church has a revival. If the revival is yearly or semi-yearly they need to be reclaimed. No matter how often or powerful the revival, in a few days they are clear back out of sight. We suggest to our correspondents that when they write to the SOUTHWESTERN giving an account of the wonderful work of the Lord among the people that they leave out this class. Some of them have been counted for ten or fifteen years. It is waste of time and labor, it creates distrust; it is a work that the Christian pastor cannot afford to do. It is true that Methodism is not an iron bedstead. It does insist, however, on conversion to God, it contends for this. But as to the mode it offers the greatest liberty. A man may be converted like the jailor, or like Lydia, or like Saul of Tarsus, we split no hairs with any man here, and when a man has once been converted he may sing, shout, jump, sit still or stir around just as he pleases, but we protest against this constant backsliding and reclaiming once or twice a year, and then publishing to the world the glorious news about the work of the Lord. Religion is not a farce.

Proposition to Help LaTeche Seminary.

Mr. Wm. L Gilbert, of West Winsted, Connecticut, proposes to give $5,000 to our LaTeche Seminary, in St. Mary parish, Louisiana. Among the conditions he proposes are, that the institution shall be adopted and maintained by the Freedmen's Aid Society of the M. E. Church, and that the plantation property of the Orphan's Home Society of LaTeche be utilized in helping to build up the institution, and that $5,000 more be raised and put into buildings. At a meeting of the Orphan's Home Society, held Mar. 20, Dr. Godman, the lessee of the plantation, and Dr. Hartzell being present, the conditions as far as could be settled in Louisiana were fulfilled. It now rests with the Freedmen's Aid Society to assume the additional responsibility. It is sincerely hoped that the Society will be able to take the institution. This means, of course, the raising of $5,000 more. We know of no place in the South where money can be better spent; the location is all that could be asked for a Seminary, and if the buildings were ready hundreds of young men and women would soon crowd their halls.

"The Western Christian Advocate (Northern) is rather indignant at the notions of Bishop Pierce, on the negro, as contained in the interview had with him. Who is likely to have the soundest judgment on these points—the man who has been seventy years among them, or the one with a foreign theory?"—Richmond Christian Advocate, Methodit Episcopal Church, South.

So it has taken the senior Bishop of the Methodist Church, South, seventy years to learn that the "higher education would be a positive calamity to the Negroes;" that they "have no right on juries in legislatures or in public office; that the appointment of any colored man to office is an insult to the Southern people," and our Bro. of the Richmond Advocate evidently endorses what the Bishop says, to him it is sound judgment. All the menial persuits are open to the Negro; he may plough, plant, hoe, chop and saw wood, groom horses and wait upon white people in general. This will be eminently Christian, but to teach, paint, carve, cure, sit on juries, in legislatures, or any "place of trust, profit, and responsibility," this is an insult to the Southern people. It is this teaching coming from the pulpit and the press, both secular and religious, that breeds the horrid murders at Danville, Marshall, Yazoo and Copiah. Sad will be the day, gloomily sad, when the National government falls into the hands of men who believe, and teach, and follow such dostrines, as this representative not only of a great church but of the best culture and piety of the South, utters. Then the whole South will become a Danville, a Marshall, a Yazoo, a Copiah, and every voting precinct a dead line.

A Great Step Forward.

The Freedmen's Aid Society has purchased a valuable block of ground on St. Charles Avenue, on which to locate permanently the New Orleans University. A few weeks since Bishop Wiley, Dr. Rust and Dr. Hartzell, the President and Corresponding Secretaries of that Society, were in New Orleans, and a change of location for the University was decided upon as soon as the old property at the corner of Camp and Race streets could be disposed of. The new purchase includes an entire block with streets on all sides. Fronting on the avenue, on one part of this ground, is a large and commodious building, which can be utilized for faculty, residence or boarding hall. Mr. Fletcher Harper, of New York, in 1873, offered $50,000 for the property, intending to occupy it as a winter residence. The grounds in front of the residence have been planned and kept with excellent taste, and at large expense, and are filled with shade trees and shrubbery. On the unoccupied space, fronting the avenue, there is room for the main university building. On two sides of the block are rows of very large oak and maple shade trees. The location could not be improved for healthfulness. St. Charles avenue, the finest in the city, extends six miles from Canal street, through the best business and residence parts of the city, and the new university grounds are about midway the length of the avenue. The World's Cotton Exposition, soon to be held in New Orleans, will be on the city park, beside which St. Charles Avenue passes. This park is about a mile from our grounds. The avenue is being paved with asphalt pavement, and has street cars the entire length. A second line of cars now reaches and will pass on the other side of the block. Thirty thousand colored people are within walking distance, or a five cent street car ride of this new location.

The cost of the property to the Society is $14,000, one-third cash and balance in one and two years. We do not know of a better purchase the Society has made in the South. And now that a new and auspicious era opens up for the New Orleans University, it is for the Louisiana Conference, and all friends of the church and Christian culture in the State, to lay hold with tremendous faith and effort to raise money for a new building. The old property will nearly pay for the new, and the Society assumes the balance. The need is $40,000 for the main building. At the last session of the Louisiana Conference it was decided to make this a jubilee centennial year, and to raise for education a dollar a member. This would be over $13,000. In behalf of Louisiana Conference we therefore feel free to say that it will raise the first $10,000. We heard Bishop Wiley say to Dr. Hartzell, when they were here a few weeks since, "Now, Doctor, here is a job for you, and we will stand by you. If this conference raises $10,000, you must raise the remaining $30,000 needed." Dr. Rust added, "That is so." "All right," replied Dr. Hartzell, "it shall be done." To which every lover of God and Christian culture in Louisiana will say "amen."

Public Sentiment.

In these days, when good men seem to have become infatuated with the idea that the church in her religious and educational work must accommodate herself to the public sentiment of the communities where she operates, if she has the least hope of success, it becomes a question of great importance whether there be a Supreme Arbiter of the welfare of communities and nations, and how far he will allow us to accommodate ourselves to the depraved notions of those we desire to save. Of all things in this world public sentiment is the most sickly. It has been doctored ever since the flood, but it is not much better for all its doctoring. We sometimes think that it is incapable of being improved or educated. Naturally it is bold. The man who is dropping himself down to public opinion will find himself pretty low before he gets through falling. The idea that we must never go contrary to or above public opinion is weak, absurb and wicked. The church has need of men who have Christian convictions, and are willing to abide by them; who will do right let the consequences be what they may. As the magnet attract all the particles within its reach that are capable of attraction, just so will men of Christian conviction attract all men in whom there is a particle of goodness. If, on the other hand, he panders to their tastes, he may gain a short lived popularity, but it will soon rot and die. God help the great and good men in the Methodist church to stand strong against all wrong.

Crimes, North and South.

"The journalism that ignores the foulest crimes at home, and habitually magnifies wrong-doing elsewhere, for the purpose of bringing aversion and contempt upon fellow-citizens of the same country, lacks the spirit of genuine patriotism as truly as it does that of true Christianity. And it thus disqualifies itself alike for the office of a conservator of public morals in its own circle, and a friendly and profitable adviser outside of it. The Master had his eye upon this weak spot in human hearts when he spoke of the Mote and Beam.—Christian Advocate (Nashville).

We did not go as direct to the point as the great official of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but the idea has been frequently conveyed, that it was rather disingenuous for the Southern press, the religious portion especially, to assign the isolated crimes committed in other sections, always followed by efforts to punish, and frequent convictions, as a justification for conditions of society at home, where murder was premeditated, committed, and subsequently approved by official preferment of the participants as in Yazoo, Copiah, and hundreds of other instances.

The Texas Advocate, of the Church South, proves by the following comment to be deserving of the rebuke of the Nashville paper:

"The Northern press, in its great anxiety to repent for the sins of the South, has assumed ever since the war that nearly all the lawlessness and bloodshed of the nation are on this side of Mason and Dixon's line. The New-York World has recently been footing up the column of crime in the different States, and surprises many of its readers by the announcement that if the South is in a bad way the North is, to say the least, in no better plight. Texas has a long line of frontier, and yet with the lawlessness that belongs to a border land, it is behind Ohio by some 116 murders. New-York has furnished one-fourth of the suicides this past year, which is nearly as many as all the Southern States combined. Murder in the South has been the result of hot blood; but New England has added to murder a larger proportion of brutal outrages, robberies and arson, than any other section. So long as Ohio leads all the States of the Union in the number of murders committed on her soil, there should be a grain of modesty in the claims of the North to such exalted superiority in the way of morality."

The opening sentence about the Northern press is a mere thoughtless assumption. There is no data at hand to verify or disprove the New-York World's figures, footed up for partisan use. The true test between Texas and Ohio is not with reference to the number of murders committed in one year, but as to the number of convictions and the enforcement of the law by public opinion. On this point the Texas Advocate would find the figures to be in favor of Ohio by a large majority. Relative to New-York suicides, remember that almost all foreign immigration to this continent passes through and into New-York, and that State contains also the largest city and should reasonably be expected to have the largest quota of crimes incidental to extreme poverty and disappointed hopes. Then it is not true that murders which the Northern press censures as peculiar sins of the South are the result of hot blood. They are deliberated in party council before hand, executed by chosen agents, approved by press and people as political necessities. And, we regret to say, that not a single paper of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, coming under our observation to date, has deemed it called for or prudent, to say one word in condemnation of such murders, when established on the clearest possible testimony. Those papers however, do not fail to enter apologies of the above lame and impotent kind in the vain hope of averting the wholesome criticism of the civilized world.

About the Southwestern.

The SOUTHWESTERN is the only paper that is published by the authority the Church south of the Ohio. It has been adopted by the Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, West Texas, Tennessee, East Tennessee, Little Rock, Central Alambama and Savauah Conferences, of the Methodist Episcopal Church as their official organ. Its course has been heartily approved by all of those conferences, and we have read with pleasure their words of approval. "Kind words never die," yet good deeds actually accomplished are much better than any words of the highest promise. Just what action the General Conference will take with reference to the SOUTHWESTERN we cannot say, we think however, that it will depend largely upon the course pursued by the delegates of the patronizing conferences. The question of recognition will not be discussed. The SOUTHWESTERN lives and under judicious management has a glorious future before it. Other papers have been started and suspended; their experience, and our own judgment assures us of the fact, that a paper suited to the wants of our people should have a large patronizing territory, and have all possible patronage bestowed upon it. This because of the limited number of reading, newspaper taking people, and other adverse circumstances, confronting all departments of our church work in the South. It is better to have one, good strong paper than a half dozen local, poorly supported ones. We speak for the SOUTHWESTERN, and we only ask that the delegates of the patronizing conferences unite in an earnest request that it be put on a basis similar to that of our other church papers. We could ask no more and we earnestly hope that our delegates will press this matter to a successful termination.

Judicial Inhumanity in Arkansas.

In the final decision of the Supreme Court of Arkansas, in the Howard county cases, the State reached the very climax of infamy. Greater injustice, under the judicial sanction of any State, has not been done to our people anywhere since reconstruction than in these cases in Arkansas known as the Howard county cases. Their history, as we have been able to gather it from the most reliable sources, is as follows: It appears that a colored woman who was out in the field working, was approached by a white man named Wyatt, who attempted to commit an outrageous crime upon her person. Her cries called to her assistance Joseph Booker, a relative, who immediately summoned a crowd of his friends for the purpose of apprehending and arresting the escaping fugative. The crowd of colored men, headed by Booker, soon found Wyatt, who had already gathered quite a number of his friends to protect himself and resist arrest. In the attempt to arrest Wyatt, which was resisted, Wyatt was killed as was also Booker, who sought to arrest him. This fired up the whites of the county, who declared a war of races. This was on or near August 3rd, last year. Next day the friends of Booker were out in an open place making his coffin, when they were suddenly startled by the presence of a whole troop of approaching white men on horseback, with guns leveled at them. These whites fired upon the colored men found there and killed four of them; several of the others were arrested, and some made their escape. After this the county was scoured until some thirty-three or more colored men were arrested and lodged in jail. These were hurriedly tried by an infuriated mob, acting under the cover of judicial solemnity, and found guilty. Three were sentenced to be hung, and thirty were sent to the penitentiary, for periods amounting to 308 years. These men were all married men, leaving 33 widows, dependent parents, and 134 destitute children. They were most, or all of them, some of the best and most substantial colored citizens of that section of the State of Arkansas. Most of them had homes, stock etc., which they sacrificed in order to get the cash with which to secure the services of lawyers to defend them. They staked their all; friends, societies, churches, etc. contributed funds for their defense. Some of the best legal talent in the State were retained for their defense, but all to no purpose; and 30 defenceless colored citizens were turned over to the keepers of the State penitentiary for periods covering 308 years. Three others, Henry Carr, Lige Tompson and Julius Johnson, were sentenced to be hung January 25th. The friends of these condemned men did not relax their efforts, however. They employed six of the ablest lawyers in the State, who worked like beavers, and finally succeeded in obtaining a stay of execution until a rehearing could be had by the Supreme Court. This writ was issued by Supreme Judges English and Aikins, only a few hours before the execution was to have taken place. The gallows had been erected, the hungry, blood-thirsty crowd, whose eyes delight to feast upon such sights, had assembled, and the prisoners were being led to their slaughter, when the message came to the sheriff that the execution was not to take place until further orders, as two of the Supreme Judges had decided to review those cases. This announcement fell upon the crowd like a clap of thunder out of a clear sky. In their fury they could not tamely submit to such a shocking disappointment. Laying aside all restraints, they then and there gave vent to their feelings by hanging in effigy the two Judges, English and Aikins, who had consented to review the exceptions presented in those cases. In due time the cases came up for argument before the Supreme Court. The poor condemned men were ably defended; the lawyers did their duty ably and devotedly. They argued against fate, however. The cases were lost, and the three men are to be hung at a future day. These are the facts, as we have gottem them from those who are in a position to know. And if facts, as doubtless they are, what a commentary do they present upon the administration of justice in Arkansas. A white man seeks to outrage a colored woman. Her friends attempt to arrest the criminal. In this attempt they are resisted by his friends. In this encounter the fugitive criminal and the leader of the arresting party are both killed. Next day friends of the leader of the arresting party who was killed are making his coffin. Four of them are killed, and others lodged in jail; making five colored killed for that one white criminal. Three more are to be hung, making eight good men, heads of families, who must die for one worthless white man, who was pursued for an outrageous crime, while thirty more colored men must suffer and work out an aggregate of 308 years in the penitentiary. This is what the State of Arkansas calls justice; and such are the outrages committed with or without the hypocritical color of law upon the Negro throughout the

SOILED-PRINT BLEEDS THROUGH

South. And against such outrages the Southern press, Christian and secular, dare not raise their voices. How long are such horrid, barbarous and inhuman montrosities to continue to command the active support and countenance of the Southern people, press and pulpit? Has it come to this in Arkansas, as also in the different States of the South, that while colored men, for looking very hard upon white women may be, as they are, hung to the nearest tree with impunity; that colored men are left defenceless, must not protect the persons of their daughters, wives and mothers against the outrageous attacks of lusty fiends who happen to be white? And if they arise in their might to protect themselves are they to be murdered by mobs, by the courts, and sent to the penitentiaries of the South for centuries? In the name of common decency, of law and order, and of our common humanity; in the name of our claim to civilization, of right and righteousness, and in the name of the gospel which we preach, we protest against such infamous and ungodly outrages.

Slander.

"He who stabs my name, would stab my person too
Did not the hangman's ax lie in the way."

We agree with an exchange that "juries and judges should show them no mercy." And if lynch law is ever justifiable in a civilized community its application to such replies would not be doubtful." In barbarity this miscreant excelles the old heathen persecutors who were want to wrap up Christians in the skins of wild beasts so they might be worried and torn to peices by dogs. The most direct way to ruin any man is to misrepresent him; it is a poisoned arrow drawn from the devil's quivers sent flying through the air by the devil's agents, against it there is no defence, no security. For the wretches who throw it no punishment can be too severe.

The Religious Telescope, Dayton, O., organ of the United Brethren Church, says that a number of years ago Prof. Funkhonser, a graduate of Otterbein University, and a member of the Virginia conference, was presiding elder of the Virginia district. On the district was a small mission for the freedmen, of which Rev. J. A. Evans was pastor. Pastor Evans was a man of culture and piety, esteemed by all who knew him, and was put under appointment to a foreign mission on the West coast of Africa. As he was about to leave he called at Prof. Funkhonser's to tender his resignation of the home charge. After business was over Mrs. Funkhonser invited him to supper which was prepared, and all sat at the same table, and conversed about the future work in Africa. The Governor of Virginia, with the Board of Education, recently appointed Prof. Funkhonser superintendent of public education for Rockingham, his native county. His administration has been efficient, and given entire satisfaction to teachers and patrons of the schools; yet during the past few weeks a determined opposition has been made by politicians, on the sole ground of the incident cited above, which is construed to favor all sorts of social equality. His name has been sent three times to the Senate, but the Danville tribe, headed by Senator G. B. Keezell, are implacable. The Telescope rightly heads its comments "Persecution in Virginia," and is pained at such a condition of affairs nearly a score of years after the war was ended.

The Buck Ridge, Fairview, Hard Times, Shipp's Bayou, Point Pleasant and Hewitt levees, broke on the night of the 20th. The Davis and Mulatto Point crevasses have not been closed. The river is rising from Cairo down. Louisiana is doomed to a general and disastrous overflow, and there will soon be thousands of homeless and starving people. This is the present outlook.

When our Lord was tempted in the wilderness He did nothing more than just quote Scripture. He pressed Satan so hard that he began to quote Scripture too. Just three texts defeated the Devil completely. We suppose that Jesus might have used any other form of deliverance, but he chose that in order that we who were to come after might know that the Devil could be defeated with the Word of God, which is "quick and powerful, and sharper than any two edged sword." Life is a warfare, but in all of his conflicts the child of the Lord must use the "sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God." This will of itself fight, and will of itself conquor, and in the end deliver every brave man who uses it.

Facts and figures for Methodists to read and ponder:

In Great Britain the Wesleyan Methodist church members are 407,085; in Ireland and Irish missions the church members are 24,384, and in foreign missions the church members are 70,747. The church is well represented in South Africa, in France and different parts of the Continent and Australia, and in Canada. The amounts raised from all sources in Great Britain for the connection last year was $1,468,780. On trust property there has been expended during the year $1,836,000, and for new buildings and enlargements $1,500,000. During the last twenty-five years debts on Wesleyan trust property have been discharged or provided for to the extent of $8,130,000. The Calendar claims that there are in all 22,003 Methodist ministers, and 5,877,317 church members, making a total, ministers and members, of 5,910,400.

We read these statements with a heart full of doxologies. We are not among those who think that the golden days of Methodism are in the past or present. To us her greatest glory is in the future. Sickly and imbecile believers may have a mission among other people, but they are out of place in any Methodist church or congregation. Put on strength, brethren, and move on to the conquest of the world.

The Presbyterian Journal has the following:

A young pastor, impressed with the importance of a denominational press as a pastoral aid, a few weeks ago made a canvass to ascertain how many religious papers circulated among the hundred families of his congregation. There were less than twenty. Among them was one copy of the Presbyterian Journal. He was not acquainted with our paper at that time, but a specimen copy of it reached him. He was taken with it as just what was needed, and recommended it; and already we have thirty-five names from that quarter on our list through his agency. This is one illustration of what pastors can do for us, for themselves and for their churches.

We are glad to say that the SOUTHWESTERN has some such friends. Every day the number is increasing. Still there are some of our preachers who never mention and recommend it. We have abundant evidence of this. Help, brethren, help all along the line, help in the circulation of your own denominational Advocates.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas, who some few years since was expelled from the Methodist church and ministry because of his Don Quixote theological views, in a recent sermon made the following reference to the "Blue Laws," that multitudes of supposed learned men really believe once had an actual existence in that grand old State of Connecticut: "It is not a joke, but serious history, that under the 'Blue Laws' mothers were forbidden to kiss their children Sunday, and that it was not allowed for men to run or walk in their gardens or elsewhere —only seriously to and from church; nor were people allowed to sweep the floors, or make beds, or cook food Sunday." The joke of this whole matter is found in the fact that the so called blue laws never had an existence. One Sam Peters alone was the inventor and legislator of that famous code about which so much has been said. It is a little funny however that learned ministers should swallow the inventions of a way and pronounce it serous history.

Senator W. P. Frye, of Maine, wrote a letter to the Lewiston Journal, correcting some statements of its correspondent relative to the Copiah investigation, which concludes as follows: "Nor did I say that the Southern negroes equalled in intelligence the Northern Irishmen. It is not true, and why should it be? The Irishman at the North has free access to our schools the year round, while the black boy in Mississippi has but little chance. They do not have schools in that State more than four months a year, and to some of these the black boys cannot go. What I did say had reference to the colored man's fidelity to the Republican Party. I said he was as true to that ticket as the Irishman at the North was to the Democratic, with much greater reason for his faith, &c. The fact is, both whites and blacks at the South are 50 years behind the North in intelligence and civilization."

The two nominees on the Republican ticket, who were not of the party, and who should not have been given the opportunity to decline anything in its gift, have removed themselves from it. For the office of State treasurer, Mr. M. F. Bonzano, a Republican, and a respected German citizen, is now presented to Republican voters. For Attorney General, Alfred Shaw has been chosen. This is adding strength to strength, and Chairman Dumont may open a vigorous campaign.

Says the Arkansas Herald commenting on the adverse decision in the Howard county case: "Will the counsel and various committees desert these men now? But one thing remains, and that is to invoke executive clemency. Surely the governor will not insist on the shedding, even judicially, of more blood to appease the insatiate thirst of those who have already shed the blood of five colored men for that of the outlaw Wyatt. Let the Citizens' Committee move, and let the people aid them generously as they have already done."

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Clarkson, of the Episcopal diocese of Nebraska died on the 10th inst.

—Bishop Foss's mother who resides near Darien, Conn., was 89 years old on the 3d inst.

—Rev. Dr. J. H. Vincent will attend the Evangelical Alliance, to be held in Stockholm, Sweden, August 31st.

—Mrs. Mary Alfriend, daughter of Bishop Pierce, died recently; also George F. Pierce, jr., a nephew.

—Gov. Pattison was elected a lay delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Church from Philadelphia.

—Herbert Spencer, asked to stand as a liberal for parliament for Leicester, declines to abandon his work for a political career.

—Correspondents of Rev. A. H. Gillett, Sunday-school agent, are requested to address him at 190 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, hereafter.

—Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, of New Jersey, has been elected by the New Jersey Lay Electoral Conference as a delegate to the General Conference.

—Rev. J. A. Regester, of the Baltimore Conference, has withdrawn from the M. E. Church, South, with a view of joining the Episcopal Church.

—Gen. Godfrey Weitzel, United States Army, the eminent engineer and soldier, was buried at Spring Grove, Ohio, on Sunday. The funeral was numerously attended.

—During a cotton famine, at Manchester, England, General Gordon had the Chinese inscription erased from a medal given him by the emperor of China, sold it, and gave the proceeds anonymously to the distressed operatives.

—We were gratified last week to welcome Dr. Hartzell, Assistant Secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society to the sanctum of the SOUTHWESTERN. He came in the interest of our educational work, to which reference is made in another column.

—J. W. Pierce, consular agent of the Republic of Liberia, and a commissioner in behalf of the World's Exposition, New Orleans, expects to leave this city on April 3 for New York, via Washington, and sail April 15th, on the bark Monrovia, for Monrovia; from thence he will proceed to other points on the west coast of Africa, to enlist the interest of the several governments in the matter of sending exhibits to the Exposition. Mr. Pierce will go from here strongly endorsed and his numerous friends wish him a successful voyage.

—Rev. Bishop Hubbard H. Kavanangh, D. D., of the M. E. Church, South, died in the city of Colnmbus, Miss., Tuesday, the 18th inst. Bishop Kavanaugh was born in Clark county, Ky., January 14, 1802. He was converted to God 1817. In 1823 he joined the conference. He was elected Bishop at the General Conference which met at Columbus, Ga., in 1854. From personal experience he knew all about every nook and corner of a Methodist preacher's work, from the poorest appointment in the conference to the high office of a Bishop. His pure life, simple and unpretending manner, won for him the confidence and respect of all who knew him. His last episcopal work was in presiding over the last session of the Louisiana Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, South, in this city, during which his eighty-second birth-day occurred, on which occasion the conference presented him with an elegant gold headed ebony cane, and other friends showed their affection for the venerable man by beautiful gifts. The sermons that he preached in the different churches while he was here are referred to as sources of great strength to those who heard them. "He had a passion for preaching, not for its applause or stipend, but as a means of saving souls. And the pulpit was his throne of power. There he reigned and reveled, at times, without scarcely a peer in the entire church. Even within the past few weeks he has preached twice in a Sabbath, exhibiting the greater power in the second service. Thus he has ceased at once to work and live."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

D. J. Price, Allen: "The first Sunday our new pastor, S. R. Hason preached he received 10 on probation. We have a good public school here, which I teach. It may continne for two months, and 45 scholars are enrolled. The new pastor was gladly received, and the children delight to meet him in day and Sunday-schools. Pray for our success."

H. J. Wright, Natchitoches: "Our first quarterly conference was held. all the brothers in attendance, reports all in. We move off nicely for a centennial year. Things seem to be deep in the minds of the people. Elder Duncan holds his own and is waging war with Satan; 45 spoke in the love-feast, 51 partook of the holy sacrament. $17.50 was the quarterly collection; paid the elder $12.50, $1.50 delegates to General Confesence, $2 on minutes. Estimation about the same as last year. The church, congregation and conference in a whole, ask for the district conference which was at their option. Therefore we now go to work for it, and the brethren had just as well keep their eyes this way on that point."

R. C. Barrow, Algiers, is doing work that others said ought to be done. The church is being ceiled. The Sunday-school is increasing in numbers and interest. The quarterly conference made a good estimate for their pastor and the presiding elder, and are paying their bills as they accumulate. Under the careful management of Bro. Barrow we look for a year of peace and prosperity at this point.

C. D. C. Bryan, Mandeville. This has been counted one of the hard places for a Methodist preacher. Soon after conference Bro. Bryan entered upon his work, he found a few members holding on to the Lord and the Methodist Church, a Sunday-school with twelve scholars enrolled, and a small congregation. But he did not choose to beat against the iron bars by telling the people about the good place he had left, and how bad they in Mandeville were. Like his Master he went among them, not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give his time, strength and heart to the work the Lord called him to do. The people were hungry for the Word of Life, dry chips and sawdust had not given them much spiritual strength. The congregation increased in numbers; the Sunday-school has now over eighty enrolled, and is moving on with vigor. A good religious interest prevails among the people. Bro. Bryan and his excellent wife are highly esteemed by the people.

B. J. Reddix, Darrowville: "Our first quarterly conference was held by Elder Williams. Our pastor, Rev. F. Bowers, reported 11 converts and 12 members received. Collections $40.95. We anticipate a prosperous year, and will pay the debt. Sunday-schools are in good order; there are three, and we expect to organize one more. Small pox quarantine impeded the work by preventing the visitation, of all points. There have been two deaths."

Geo. W. Wells, Rosedale: "We are having an abundance of water, GroseTete Bayou is overflowing her banks, the people are beginning to hunt shelters, and dry places on and in which to rest; the water is all round and under our church. Services will be suspended. Protracted effort just commenced; many came forward and two converted."

TENNESSEE.

Nancy B. Montague, Adamsville: "Spring has come; we look for a better time. Elder Jesse Price came, though the snow was deep, and on time. His boots were frozen to his feet and he suffered very much. He preached to a fair audience on Friday and aroused the people. Collection $5.80. He visited Sand Hill. At Mt. Nebo the Sunday-school prospers, and is supplied with our literature. Mr. J. Johnson is superintendent. My day school has just closed."

J. W. B. Mathews, Capleville: "Good literature should be put in the hands of the children. I have seen parents give them a pipe or a dip of snuff. Take the children by the hand, and lead them into the Sunday-school."

MISSISSIPPI.

M. Adams, Macon: "My work extends over a large prairie country For ten weeks or more the mud and rain has been so that we could not get out to do much; though I have been to all of my appointments, the people could not meet me. I will do my best to meet my obligations."

J. C. Thompson, Greenwood: "Wesley Chapel Sunday-school has an average attendance of 38 scholars, and is progressing slowly."

TEXAS.

H. Johns, Clarksville: "Elder Webb revived this work. He gave the children great comfort. We need such men all over the country to open the eyes of the people. May the Lord go with him and give him power."

Robt. Williams, San Augustine: "My first quarterly conference was held here. Elder Smith gave a grand lecture to the members, and on Sunday he preached to a large congregation. Collection $5.57. Pray for us."

Leonard Green, Madison circuit: "Elder Geo. W. Smith held our first quarterly conference. Pastor's salary was fixed at $250. Collection for elder $5. The elder and our pastor, A. Taylor, preached on Sunday, and at love feast Monday night a large congregation was present. Pray for our success here."

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

SOILED-PRINT BLEEDS THROUGH

The Housekeeper.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Talks About Cooking.

In my first housekeeping, in a house of my own, I missed my mother's suggestions. I had always gone to her when I had difficulty in my cooking. When I tried to depend upon myself, I had many failures. I got cook books and tried to follow written directions, but even then I made mistakes. I found that I must learn to think, and use my own judgement about many things. I must consult the taste of those whom I had to cook. When I would cook food in a certain way often, my family would tire of it, and so I learned to vary, and sometimes improve upon recipes that I found in my books. Now I usually look upon recipes, only as containing hints that I may use, while I supply much that they lack, and so probably my readers need to use mine. We should aim at simplicity in our cooking. Use as few ingredients as possible and such are easily obtained. The excellence of our food does not depend upon the large amount of grease, sugar and condiments we can get into it. There are some people who make mistakes in that way, and make food unhealthy and expensive. I once saw a woman take one pound of butter, and the same of sugar, and eight eggs, to make one cake for visitors whom she was expecting to tea. I expressed surprise at the amount she used. She said, she did not believe in being "stingy" when she was cooking for company. She did not believe in being economical of time either, for the operation of baking her cake took nearly the whole afternoon. I could not conscientiously have done as she did. I will write a recipe of the kind of cake I would probably have made, and I could have made it in ten minutes: One cup of white sugar, ½ cup of butter, one cup of milk, the whites of four eggs, a teaspoonful of baking powder, and flour to make stiff batter. Very likely I would have taken a book or paper to read while I was watching it in baking, for I believe in mixing reading and thinking with baking. I find it less tiresome.

I will write a recipe for making yeast bread. It is said that bread is the staff of life, so, of course we ought to know a great deal about it. I trust I may be able to give some hints to some puzzled young housekeepers that may be a help to them. Take rather a deep vessel and put into it three pints of warm water and a teaspoonful of salt, and stir in flour enough to make a stiff batter; then put into it a cup of yeast or a yeast cake dissolved; put it in a warm place, and as soon as it is risen put into it a little soda and more flour, and take it out on a bread board and knead it until it is smooth, and then mould into loaves, and put them in greased pans and set them near the stove. As soon as they begin to crack on the top put them in the oven. Some people knead bread and let it rise and knead again to make it look white, but it is less sweet and nutritious than if it is kneaded and risen only once. Care should be taken in the baking. When it is well browned on the top and comes out of the pan easily, it is done. Girls should all learn how to cook. I have heard that they are not fit to get married until they can make good bread. I know some girls who dream of "love in a cottage," and who read stories and poetry on the subject. I heard some one say that it was all a myth, that love only thrived where there was a profusion of this world's goods. The person who said that, must have dwelt in a cottage, was not willing to make comfort there. Love or no other good thing can exist where there is discomfort caused by one's own neglect of duty. If women are careful about their cooking they will be careful about other things, and in every home where there are those to care for others there is love and peace. Girls should learn to keep house nicely, if they would have their dreams of "love in a cottage" prove realities

L. C. BRADEN.

ABOUT LAMPS.—1. Keep your lamps full of oil, not half, or two-thirds full, but full. 2. Don't use any oil that will ignite from a lighted match applied to the surface in an open vessel. 3. Keep your burner and wick-tube well cleansed, and the crust rubbed off the top of the wick. 4. Turn your wick down to extinguish the light. Never blow it out under any circumstances. Half the accidents are caused by blowing out. Turn the wick down and let it go out itself. 5. After the light is out turn your wick down as low as it will bear without getting out of the ratchet, and keep it so till you light again. 6. Never use a lamp or oil-can that leaks, or is out of order. Get it mended or throw it away. Don't give it away. Be careful to observe rule No. 2.—J. B. Cooper Smyrna (Del.) Times.

RICE WAFFLES.—Boiled rice, one cup; eggs, three; butter, one ounce; sour milk, two cups; salt and soda, one teaspoonful each. Stir the rice to seperate the grains well; add the butter creamed, and the eggs frothed; dissolve the soda, stir into the milk; add to the mixture with flour enough to make a batter, rather thick; heat the waffle irons and rub well with butter; fill three-quarters only, and bake carefully.

DATE SAUCE.—Boil the dates for an hour, or until tender, in water enough to cover them; sift through a colander, rejecting such portions as will not pass; stir thoroughly, adding more water if too thick and boil again; if too sweet, acid fruit of any kind, boiled and passed through a colander, may be added before it is boiled the last time. Dried or canned fruits may be added without passing through the colander.

FRICASSEE OF COLD ROAST BEEF.—Cut the beef into very thin slices, shred a handful of parsley very fine, cut a small onion into quarters, and put all together in a stew-pan with a small piece of butter, and some strong soup stock. Season with salt and peper, and simmer very gently fifteen minutes. Then mix the yolks of two eggs and a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Rub a hot dish with a clove of garlic, and turn the fricassee into it.

OATMEAL SNAPS.—One cup of butter, two of raw oatmeal, three of flour, one tea spoonful of salt, a tea-spoonful of baking powder, milk enough to make a dough. Roll out very thin and cut in round or square cakes. Bake brown in a quick oven.

PORK APPLE PIE.—Make a crust as for apple pie; fill with sliced apples, then spread over two-thirds of a cup of salt pork (previously cut quite fine and soaked); add sweetening and water, and cover with a thin crust. I have another way which I like still better—rather it is more like pudding. Cover the inside of a pudding dish with dough made as for biscuit, about an inch thick; place in a layer of sliced apples, then a layer of pork, and continue to do so alternately until the dish is filled; then add molasses and water, and cover with a thick crust. Bake in a moderate oven three or four hours. I usually let it cool, cut it up, and steam it.

THE BEST YEAST—Is made as follows: Boil a handful of hops in two quarts of water ten minutes; strain, and add to the liquor one cup of sugar, six grated potatoes, and a table-spoonful of salt. Let it simmer half an hour, add a cupful of good yeast when lukewarm, and let it rise without being in any way chilled.—Mrs. Annie L. Jack, in Rural New Yorker.

OH, BURDENED HEART.

BY MARY E. WARREN.

Oh, burdened heart! look up and catch
The gleams that downward sifting
Flash brightly where there's need of cheer,
And each dark cloud is rifting;
Then if the spirit bids thee go
Where other hearts more burdens know,
Another's you'll be lifting.

Though each day has its cross, there'll be
A blessing, too, awaiting;
And heaven will smille upon the one
Whose deeds are joy creating;
A smile, a tear for gay or sad
Shall make some other heart more glad,
And joy for thee awaiting.

Oh, burdened heart! whate'er thy sky,
Wreathe not thyself in sadness;
Some precious thing God gives to thee
That's worthy of thy gladness;
Some love, or hope, or faith, or friend,
That with the best in thee shall blend
To make a song of gladness.

Good Giving.

Good giving is giving to a good end and with a good spirit. Be reasonably sure that good results will follow, and then give cheerfully. "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." Good giving secures not only the divine favor but the favor of man. Social standing is affected by it. To have the approbation of the wise and good is a blessing above silver and gold. Even bad men feel kindly toward the benevolent. Another advantage is your own inward consciousness of duty performed and good done. To be on good terms with yourself, to have the favor of men and the smile of the King of Kings is a consummation greatly to be desired.

The complete rule of giving, where the object is good, is well illustrated by the reported proceedings of a missionary meeting of colored people in the West Indies. The following resolutions were adopted:

1. We will all give something.
2. We will each give according to our ability.
3. We will give willingly.

Sow and then reap. Religion and benevolence have their harvest fields. Dr. John Todd once said to a friend, "A few days since I met a gentleman, the owner of a large paper mill. He took me through the mill and showed me great piles of paper and a world of things which I did not comprehend. I said: 'Will you please, sir, tell me the secret of your great success, for you told me you began life with nothing.' 'I don't know that there is any secret about it. When sixteen years old I went to S—to work. I was to receive $40 per year and my food; no more, no less. My clothing and all my expenses were to come out of the $40. I then solemnly promised God I would give him one-tenth for future capital. I then promised the Lord, whether He gave me more or less, I would never give less than one-tenth to him; to this vow I have conscientiously adhered, and if there be any secret to my success I attribute it to this. I believe God has blessed me and made my business to prosper, and I have so learned to be careful and economical that my nine-tenths go far beyond what the whole would. I believe any man who will made the trial will find it so.'"—Paths to Wealth, by J. D. Knox.

Colds yield to onions like magic, but Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a still better and by far more agreeable means of curing a Cold or Cough. You can buy a bottle for 25 cents at any drug store, and we are sure it will do the work every time.

A stump orator exclaimed "I know no north no south, no east, no west, fellow citizens!" "Then," exclaimed an old farmer in the crowd, "It's time you went to school and larnt jography."

The clergymen of Indianapolis have resolved that funerals shall be private; that there should be no public exhibition of deceased people, and that ministers should not be required to attend at the grave.

If Nearly Dead.

After taking some highly puffed up stuff, with long testimonials, turn to Hop Bitters, and have no fear of any Kidney or Urinary Troubles, Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Liver Complaint. These diseases cannot resist the curative power of Hop Bitters; besides it is the best family medicine on earth.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to hear of my mother, Viney, brothers James and Charley, and sister Sarah. Brother Charley was nick-named "Fish." I do not know mother's name; she belonged to Wm. Harris. They were carried back to Alabama, I know not what county. She left me in Texas with James McClond and Thomas Harris, a brother of Wm. Harris. I am her oldest son, and have not heard anything of them since the war. Address me at Hockley, Texas.

JESSE IRVIN.

Mrs. Melvina Gilden, my mother, was left in Longcoy county, Ark., in 1863. She belonged to widow Gildan. Had brothers Jasper, the oldest, Alexander and Benjamin Franklin Gildan. I was sold from Longay county to John Appywhite, who brought me to Little Rock, Ark., and sold me to one Vancourt. I had a sister Clarasie Gildan. I was brought to Texas by Mr. Vancourt. I last heard from my mother at Helena, Ark., with my brother Jasper. Send information either to me at 665 Crockett street, or to Rev. M. Henson, P. C., St. Paul M. E. Church, San Antonia, Texas.

FRANK LOWE.

MR. EDITOR.—I reside in Madison, Jefferson county, Indiana; a free holder of some property; was born in old Virginia, Madison county, five miles from Orange Courthouse, ten miles from Madison Courthouse, and three miles from Lyson Mill. My mother's name Nannie, and belonged to Mallier. A number of years ago I had a brother by the name of Horace Buckner sold to the Negro trader. The man that bought him was named Humphrey Taylor. When he came back after another drove of Negroes he stated to us that he had sold him in Huntsville, Ala. I have thought a thousand times about writing and trying to find him, but I thought that he was dead, and he may be, but I've come to the conclusion that he is as likely to be alive as I am. I am the oldest. I have a desire to hear from him. Gibson Maller, a son of old Billy, brought me and brother Peter from old Virginia, Jefferson county, within five miles of Louisville, and there we served until the emancipation took place. Brother Peter came to Indiana when I did, but he is dead now. He died in 1882. A family of them by the name of Buckner went to the South, and if any of them are there I would like to hear from them. I desire this to go through all of the churches, Baptist and Methodist. A son of old Travis Buckner that married Nannie, belonged to Ormbus Madison, not far from Orange Courthouse. Aunt Lettie was living in Kentucky the last I heard of her; uncle Madges wife.

ALFRED BUCKNER.

MR. EDITOR—Please allow me to inquire for my brother. The last time I saw him was in Coweta Ga., in 1866; he belonged to a man named Ben. Gray; has a mother named Winnie Gray; her husband was named Edmond Bridges; her children were Sidna, Mitchell, Niey, Dimon, Duck, Billie and Edda. Mitchell went off, it was said, with a Capt. Swaisure to work on a railroad somewhere in the North. He left us in Georgia. He is large built and of bright complexion. May this be read at points from pulpits and schools. His name is Mitchell Gray. I would be very happy to find him. Please address me at Tullahoma, Coffee county, Tenn.

JNO. COPPAGE.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find my people. Mother was Lucy Setes, and sisters were Martha, Mary Jane and Julia Setes. They were sold to Jack Godin at the Jack Godin sale. The man that bought me was Jas. Hickbottom. My mother lived in the back street of Lynchburg, Va., at the beginning of the war; she went to Baltimore and I have not heard of them since. Address "Setes," care of Rev. L. Felder, Bryan, Texas.

General Halleck Green, Montgomery City, Missouri, writes that he has written several times to his father and failed to hear from him. He desires his father's correct address.

MR. EDITOR—I want to inquire through your paper for my mother's sister. She was sold to a Mr. Young when about 8 years old. We parted in Hardin county, Ky. She was bought by some one living in Louisville, Ky.; her name was Elizabeth; my mother's name was Jane; we had other connections, there were Uncles Sam, Bill and Richmond. Her father's name was Daniel; he is dead. Her stepmother was named Charlotte. If any of you can tell anything of her or any of them please address Whitfield Fulton, Paris, Lamar county, Texas.

At a recent communion of the Moro, Ill., Presbyterian church fifty-seven persons were received into membership, all of them on confession of their faith. Forty of them received the ordinance of baptism.

Important Testimony.

We commend the following from a gentleman in Providence, R. I., to the careful perusal of all who doubt the great curative value of our Treatment. After questioning, and hesitating he finally became alarmed at his condition, which was steadily growing worse, and resolved to give Compound Oxygen a trial. What it did for him is best told in his own words. He says:

"I commenced the use of Compound Oxygen after a good deal of thought, and as far as in my power, careful study of the different cases which had been finally testified to as to the great benefit received, but not without many misgivings of its great curative power. I had been running down, consequent upon hard office work and close confinement for many years, until I took the business of train conductor in hope of a benefit from out door exercise. In my reduced state I took cold at the very commencement, which, after a five weeks' struggle, threw me into typhoid pneumonia It was at this time that I resolved to try and see for myself how far you had succeeded in accomplishing what you seemed to desire—that of conferring a great benefit upon your fellow beings by giving them this great remedy, so seemingly simple and at so little cost, and I am to-day truly thankfully that I had the courage to undertake what so few would advise under the circumstances. From a week and feeble state I have attained to something like my old self. Bronchial trouble is less, shortness of breath and heart trouble have decreased. I feel better generally, and begin to think there may be something of life left for me yet."

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 and 1111 Girard St., Philada.

The Tabernacle church, Brooklyn, Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage pastor, welcomed 139 new members on Sunday, the 2nd inst., which makes the total membership 3,107. Thirty-five of the candidates were baptized.

SAMARITAN NERVINE NEVER FAILS.

"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says a skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, and fifty other complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as

THE GREAT

NERVE CONQUEROR

It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists. (14)

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. The symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.

"I have had Dyspepsia, with Constipation, two years, and have tried ten different kinds of pills, and TUTT'S are the first that have done me any good. They have cleaned me out nicely. My appetite is splendid, food digests readily, and I now have natural passages. I feel like a new man." W. D. EDWARDS, Palmyra, O.

Plantation Melodies,

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krekbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Blair, of Wyoming, associate justice of the Supreme Court of Wyoming; Major Orville E. Babcock, to be lieutenant colonel of the Corps of Engineers.

Rev. E. Davies, in a communication to Zion's Herald, in giving some facts about Bishop Hamline relates the following: An infidel on a steamboat was arguing that when he died there would be no more of him than of his pet white horse, and turning to Mr. Hamline he said, "Can you prove otherwise, stranger?" Mr. H. replied, "If when your old horse is reposing under the shade on a hot day, I should approach and whisper in his ear arguments to prove that he is immortal, would you not deem me a fool?" The company broke up in a roar of laughter. The poor man was left to hide himself as best he could. This was answering a fool according to his folly.

A young man violently in love with a pretty seamstress, being asked what business he was in, sighed deeply and said: "I am developing a sewing machine attachment."

Hugh is four years old and full of questions. His mother sometimes gets tired of his questions, as most of mothers will. On one of these occasions his mother placed him in a chair and told him not to ask a question for ten minutes. Before the time was up Hugh said: "Mamma, may I ask a question?" "No," said mamma. "Just one little question?" still pleaded Hugh. "Not now. Wait awhile." But I'll forget it if I don't ask it now." Finally mamma said he might, and then he said: "Well, mamma, if you should die and papa should marry again, and then papa should die and his wife should marry again, what relation would her husband be to me?"

Sweet simplicity sometimes contains the sharpest sarcasm. A lawyer once said to his client, "Did you go to your opponent and try to settle with him?" "I did, your honor," was the reply. "And what did he say?" "Why, sir, he told me to go to the devil." "And what did you do then, sir?" "Why, then I came straight to you."

There is need of prayer similar to that made by an old colored woman who praying for one who had been guilty of slander, said: "O Lord, won't you be kind enough to take the door of his mouth off, and when you put it on again, just hang it on the gospel hinges of peace on earth and good will to men? Amen."

The House Committee of Post Offices and Post Roads, which has been investigating charges against Representative Ellis of Louisiana in connection with Star route frauds, has unanimously agreed that the charges are utterly groundless and unsupported by the evidence.

A note from Bishop Warren dated Mexico, Jan. 28, says of the Mexican Mission: "All goes well. There has been a great gain in members and self support, the amount of the latter being now $4,599.51.

An Irishman recently stopped at an hotel where pretty high bills were charged. In the morning the landlord made out the amount of damages and presented it to Pat. After he had glanced it over, the latter looked the landlord in the face and exclaimed: "You put me in mind of a snipe." "Why?" asked the landlord. "Because ye're pretty nigh all bill."

Josh Billings says: "There is one thing about a hen that looks like wisdom. They don't kackle much until after they have laid heir egg. Sum pholks are alwuz a bragging and kackling what they are going to do be-forehand."

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this pader. u44-14t

One of the best definitions of faith was given by a bright Sunday-school boy to his teacher: "As near as I can make out, it is feeling perfectly sure of a the thing when you have nothing to back it up."

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retird from practice, having had placed in his hands by an old East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. A large funeral procession was slowly moving up Main Steet. Little three-year-old Nellie A——was delighted with the gay uniforms and loud music But, when the end of the procession passed she asked, with a disappointed look: "Where is the elephant?"

A dandy with a cigar in his mouth entered a menagerie, when the proprietor requested him to take the weed from his mouth, lest he should teach the other monkeys bad habits.

The Daily Christian Advocate.

The forthcoming General Conference promises to be one of great interest It is the closing General Conference of the first Century of organized American Methodism. Its reports from every department of our widely-extended work, and the suggestions of plans and recommendations of methods for enlarging the work at home and abroad; the presence and addresses of distinguished Fraternal messengers from other religious bodies, some of them from beyond the sae, and of eminent missionaries connected with our various foreign mission fields; and the discussions by the many able and influential delegates, lay and clerical, (representing nearly a hundred different Annual Conference), of the many great questions which are to be considered at this transition period of our Church history, are sure to engage the attention of our people in all parts of the world.

In order to respond to the demaods of this enlarged and increasing interest, and thus give to all our people the earliest, and most ample reports, the Agents of the Book Concerns at New York and Cincinnati will publish The Daily Christian Advocate, to be issued every morning, Sundays excepted, during the entire General Conference session. It will furnish reliable reports of every item of interest in the doings of that highest legislative and judicial ecclesiastical body, also of the sermons and addresses of the distinguished fraternal representative and visitors. It will print numerous pen-and-ink sketches of distinguished delegates, lay and clerical, and of fraternal representatives and visitors present, and will give in each number a summary of the latest telegraphic and other Church and secular news received up to the hour of going to presi.

The Daily will be under the editorial supervision of Dr. W. H. De Puy who, in his editorial experience, extending through a score of years in connection with our Church papers, and including three different volumes of the Daily Christian Advocate, is well known to the Church. He will have able and experienced assistants, and no effort will be omitted either in the Editorial or Publishing Departments to make the paper as complete, attractive, instructive, and of as great permanent value, as possible.

The first number of The Daily Christian Advocate (an eight-page, neatly printed folio) will be issued at Philadelphia on Thursday morning, May, 1, 1884; and the volume will end with the number issued on the day following the close of the General Conference session. The last number will contain an amplo and well-arranged table of contents, for the convenience of the many of our ministers and people who will desire to preserve the whole volume for future and frequent reference The price will be $1.50, postage prepaid by the Publishers.

We respectfully and earnestly request all preachers to bring the paper immediately before their people, and either personally or by proxy make a thorough convass of their congregations. Let the names be forwarded by April 1, if possible, and certainly by the middle of the month, as it is important to have our mail-list so complete that there shall be no complaint by subscribers not receiving promptly their first number. In no instance should any subscription list, however small, be delayed in order to send by some delegate or visitor to the General Conference.

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the Savannah MORNING NEWS makes a new departnre in jonrnalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

incldndiog its mammoth eight-page Snnday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remaiu the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the fntnre as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Angusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 1614-1y

[illegible] that God is able [illegible] the dead? (Golden [illegible]. XII.—Why did Paul desire and need the prayers of his brethren? To whom should we show the patience of Christ? What should be done with lazy boys and girls? What is Paul's charge to the faithful Christian? (Golden Text.) —Westren.

A Michigan boy ate a bar of soap, drank a lot of soda water and went to bed to cure his cold. The doctor had a hard time to pull him through, but the boy now says the next time he catches a cold he will use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

NEW BOOKS.

THE FELLOW STUDENT. By Hans Tharan. Translated from the German, by Joanna L. Rockwood. Published by the American Tract Society 150 Nassau Street New-York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 94 Camp Street, New-Orleans. Price $1.10.

The publications of the American Tract Society are always excellent, and we think constantly improving. The book before us is one that will be read with interest, and if its suggestions are heeded, with great profit by all young people, who entering upon their college life, desire to be free from the corrupting influence of those whom loose or unsettled views as to the great doctrines of Revelation. It shows how the devoted Christian mother may involuntarily influence and lead her child to choose the narrow path. It is one of those books that should be in every Sunday-school and family library.

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTRY—With Miscellanies for Candidates. By, J. W. Kimball. Published by J. A. Whipple, 9 Hamilton Place, Boston. Price $1.

We have read this book with some care and pleasure. Mr. Kimball evidently thinks for himself and expresses his thoughts in a style that will astonish some good people. A clearer statement of faith and holiness we have not seen. But we like what is said about the qualifications for work of Christian ministry. Certainly the "man who is filled with the Spirit, led by the Spirit, taught by the Spirit, will overcome his natural indolence, temper, pride, vanity, ambition, and covetousness." There is nothing dull in this book. The logic style and many of the illustrations are peculiar to the author. There is a freshness and vigor that runs through each chapter.

From Thomas Y. Crowell, and Co., 13 Astor Place New-York, we have Hints to Our Boys, by Andrew J. Symiuton, with an introduction by Lyman Abbott, D. D. Price 75c. "The father," says Mr. Abbott "is the boy's councilor; no one can take his place. The best inheritance he can dequeath his son is an inheritance of experience." No book can take the place of a father's counsel, he can not throw off his responsibility by giving his boy a book. We have found this little volume interesting and instructive, it seems to us if fathers would put this books into the hands of their boys it would give them suitable information as to the formation of character, the value of time, and the necessity of economical habits. We heartily commend this book, it is worthy of a place in every home.

THE BIRTH AND GROWTH OF MYTH. By Edward Clodd, F. R. A. S. Price 15c. J. Fitzgerald, Puplisher, 20 Lafayette Place New York.

This work forms No. 54 of the "Humboldt Library of Popular Science." It comprises twenty chapters, with an Appendix, and gives a very intelligible account of the origin and development of mythological stories, from the scientific point of view. The chapters entitled Nature as viewed by Primitive Man; Personification of the Powers of Nature; Metempsychosis and Transformation; Aryan Mythology; and Survival of Myth in Historical Narratives, are singularly interesting, and present in popular form the results of the most recent researches in Mythic Lore. For sale by newsdealers.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

From the United Brethren Pnb lishing House, Daytou, Ohio, we have received "From Death Unto Life," an Easter service, by E. L. Shuey, A. M. Price 5c; $3 per 100.

A feature of special interest in the Current of March 22, will be an extended editorial review of the manuscript of a volume, soon to be published, the object of which is to absolutely demonstrate the discovery of America in the fifth century by the Chinese. The information of the preparation of such a work is thus given the pnb lic for the first time. The volume will prove one of the most splendid achievements of American scholarship, and will arouse the attention of all literary and scientific people. Its author, a gentleman of the most profound philologic, historic and literary acquirements, appears before the public in this work for the first time, though he is widely known in another capacity.

The April Century contains two architectural papers, one on the New York City Hall and another on the White House,—the latter more descriptive of the interior of the building, which has been recently decorated by Mr. Louis C. Tiffany and his associate artists. In the May Century will begin Mrs. Van Rensselaer's articles on the present movement in American architecture, which are to be rich in illustration of both public and private buildings, churches, college buildings, railroad stations, stores, city and country houses, etc.

Mayne Reid, in his last story, "The Land of Fire," now appearing in St. Nicholas, brings to light the curious fact that white, the color universally elsewhere regarded as a sign of peace, is by the natives of Tierra del Fuego used as a signal of hostility.

Whether the United States are to regain their former pre-eminent rank as a commercial and naval power on the seas, is a question that no American can contemplate with indifference. The subject is discussed with marked ability in the North American Review for April, by the Hon. Nelson Dingley, M. C., who opposes the project of admitting foreign-built ships to American register, and by Capt. John Codman, who is well known as a zealous advocate of that measure. Judge J. A. Jameson, in the same number of the Review, discusses the question, "Shall Our Civilization be Preserved," pointing out the means that are at hand for withstanding the various agencies, physical, moral and intellectual, which threaten to overturn our existing civil and social institutions. The Rev. Dr. Philip Schaff gives a sketch of the "Development of Religious Freedom." Dr. Felix L. Oswald writes of "Changes in the Climate of North America," with special reference to the increasing frequency of disastrous floods. Prof. C. A. Eggert offers "A Plea for Modern Languages" in the higher education; and Julian Hawthorne discourses of "Literature for Children." Finally, there is a discussion of "Recent Criticisms of the Bible," by the Rev. Dr. R. Heber Newton and the Rev. A. G. Mortimer.

The numbers of The Living Age for March 15th and 22d, contain The Guide of Islam, and Turkish Arabia, Fortnightly; Christian Agnosticism, Cardinal Newman on the Inspiration of Scripture, and Professor Tyndall on Rainbows, Nineteenth Century; The Tale of Tristram and Iseult, National Review; History in Little, and Charles Cottou, Gentleman's Magazine; Chinese Gordon, Reminiscences of Jamaica, and Club Gambling in the Last Century, All the Year Round; Bears and Wolves, Belgravia; Tropical Fruits, and Tea: its Culture and Consumption St. James's Gazette; Gales and Hurricanes, Spectator; George Eliot's Essays, Athenæum; with instalments of "The Baby's Grandmother," "Valerie's Fate," "Dr. Ball" and "Old Mr. Binney." Littell & Co., Boston, publishers.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $50,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to possess a magnificent Standard, steel-engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends.....28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends.....28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits.....28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims.....28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims.....24x36
Farmer's Saturday Night.....26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's.....28x36.

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

Rev. Wm. R. Clark, D.D., an honored member of the New England Conference, in a recent communication to the Christian Advocate, referring to the sentiment so often expressed that the Methodist Episcopal Church would "not be justified in demanding the acceptance of her highest standard of the doctrine of Christian brotherhood as the condition on which her work wrs to be carried on in the South," calls it an instance of "pitiable pettifogging," and we agree with him.

"A professor in the University of Upsala offers to freeze any person who will volunteer, deprioing them of all appearance of vitality, and to bring them round again at the expiration of two years withont injury." Of the correctness of this statement we are not prepared to speak. It sounds a little Don Quixotic. But it occurs to us that it affords a good opportunity for certain persons to secure two years of blessings to themselves, and to confer a great benefit upon society. And if by some mishap the professor should fail to bring them round, the blessing and benefit will only be extended.

At the time the census was taken in 1880 there were only 180 mills, with 713,989 spindles and 15,222 looms. But now, according to the Manufacturer's Record, which is supposed to have a complete record, there are 314 mills, having 1,276,422 spindles and 24,873 looms. This is certainly a remarkable increase for three years, and indicates a prosperous condition of this branch of industries here in the South. It is good news for the South, and none the less for the North. We are a nation, and the prosperity of one section is the prosperity of the whole.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN—Last Sabbath Dr. J. C. Hartzell dedicated our new church and university chapel in Athens. Dr. H. did noble work, preached a grand sermon and moved with a masterly hand upon the work of raising $650 to cover our indebtedness. This was done in a very few minutes. This is a prosperous year in Athens. We add about $8000 to permanent improvements, and have enrolled about 280 students. Rejoice with us.

L. B. CALDWELL.

Athens, March 25, 1884.

We congratulate our brethren in their onward movement. This is the kind of energy and push that should characterize all of our work in the South. Persons afflicted with anything that looks like moral or physical imbecility may be of use in some parts of the church, but not here. We need men who can pray with their windows open towards Jerusalem, and have no sense of fear or shame. A school that has 280 young men and women enrolled with a strong, vigorous and Christian faculty, must be a benediction.

Of the M.E. Church at Marysville, Kansas, the Kansas Methodist says: "One of the influential leaders of the rum power said a year ago, "We never had any drubles til dese Methodists cum here and we never wil hev enny peace til we drive 'em ont." But the driving out is easier said then done. Five years ago we had but seven members here, now we have one hundred, four years ago we had less than $400 worth of property, now we have over $4,000. Though we still have to contend with the world, the flesh and the devil, we are upon a good fighting basis."

The recent explosion in the Pocahontas coal mine, in Tazewell county, Va., was one of the most terrible explosions that has ever occurred in this country. There were in the mine between 150 and 160 men, all of whom perished. Those nearest the shaft were blown upwards, and fragments of their bodies were found the next morning scattered in all directions. An overcoat was thrown over half a mile from the shaft. So violent was the shock that window glass was broken in houses ten miles from the mine, the mountain above was literally torn asunder. The cause of the explosion is not known; there is a conjectnre that a hidden chamber of confined gas was thrown open by a blast. An outbreak of fire followed the explosion and cut off all hope of rescuing any of the unfortunate miners. For some days the mine has been sealed, hoping thereby to extinguish the fire. Nearly all of the men who perished had families who were dependent upon them for the means of support. We are thankful to learn that the State Legislature is making provision for their relief. Alas! how uncertain is life; who can tell what of joy or sorrow the next hour may bring to us.

The new creed of the Congregationalists does not meet with the approval of some of its ablest ministers. Of the twenty-five men employed in its formation twenty-two gave it their signatures. The Advocate says it states what the Congregationalists "believe and teach." The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher does not wholly approve of it, but no one criticeses it more sharply than the Rev. Joseph Cook. He said in a prelude to a recent lecture:

"It is a most serious and critical hour with the church, and further on affirms that: 'The new creed is a partition of latitudinous loop holes. The result of the doctrine would be a milleunium of milk and water. The new creed is opposed by a minority of dignity, and they will undoubtedly give their reasons. The intepretation of the new creed shows it is regarded as a victory for the new latitudinarians.'"

Bnt as Mr. Cook is not the keeper of any conscience bnt his own we presnme that the Congregationalists will hold on to this new faith. The Advocate says that "It is not Calvinistic nor is it Armenian; it is Congregational Catholic and Christian." This seems to indicate that there is nothing distinctive about congregationalism; then there can be no reason for its denominational existence. But if this new creed pleases our Congregationalist brethren a Methodist should not complain, even though he thinks it smacks of compromise.

Navasota District Conference and Houston Seminary.

BY REV. C. W. CAMPBELL.

March 22d the writer had the pleasure of attending the Navasota district conference at Hempstead. The most obvions feature of the landscape on the route was water. The ponds seemed to have abundance of wild fowl, and with the proper outfit the temptation to indulge in a day's hunting would have been a very strong one. The broad expanse of wild prairie, with the occasional patches of woodland, where the oaks are draped with the leaden gray moss, and the dark pines act as a background, altogether furnish a picture not soon to be forgotten, and a feast of beauty to one who has been all winter in the city.

Reaching Hempstead we found Bro. Pullam in the chair, and Bro. J. L. Smith acting as Secretary, assisted by Bro. Thos. Cole. To say these brethren were pushing business is putting it lightly. We have seldom or never spent a day at any conference more pleasantly than this. We made the acqnaintance of many we had not before known, and felt glad to meet many whose acquaintance had previously begun.

Among the many kind offers of entertainment we received it was hard to choose. In company with Elder Pullam and Bro. B. M. Taylor, we enjoyed at noon the hospitality of Bro. and Sister Freeman. Afterward we visited the country home of Bro. J. S. Whitaker, and spent a pleasant time. Bro. W. located at the last conferenee, but his heart is still in the work, his presence still in the district sessions, and we hope he will yet do strong work in the Texas Conference. We have a warm place in our heart for the church at Hempstead. It is one of the charges which raised its subscription for the Freedmen's Aid collection, amounting to one hundred dollars. Many thanks are due Bro. Whitaker, as pastor, and the people who so nobly responded to the call. God will bless them.

At the suggestion of Bro. J. L. Smith, it was determined that the Navasota District should put a three years insuranee upon Houston Seminary; the amount of the insurance to be $2000. The proposition was heartily indorsed by the conference, and they at once proceeded to assess themselves, with the understanding that the whole was to be paid within thirty days. The amount was soon made up. Quite a number, including the presiding elder, gave personal pledges in addition to the assessment of the charges. Bro. Smith, who never likes the sun to go down upon an unpaid debt, was the first one to turn over his cash, amounting to three dollars. All the payments as they come in will be acknowledged in the SOUTHWESTERN.

We are glad to report this action of the district. It shows that they appreciate the schooi and mean to stand by it. The district has already sent quite a number of students. We invite them to send more and continue to send them. One pastor reported eighteen local preachers on his work and in assigning them work it was found that there were not enough fields of labor for them. We invited, and again invite a number of them to attend the Seminary, that they may prepare to go out into other fields. Two of the local brethren from that circuit are already with us, doing good work. Who will be the next to come?

Nashville District Conference

DEAR EBITOR—I wish to say a few words in regard to the Nashville District Conference, which convened March 20th, in the M. E. Church at Franklin, Tenn. Our presiding elder, Rev. Jas. Pickett, in the chair. Rev. J. Braden, D.D., President of the Central Tennessee College, opened the session with religions exercises. On motion the writer was elected seeretary, and Rev. H. Robinson was elected assistant. There were 12 members present at the opening of the conference. The number finally increased to 20. Notwithstanding the hard winter through which we have passed, the reports showed something done for the benevolent causes of the church; also revivals held in which many had been converted to God and added to the church. Several resolntions were passed. The conferenee greatly sympathized with the elder in the loss of his wife. A resolution requesting the presiding elder to hold two or three Sunday-school institutes during the year was passed. The following committee on programme for the institute was appointed: Revs. James Pickett, L. M. Hagood and J. F. Moreland. The following are the assessments for the benevolent causes of the church.

The SOUTHWESTERN was spoken of by Dr. Braden as the paper for our church in the South. It was chosen as the paper for our conference.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered the good people of Franklin for their hospitality, after which the conference adjourned.

A five minutes talk for the SOUTHWESTERN from the pulpit next Sunday will do more good than you think. Who will make the effort?

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Rev. Joseph Hason.

Rev. Joseph Hason died Sunday March 16th, 1884, at 7 a. m. after a long and painful siege of suffering, being confined to his bed since last August. He was taken down at the district conference at Shreveport, and for these seven months his suffering has been intensely painful. Bro. Hason was a local preacher here for years, served the church faithfully, and served as a pastor during the unexpired term of Bro. Abbott, when he was recommended to the conferenee for the traveling connection. When the conference met at Franklin, Bishop Peck ordained him a deacon in the largest class (25) that was ever ordained at once in any conference in the South. Bro. Hason received his first appointment in the spring of 1882 to Colnmbia circuit on the line of Louisiana and Texas, on or near the Sabine where he went to do and die for Jesus if needs be, nnder Rev. Stephen Duncan now presiding elder of the Shreveport district. He did a right good work here, as he was a man of good Christian acts, some knowledge of books, and some commanding ways to draw onr people to him, he was a pretty fair preacher, a good singer, always ready and willing to do, as well as plan. At the conference at Alexandria in 1883 Bro. Hason, received his second appointment, from Bishop Hurst to the same circuit. He went back to do more with the poor people, who were almost isolated from the knowledge of such a great church. He carried the light into that drak region and brought these people out. He was not a full member of confereuce, had he attended the last conference it New Orleans he could have been received in full connection. He supplied himself last year with a lot of books of the conference studies. He is gone—his Christian conduct and his life tells us where we may find him. He leaves a dear wife who stood by him night and day, nearly broken down; three sisters, several brothers and a daughter, and many others to mourn his loss. Elder Duncan and myself gave him the sacrament Sunday night and he said it was the last day. Among other things he said "Bro. Wright, my way is clear, I am going through I have done my work, I am waiting for Jesus to do his, I am all ready. There is nothing between me and my God. I am weak in the flesh but I never was so strong in the Spirit. I am taking it as it comes. I have been working for the kingdom and I must go. I here see things I donbted, I am past doubting now. I give my wife and child all into Jesus' hands." His daughter standiug by the bed side weeping he said to her, "Danghter don't weep, papa is going home out of this misery." His remains were taken to the Asbruy Methodist Episcopal Church, where services were held; from there to the American Cemetery a larger body of mourning friends and relatives followed him to his grave. Bro. Hason was about 34 years old, born at Allen, La., where his father raised a large family. Our church at this place bears the name of Hason chapel, in memory of their pastor. All the family were Methodists. His father was shot and killed through the front door of his own house, for his beiug a Republican and a leader of his race. This family was above the average of colored families in the days of salvery, for they all had advantages of some education, and were raised with some extraordinary care. God bless his dear wife and child.

H. J. WRIGHT.

MR. EDITOR—At Cotile I found that Bro. Patterson and his brethren had commenced building a new church to replace the one blown down last year. The frame was all up when the quarterly conference met. The People were pleased, and matters looked bright. A parsonage was commenced also; $12 was collected in quarterly conference for it.

At Natchitoches the brethren were in good spirits, but the weather was bad. Bro. Wright looks for a good time this year. Pastor's promised $550, elder $50, bishop $2.

At Campte, S. S. Wright commences the year prosperously. People are poor but will do their best.

I rode 45 miles to Columbia, and there met Bro. Butler and his brethren. This is a new work, but Bro. Butler will carry the people forward.

At Robelene, Bro. Wallace has established his headquarters. The people are aroused to the importance of having churches and parsonages in towns. May God in His infinite power, here as elsewhere, enable them to come out of darkness into light.

At Shreveport the small pox and high water afflict the brethren.

S. DUNCAN.

Mr. Jonas denied, most emphatically, as baseless and calumnious any charge that the people of the South had any prejudice against the colored people. "You sympathize," said Mr. Jonas. "with their ignorance and poverty, but they are our fellow-citizens; we meet them in contests in every day life; they are our neighbors; they pervade the streets of our cities; they live in our villages; they cultivate our fields; they mix with our families; they mix with our children; they vote at our polls, and to a large extent control our elections." Mr. Harrison inquired whether the Senator meant to imply that the colored voters controlled the elections in his section. Mr. Jonas replied they did wherever they had the nnmerical right to control them.—Senate debate.

The Democratic Convention in New Orleans named the following ticket: Mayor, J. V. Guillotte, ninth ward; Public Works, John Fitzpatrick, third ward; Police and Public Buildings, P. Meallie, first ward; Treasurer, I. W. Patton, eleventh ward; Comptroller, J. K. Hardy, eighth ward; Civil Sheriff, Thomas Duffy, fourth ward; Criminal Sheriff, Chas. A. Butler, sixth ward; Clerk of Criminal Court, Jas. Barry, second ward; Clerk of Civil Court, W. J. McGeehan, eleventh ward; Recorder of Mortgages, J. J. O'Brien, tenth ward; Register of conveyances, Joe Batt, twelfth ward; Coroner, Dr. J. F. Finney, fourth ward; District Attorney, Lionel Adams, fourth ward; Upper District Recorder M. J. Sheehan, Lower District Recorder, T. J. Ford.

The first through train over the Mexican Central Railway left the Union Depot of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway at El Paso, March 18. It will be four and one-half days in making the trip to the City of Mexico, but this time will be reduced to half that period in a few days, when the new schedule is prepared. The Mexican Central is now open for busness.

SOILED-PAINT BLINDS THIS WEEK

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

D. Shelby, Coushatta: "I have four appointments and propose to have a Sunday-school at each. Have received six into the church since I came here."

J. Qualls, La Harpe Street: "Our first quarterly conference was held March 20th. Bro. Cushman, our presiding elder, was on hand in good spirits and attended to every part of his work. The quarterly conference made liberal provision for the preacher. The reports showed that more money had been raised this quarter than any previous quarter for some time. A nice fence, costing about fifty dollars, has been put up in front of the church and paid for by the young people. The Sunday-school is prospering. We feel very much encouraged about our work here, because our brethren seem ready to fall into line."

J. W. Hudson, Mt. Zion: "The many friends of this church and Bro. Hudson will be glad to learn that he has entered upon a year of prosperity. The quarterly conference was held March 22d. We have never had better reports for the first quarter, nor have we seen the brethren more hopeful. Sister Lizzie Taylor, superintendent of the Sunday-school, was never doing more good. Bro. Hudson in his report made special mention of Bro. Marshall, his predecessor, and of the excellent condition in which he found the church. We were thankful to see that he was not afraid to speak of the good work done by the Bro. who preceded him. We shall expect to record glorious results from Mt. Zion during this centennial year.

A. J. Ford, Clinton Street, New Orleans: "The people gave their new pastor a cordial welcome, and are doing what they can to make his ministry a success. A revival of religion is what this church needs more than anything else. Some are earnestly praying for the baptism of the Holy Ghost, and we say 'Even so, Lord Jesus, come quickly.' Our quarterly conference was held March 18. Bro. Cushman was present attending to his work. A spirit of unity and harmony seems to prevail among the people. The Sunday-school is increasing in numbers and interest. The congregations are good, and we are hopeful as to the future.

TEXAS.

Wesley Fletcher, Mineola: "I did not find a member in Henderson, or a piece of church property. The condition was the same when the presiding elder visited the place. We can do nothing there without aid. We are trying to build a church here, as the old church is not fit to preach in. I was gladly received by the people here."

B. Fisher, Lovelady: "I was appointed to supply this circuit by Elder Lee, and commenced Jan. 1st. I was kindly received by the people. I find 42 members of our church here. There are 2 churches and a lot for another. The weather has interfered with our Sunday-school. My support has been a limited one, but I think the people will do more soon. The elder's first visit was a pleasant occasion. The committee estimated for elder $65, pastor, $350."

Rev. James Morton, Gibson, writes about a man who quit his work because there was no church in it. Bro. Morton thinks that more men ought to blow less and work more. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN agrees with him. More work and less blowing is what is needed just now.

L. Felder, Bryan circuit: "Everything on the circuit bids fair for the best. Last Sunday night we had a good time at our love feast. We received three into full connection; one from the A. M. E. Church. The elder was present and made the hearts of his people glad."

R. R. Roberts, Houston: "The Wesleyan Seminary is a good school. It is under the control of Rev. C. Campbell. The school has a good attendance. All we need is for the members and preachers of these districts to do their work as men and ministers, and next fall we can have a frame building erected for the primary department. The school is being built up by Prof. Campbell, and we hope that each brother will be deeply impressed to do his whole duty to the school and the youth of our State. The best looking, and most able talent of our young men and women are given to vice and immorality. We must renew our efforts for the work before us. This is to prepare many for the ministry and for teachers. We have some studying for the ministry. I hope God may bless the earnest workers in our midst. We see young men and women from the adjacent counties. The Lord cause our friends to send their children to the church school. We want to work up our Freedmen's Aid collections better than last year. Houston is a railroad center, and is the place for a good school. Dear brethren let us wake up to our duty in regard to all the church enterprises, and put them before the people in due time, and not put it off until the last of the year. Dear brothers, these are dark days for some of us who are not making any progress in study. Look forth to the bright future for the man or woman who reads and studies the science of this world. We can prepare at Houston Seminary and a number of other places, that the old church has planted in our reach. Send your sons and your daughters, and let them have a knowledge of the higher branches. Look well to our own schools. Stick to them by giving them our support. If we love the church we ought to love her institutions of learning. Brothers, look well to our own interest, and the growth of our school work in Texas."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. W. Stewart, Tupelo: "We have a progressive Sunday-school at St. Paul's and have organized a society to which other schools are flocking."

N. N. Sidney: Yazoo City: "Our church is in a prosperous condition. We raised for our preacher in Jan. and Feb. $76.20. We have just started our protracted meeting and have thus far a large number of mourners. We long to see the time when God shall thresh the mountains and the hills and drive all of the sinners home to his Son. Pray for us."

TENNESSEE.

J. L. Massey, Martin, answers the question: "Why do not our people attend church better in the winter, and why do some of our preachers have such poor reports at our Annual Conference," thus. The reason why so many stay away from church is because they cannot earn enough in the warm weather to feed them and keep them warm in the cold. As I go among them in the winter I find many of them have no shoes to put on, certainly such persons must stay away from the house of the Lord in the winter. Now if the people are so poor that they can not buy for themselves suitable clothing, how can they support the Gospel. The extreme poverty of some of our people makes these seeming bad reports on the part of the pearcher a necessity. He may visit them from house to house but if they are poor they can give nothing. People can not give that which they have not. They are loyal to the church and would do if they could. I am glad that the poor may be rich in faith and their of the kingdom. May the Lord bless our poor people."

A Burdett, Friendship: "Our first quarterly meeting was held by Elder Price. We collected for our elder $6.50; for the pastor $2. Bishop $1; missions $2.25; Freedmen's Aid Society 50; Church Extension Society 25. Our church is owing $182, we need help. If any person has some of the Lord's money and wants to help us please forward the same to J. Braden, D.D. Nashville Tennessee, who will see that it is well used. The visit of our elder was a great blessing to us; he preached to the satisfaction of our people."

FLORIDA.

Rev. S. B. Darnell, President of Cookman Institute writes that a gracious revival is in progress in that school and that nearly all the students have been brought to Christ.—Methodist Messenger.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

We learn that all the students at Claflin University who have rooms on the Campus have been converted but two. It must indeed be a happy institution where so many are rejoicing in pardoning love.—Methodist Messenger.

The White Work in Mississippi.

MR. EDITOR.—It may be of some interest to some the who may chance to read this to know something of the organization of our church among the whites in Mississippi. In the fall of 1868, nearly four years after the war had ended, the Rev. A. C. McDonald being invited came into the country for the purpose of organizing the Methodist Episcopal Church among the whites. He preached his first sermon in Choctaw (now Webster) county, at a place then know as the Bridge's school house. The war having ended left the people in quite a disorganized condition. Soldiers had returned home in rags, and to homes made desolate by the four years of carnage. Besides the desolation made in the country, men had different ideas about the great conflict through which they had passed. Soldiers who had fought side by side in battle were now of different sentiment. The one party held to the views of the old war party, while the other held to the old Union party. Four million slaves stood, from whose hands the shackles of bondage had been loosened, attracting the attention of all. Measures of reconstruction had been taken to make them citizens. The one party held that they should have no rights; while the other claimed for them citizenship. In the time of this tumult Bro. McDonald came, bearing the olive branch of peace. He was received by one party as a friend, by the other as an emy.

Let it be said to his credit that he came as an invited guest, and not as an intruder. At the place above stated, in a grove for a house and the sky for a covering, he raised his voice in the Spirit of his Divine Master, claiming his mission in the language of Wesley, "The world is my parish." Some with pure motives came to his standard, others came who had no special design, but as a floating element, because of its novelty; others for secular, and yet others for pecuniary motives. Like the net cast into the sea, "both good and bad were gathered in." In the grove a neat church house has been erected. Many hard things have been said about the radical Methodist. Many who came to hear Bro. McDonald preach were pricked in their hearts, others said he ought to be hanged to a tree; yet their children learned to love the great preacher, many of whom found Christ. Some went to other churches, others went back to the world because of the hard sayings of their parents. How often fathers and mothers drive their children as lambs to the slaughter by hard words about other denominations. For nine years Bro. McDonald preached for us. I have seen near two thousand people hearing him preach. At last the preacher fell. His last sermon was preached in Mt. Pisgah church, Calhoun county. Soon other strong laymen were called home, among whom was Hon. G. W. Holland, State treasurer. Soon our minister left us, some went to other churches, some to other States, until there was not a traveling minister left to care for the flock. Local preacher had to take the lead, discouraged, to fight the battle. Though some of our leaders have left us loving the fleece more than the flock. Yet through all this we have lived. After the tornado has passed a few trees are seen standing. So with us. We are still here as a monument of God's mercy. Yes, living in answer to the prayers of his faithful servant who planted our Methodism here. We are praying to God to help us. Near our little church, (Shady Grove) our father and mother repose. Their voices no longer cheer us in the prayer meeting. Though of the "lower class," we are looking up with uplifted hands, calling for help. Who will look down and help us with a kind word or smile. Through this State there are many places where much can be done, if some one will help us.

A Letter From Sherman.

MR. EDITOR—This is one of the most enterprising towns in Northern Texas, and is growing fast. I should like it much better if we had a church of our own to which I could go, but as yet we have none and it seems to me that we never shall. The Baptist and Colored M. E. Church of America each have a church, but they are on the west side of the city. I cannot see why the Methodist Episcopal Church cannot do a work here. I have what I call a nice property here and would be glad to stay if we had a church. I have not heard a Methodist sermon since I was at the Texas Conference at Paris. I hope that the Lord will send some missionary this way.

JACOB MARSHALL.

Rev. John S. Inskip

The Methodist Episcopal Church has known well the subject of this brief sketch for the last thirty or forty years. He was a man of such positive character, intensity of conviction and force in his peculiar work, that he made his mark wherever he went. He died March 8th, at Ocean Grove, New Jersey, in the 69th year of his age. He was born in Huntington, England, August 10, 1816, and was brought to this country by his father, Edward S. Inskip, in 1820. The family settled at Wilmington, Delaware, and there, through the preaching of Rev. Levi Scott, afterwards elected Bishop, John was converted to God, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. This was, we think, 1832, when he was about sixteen years of age. His father had no sympathy with his religious experience, but was an avowed infidel and chairman of a club of scoffing unbelievers. He did not at first interfere with John's religion, thinking that it was a transient delusion. To keep the boy at home, and give him a chance to display his new-born zeal, Mr. Inskip allowed him to use an old blacksmith shop as a meeting house. This place became a Bethel where souls were born into the kingdom of God. The lad led his meeting with great discretion and effect. Three of his sisters, and several neighbors were brought to God in the old shop, and finally the father's attention was called to the affair, and resulted in a peremptory order to quit holding meetings. "Give up your praying, and nonsense, or else quit my house," said the irate father.

"Very well, father," said the lad. "I can leave home if you say so, but the Lord helping me, I must take care of my soul, cost what it will!"

Mr. Inskip was greatly enraged at this answer, and told John to leave in the morning, and that he would disinherit him. In the morning John prepared to leave home, and went to the barn to pray first, and there broke out in a most fervent and affecting prayer for his father, and arising from his knees he started off, singing joyfully, "with all his soul,"

"O how happy are they, who their Saviour obey.
And have laid up their treasure above;
Tongue can never express the sweet comfort and peace.
Of a soul in its earliest love."

Mr. Inskip's home was then in Chester Co., Penn. The boy's loud singing attracted the attention of the Quaker neighbors, who came to him and asked "where is thee going, John?" John briefly answered, stating the facts, and then went on singing. The guilty father was at first infuriated, and then overwhelmed with shame and conviction of sin. He went to the barn and kneeled where his poor boy had prayed, and cried to God for mercy. He sobbed and wept read the Bible, and what religious books he had, but found no relief.

John had taken nothing with him except the suit he wore; and thought he would go back, and get his clothes, if he could. As he was cautiously drawing near the house, on the third day after his expulsion, one of his sisters saw him, and ran to meet him, and said; "John! father has been praying, ever since you went away."

The poor, broken-hearted father, when he saw the returning boy, said to his wife: "My dear, John's all right, and we are all wrong," and then, turning to John, he said: "My son, can you get any of your people to come and pray for me." "O yes, father," said the happy boy. "Then saddle the horse, and go quick," sobbed out the guilt-stricken man.

John mustered all the Methodists he could find in the neigborhood, and they had a wonderful prayer-meeting, during which the old gentleman, while attempting to read from Isaiah: "Surely he hath borne our griefs," etc., was fully and freely pardoned. Rev. J Best, of Philadelphia Conference, made the old backsmith shop a preaching place, and in it baptised Edward S. Inskip and "all his house." John began to preach in 1835, and rapidly rose to distinction, filling important appointments in Philadelphia, Cincinnati and New York.

While in Cincinnati he had the famous controversy concerning the rule requiring men and women to sit apart in church. He permitted families to sit together. The Western Christian Advocate says: "He was conscientious even in little things. Like others, in his early manhood, he fell into the habit of using tobacco. An influential layman once encountered him, with several others, sitting around the stove in the packing-room of the Methodist Book Concern, on the corner of Eighth and Main streets, in this city, all of them lustily smoking cigars. He affected astonishment at the spectacle, and exclaimed, 'Well, well! this is a pretty example for our preachers who talk about self-denial to set before us laymen! How can we be expected to practice it when our pastors do not!' Mr. Inskip immediately threw his cigar away without a word. A few days after, when the same lay brother met him and asked how he felt, he replied, with a smile, 'Very well—since I have quit using tobacco.' And this was the end of its use with him."

He finally became profoundly affected by Wesley's teachings concerning Christian perfection, and sought and found that full salvation, in which he has rejoiced ever since.

We gather the incidents of his conversion and early work, and the conversion of his father, from a pamphlet containing the funeral discourse delivered by Rev. F. Bottome, who was pastor of Hanson Place M. E. church, Brooklyn, of which Mr. Inskip was a member until his death, Jan. 25, 1863. The father lived a very happy and useful life, after his conversion. Mrs. Seneca Jones, of this city, a sister of John S. Inskip, furnishes us with these facts.

John S. Inskip was an ardent, liberal, whole-souled minister, devoted to his friends, loving God with all his heart, and his neighbor as himself. After he determined to devote himself exclusively to the work of an evangelist, the New York East Conference gave him a supernumerary relation, and has renewed that from year to year ever since.

Bishop Ames, who was always very conservative, welcomed our friend to the Conferences where he presided, introduced and commended him, and attended his meetings when he could. After Mr. Inskip's memorable trip around the world, during which he preached in England, India, Australia, and California, he said in our office that the Bishps had all treated him well, and spoke highly of Bishop Merrill, who was in India while he was holding meetings there. He strongly deprecated the unwise and uncharitable course of some who were special advocates of holiness, and promoters of schism. He said he would be glad, if his health permitted, and he could see the way clear, to receive a regular pastoral charge from his Conference, to show his entire sympathy with our church, its work and its administration, all of which he admired and loved. He believed that God had thrust him out into his evangelistic labors, and abided in his will, praying always that God would lead him. His wife, Mrs. Martha J. Inskip, has been a great help to him in all his work, and lives to mourn her great loss, and to rejoice in his wonderful triumph. Since the first stroke of paralysis, which Mr. Inskip suffered several months since, we have not had much hope of his final recovery. Such attacks nearly always terminate as this has.

While in this city, his preaching and labors were characterized by great sweetness in all his utterances, and great spiritual power, Many thousands of people all around the the world will feel like mourners at the funeral of this eminent minister of Christ, and will rejoice in hope of meeting him again. As he grew older, his life became more saintly, more tender, more like Christ's. His victory over sin and death was complete, and will become historical, and he will stand among our consecrated and saved and triumphant Christian heroes, who have ascended to God.—California Christian Advocate.

ROOMS REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE:
New Orleans, March 19, 1884.

Dear Sir—I have the honor to inform you that you have been chosen as a candinate for the office of State Treasurer on the Republican ticket, to be voted for at the election to be held on the 22d day of April, 1884. I have the honor to be, your obedient servant,

A. J. DUMONT,
President State Central Executive Committee.

Hon. M. F. Bonzano, New Orleans, La.

NEW ORLEANS La., March 19, 1884.

Hon. A. J. Dumont, President Republican State Central Executive Committee.

Dear Sir—I can not place too high a value on the flattering compliment paid me by the unexpected and unsolicited tender of the candidature for the office of State Treasurer on the Republican ticket.

The vital agricultural and industrial interests of our State demand, more than ever, the disinterested exertions of every citizen to obtain the so much needed protection to guard our chief productions, sugar and rice, against the ruinous competition of slave and peon labor, which only fattens the few and starves the many. The Republican party, only, can give us that wise, conservative, fair and just legislation upon which depends the weal and woe of our whole population, and much of the prosperity of all our country. Believing that the Republican party can and will give us a uniform and effective levee system which will avert the calamitous destruction of the labor and property of so many of our citizens, and believing the party, generally, to be earnestly striving for such results, encouraged and supported, as it is, by that wise, impartial and patriotic statesmanship which has ever distinguished the administration of Chester A. Arthur. I must, as a citizen, having the welfare of my State and fellow-citizens at heart, wish and pray for the triumphant success of the Republican party.

I accept, sir, the nomination with sentiments of the deepest gratitude

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, M. F. BONZANO.

Can you find a case of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Diabetes, Urinary or Liver Complaints that is curable, that Hop Bitters has not or cannot cure? Ask your neighbors if they can.

A Michigan Congressman told a friend he was filled with amazement; and the friend went down to the bar and called for amazement.

SOILED-PRINT BLEEDS THROUGH

What Can I Do?

1. You can regularly attend the means of grace. Your presence encourages the minister and your teacher. It is an example to those with whom you are associated. It will always strengthen you in the Christian graces.

2. You can invite others to go with you. A little girl asked her father to accompany her to the Sunday-school. "Why, child," was his answer, "I am ragged, and ignorant, and miserable. They don't want me there."

"Yes, they do," said the child. "They'll teach you and help you." After some urging the father went. He was taught and was converted, and afterward established over forty mission schools, and brought thousands of children under Christian influence.

3. You can listen attentively whenever the doctrine of salvation is preached that your heart may be opened, as was Lydia's. She was not a converted woman, but a devout seeker after the truth, and the grace which Paul preached was like balm to her soul.

4. You can be hospitable to strangers. Always take particular pains to be friendly with strangers or new members of your church and Sunday-school. Bow to them, speak with them, shake them warmly by the hand, offer them a book. Said a young man who had been travelling alone in Europe after his return: "Nothing made me so happy, or did me so much good, or reminded me so of my home, or so helped me to be faithful to my religious duties, as the warm shake of the hand and the friendly Christian words of Mr. Spurgeon, one Sunday evening, when I attended his church."

5. You can be a faithful, prayerful Christian. A stranger visiting in a certain family noticed that one of the little girls went every day to her room to read the Bible and pray in secret. He was powerfully struck with a sense of his own negligence, and thought: "Shall a little child be so anxious for a place of retirement to pray, and I never prayed in my life!" From that time he began to be serious, and not only became a Christian, but a valuable minister of Christ.

6. You can do personal work for Christ. A well known physican was riding through the streets of a city. He heard the crying of a little dog, who was lying in the gutter, apparently in great pain. The doctor left his carriage and lifted the dog up. He had been run over by a passing carriage, and his leg badly crushed, The doctor bore him to his office, tenderly set his limb, and cared for him from day to day. The dog became a great favorite in the family, and seemed much attached to the doctor. One day, the office door being open, the dog started out and disappeared. "That's the way," the doctor said, "it is with dogs and men. They get all they can out of you, and when you can do no more for them they disappear. There is no gratitude in the world." One morning, many days after, the doctor was sitting in his office, when he heard a whining at the door. He opened it, and there stood the little dog whom the doctor had cured bringing with him another little dog who had been run over. He had communicated his relief to a suffering friend, and, in the spirit of a true missionary, had brought the sufferer to a skilful physician, whom he knew was ready to aid. Let the little dog teach us a lesson. Let us go out and tell the suffering, and bring them to the great Physician.

7. You can show your concern for those who are out of Christ. A devoted Christian young man one morning called upon a skeptical blacksmith for whom he had been praying. With much feeling, he said: "Mr. ———, I am deeply concerned for your salvation," and burst into tears. He could say no more, and went home. "Greatly concerned for your salvation." It rang through the blacksmith's ear like a clap of thunder in a clear sky. "I ought to be greatly concerned for my own salvation. What shall I do?" He went to his Christian wife, and she advised him to go and see the young man. He did so, and greeting him, said: "I have come to tell you that I am greatly concerned for my own salvation." They prayed together, and this skeptic, whom all logic had failed to reach, was converted.

8. You can ask the prayer of God's people for those whom you wish to see Christians. The following incident shows the power of united prayer:

"I don't want you to talk to me on religion, and I don't want to be a Christian."

This was said to me by a young woman who was visiting at my house. The next morning she was entirely changed in her temper and spirit. She said to me: "I resolved last night to give my heart to the Saviour, and I yielded to him all that I have to give."

She turned from me, and, being a resolute girl, I knew that further conversation then was useless. Six months afterward, she came to my house a cheerful and happy Christian. She said: "Do you remember my refusal to talk with you on the subject of religion? Well, I meant what I said. A change came over me as I entered my chamber, and I could not account for it. About a week ago I learned that, on that very day, my brother asked prayers for me in the Fulton street meeting, and I believe my change was in answer to prayer."—The Illustrator.

Advice to Husbands.

You have no right to take the pleasures of the home without also taking its responsibilities. You owe something to your children besides food, shelter, clothing and education. He who gives them only this, makes his house only a half-orphans' asylum. Every father ought to father his own children. The evening hour ought to be the children's hour. I know you have come home tired; I know the day has been one long battle, and that you are weary with questions to be answered and problems to be solved. But I also know that the best way to lay down business cares is to take up home cares; that the best way to keep young is to give and hour every day after supper to the children—to their sports, their studies, their life problems and their life joys. He that giveth his life shall save it. But were it otherwise, it is unheroic, unchivalric, cowardly, to run away and leave all the cares of the children at night on the same shoulders which have borne them all the day.

You owe something else to your wife than a house and money to keep it a going. You would owe this to your housekeeper. To leave her every evening and go off to the the gossip of your club or the village store is not keeping your promise to leave all others and cleave only unto her. To leave her to sit in loneliness while the lazy clock ticks the hours away is not keeping your promise to comfort and cherish her. When you took her from her father's home you bound yourself to provide her with a new one, and you do not fulfill that pledge in providing her a cell however luxurious it may be, for the lonely life of a married old maid. No wife ought to be left by her husband to be a nun. Put yourself in her place. Send her off for a week on a visit; spend your evenings alone—six of them will be enough for an experiment—see how you like it. Or, if you cannot persuade her to desert you for even a week, though you have deserted her for many a week, perhaps many a month, imagine your positions reversed. Imagine her going off to a club, her sewing circle, her gossip with a neighbor, night after night, leaving you to sit alone in your solitary room—a married old bachelor. How would you like it? Why is not sauce for the goose sauce for the gander? How does your life look to you when measured by the Golden Rule? Are you doing to the one you profess to love best as you would have her do to you?—Christian Union.

A True Story for Boys.

I want to tell the boys about a friend of mine whose faithful performance of present duty led him into higher positions than he had ever dreamed of filling, and gave him what we would all like to reach—honor and success.

In the earlier years of my experience as a printer in Chicago, more than twenty years ago, our firm did a good deal of printing for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, and because of this I came to know a young man who is the subject of my story. He came from Massachusetts. He was poor, and had no influential friend even to give him a letter of recommendation. He sought employment on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, and, after waiting a time at last secured a position as brakesman on a freight train—salary about $30 a month. He was faithful in this position; and, being both intelligent and industrious, he was soon made conductor of the train, with wages nearly double. He soon attracted the attention of his superior officers, who saw in him an honest, faithful and conscientious conductor, one not seeking his own ease or pleasure, but constantly devoted to the interest of the company that employed him, so that not many months elapsed before he was made conductor of a passenger train—a more comfortable position, and one yielding a somewhat higher salary. Here I first knew him; and I saw in him a modest, quiet, unassuming young man, free from the popular vices, and who apparently tried to be just as faithful and true and devoted to his work as a conductor as though the position had been that of general superintendent. He did not apparently have a high opinion of his own abilities. There was a total absence of that swagger and strut so often seen in those who come to similar subaltern positions. It seemed as though he thought that properly to conduct his train—to secure the comfort of his passengers and rightly serve the interests of his company—required the full exercise of all the powers God had given him.

One of the sternest and most exacting, and yet one of the noblest, ablest, and most conscientious men who ever filled a similar position was then general superintendent of the road. This man, Col. C. G. Hammond, watched every employe of the road with an eagle's eye. He measured every man, knew the ability of each, and seemed intuitively to know which were the faithful workers and which were the lazy shirks. Our young conductor did not escape the keen eye. When he least thought of it, his chief was measuring and sounding him, and finding out what kind of metal he was made of; but none ever knew whether he was approved or not, for the chief's look was nearly always stern and cold as ice.

One Sunday morning, train No. 4 moved slowly out of Chicago under the care of my friend, who, only intent on doing his work as well as he knew how, seemed to have no higher ambition then to be a good conductor—salary $900 a year. About noon, when he stopped at a station, he found a telegram from the head office, ordering him to "leave the train in care of—, and take the first train for Chicago."

This was an unusual thing. Wondering what could be the matter conscious that he had tried to do exactly right, and yet remembering how exacting was the general superintendent, he feared that unintentionally he had fallen under his displeasure. Reaching Chicago late Saturday evening, he found Col. Hammond had gone home; and, knowing how strict he was in his observance of the Sabbath, the conductor waited impatiently for the coming Monday morning, when, with a fearful heart, he presented himself at the office of the superintendent.

"Good morning, Mr. Hammond. I have answered your telegram, and come to see what it means."

"Good morning," growled the chief. "I see you have, sir. I have concluded to take your train away from you."

The conductor's heart sank lower than ever. What before was only fearful foreboding was only painful truth. He had served the company to the best of his ability. He had kept the affairs of his train in complete order, his reports had been carefully and correctly made; and yet, after all, he had lost his position. He knew not why, and he felt that his case was sad indeed. He inwardly resolved that, having missed his calling, he would quit railroading and try some other service, where faithful work would be appreciated. He dared not hope to reverse the decision of the all powerfull official; yet, in as calm a voice as he could command, he politely asked the reason for his summary dismissal.

Col. Hammond waited awhile before he answered. Then, the muscles of his face relaxed a little, and he said, "I want an assistant superintendent in my office, and I have called you to take the place."

True worth is always modest, and our thunderstruck conductor could only stammer. "But I am not competent, sir, to fill the position."

"You can do what I tell you. You can obey orders, can't you? That's all you have to do, sir. You will begin work this morning. That is your desk."

The new duties were not so difficult as as he expected. At first, he had only to obey orders, and carry out the details of work laid out by the chief; and to these duties he brought the same faithfulness and thoroughness that had made him noticeable as a conductor. His elevation did not spoil him or make him vain. He was plain and modest and hard-working as before. The salary at first $1,800.

After a few years service under Col. Hammond and an advance of salary to $2,500, the plain young man was invited to take the office of general superintendant of a younger road at a salary of $4,000. Distrusting his ability, but determined to do his best, he accepted the call, and succeeded until the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy realizing how much they had lost in parting with him, invited him to resume his old position, and secured his services by the tempting offer of $6,000 a year.

In the mean time, Col. Hammond had become the general superintendent of the Union Pacific Railroad, running between Omaha to Ogden, where it connects with the Central Pacific railroad. This Central Pacific was owned by four or five millionaires who had built it. Its general superintendent, however good a business man he was, knew but little about railroading; and under his care the road was anything but prosperous, until the owners and directors resolved upon a radical and sweeping change.

But where could they find a general superintendent who had the ability and would dare recognize the road and put its affairs upon a better basis. They consulted Col. Hammond and other railroad men; and the result was that, most unexpectedly, our whilom modest and hard-working conductor one day received a telegram asking him if he would undertake the duties of general superintendent of the Central Pacific Railroad, at a salary of $10,000. He was satisfied with and appreciated by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, who proposed to increase his pay to $7,000; and as he preferred to remain in Chicago, he declined the princely offer made by the California road. Then another telegram asked at what salary he would become the Chief of the Central Pacific. Almost hoping to discourage his tempters, he telegraphed, "$13,000 a year in gold." At one came the answer, "Accepted." So, taken in by his own trap, he had nothing to do but to bid adieu to the city that had served him so well, and turn his face toward the land of gold. My story would be too long if I should try to tell you the unexpected difficulties he encountered from the old officers of the road, who had determined that they would not not be superseded, and that the new superintendent should never enter upon his duties—how, supported by the directors of the road, he quietly took control, disarmed prejudice, conquered submission, and earned success.

This was nine years ago. He is still general superintendent of the Central Pacific Railroad, one of the most important railroads in the world. With its connections in California, this quiet man, not yet forty-eight years old, now superintends two thousand seven hundred and thirty-four miles of railroad and over fifty connecting steamers, besides dictating the tariffs of the China, the Australian, and the Panama lines of steamships. While other young men, preferring present ease and comfort to the interests of their employers, wasted money and time in billiard halls, theatres, and drinking saloons, Alban N. Towne was at work building up character as well as reputation, and now fills one of the most important positions in California; and, instead of $360 a year, as brakeman on a freight train, he now draws the comfortable salary of twenty thousand dollars a year in gold.

"Lucky man," says one. "Luck" had but little to do with it. Modest worth did it. Work did it. Faithfulness in the performance of present duties, however humble, did it. This untiring faithfulness in the humbler duties not only attracted the notice and won the appreciation of his superiors, but fitted him for the higher positions which, without his seeking, he was called to fill.—Alfred L. Sewell, in Grains of Gold.

The Boys.

Boys should never go through life satisfied to be always borrowing other people's brains. There are some things they should find out for themselves. There is always something waiting to be found out. Every boy should think some thought that shall live after him. A farmer's boy should discover for himself what timber will bear the most weight, which is the most elastic, what will last longest in the water, what out of water, what is the best time to cut down trees for firewood. How many kinds of oak grow in your region, and what is each specially good for? How does a bird fly without moving a wing or a feather? How does a snake climb a tree or a brick wall? Is there any difference between a deer's track and a hog's track? What is it? How often does a deer shed his horns, and what becomes of them? In building a chimney which should be the largest, the throat or the funnel? Should it be wider at the top or drawn in? The boys see white horses. Did they ever see a white colt? Do they know how old the twig must be to bear peaches and how old the vine is when grapes first hang upon it? There is a bird in the forest which never builds a nest, but lays its eggs in the nests of other birds. Can the boys tell what that bird is? Do they know that a hop vine always winds the other way? Do they know when a horse crops grass he eats back toward him, but a cow eats outward from her, because she has no teeth upon her upper jaw, and has to gum it?

Why is a busy tailor seldom at home?—He is often cutting out.

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp.

HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe.

Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause; the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

32 Natchez St., New Orleans.

From some unknown source we have received a copy of the minutes of the last session of the Texas Annual Conference, held at Paris, Texas, Nov. 28, 1883. The Brother who sent them has our thanks.

The South Kansas Conference reported: Probationers 2,172, increase 257; full members 12,293, increase 395; churches 134, increase [illegible]; probable value $305,886, increase $56,401; parsonages 70, increase 3; probable value $51,490, increase $9,975; Sunday-schools [illegible], decrease 9; officers and teachers [illegible],210, decrease 95; scholars of all ages 12,602, increase 219; missions $1,289.02, increase $566,62; Woman's Foreign Missionary Society $756.82, increase $219.02; Church Extension $806.40, increase $219.-; Tract Society $95.02, decrease [illegible]; Sunday-school Union $110.-, increase $4.19; Freedman's Aid Society $620.21, increase $219.44; Education $661.97, increase $207.-; Bible Society $143.77, decrease $[illegible]82.

There are fashionable professors of the religion of the Lord Jesus who affirm that they can join in the whirling dance, take part in games of chance, and sit with the frivolous crowd in the foul atmosphere of a theatre, without losing their hold on Jesus. No doubt they can since they and Christ must have parted the moment they started for the dance or theatre. But show us a man who lives in conscious fellowship with the living Christ, and we will show you a man who has no desire for the voluptuous dance, games of chance, or the base delights of the theatre. Ah, brother the sensitively spiritual mind shudders at the thought of finding pleasure in connection with institutions consecrated to the god of this world.

The temperance people of Kansas are resolved that the laws relating to the supression of the liquor tariff shall be enforced, and if the officers whose duty it is to enforce them will not attend to their work, they propose to have them impeached and removed and their places filled by persons who will regard their oath of office. The Kansas Methodist says:

"The past week a very interesting case has been tried in the supreme court in this city. John Foster, county attorney for Salina county, some months ago refused to prosecute the cases brought before him for violating the prohibitory law. Charges were brought against him for willful neglect of his official duties. He denied the charge, and demanded a jury. The case was tried, and after an absence of about thirty minutes the jury found a verdict of guilty of all the charges made against him. This will oust him from office."

This is right. Next to free rum the liquor dealers desire to have all prohibitory laws a dead letter. They hope to effect this although the officers whose duty it is to see they are enforced. If they can only persuade these to neglect this part of their duty the work is done. Prohibition laws unless enforced amount to nothing. When officers refuse to do their duty let them be impeached and turned out. Reform will come.

Experience.

"There are three things" says Philip Henry "which make good ballast for a Christian—knowledge, grace and experience; knowledge, sanctified knowledge, to ballast the head; grace to ballast the heart, and experience." In a strict sense experience applies to what has occurred within our own knowledge, and in this sense relates to the past alone. Thus persons know by experience what sufferings they have endured or what joy has thrilled their hearts. Unless a man has personal experience of sorrow or joy, of weakness or trial of want and suffering, he cannot put himself in the place of those who have. No old bachelor or old maid can understand precisely how husband and wife feel, nor the awful pressure of responsibilty that fathers and mothers at times have with reference to their children. When a physician has been kept on his bed for a few weeks with fever or rheumatism he has a new sense of the trials of patients in similar trials. Some of the best mechanical helps in surgery or substitute appliances for missing limbs, have been invented by those who through being compassed with infirmity had need of them in their own case. The man who has battled successfully with the appetite for strong drink has through his experience an advantage in dealing with those who are still in the struggle. There is always strength in the work of one who can say in the time of our severest trial, I have been there and know just how you feel. In religion experience is knowledge gained by trial or practice? Hence a man who has no acqnaintance with those changes in the mind which are mentioned in the Scriptnre can form no idea of them. He may believe in the possibility of the change called regeneration or entire sanctification, bnt he does not understand their nature. Most any man may know the theory of religion, but its excellency and energy and power can only be displayed and known by persoual experience. It is the believing man whose heart is filled with a joy that is nnspeakable and full of glory. A genuine Christian experience always accords with God's word, with what he has revealed, and uniformly promotes humility in us. A clear experience will lead us to acknowledge the favor of God, and manifest our gratitnde toward him. But no man can depend on his past experience. We may take encouragment from the past, bnt not to the exclusion of present exertion. Our past experiences should lead to greater activity in the present.

It is often said that the formation of conferences on the color-line was uniformly at the reqnest of the colored members. We have never known an instance where our colored brethren asked for it unless they were first told they were not wanted. At the recent session of the Missouri Conference, according to the Western Christian Advocate, a resolution asking the General Conference to organize a separate conference for the colored work in Missouri was passed by a vote of of 40 to 25. Forty of the white members of this Conference said to their colored brethren that they would prefer to have them leave. They did, however, allow them to vote on the resolntion, and though they had been told they were not wanted, nine voted against it and only three for it. The conference summarized stands 23 for the resolntion, 34 against it, giving a majority of 9. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it to Me." How strange this action will look in abont fifty years hence. We can see nothing of Christ in this transaction. We most devontly pray that the General Conference will not give it its sanction. It is too late; we are too near the millennial glory.

Remember the SOUTHWESTERN is your paper. Work for it and it will work for you, and help in every good work you have to do.

A Question to Be Settled.

The fact that nine annual conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church have adopted the SOUTHWESTERN as their official organ is a matter of great encouragement to us. We refer to this with peculiar satisfaction. Another source of great pleasure is the frequent letters of commendation we are receiving from our patrons, and from some of the chief men of our church in the North and East. True we have received a few letters from brethren whom we tenderly love, and for whom we have the greatest respect, criticising us for some of our utterances, but even here we have found comfort. The letters of commendation have been in the ratio of more than a hundred to one of disapproval, while every one who has written criticising our course has requested us not to publish their letters. There was an evident weakness in their criticisms, and no one knew it better than they. With reference to our work in the South the SOUTHWESTERN has always occupied one position. While it has never sought to be conspicuous, having a conscience it has never been ashamed to be seen. It believes that the Methodist Episcopal Church has a divine mission in the South as truly as in China, India or New England. She is needed here; who need her most, the colored or white people, we can not say. Her mission is alike to all, and equally to all. The most humiliating period in her history was when she consented to the formation of conferences on the color-line. Up to that date the on-going forces of the Methodist Episcopal Church led all the moral aggressive forces in the South; since that her banner has been trailed in the dust in the rear. And now we have the grand old church, that came here inculcating the full Gospel of the brotherhood of man, apologizing for caste churches and caste schools. It is folly to deny this. Is not that a caste church from whose pulpit a man is exclnded because of his complexion? Is not that a caste church at whose communion table the colored disciples are not allowed to come until all of the white have been served? We ask, in all candor, is not that a caste school into which students are admitted, or from which they are expelled merely because of their complexion? There may be explanations and apologies, but there can be but one answer to these questions. We are standing now where two seas meet. We profess to inculcate the full Gospel of the brotherhood of men, but in our economy we have made a comple surrender of this principle, as manifest in the organization of conferences on the color-line and in our caste churches and schools. We need to abandon our profession or change our economy. We cannot consistently be looking in two such opposite directions. This is one of the questions to be settled by the next General Conference. We most earnestly desire that it may be settled in harmony with the principles inculcated in the Sermon on the Mount.

Senator Blair's bill to extend national aid to education on the basis of illiteracy, has been discussed for several days in the Senate. Mr. Miller moved to lay it aside to take up a House bill on pleuropneumonia. Mr. Sherman said he was not willing to give the South such an enormous amount of money until he had better evidence than had been given in the past year or two, that it would act justly with the people for whom it was intended. Mr. Ingalls thought the vast sums of money the bill would appropriate were insecurely protected by it. Mr. Saulsbury opposed the bill as a strict constructionist; he saw no authority in the constitution for the appropriation. Mr. Logan said his bill was based on the whole number of children of the United States. By the bill before the Senate the colored men and women in the South over forty years would be made the basis of a call for money, while receiving nothing from it. It was an instance parallel with that by which the colored people were made the basis of representation in Congress, but did not have representation. Mr. Van Wyck, said the elective franchise had been conferred by the United States on the colored people of the South, and had been made secure by a constitutional amendment, and he inquired of Mr. Blair whether even that had seemed to the colored people the right which had been sought to be given them. Mr. Blair replied that he did not think it had, but one of the reasons was because the colored people were not educated; if they were more intelligent they would not be found deprived of their rights in that respect. There are no other means than education open to aid the colored people to the right of suffrage. Mr. Plumb thought it a bad precedent for the Federal government to undertake this kind of aid, it would lead to constant commissions of inquiry as to the application of the money. He objected to illiteracy being made the basis for the distribution of this fund. That would put a premium on ignorance; be giving to a State sums of money not according to the number of persons it kept at school, but the number it did not keep there." Mr. Hampton said the Southern States expended $700,000 annually for public schools. Mr. Logan said Ohio, alone spent that amount. Mr. Vest defended States rights violated in the bill, and thought there was much sentimentality on the subject of education of the Negro; the same rule would not apply to both races, Mr. Garland favored the bill. Mr. Allison thought the bill proceeded on a wrong principle. It began by giving the first year a large appropriation and increase year by year as needed. A large amount could not be advantageonsly used the first year. Another objection was it gave money to States which did not need it. Iowa spent annually about $6,000,000 for its public schools, and did not need any aid. He thought States having a large colored population should be helped to educate. He was opposed to any appropriation to extend beyond one year. Mr. Coke made a constitutional argument against the bill. Mr. Vance supported the bill. Mr. Ingalls said the principal necessity for the bill, to his mind, was to be be found in white illiteracy rather than colored illiteracy in the South; that the occosion for the expenditure of the money grew out of the position of the Caucasian, not the colored race. Mr. Butler opposed, and Mr. Hampton favored the bill.

Our neighbor, the Morning Star, has the following timely words:

"EVIL DAYS.—It would seem that at no time since the effective establishment of Christianity have the Powers of Evil been more active than at the present, in the dreadful work of destroying souls. Turn where we may, we find all the ancient energy of the Devil in fullest operation, while others, no less baneful, have been apparently invented for the times. The brothel and the gambling house, nnre strained by law, are everywhere open and inviting; and our young people are entering by the hundreds of thousands. A licentious press has built itself up in every quarter, flooding all lands with infamous and debasing literature. Sceptics and public sinners have assumed the places of highest rank in the world's estimation; and with impions pertinacity are endeavoring to sneer down religion and morals, and to rob mankind of faith and of all true principle."

Yes, "turn which way we may we we find all the ancient," and, we may add, modern "energy of the Devil in fullest operation." In the city of New York it is said there are 100,000 saloons in full operation, one saloon for every one hundred and twenty-five persons. There are 2876 more saloons than there are grocers, butchers and bakers. Here in New Orleans we seen a saloon on every corner, and frequently several in a block. The streets are constantly filled with beer wagons, and nothing more numerous than the beer kegs. For a certain sum of money any man can obtain a license of the city officials to open a gambling hell, a house of prostitution, or a saloon, and if one why not all. These things are either right or wrong. If they are wrong can any license, civil or ecclesiastical, or any amount of money, make them right? If wrong, what shall we say of our city officials who, for money, will grant a man a license to do a moral wrong. We join with our neighbor in the following request:

"Let all who love God, and hence are blessed with a keen appreciation of the value of human souls, pray now most earnestly for His mercy upon the poor blind creatures who are on every hand and in such vast numbers, yielding themselves to the seductions of the Devil, and casting away the only one thing of price they have—a soul, for which the Son of God came down to suffer and to die."

But, after all, we cannot suppress the conviction that, with all our praying, we shall find that it may be necessary to use some other means. In the meantime, while we pray, let us watch.

A Brother in Texas, who has a good reputation writes thus to this office: "Mr. Editor, I want your paper. I cannot do without it any longer. I did not have it all last year just because our minister kept putting me off promising to send but did not. He is so slow I cannot wait any longer. So please send me the paper." We hope that there are not many such men in the Methodist ministry as the one this brother refers to. He wants to be a leading man in his conference, and wonders why it is that he is kept on the back ground and others are pushed a head. Brother, the trouble is you neglect your work, and the Methodist Church has not reached the point where she can with safety give men prominent positions who neglect any part of their work. Wheel into line, brothers, and do every part of your work and see how snddenly you will be moving up. Present the SOUTHWESTERN and ask your people to subscribe, collect the money and send it along.

It is with the greatest satisfaction that we announce the defeat of the whiskey bonded extension bill by a vote of 185 to 83. Party lines were not lost sight of in this vote. Of the 83 who voted for the measure 72 were Democrats and 11 were Republicans. The result of this action will be to force a large amount of whisky out of bond, or out of the country. We earnestly hope the latter, and yet there is no country to which we care to have it sent. If by some mishap it could all be dumped into the sea we could acquiese in that. The Kentucky members claim that the failure of the bill will cause great financial distress in their State. That may be true, but its success would have caused an untold amount of heart distress. We have no sympathy with the liquor traffic. Everything about it is shameful, hurtful, beastly and utterly demoralizing. It is the embodiment of wickedness and vileness, without a single redeeming feature.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate, Methodist Church, South, suggests the following easy way to get rid of the sin of "race prejudice." Read:

"Many of our good friends in the North are still pleading and struggling, fretting and grambling about 'race prejudice,' which they think ought to be destroyed at once and forever. They had better pause and reflect. If those prejudices exist, and will die at all, they will sooner die by being let alone. The source of these agitators will tend to perpetuate rather than to obliterate them."

If it be true that the way to kill sin is to let it alone then our Lord made a serious mistake when he commissioned the twelve apostles and sent them forth. No men were more successful as "agitators;" it was said of them that they had turned the "world up side down." Race prejudice like all other evils thrive best when let alone. It is too late in the day for Christian men to be silent on this question.

Common tin plates covered with velvet are used to take up the collections in Grace M. E. church at Dillon, Montana.

It affords us great pleasure to assure our friends that the list of subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN is constantly increasing. From nearly all sections of our work in the South we are receiving letters asking for specimen copies of the paper, and in most every instance we get favorable returns. Recently a Bro. living within the bounds of the Lexington Conference, made a similar request; to day (Mar. 25) he sends us a list of eight new subscribers. The people are persuaded that the SOUTHWESTERN has a conscience, and they can trust it. During the eleven years of its existence it has under no circumstances whatever compromised. It has defended the principle of human brotherhood, both by precept and example. It deplored the color-line legislation of the Church, and has never once apologized for the introduction of caste churches and caste schools into our economy.

Rev. D. O. Byers, of Jeannerette, Louisiana, in a letter to the Christian Observer (Presbyterian) gives a deplorable account of the moral and religious condition of southwestern Louisiana. With reference to Jeannerette he says: "In this town of fifteen hundred inhabitants, one other Protestant minister besides myself—no other within ten miles. No other Presbyterian minister within sixty miles. We have about fifty Protestant communicants in the place." This is evidently a mistake. The Methodist Episcopal Church has in this town a membership of over 130, and we know five Methodist ministers within six miles of the town of Jeannerette, two of them graduates of one of the best colleges in the United States. We are bad enough, but not quite so destitute as Mr. Byers represents.

PERSONAL.

—Albetr Donnaud, formerly connected with the New Orleans press, is editor of the Midland Review, a railroad journal of Galveston, Texas.

—The Missouri Conference passed a resolution commending the course of Benj. St. James Fry, D. D., as editor of the Central Christian Advocate, and recommending the General Conference to re-elect him.

—The suicide of Salmi Morse, who gained his notoriety by the effort to popnlarize the theatrical presentation of Christ's crucifixion, is followed by that of Solomon Shapira, also a Jew, who attempted to palm off as genuine a forged and altered copy of the Pentateuch. This occurred at Rotterdam, March 11.

—Rev. John W. Butler, one of our missionaries to Mexico, on his way North to attend the session of the New England conference of which he is a member, gave us a pleasant call last week. Brother Butler gives a very encouraging account of our work in that country. He thinks that the outlook is full of promise.

—We regret to learn that the health of Miss Susan Warner, our missionary at Puebla, Mexico, has so far failed her that she is under the necessity of leaving her work and returning to this country. Miss Warner was formerly a member of Ames church and very highly esteemed. Brother Butler speaks of her as a devoted, earnest Christian worker. She has had a good measure of success at Puebla.

—The Pittsburgh Christian Advocate: "Daniel Curry has lost none of his Irish wit. Recently Chaplain McCabe said to him, 'Uncle Daniel, what do you suppose Adam Clarke will say to you when he meets you in heaven about your presuming to revise his Commentary?' 'Well,' said the doctor, 'he'll say, Inasmuch as it had to be done, I'm glad it fell into such good hands.'"

—We had a very pleasant call from our friend Dr. J. C. Hartzell the energetic Assistant Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society Monday last. We rejoice in the success crowning his labors. The South never had a truer friend than Dr. Hartzell. His popularity is seen in the election as delegate to the General Conference, by the Conference of which he is a member.—Kansas Methodist.

—Rev. J. G. Vaughan, pastor of Ames Methodist Church, New Orleans, and Miss Mary L. Shober, of Cincinnati, were married in Trinity Church, this city, by Dr. I. W. Joyce, Wednesday evening, March 19th. Miss Shober was a member of Trinity Church, an earnest worker in the Sunday-school and other departments of Church interests. She will be a worthy helpmeet indeed for her husband in his great work of preaching the Gospel in that distant Southern city. May great success attend their labors in the cause of Christ.—Western Christian Advocate.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

G. E. Wilson, Marlin: "The times are dull, and I have had a hard experience. My wife has been sick two weeks, and I have not received a dollar a month since conference. There are 200 members, and but 2 class leaders can write their own name. Pray for the education of this people."

W. J. Golance, Orange: "Several have been added to the church. Our pastor, Rev. A. Williams, is doing the best work ever known in Orange. Elder Lee held the quarterly conference. We paid him $16.25, and assessed $65 for the year. After he preached 7 joined the church."

R. Roberts, Houston: "Ladies and friends of Mt. Vernon gave a supper, and of the proceeds presented me with the handsome sum of $51.45. The managers were; Miss M. B. Green, president; Miss H. E Crawford, secretary; and Mrs. M. Holston, treasurer. May the Lord bless those who helped to relieve the pastor."

Lee Reed, Luling: "I was kindly received by the people, and took right hold of the work; built a parsonage, got everything in shape, and started a protracted meeting. There were 30 conversions. We had a nice quarterly conference, and are trying to build a church this year. We are poor, but mean to do all we can."

W. Hamilton, Hearn: "I left the work at Bryan in good condition, but when I came here I had to work up. There is now a church with a bell, and parsonage with comfortable furniture."

W. D. Fulton, Paris: "Tommy Read has proven to be the best scholar in our school, and is an intelligent young man."

Mrs. E. A. Roberts, Brenham, circuit. "Elder Pullam held our second quarterly meeting March 15-16. The members of the quarterly conference met promptly The pastor made a good report, showing 49 added to the church, 13 conversions, 4 backsliders reclaimed, 4 by letter from the Baptist church. The elder preached a noble sermon Sunday. We enjoyed a time of refreshment. Classes reported as follows: No. 1, $9.65, this quarter; No. 2, $5.55; No. 3, $8.80; No. 4, $6.50; No. 5, $5.50. Elder's collection $7.30. The trustees, with the aid of the pastor, are now erecting a church, at Clear Spring, 16x20, 3½ miles from town. The elder and Pastor are much beloved here by the people; We have 18 good subscribers for your valuable paper. Pray for us."

M. Smith, Winchester: "I found a large number of good members here, who love the church and are willing to do what they can. Elder Madison held first quarterly conference at Shiloh. He also presided at district conference in Austin. On my return I preached four nights at Wiley chapel, and made five additions."

J. M. Scott, Brazoria: "I am doing all I can to help the cause of the church here. I got a letter from my brother. I found him by inquiry through your paper."

MISSISSIPPI.

A. Handy, Brandon: "First quarterly conference was held by Elder Shumpert. He spoke cheering words to the church and Sunday-school."

D. Jordan, Pachuta: "We were glad to meet Moses White on the Enterprise circuit. He is an energetic man. He preached on Sunday with power, and met the Sunday-school and gave them a good talk."

LOUISIANA.

A. N. Jackson, Homma: "First quarterly conference for this charge was held on the 25th. Our well known presiding elder, Bro. Emperor Williams, was present and conducted the business grandly—it having taken him seventy six hours to get from New Orleans here. Our having been very sick nearly ever since being here, the reports were not near what we desired them to be, yet they show that since Feb. 11, four have been received in the church, and finances collected for all purposes $125. Improvements have been made on the parsonage and yet much more to be made. Our salary was placed at $525, and a well-furnished parsonage to be added; presiding elder $32; bishop $3. Our benevolent collections shall not fail to have their due attention. In work we have our eye on Bro. J. F. Marshall, and in proportion, Bro. Marshall, we will meet you. High water has caused much anxiety here."

Letter From San Antonio.

MR. EDITOR—After a heavy rain fall here in San Antonio, one may find just cause for remaining in door, especially in portions of the city where we have little or no pavements. St. Paul M. E. Church is situated on South Center street, which is very narrow and without one foot of pavement; through which heavy loaded vehicles pass. I need not tell the editor, what the condition of the streets are after a rain fall, only inform him of that fact, and he knows the true condition, and how easy it is to get to our church. Though mud bound, the writer rejoices with those who do rejoice, on account of this timely rain. To-night was the time set to preach a sermon on temperance, to be followed by a lecture and the organization of the Woman's Temperance Union, next Thursday night, 27th, by Mrs. Henry Smith, of Chicago, Ill. We expect to cooperate and unite our efforts with this work, and workers for all the future. We need not go any farther than this city to be convinced of the great evil of intemperance, and to see why we should espouse this good cause for the right against the wrong. It is ruining the best people in this and other communities. Thousands of hearts beat in sorrow in this city because of intemperance which is ever on the increase; and sooner or later the churches and people who pretend to favor religion, virtue and morality, will be made to blush, if not to atone, for all this disorder and riot. It is too late in the day for good people to resort to justifying arguments favoring those great, gigantic and unchallenged though these evils may be. Something must be done or good government must cease. No one should be discouraged because these great evils cannot be wiped out with a simple stroke; it must be remembered that it has taken a great while for this to accumulate to such colossal proportions, enlisting strong patronage and new recruits all this while. Now that the evil results are plainly seen by all, many, I believe, are waiting for help to free themselves from this hard master, and with a little assistance will throw off the tyrant's yoke.

Mr. Editor, among the latest fabrications made in the interests of caste and race prejudice are the attractive arguments under the captious title "Curly and Straight Haired Children." Our own hair being curled and crimped into ringlets by the Divine Crimper, I here express myself well pleased with what has been done for me by the Divine Constructor of all material matter and immaterial objects. As I am interested in the argument, I must style it the tamest cajollery out, fresh from the moulds of caste. How hard do men labor to cause the M. E. Church to do some act that would implicate her as being accessory to the high crimes committed against God, and pleading humanity, with impunity, by powerful leaders and organizations. Being somewhat acquainted with the educational work, especialty among the colored people, knowing, too, their great need, I trust patient audience will be allowed me on the subject, as I desire to speak plainly. All such arguments, in my humble opinion, favors the announcements of Bishop Pierce, made at Lecompton, Mo. If any one doubts the sentiments there expressed by the venerable Bishop as being that of the controlling element of the South, let him give himself further satisfaction by visiting and examining the educational facilities provided by the different States for Negroes, and he will see and know of the facts in the case. Let such a one visit the rural sections, as well as the large cities. Of course all these States, or a majority of them, have splendid school laws and systems on paper, even Texas is no exception to her sister States. San Antonio, being one of the largest cities of Texas, assumes exclusive control of her public education, yet can not boast of a single school buiding erected by means from her own treasury for her more than 600 colored children of school age. The two story stone building on Rinkon street, was built by the Freedmen's Bureau, under the direction of Gen. O. O. Howard, U. S. A. some 17 years ago. This building has four rooms, two upper and two lower; it can not accommodate scarcely half the children that should attend the public school. Though the school law has the face of fairness as it stands on paper. Its system is faultless, and can not be easily impeached. This is a pretty fair sample, of the education carried on by the State and cities of Texas. The colored people generally look not to the State for intellectual education, they know how to look to the churches, and Christian hearted philanthropists for such education. While we have no desire to dictate to the church as to who she should or should not keep, it is very unjust for men in their pleadings to raise such a question. It remains for our church not to allow caste and race prejudice to enter, even through this hair breadth entrance. Certainly the curly straight-haired pleader knows that the white people of the South reap all the substantial benefits of the established school laws; it is here that all race legislation shows its best results. There is no use in tyring to compound social equality with the plain duty of educating the ignorant masses of the American people. The raisers of all such questions must aim at placing the little black faced, shiny-eyed, curly-headed "nigger" where he will be least benefited by education. I am in favor of national aid. But I despair of the colored people ever getting much good of it, unless the national governments, appoints supervisors to rightly distribute the funds to be used. I will never kiss the smiting rod. I am, yours truly,

MACK HENSON.

West Tennessee District Conference.

DEAR EDITOR:—I commenced holding quarterly conferences on my district, the first round, at Alamo on Bell circuit, Dec. 8-9, 1883, Rev. J. W. Hall, pastor. The people all seemed to be pleased with the new pastor and had rented him a comfortable house, and paid all the moving expenses.

Mason circuit, Bro. J. B. Marbrey, was well received on his second year. Nearly all the leaders were present with written reports. Rev. C. E. Alexander reports the Preparatory school at Mason doing well, with 82 scholars enrolled, 75 in regular attendance. This school and circuit bids fair for the future.

Memphis circuit, Rev. J. A. W. Moore, pastor. The quarter was a pleasant one. Reports showed an increase in every department in the church. He took a chill on the way to his appointment on Sunday with me, and has been feeble every since. Bro. Moore is a fair scholar and a good pastor.

Memphis station, Rev. C. L. Fields, pastor. He had all his leaders out, and the quarter was a pleasant occasion. The members are much encouraged with the prospect of the Annual Conference being there next fall. This place is having a fine success under Bro. Fields.

Pleasant Grove circuit, Rev. H. Dunlap, pastor. The new pastor was cheerfully received by his people and well cared for; they raised his moving expenses.

Brownsville circuit, Rev. E. M. Manson, pastor was cheerfully received. This quarter was in the Christmas season. We had a Christmas-tree, and it was a grand occasion. The church was crammed. Bro. Manson added 6 members and has hopes of a grand future.

Friendship circuit, Rev. A. Burdett, pastor. This quarter was pleasant, yet, the weather was bad. Nearly all the leaders were present with written reports. I found Burdett hard at work trying to pay off the church debts. He has two fine every day schools on his circuit, doing well.

Sharon circuit, Rev. A. Swift. Bro. Swift was well received, and doing well. A good number of his leaders were present with written reports, and had fixed to move the pastor. He has added three to the church.

Martin circuit, Bro. Massey is a good pastor. He added eight to the church, is preparing to build a new church, and is finishing a neat parsonage on our church lot. When we get our church finished this will be a strong point. Martin station is a flourishing little town; it has about 1,500 inhabitants and is growing fast.

Paris circuit, Rev. R. Palmer, pastor. Rev. D. Cook, was appointed to this circuit, but the Rev. R. Jackson, pastor of the A. M. E. Church, in Paris died Jan. 11th, and Bro. Cook, was persuaded to join that church. This he did Jan. 20th and Rev. R. Palmer succeeded him and was well received. We have added five members to the church since conference and are buliding a new church in Paris. This is a new circuit but it bids fair for the future.

Mansfield circuit, Bro. Summerhill is a good pastor, and is doing well. He was cheerfully received by the people.

Clarksburg circuit, Bro. Kirby is doing well, he has added three to the church since coference.

Henderson circuit, Bro. Barr, is doing well; the white people gave us their church to hold our quarter in as the weather was bad and they wanted to hear the elder. The church was crowded with both white and colored, and the conference will long be remembered. The whites wanted to sell the church to the colored people. He has added four to the church.

Linden circuit, Bro. Laue is doing well. Bro. G. W. Marsh, was appointed to this circuit, but on account of embarrassment he could not go, and I appointed Bro. Laue to fill his place.

Lawrenceburg circuit, Bro. Harden is a good pastor and was received cheerfully by his people. He is doing a good work. We have a fine every day school here taught first by Prof. R. McKinly, of the Central Tennessee college and now by Miss E. Hopkins of the same college. Lawrenceburgh has a new railroad which makes it a progressive little town. Bro. Harden is teaching his people up to our discipline and urging them to take the SOUTHWESTERN.

Waynesboro circuit, Bro. Collier is doing good work for our church. Nearly all his leaders were out with written reports, which showed a good increase since conference, and his report before the love-feast was in good Methodist style. Bro. Collier is a splendid pulpit speaker, and well received by all.

Clifton circuit, Rev. J. B. Bradford, pastor. This quarter was a good one, every body seem to like the new preacher, and he is teaching school at Clifton, has a large school and is making quite a reputation. Clifton is another growing little place. While the pastor was reading his report before the love feast, he mentioned no subscribers, and I gave an urgent talk in behalf of the SOUTHWESTERN and six or eight came forward and subscribed for our paper, some paying their subscription.

Purdy Circuit, Bro. Danley is doing a great work in this part of the country for our church. Every body loves him. His Sunday-school is alive. At one of his points the superintendent reports that during all this hard weather the church was crowded with scholars. All attend this school. He reports fifteen subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. Two added to the church. I have traveled since conference 1,634 miles through all the bad weather. On the 28th of Feb., in a snow storm, I like to froze; yet, the Lord enabled me to meet all of my points and reach home in moderate health. We have raised for the missionary cause $28.60, and on the other causes the collection is fair. I had occasion to visit the Central Tennesse College on the 9 10 11 of Jan. and found Dr. Braden and his corps of teachers at their post doing a great work in the educational cause for our people. The college was crowded and more were coming in daily. The colored people are revived in the cause of education. I was highly entertained by the Dr. and his estimable family, and I dined with them in company with Judge Caldwell of Shelbyville. Brethren, here we find no caste, no color line as some one has said; may the Lord spare the Dr. with long life to carry on this work. My preachers have suffered much this winter in the hard weather, but have stood to their work like heroes. I am yours in Christ.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Hatching Chickens.

MR. EDITOR—In December I constructed two very crude hatchers from some good points of several others I had seen. I filled them with eggs and they worked fairly well. I kept them going from Dec. 1st to June 1st, clearing from them during that time $650 over and above expenses, and that in spite of the high price of food and the fact that all my chickens were marketed at low prices; the highest I got was $6 a dozen, and the lowest $3.75. During this time I attended to my regular business without any let or hindrance. Believing this was a good return for the amount of work, I began to look around for a more perfect hatcher, and my attention was directed to the Common Sense. In June I procured directions from J. M. Bain, New Concord, Ohio. He is Secretary of the N. A. Poultry Association, and will send directions for making this hatcher to any one sending 3 2 cent stamps to prepay postage. I made one to hold 250 eggs (cost about $7). My success with this Common Sense hatcher was all I could wish for, and I immediately had four more made. I have just taken from these five hatchers 1030 fine chicks, out of a little less than 1200 eggs. I believe I am placing it modestly when I say I hope to clear $2,500 by July next, and still pursue my regular business. The fact of the matter is there is no business so profitable as this, provided one gives it the attention it deserves, and no business that takes so little capital to start on. There is no necessity of men trying to hide the business or monopolize it, any more than that of raising wheat or cattle. "The field is the world," and the world, like Oliver Twist, is crying out for more. Poultry is getting higher every year. There are thousands of young men in the country who are teachers, clerks in stores, and other avocations, who look forward to the time when they will get a stort in some lucky way. This way is here open to them all, and as plain as anything can be, if they will only profit by it. Thousands of young women, too, who feel dependent upon some father or brother for support, who, in one year, might place themselves high above any dependence if they only would. Do not wait until Spring, but get directions and make your hatchers immediately. You can make them yourselves. Try it once or twice so as to be familiar with the business, then you will be ready for the spring trade. I will.

Yours, respectfully,

S. S. JOHNSON.

Fort Scott, Kansas.

BROWN BREAD.—Brown bread made by following these directions is sure to be good: Sift, until thoroughly mixed together, half a pint of flour, one pint of corn meal, half pint of rye flour, one teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of brown sugar. Peel, wash and boil two medium-sized potatoes; rub them through a sieve, and heat them well with half a pint of water. Make a batter of this, and the meal, etc. Butter a deep basin, or small pan, and pour the batter in; then set the pan in a kettle of water; let it cook in this way for an hour. Cover the pan, of course, and put it in a hot oven for half an hour.

TOMATO AND RICE SOUP.—Boil three tablespoonfuls of rice until cooked in a quart of the above soup. In all cases where a teaspoonful of anything is mentioned, a level tablespoonful is meant.

MACARONI AU GRATIN.—Throw the macaroni into well salted boiling water, first breaking it up into small pieces, shake it frequently while on the fire to keep it from sticking to the pan; as soon as soft drain in a colander. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add to it a tablespoonful of grated cheese, pour over the macaroni, mix well together, put it into a gratin dish, add a teacupful of hot milk, put some fine bread crumbs over the top and some bits of butter. Bake in a hot oven fifteen minutes.—Philadelphia Press.

LEMONS BUNS.—The following will give satisfaction:—Five lbs. flour, 1 lb. butter, 1 oz. carbonate of soda, 2 ozs. cream of tartar, 1½ lbs. white sugar, 1 quart milk, essence of lemon. Finally, sift the flour, rub in the butter and carbonate of soda, cream of tartar and sugar, mix all well together, adding milk and essence of lemon. Make all into a dough of a short texture by not putting too much work in it; weigh off into pieces of 14 oz. each and break into four buns; mould and place them on tins, slightly flatten them, wash them over with egg, dust with loaf sugar, place a piece of lemon peel on top and bake in a moderately quick oven.—Confectioner and Baker.

ONION SOUP.—This soup is delicious on a cold day in winter. Fry three large onions, sliced thin, until they turn red; then add four tablespoonfuls of flour when this also begins to color pour in by degrees, stirring the while, a pint of boiling water. Season with pepper, salt and minced parsley, pour into the soup kettle and place over a very slow fire for three hours. Just before dinner add three cups of boiling milk, finish the seasoning, put croutons in the soup tureen, pour over them the boiling soup and send to table. A change may be made by adding three potatoes and a pint of any kind of weak stock.

The worst cold may be promptly cured if, within twenty-four hours after it has been taken, the patient will keep warm in bed, and eat little or nothing for a day or two.

It is said that decaying cabbage will produce diphtheria sooner than any other nuisance about the house.

Never sit with the back to a window or door, even if closed, for the air coming in at crack and crevice will certainly give a cold.

SCRAPINGS OF HORN.—The fine scrapings of any common cattle's horn steeped in vinegar and bound hot as can be borne upon a wound will subdue pain almost instantly, and effectually subdue lockjaw. I have often used this remedy and have never had a failure. In wounds torn and lacerated, as for example, where a nail has been stepped on penetrating the sole of the foot, and the patient wild with pain, countenance livid, teeth chattering, limbs trembling and lockjaw seeming inevitable, with this remedy I have produced perfect quiet, relaxation of muscles and freedom from pain, and even from soreness of the wound in the space of fifteen minutes time. I was called in haste to see a young man of fifteen years who had stepped on a nail. I found him almost in spasms and had no remedies with me. In the house I found a powder-horn and with a piece of glass went to scraping. As soon as I had a common thimbleful I barely coverd it with vinegar and heated it as hot as could be borne, and, setting others to scraping, I applied it to the wound, changed as soon as cool, adding the scraping accumulated, and this treatment had the boy easy and out of danger in fifteen minutes. I know not what there is in the horn that poduces this effect, which I have seen many times, and have often wished there might be some preparation of this remedy a little more convenient to use than the crude material.

CITRON PRESERVES.—Take of citron and sugar equal weight, put the citron in a kettle or stew pan, boil until tender, then put in a colander to drain. I often leave mine until morning to well drain; then take this water, put it in your kettle with sugar, and boil and skim until clear, then put in your citron, boil until well done, flavor with lemon if you like. This has been my plan for over thirteen years, and to my remembrance I have never had any sour. I also preserve watermelon rinds the same way.

APPLE JAM.—Core and pare apples; chop them well; allow equal quantity in weight of apples and sugar; make a syrup of the sugar by adding a little water, boiling and skimming well; then throw in a little grated lemon peel and a little white ginger. Boil until the fruit looks clear.

To John Brown.

O face that never paled with fear!
O heart forever free from hate!
We scan the race from year to year
For men as true, for souls as great.

The first to front the angry storm,
The first to fall—O hero seer!
Thy burning words, thy stalwart form,
Proclaimed a day of judgment near.

O years of strife and suffering,
Of anxious waiting, pain and death
The conquered see truth triumphing,
No more they barter blood and breath.

Baptized in blood, a nation learns
That purity and peace are one;
And in a rising race discerns
The self-sought task is but begun.

Pity for him who slights thy name,
Denies thy worth, thy work derides;
A race of freedmen guard thy fame,
Thy will still moulds, thy hand still guides.

O earnest souls that burn to be
Co-workers in the one great plan;
Learn of this hero, bold and free,
In loving God to fear not man!

Costa Rica.

This is the most southern republic of Central America, and with the exception of Salvador is the most prosperous. It is bounded on the north by Nicaragua, on the east by the Caribbean Sea, on the south by the Pacific Ocean and the Isthmus of Panama, and on the west by the Pacific Ocean. It contains an area of 21,500 square miles, or 13,700,000 square acres of territory and about 250,000 inhabitants, mostly of Spanish descent.

The commerce of Costa Rica exceeds that of the other Central American republics, although it has fewer inhabitants than either of its sister powers.

In 1881 the imports amounted to	$5,000,000
Exports	6,500,000
Total	$11,500,000

Coffee alone, to the amount of nearly $5,000,000, was exported in 1881, while the other exports are dye woods, furniture woods, india rubber, hides, spices and tropic fruits. The imports are hardware, cotton goods, provisions, etc., of which trade England has secured at least one-half.

Costa Rica has several fine ports on either coast, Port Limon, on the Caribbean Sea, is the principal eastern port of entry. A railroad has been built to the town of Sucio, seventy miles from the coast; from there a fine wagon road, thirty miles long, connects it with the capital.—Times-Democrat.

"Prohibition would destroy $300,000,000 of vested property," says Senator Daly, Amitted; but how about the figures on the other side? Statistics show that $800,000,000 a year is destroyed direct by license; that to this must be added the lives of 100,000 drunkards, the pauperization of 50,000 families, including 100,000 children, and the turning out of 100,000 criminals of various grades, the money value alone of the total exceeding $2,000,000,000! The Senator should let figures alone unless he is prepared to accept their full value.—American Reformer.

"The large experience that we have had during the past thirteen years, in which we have treated many thousands of cases with our new Vitalizing remedy says Drs. Starkey & Palen, of 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, Pa., "satisfies us that nine-tenths of the diseases which have been steadily growing worse in spite of the best medical treatment the country affords, can be cured or greatly helped by the use of this agent. We do not say this in any boastful way. The declaration is is based upon results of so surprising a character and in so wide a range of cases, many of them given up physicians as hopeless, that it stands as a fact open to the clearest authentication, and we will afford any one who desires to verify the reports and testimonials which we lay before the public the largest opportunity for doing so." Write to them for their pamphlet describing the nature and action of this new and remarkable Treatment. It will be sent free.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for some of my people—two sisters and two aunts. They and myself belonged to Jack Wade, after which we were sold as follows: My oldest sister, Eliza Wade, was sold to Jas. Cannada, from Franklin county, Va., to a place near Floyd Courthouse, Va. She was the mother of 5 children. My youngest sister, Marietta Wade, I left at home on a place near what is called Pig River, with Jack Wade's widow, quite young at that time. My aunt, Sintia Wade, was sold to Griffin, on Black Water Creek, in Franklin county, Va., mother of several children. My aunt, Sallie Wade, lived near Maysville, Va., sold to Smith Dunwoody; carried from Franklin county, Va., near Maysville, Va. I was sold at Floyd Courthouse to Pleas Howard, and came to Richmond, and was sold by Pleas Howard to Charles Oliver, 27 miles from Lynchburg, Va. I am known by quite a number of people at Franklin Courthouse, Va. I lived with Henry Dorsey during my stay at Franklin Courthouse. Address me at Askew, Ark.

SOPHIA WHITFIELD.

MR. EDITOR—Please allow me space for this inquiry. I am away from my parents; I was sold away from "Mealy" county, Va., in 1824. My mother's name was Patience Brown; my brothers were Bob, Kit, and "Graym" Brown. My sisters were named Mary and Lydia Brown. They belonged to Edmond Harrison. Father's name was Tom Brown, and belonged to Mr. Fosey. Address me, Monroe Brown, Marshall, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to know of the whereabouts of my brother, Elerson Williams. Last knowledge of him he was at Sardis, Miss., Dec. 1883. Mother and father's names are James and Mary Williams. There are four brothers and four sisters of us, of whom Elerson is a twin brother to Henderson, who is now at Lehrton, Sunflower county, Miss. Father is a minister of the M. E. Church at Pontotoc, Miss. Address me at Honlka, Miss.

W. K. WILLIAMS.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my relatives—two sisters and one brother. I left them in Louisiana in 1860 or '61, near Clinton. Sister's are Martha and Sallie Thriff. Their father was named Washington Thriff, a blacksmith. Brother was Cornelius. I do not know his father's name. Our mother was named Matilda; she is dead. My father was John Petty, but called "Indian John." We belonged to Col. Thriff; he died and we fell to Ambrose Petty, and he brought us to Texas. Father fell to Geo. Petty. A Mr. Slauter was our guardian; he lived in Clinton or Trenton, La. Uncle Rafe Thriff raised me. These three children are only my half brother and sisters. My name is Dan, but they always call me Turner. Address me at Brenham, Texas, in care of Rev. Willis H. Jackson.

TURNER PETTY.

MR. EDITOR—Please allow me to inquire for my brother who was stolen from me in December, 1868, by some persons who were moving. I was living at the time within three miles of Benton, Texas. His name is Lewis Thornton. He was eight years old when he was stolen. When a child he crawled into the fire and burnt his head and face, leaving on the back part of his head a scar which can be easily seen when there is no covering on it. His father's name is Ben Pertilla; his mother Emiline Thompson. He had two brothers, Green Jefferson and George Thompson. When I last heard from brother George he was living in New Orleans, but that has been 16 years. My mother and I are the only ones living to my knowledge. My name, when brother Lewis was stolen, Harriet McCowens; now it is Harriet Neeley. The preachers will please help me find my brothers. Those of New Orleans will please inquire in their congregations for brother George Thompson. My mother is quite old and much depressed on account of their absence. Address Harriet Neeley, Marshall, Texas, care of Rev. R. H. Harbert.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to find my mother's people, whom she was separated from about 1845. She, prior to this time, lived in Ogelthorpe county, Georgia. My mother was Delia R. B. Myrecks; her mother was Sarah, two brothers Felix and Frank. All belonged to Capt. R. B. Myrecks. My mother's father was Hal. McQuarter. At or about the time above mentioned, brought about by a sale which took place in the estate of said Myrecks, at which eight of his colored people were sold, with whom went my mother's mother, Sarah Myrecks. A man by the name of Pit Lumkin bought her; and a short time after this he bought my mother's husband, Hal, from the aforesaid McQuarter. My mother also remembers that her grandfather's name was Frank, and her grandmother Dola; they belonged to McQuarter. Some time later my mother was sold by Capt. Bob Myrecks to Dave Roddy, of Rhea county, Tenn. We now live in Roane county, in the town of Kingston, and I am known by the name of Delia Roddy. Address Mr. M. C. Roddy, care of Rev. J. T. Henry, Kingston, Tenn.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to know the whereabouts of my people—a mother, brother, sister and stepfather. I left them during the war, perhaps in 1862 or '63, near Wyatt, Miss. Mother was Mary Childers; father, Geo. Harmon; brother, Henry Childers; and sister Rosanna Childers. I was sold about the beginning of the war from Childers to Samuel Martin, who lived at Holly Springs, Miss., and was taken there by him. My mother was sold the same day, to a Mr. Hutcherson, and taken to Wyatt. In time of the war I was taken from Holly Springs to New Orleans Bay Salt Works. Remained there about two months, then I came to Kingston, Tenn., where I have lived. My name is now Jane Skalley. Address me, care of Rev. J. T. Henry, Kingston, Tenn.

Vital Questions

Ask the most eminent physician.

Of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves and curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always,

And they will tell you unhesitatingly, "Some form of Hops!"

CHAPTER I.

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians:

What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs, such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to women.—

And they will tell you explicitly and emphatically, "Buchu"

Ask the same physicians:

What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fever, ague, etc., and they will tell you:

"Mandrake, or Dandelion!"

Hence, when these remedies are combined with others equally valuable,

And compounded into Hop Bitters such a wonderful and mysterious curative power is developed which is so varied in its operations that no disease or ill health can possibly exist or resist its power, and yet it is

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved, and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Osman Digma replied to General Graham's messenger that the sword was the only medium of communication between himself and England.

It is reported that one city in the North in a single year circulated more books that eleven Southern States. The North has $188,000,000 of school property, the South has $6,000,000.

A bill has been introduced in the House of Commons providing for the restriction of the sale of patented medicines until they have been officially analyzed and pronounced not poisonous.

The Tribune says that some of the friends of Carl Schurz propose to raise a fund of $100,000 for him. It is understood that Jesse Seligman has taken a prominent part in the movement, and has the subscriptions under his charge.

In Germany, where there is no restriction of the sale of liquor on Sunday, statistics show that 32 per cent. of the murders and crimes are committed on Sunday, and 53 per cent. between Saturday and Monday morning.

Austin, Nevada, has passed an ordinance providing that boys under sixteen years of age must not be seen on the streets after 8 o'clock in the evening during the 6 months including winter, or 8:30 the rest of the year, unaccompanied by parents or guardians. Other cities should follow.

There are forty-five women medical students in Paris, the majority of whom are Sclavs. At Liege, says the Gazette Medicale, the number has increased to twenty-six. At Geneva there are seven, at Zurich thirty-three, and at Berne twenty-eight. They are fairly well received in France, but not over well treated in Switzerland.

Capt. Austin, who calls himself a crack rifle shot, was cowardly enough to attempt, recently in England, the feat of shooting a potato off his wife's head. He succeeded in his first shot, but at the second his bullet struck the unfortunate woman in the forehead, where it glanced, saving her from death, it is true, but making a frightful scar three inches long.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat would like to have somebody point out, if he can, a single law placed upon the statute-books of Missouri by the Democratic party calculated to promote the welfare of the State. The Democrats have had supreme control of the Legislature of Missouri for more than 12 years.

Years ago John Q. Adams loved the prettiest girl in Alabama. Her parents forced her to marry a man named Jackson, who took her to Texas, where she became the mother of nineteen children. A year ago her husband died. Meanwhile John Q. Adams, who had married early, had not been idle. He acquired considerable local renown by becoming the father of twenty-one children. Recently his wife died. He has gone to Texas to marry Mrs. Jackson. The families will live on the co-operative plan.

The bill introduced in the Senate for the admission as a State of Tacoma provides for the creation of the present Territory of Washington and a part of Idaho into a State, and its admission into the Union subsequent to the adoption of a constitution by a convention of delegates representing the electors of the proposed State to be held at Walla Walla, and the ratification of the action of that convention at a special election by the eletors residing within the limits of the State. It provides, however, that the admission shall not take place until after March 4, 1885.

The evidence seemed overwhelming against Edward Johnson, a colored man on trial for burglary in Batavia, Ohio. His trial had lasted four days, and the audience in court thought him sure to be convicted. He asked permission to speak, and talked for forty-five minutes. He fairly tore to pieces the state's network of evidence, plunged most of the jurors in tears, amazed the court, captivated the audience, and made a speech which the Cincinnati papers say has no parallel in rude eloquence since the days of Chief Red Jacket. He was acquitted.

Nominations—Julius C. Burrows, of Michigan, solicitor of the Treasury; Col. David S. Stanley, Twenty-second Infantry, brigadier general; postmaster, Allen H. Simpson, Winchester, Ky.; Chauncy B. Sabin of Texas, United States district judge, Eastern district of Texas; James E. Tracey, of Texas, as United States marshal of the Eastern District of Texas; J. A. Riner, United States attorney, Wyoming; Wm. A. Taylor, of Texas, collector of customs, district of Paso Del Norte, Texas; James O. Luby, of Texas, collector of customs, district of Brazos De Santiago, Texas.

Specific Virtues in Dyspepsia

Dr. A. Jenkins, Great Falls, N. H., says: "I can testify to its seemingly almost specific virtues in cases of dyspepsia, nervousness and morbid vigilance or wakefulness."

It is a very bad taste for a wife to growl at her husband for tracking mud into the house; for what is home without its mudder?

A five-year old girl on Whiting street, troubled with a cold in her head, complained to her mother, "Oh, dear! my nose won't stay blew!"

My Wife had Fits.

"For 35 years," says our correspondrnt Henry Clark, of Fairfield, Lenawee Co., Mich., "my wife had fits. They would last about an hour, and sometimes longer Samaritan Nervine has permanently cured her."

Did She Die?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along pining away all the time for years,"

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"Indeed! Indeed!"

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery.

"From a complication of Kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility

"Under the care of the best physicians.

"Who gave her disease various names.

"But no relief.

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it,"—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

"My daughter say:

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

"And we are so glad that he used your Bitters, A LADY of Utica, N. Y."

Thirty Objections to Dancing.

The Rev. R. R. Wilkins says that in the days of such men of God as Wycliffe, Tindale, Coverdale, Cranmer, Bede, Huss, Ridley, Luther and others, the great question with the Christian was not "How much can I be like the world and be saved?" or, "How near can I come to being lost and escape?" "How can I best serve my Master?" was the burden of their hearts. But now Christianity has grown both popular and fashionable, and dancing is also fashionable; and, therefore, not a few Christians are continually asking the question: "What harm is there in dancing? I read in the Bible of people dancing, who were good people. What harm can it be?" It is a great evil, and is doing more to demoralize church and society than the Christian mothers who allow their children to visit the ball-room have any idea. There is no reason why Christians should engage in dancing, but many why they should not. The following are thirty of them:

1. It is nowhare commanded in the Bible.

2. Although engaged in by men and women of God at times under the old dispensation, it was never sought as a pleasure as now, but was one of the ways they praised God in time of victory.

3. The sexes did not dance together as now.

4. The New Testament tells of but one case of dancing, and that in purpose is more like the dancing now-a-days than any dancing in the whole Bible. This dancing, which was engaged in by the daughter of one of the wicked women of the Roman empire, resulted in the death of John the Baptist.

5. Dancing is not done in the name of the Lord. Paul says, do all things in the name of the Lord.

6. Dancing is reveling, and Paul says they who do such things shall not inherit the Kingdom.

7. It is heathenish. The less of civilization a nation has the more of dancing.

8. It leads to expensive and gorgeous dress.

9. It unfits the mind for reflection.

10. It leads to the violation of the laws of health, among which is the great loss of sleep and too much exercise.

11. It keeps people up all night, who are too delicate to sit up with the sick or dying for one hour.

12. The ministers of the Gospel cannot engage in it without doing serious damage to the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ.

13. Our Saviour did not dance.

14. The Apostles and early Christians did not dance.

15. Dancing is of ill-repute.

16. No one dying sends for a dancing-master to comfort him.

17. No good dancer wants it placed on his tomb-stone when dead that "he was an expert dancer."

18. No one dances in memory of a departed friend.

19. It creates or fosters a love for the fatal cup.

20. It tolerates a freedom between the sexes, both immodest and often resulting perniciously.

21. Hundreds of blasted characters can date the first step of their ruin to their first visit to the ball-room.

22. It creates a jealousy between man and wife, between lover and lover.

23. It requires no brain to be a dancing-master.

24. It weakens a person morally.

25. It weakens his influence for good.

26. It weakens him physically.

27. No Christian can attend balls and keep unspotted from the world.

28. We cannot let our light shine at the ball-room.

29. Dancing is not a healthful exercise.

30. We are to glorify God in our bodies and spirits. Can we do it by dancing?

Colds yield to onions like magic, but Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a still better and by far more agreeable means of curing a Cold or Cough. You can buy a bottle for 25 cents at any drug store, and we are sure it will do the work every time.

OUR NEW AMERICAN LEVER WATCH!

After months of labor and experiment, we have at last brought to perfection A NEW WATCH. It is a Key Winding Watch with the Celebrated Anchor Lever Movement, Expansion Balance, Fully Jeweled. They are made of the best material, and in the very best manner so as to insure good time-keeping qualities. The Cases are made of our Celebrated metal known as Aluminum Gold. This metal has a sufficient amount of Gold in its composition to give the watch a genuine gold appearance. Indeed it cannot be told from a genuine Gold Watch except by the best judges. They are finely engraved or engine turned and are massive and strong and very handsome making it just the watch for Railroad men, Mechanics, and all laboring men who require a good strong watch and an accurate Time-keeper. For trading and speculative purposes, it is superior to any watch ever before offered. They can be sold readily for $15 and $20 each, and traded so as to double those amounts. Farmers as well as Agents can handle these watches to advantage, as they can be readily exchanged for stock or goods. We send the watch free by registered mail, on receipt of $8.00. Or we will send it C. O. D. on receipt of $1.00 on account; the balance can be paid at the express office. We also have very fine Aluminum Gold Chains at $1.00 each. Beautiful Medallion Charms 50 cents. We have hundreds of testimonials but have room for only a few.

WORLD MAN'F'G CO. Menlo Park, Cal. Jan. 8, 1884.
Gents:—The $8.00 Aluminum Gold Watch gives perfect satisfaction. I enclose $30.00 for 9 more watches balance to be C. O. D. Send at once. Respectfully Henry Braithwait.

SEND ALL ORDERS TO

World Manf'g Co. 122 Nassau Street, New York

It is seldom that we meet with an article that so fully corresponds with its advertised good qualities as does the New American Lever Watch. It has the advantage of being made of that precious metal Aluminum Gold; its works are of the best make, and the general style of the case rank it with the best Watches made anywhere. We recommend it to our readers as a Watch that will give entire satisfaction.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON I. April 6. PAUL'S THIRD MISSIONARY JOURNEY: (Acts xviii, 23-28; xix, 1-7.)

The lessons conveyed are:

1. The tireless love of the apostle for his Churches.

2. The power of even imperfect light in a devout mind. Apollos knew only the Old Testament Scriptures and John's interpretation of them, yet he advanced to conclusions which needed only a little addition to bring him into the full light of Christ.

3. The faithful labor of devout laymen, in shaping the character of the pulpit. Fidelity to the ministry will not only keep the preacher right, but aid in edifying the Church.

4. The difference in gifts among ministers. Apollos was a richly endowed man by nature. Learning aided him, but he was born, not made, eloquent. His race was multiplied in the Churches, but it has no right to the exclusive possession of the field. The Churches may affect this for good, by being patient with men of plain talent, but genuine worth.

5. The true nature of conversion: When proper instructions had been given these persons received the Holy Ghost, and emerged into the full light and liberty of the children of God.

6. Those favoring rebaptizing persons baptized in infancy or by some other mode than immersion obtain no support from this passage, because these persons had never before received Christian baptism.

7. Those favoring infant baptism and other modes than immersion in baptism need not explain away the actual baptism of these persons, as is done by making verse 5 a part of Paul's address, referring to those who heard and were baptized by John. [Verse 4 recites Paul's explanation of the import of John's baptism. Verse 5 narrates the baptism of the "twelve men" into the name of the Lord Jesus.] Though baptized before, this is their first and only Christian baptism.—Western.

DEATHS.

Adeline Collins died Feb. 28, near Carrollton, La. She was born May 19, 1869, and left us at the age of 14 years, 9 months and 9 days. She bid her schoolmates good-bye, and passed away peacefully, with full faith in Jesus.

Rev. B. O. Watrous, a superannuated member of the Texas Annual Conference, died March 5, aged 73 years. Bro. Watrous was born in Tennessee, Nov. 9, 1811, was married to Martha Capps January 18, 1834; they lived together for 50 years. In early life he was converted to God, and entered upon the work of the Christian ministry in Alabama in 1848. He came to Texas in 1856, and settled in Austin. In 1867 he was ordained deacon, and in 1869 elder. For a number of years he served the church as a pastor and as a presiding elder, and was successful in all his fields of labor; respected and loved by the people. Twice he was elected to the Legislature, and was regarded by his associates as a man of marked ability. He leaves an aged wife, son and daughters to mourn his loss. Rev. O. Watrous, an honored member of the Texas Annual Conference, is his son. His funeral was attended by a large concourse of people, and suitable addresses were made by Rev. J. K. Loggins, W. H. Jackson, assisted by other clergymen. Bro. Watrous was a good man, was no doubt ready to cross over Jordan. He leaves a host of friends here, and we trust he has joined the white robed host on the other side.

W. H. JACKSON.

NEW BOOKS.

RIGHT TO THE POINT. From the writings of Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D. Selected by Mary Storrs Haynes. With an Introduction by Rev. Newman Hall, LL. B., of Christ Church, London. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co., Price, $1.00.

Doctor Cuyler is one of the best known and at the same time one of the most eloquent of American clergymen, and Doctor Hall tells us that none has been more cordially received in the pulpits of London, or has reached a wider circle of readers in Great Britain during the last twenty-five years. And he says further: "He is a master of strong Saxon-English; his sentences require no second reading to be understood; he produces a graphic picture by a few touches; old truths are made fresh and attractive by a new dress. The religion taught by prophets and apostles is adapted to our times, and presented as the religion for all conditions and classes—for the drawingroom, the nursery and the kitchen, for the college and the workshop, for the Senate chamber and the store, as well as for churches and prayer meetings. He makes his reader feel that Gospel truth is not a mere theory, but a practical reality for the use of every-day life." The selections made by the compiler cover a wide ground. They have been drawn from sermon, tract and periodical, and reveal, in greater or less degree, "the same qualities of incisive directness, of graphic portraiture, of genial sympathy, of keen observation, of human nature, and of honest loyalty to the inspired teachings of the Book of books."

MOTHER MICHAUD, or Paris Since 1871. Published by the American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street, New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 94 Camp street, New Orleans, Price 75c.

Mother Michaud was a Protestant, a Huguenot, not by birth but from conviction. This volume shows the influence of her life and how the Gospel has triumphed among some of the most depraved in the city of Paris. There are nine chapters in this book, as "Bread Cast on the Waters;" "The Music of the Gospel;" "Is Prayer not Answered?" "Freely ye have Received, Freely Give," No one can read this little book without having his faith in God strengthened, and without enlarged conceptions of the work of God in Paris since 1871.

THE GOOD TIMES GIRLS. By the author of "The Blue Badge Boys," "Ready and Willing," "Up to the Mark." Published by the American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street, New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 94 Camp street, New Orleans. Price $1.50.

The author of this book certainly understands how to entertain and instruct girls. Every chapter testifies to that fact; further every chapter witnesses to the fact that the book is the result of certain habits of mind derived from a thorough knowledge of home, and a love for home. Though the book was written for girls chiefly, it is well worth the reading of men and women of mature life; if for no other reason it will give them abundant hints how to give to the girls a good time. Most heartily, then, do we welcome this volume.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Popular Science Monthly for April is an especially strong, varied, and valuable number. The opening paper is by Herbert Spencer on the decay of the sentiment of personal liberty, and the rapid growth of the system of legislative interference and coercion—which he discusses under the title "The Coming Slavery." "A Defense of Modern Thought," by W. D. Le Sueur, is a vigorous reply to the Bishop of Ontario on "Agnosticism," There is another practical chapter of W. Mattieu William's "Chemistry of Cookery," in which butter and other fats and milk are treated; and Dr. Oswald concludes his lively series on "The Remedies of Nature." The illustrated articles are, "Photographing a Streak of Lightining," by Gaston Tissandier; "Why the Eyes of Animals shine in the Dark," by Swan M. Burnett, M. D.; and "The Electric Railway," by Lieutenant B. A. Fiske, U. S. N., "Methods of Instruction in Mineralogy," by M. E. Wadsworth, Ph. D., of Harvard University, indicates the sort of drill that scientific educators wish to substitute for Greek. Professor A. W. Hofmann is the scientist of whom a portrait and sketch are given, the other articles: "The Physiological Significance of Vital Force," by William G. Stevenson, M. D.; "Prehistoric Art in America," by the Marquis de Nadaillac; "The Morality of Happiness" (continued), by Thomas Foster; "Biblical and Modern Leprosy," by G. H. Fox, M. D.; "Recent Geological Changes in Western Michigan," by C. W. Wooldridge, M. D.; and "The Faculty of Speech," by E. F. Brush, M. D. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

Harper's Magazine for April well illustrates the capabilities of that periodical in both the literary and the artistic field. The variety of its contents is a remarkable feature. The frontispiece is from the original painting by Murillo, known as "The Immaculate Conception," and reproduces with wonderful fidelity the lower portion the group of child-angels. Charles Eliot Norton contributes a paper entitled "A Visit to Sardis." The Hohenzollern dynasty is the subject of an entertaining paper by Professor Herbert Tuttle. Ernest Ingersoll contributes the first of two papers, entitled "From the Fraser to the Columbia." "Working-men's Homes," by R. R. Bowker, is a full and interesting review of the enterprises undertaken by George Peabody, Octavia Hill, and Sir Sydney Waterlow, in London for the provision of improved homes for the industrial classes, and of similar enterprises in this country, with illustrations. Colonel Higginson contributes the fourteenth chapter of his American History Series, entitled "The Second War for Independence," treating of Madison's administration and the War of 1812. The fourth part of William Black's "Judith Shakespeare" is given, also the fifth part of E. P. Roe's novel, "Nature's Serial Story." Charles Reade concludes his story of "The Picture," and there is a bright short story, entitled "Six of One and Half a dozen of the Other." Poems are contributed by H. H., R. H. Horne, G. T. Lanigan, and Laura M. Marquand. Professor W. P. Trowbridge, of the School of Mines, Columbia College, contributes a very important and timely paper on Modern Sanitary Engineering. The Editor's Easy Chair contains an elegant tribute to the late Wendell Phillips. The other Editorial Departments are full, as usual, of interesting and entertaining matter.

Since the newspapers criticise the magazines, it is but fair play that the magaziues should criticise the newspapers; and so, in The Manhattan for April, E. V. Smalley will give his view of "Recent Tendencies of American Journalism," pointing out what, in his opinion, has been the effect of the reduction in the price of leading journals.

A frontispiece of a forest interior, entitled "In the Sugar Orchard," opens the April Wide Awake; it belongs with Miss Amanda B. Harris's article, "In a Maple Sugar Camp," which is illustrated with excellent drawings made in the camp in New Hampshire. Another racy paper is given in this number, entitled "The Soap Bubble Question." Edward Everett Hale also, in his character of "political editor of Wide Awake," furnishes a chatty but valuable article explaining "*Com*munism and Com*mun*ism." The stories of the number aer excellent. The C. Y. F. R. U. Readings this month are of sepecial value to the whole family. $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston.

Our Little Ones for April introduces "Little Blossom;" a wee bit lady and Teddy and Rover, the Black Sheep, some Queer Ants and the Snow Man figur in its pages Boston: Russel Publishing Co.

The first American inscription upon the obelisk, now standing in Central Park, New York, will be: "Use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents."

The Rev. H. Colclazer, of the Wilmington Conference, who has been fifty-six years in the ministry, retired from active work at the late session.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

DEAR BRETHREN—I am requested by Dr. Hartzell, Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, to call your attention to the fact that, according to the action of the last General Conference, unless we raise the $100 assessed this Conference for expenses of the General Conference the expenses of our delegates will not be paid by the General Conference. In view of this fact the presiding elders and pastors in this Conference are requested to see to it that their districts and charges, immediately raise and forward to me, in care of this office, their various assessments for this purpose. This matter should be attended to at once, and assessments forwarded, at least, not later than April 15. Brethren will please take due notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was honrly expected. all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a prepation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is new in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. je14-1y

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France to the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250 000 French have subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

AGENTS wanted for the History of Christianity, by Abbott. A grand chance. A $4 book at the popular price of $1.75. Liberal terms. The Daily Christian Advocate.

The forthcoming General Conference promises to be one of great interest. It is the closing General Conference of the first Century of organized American Methodism. Its reports from every department of our widely-extended work, and the suggestions of plans and recommendations of methods for enlarging the work at home and abroad; the presence and addresses of distinguished Fraternal messengers from other religious bodies, some of them from beyond the sea, and of eminent missionaries connected with our various foreign mission fields; and the discussions by the many able and influential delegates, lay and clerical, (representing nearly a hundred different Annual Conference), of the many great questions which are to be considered at this transition period of our Church history, are sure to engage the attention of our people in all parts of the world.

In order to respond to the demands of this enlarged and increasing interest, and thus give to all our people the earliest, and most ample reports, the Agents of the Book Concerns at New York and Cincinnati will publish The Daily Christian Advocate, to be issued every morning, Sundays excepted, during the entire General Conference session. It will furnish reliable reports of every item of interest in the doings of that highest legislative and judicial ecclesiastical body, also of the sermons and addresses of the distinguished fraternal representative and visitors. It will print numerous pen-and-ink sketches of distinguished delegates, lay and clerical, and of fraternal representatives and visitors present, and will give in each number a summary of the latest telegraphic and other Church and secular news received up to the hour of going to presi.

The Daily will be under the editorial supervision of Dr. W. H. De Puy who, in his editorial experience, extending through a score of years in connection with our Church papers, and including three different volumes of the Daily Christian Advocate, is well known to the Church. He will have able and experienced assistants, and no effort will be omitted either in the Editorial or Publishing Departments to make the paper as complete, attractive, instructive, and of as great permanent value, as possible.

The first number of The Daily Christian Advocate (an eight-page, neatly printed folio) will be issued at Philadelphia on Thursday morning, May, 1, 1884; and the volume will end with the number issued on the day following the close of the General Conference session. The last number will contain an ample and well-arranged table of contents, for the convenience of the many of our ministers and people who will desire to preserve the whole volume for future and frequent reference The price will be $1.50, postage prepaid by the Publishers.

We respectfully and earnestly request all preachers to bring the paper immediately before their people, and either personally or by proxy make a thorough canvass of their congregations. Let the names be forwarded by April 1, if possible, and certainly by the middle of the month, as it is important to have our mail-list so complete that there shall be no complaint by subscribers not receiving promptly their first number. In no instance should any subscription list, however small, be delayed in order to send by some delegate or visitor to the General Conference.

To-day the SAVANNAH MORNING NEWS makes a new departure in journalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

including its mammoth eight-page Sunday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the future as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON I. APRIL 6. PAUL'S THIRD MISSIONARY JOURNEY: (Acts xviii, 23-28; xix, 1-7.)

The lessons conveyed are:

1. The tireless love of the apostle for his Churches.

2. The power of even imperfect light in a devout mind. Apollos knew only the Old Testament Scriptures and John's interpretation of them, yet he advanced to conclusions which needed only a little addition to bring him into the full light of Christ.

3. The faithful labor of devout laymen, in shaping the character of the pulpit. Fidelity to the ministry will not only keep the preacher right, but aid in edifying the Church.

NEW BOOKS.

RIGHT TO THE POINT. From the writings of Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D. Selected by Mary Storrs Haynes. With an Introduction by Rev. Newman Hall, LL. B., of Christ Church, London. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co., Price, $1.00.

Doctor Cuyler is one of the best known and at the same time one of the most eloquent of American clergymen, and Doctor Hall tells us that none has been more cordially received in the pulpits of London, or has reached a wider circle of readers in Great Britain during the last twenty-five years. And he says further: "He is a master of strong Saxon-English; his sentences require no second reading to be understood; he produces a graphic picture by a few touches; old truths are made fresh and attractive by a new dress. The religion taught by prophets and apostles is adapted to our times, and presented as the religion for all conditions and classes—for the drawingroom, the nursery and the kitchen, for the college and the workshop, for the Senate chamber and the store, as well as for churches and prayer meetings. He makes his reader feel that Gospel truth is not a mere theory, but a practical reality for the use of every-day life." The selections made by the compiler cover a wide ground. They have been drawn from sermon, tract and periodical, and reveal, in greater or less degree, "the same qualities of incisive directness, of graphic portraiture, of genial sympathy, of keen observation, of human nature, and of honest loyalty to the inspired teachings of the Book of books."

MOTHER MICHAUD, or Paris Since 1871. Published by the American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street, New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 94 Camp street, New Orleans, Price 75c.

Mother Michaud was a Protestant, a Huguenot, not by birth but from conviction. This volume shows the influence of her life and how the Gospel has triumphed among some of the most depraved in the city of Paris. There are nine chapters in this book, as "Bread Cast on the Waters," "The Music of the Gospel," "Is Prayer not Answered?" "Freely ye have Received, Freely Give." No one can read this little book without having his faith in God strengthened, and without enlarged conceptions of the work of God in Paris since 1871.

THE GOOD TIMES GIRLS. By the author of "The Blue Badge Boys," "Ready and Willing," "Up to the Mark." Published by the American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street, New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 94 Camp street, New Orleans. Price $1.50.

The author of this book certainly understands how to entertain and instruct girls. Every chapter testifies to that fact; further every chapter witnesses to the fact that the book is the result of certain habits of mind derived from a thorough knowledge of home, and a love for home. Though the book was written for girls chiefly, it is well worth the reading of men and women of mature life; if for no other reason it will give them abundant hints how to give to the girls a good time. Most heartily, then, do we welcome this volume.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Popular Science Monthly for April is an especially strong, varied, and valuable number. The opening paper is by Herbert Spencer on the decay of the sentiment of personal liberty, and the rapid growth of the system of legislative interference and coercion—which he discusses under the title "The Coming Slavery." "A Defense of Modern Thought," by W. D. Le Sueur, is a vigorous reply to the Bishop of Ontario on "Agnosticism." There is another practical chapter of W. Mattieu William's "Chemistry of Cookery," in which butter and other fats and milk are treated; and Dr. Oswald concludes his lively series on "The Remedies of Nature." The illustrated articles are, "Photographing a Streak of Lightning," by Gaston Tissandier; "Why the Eyes of Animals shine in the Dark," by Swan M. Burnett, M. D.; and "The Electric Railway," by Lieutenant B. A. Fiske, U. S. N. "Methods of Instruction in Mineralogy," by M. E. Wadsworth, Ph. D., of Harvard University, indicates the sort of drill that scientific educators wish to substitute for Greek. Professor A. W. Hofmann is the scientist of [illegible] a portrait and sketch are given, the other articles. "The Physiological Significance of Vital Force," by William G. Stevenson, M. D.; "Prehistoric Art in America," by the Marquis de Nadaillac; "The Morality of Happiness" (continued), by Thomas Foster; "Biblical and Modern Leprosy," by G. H. Fox, M. D.; "Recent Geological Changes in Western Michigan," by C. W. Wooldridge, M. D.; and "The Faculty of Speech," by E. F. Brush, M. D. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

Harper's Magazine for April well illustrates the capabilities of that periodical in both the literary and the artistic field. The variety of its contents is a remarkable feature. The frontispiece is from the original painting by Murillo, known as "The Immaculate Conception," and reproduces with wonderful fidelity the lower portion the group of child-angels. Charles Eliot Norton contributes a paper entitled "A Visit to Sardis." The Hohenzollern dynasty is the subject of an entertaining paper by Professor Herbert Tuttle. Ernest Ingersoll contributes the first of two papers, entitled "From the Fraser to the Columbia." "Working-men's Homes," by R. R. Bowker, is a full and interesting review of the enterprises undertaken by George Peabody, Octavia Hill, and Sir Sydney Waterlow, in London for the provision of improved homes for the industrial classes, and of similar enterprises in this country, with illustrations. Colonel Higginson contributes the fourteenth chapter of his American History Series, entitled "The Second War for Independence," treating of Madison's administration and the War of 1812. The fourth part of William Black's "Judith Shakespeare" is given, also the fifth part of E. P. Roe's novel, "Nature's Serial Story." Charles Reade concludes his story of "The Picture," and there is a bright short story, entitled "Six of One and Half a dozen of the Other." Poems are contributed by H. H., R. H. Horne, G. T. Lanigau, and Laura M. Marquand. Professor W. P. Trowbridge, of the School of Mines, Columbia College, contributes a very important and timely paper on Modern Sanitary Engineering. The Editor's Easy Chair contains an elegant tribute to the late Wendell Phillips. The other Editorial Departments are full, as usual, of interesting and entertaining matter.

Since the newspapers criticise the magazines, it is but fair play that the magazines should criticise the newspapers; and so, in The Manhattan for April, E. V. Smalley will give his view of "Recent Tendencies of American Journalism," pointing out what, in his opinion, has been the effect of the reduction in the price of leading journals.

A frontispiece of a forest interior, entitled "In the Sugar Orchard," opens the April Wide Awake; it belongs with Miss Amanda B. Harris's article, "In a Maple Sugar Camp," which is illustrated with excellent drawings made in the camp in New Hampshire. Another racy paper is given in this number, entitled "The Soap Bubble Question." Edward Everett Hale also, in his character of "political editor of Wide Awake," furnishes a chatty but valuable article explaining "*Com*munism and Com*munism*." The stories of the number are excellent. The C. Y. F. R. U. Readings this month are of especial value to the whole family. $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston.

Our Little Ones for April introduces "Little Blossom;" a wee bit lady and Teddy and Rover, the Black Sheep, some Queer Ants and the Snow Man figur in its pages Boston: Russel Publishing Co.

The first American inscription upon the obelisk, now standing in Central Park, New York, will be: "Use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents."

The Rev. H. Colclazer, of the Wilmington Conference, who has been fifty-six years in the ministry, retired from active work at the late session.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

DEAR BRETHREN—I am requested by Dr. Hartzell, Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, to call your attention to the fact that, according to the action of the last General Conference, unless we raise the $100 assessed this Conference for expenses of the General Conference the expenses of our delegates will not be paid by the General Conference. In view of this fact the presiding elders and pastors in this Conference are requested to see to it that their districts and charges, immediately raise and forward to me, in care of this office, their various assessments for this purpose. This matter should be attended to at once, and assessments forwarded, at least, not later than April 15. Brethren will please take due notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2 cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach and will break up a fresh Cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co. 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this paper. n44-14t

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. FOR THE BENEFIT OF

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250 000 French men subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steelengraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

The Daily Christian Ddvocate.

The forthcoming General Conference promises to be one of great interest. It is the closing General Conference of the first Century of organized American Methodism. Its reports from every department of our widely-extended work, and the suggestions of plans and recommendations of methods for enlarging the work at home and abroad; the presence and addresses of distinguished Fraternal messengers from other religious bodies, some of them from beyond the sea, and of eminent missionaries connected with our various foreign mission fields; and the discussions by the many able and influential delegates, lay and clerical, (representing nearly a hundred different Annual Conference), of the many great questions which are to be considered at this transition period of our Church history, are sure to engage the attention of our people in all parts of the world.

In order to respond to the demands of this enlarged and increasing interest, and thus give to all our people the earliest, and most ample reports, the Agents of the Book Concerns at New York and Cincinnati will publish The Daily Christian Advocate, to be issued every morning, Sundays excepted, during the entire General Conference session. It will furnish reliable reports of every item of interest in the doings of that highest legislative and judicial ecclesiastical body, also of the sermons and addresses of the distinguished fraternal representative and visitors. It will print numerous pen-and-ink sketches of distinguished delegates, lay and clerical, and of fraternal representatives and visitors present, and will give in each number a summary of the latest telegraphic and other Church and secular news received up to the hour of going to press.

The Daily will be under the editorial supervision of Dr. W. H. De Puy who, in his editorial experience, extending through a score of years in connection with our Church papers, and including three different volumes of the Daily Christian Advocate, is well known to the Church. He will have able and experienced assistants, and no effort will be omitted either in the Editorial or Publishing Departments to make the paper as complete, attractive, instructive, and of as great permanent value, as possible.

The first number of The Daily Christian Advocate (an eight-page, neatly printed folio) will be issued at Philadelphia on Thursday morning, May, 1, 1884; and the volume will end with the number issued on the day following the close of the General Conference session. The last number will contain an ample and well-arranged table of contents, for the convenience of the many of our ministers and people who will desire to preserve the whole volume for future and frequent reference. The price will be $1.50, postage prepaid by the Publishers.

We respectfully and earnestly request all preachers to bring the paper immediately before their people, and either personally or by proxy make a thorough convass of their congregations. Let the names be forwarded by April 1, if possible, and certainly by the middle of the month, as it is important to have our mail-list so complete that there shall be no complaint by subscribers not receiving promptly their first number. In no instance should any subscription list, however small, be delayed in order to send by some delegate or visitor to the General Conference.

The Savannah Morning News
FOR 1884.

To-day the SAVANNAH MORNING NEWS makes a new departure in journalism in this State, and from this date will send a paper

including its mammoth eight-page Sunday edition, to every subscriber to its daily edition. The subscription price will remain the same, viz., $10 a year or $5 for six months.

In the future as in the past the MORNING NEWS will support the National Democratic party, and advocate the principles of that party.

It will be, as it has been always, independent of all political or personal cliques, either local, State or National. It will continue to advocate a reduction of the tariff because it believes that the best interests of the people will be served by such reduction. In its columns the latest news from all parts of the world will be found.

Special attention will be given to the news of this State, Florida, and South Carolina. Each department will be carefull edited, and the aim will be improvement and a higher standard of excellence.

No expense will be spared to make the MORNING NEWS the most readable, reliable and progressive newspaper in Georgia. The MORNING NEWS is the only paper in Georgia except the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist which takes the regular and supplemental Associated Press dispatches. The special dispatches and correspondence of the MORNING NEWS will be fuller this year than ever before.

Editorial Notes.

N. H. Eusley, in the Boston Watchman says that Alcorn College at Rodney, Miss., for some time after the war received $50,000 year. It now receives only $11,000 from the State. There are 140 students two thirds of whom are Baptist and the rest Methodist. As it is a State institution, no theology or Bible is taught.

There are some men in Georgia so exquisitely nice that they are trying to build up a Republican party with the colored voters as a rear attachment. They should be let alone. The Republicans of Georgia who have convictions in accord with the National party are entirely able to get along without them. The privileges of citizenship, potent for the elevation of a race, when rightly directed, should not be disposed of for a mere mess of pottage.

A special correspondent to the Picayune writing of the heroic, though unsuccessful effort put forth to save the Morganza levee, says of the colored men employed on that work: "They took off their coats and fronted the bank with them. The citizens state that it required heroism to do this, and the laborers will be remembered substantially by all the residents." A race capable of producing such faithful protectors of the public safety and interest, deserve better treatment at the hands of the Southern people than they are generally in the habit of receiving.

Methodism when properly worked is a grand system, there is nothing like it in this world; but when poorly worked it is a complete bungle. It is a vast chain closely united whose strength is only equal to the weakest link. When Methodists are willing to work Methodism so that every part does its own work, God through her will "do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think." The great damage comes from those who want to mould our doing, from those who seek in some unknown mysterious way of their own to do the work of the church. Such an administration, no matter how honest in intentions, will always prove a disaster. Methodism needs to be worked.

The South Carolina Legislature in 1882 unanimously adopted a joint resolution urging Senators and Representatives in Congress from that State to use all their endeavors to secure Federal aid for education on the basis of illiteracy. The other day Senator Butler tartly opposed the proposition, during Senate debate on the Blair bill. This leads the Southern Christian Advocate, of Charleston, to say: "We are ashamed of the position which Gen. Butler has taken on this subject, and we only regret we can't reprobate to the extent he deserves it, his betrayal of a great public trust." What consideration for humanity could be expected from the leader of the Hamburg massacre, who obtained his seat in the Senate by credentials from a mockery of an election in his own State, and the accident of a political bargain in Washington!

The Cincinnati Riot.

New York Herald: This outbreak in Cincinnati is not a matter of merely local concern. It springs from a cause of general operation. It is a consequence of a flagrant miscarriage of justice, and both the cause and its effect are growing common throughout the country to an extent that may well cause alarm and arrest attention. The failure to bring murderers to punishment has become so general and so gross as to call in question the efficacy of our criminal administration and to sound a warning to the whole Nation.

New York Tribune: The most significant lesson of this unfortunate occurrence is the warning it constitutes against that peculiarly American tendency to ignore abuses until they become intolerable, which is at the bottom of half our governmental failures, and especially in large cities. Business absorbs the energy and attention of the intelligent majority, and leaves a clear field for the machinations of the unprincipled few. These latter are encouraged to proceed from one usurpation and abuse to another, until presently the community rouses itself to find that it it being plundered right and left, or that the laws are being set aside in the interest of criminals, and then there is a disposition to apply drastic remedies summarily, and when public feeling is excited in an unusual degree there is danger of such frantic outbreaks as Cincinnati has just witnessed.

Philadelphia Press: To the credit of the Cincinnati authorities, be it noted, the unworthy Berner was stoutly defended. His conviction of the lowest, instead of the highest, grade of homicide may have been, and doubtless was, an outrage, but to allow a mob to tear him from the prison and hang him would have been a much greater one. An occasional miscarrige of justice through an incompetent or corrupt jury is bad, but it is a small matter compared with the possible evils of a riot. The newspapers and reputable citizens who fanned the anger of the populace, instead of seeking to allay it, now, perhaps, realize their rashness. It ought not, however, to have needed a night's riot, bloodshed, and lawlessness to have convinced them that they had better by far have tolerated the shortcomings of a too lenient jury than to enlist, even in the best cause, the unreasonable fury of the mob.

Petit Journal says: numerous protests have been received from Portugal, Holland and the United States setting forth the danger and impropriety of intervention on the part of Great Britain in the matter of the Congo treaty, and that the French Ambassador in London has been instructed to make representations on the subject to the British Government.

The Law of the Christian Life.

BY WILBUR P. THIRKIELD, B.D.

I once saw a babe only a few days after it had opened its eyes on this strange world. How puny and helpless it was! Its form and features were not developed. Its powers were not unfolded. It gave no more promise of beauty and strength, than the bud does of the fragrant, beautiful flower. It was simply a little animated bundle of flesh; a pure little animal, with no show of life, or intelligence in its face. It was my privilege to see the same child a year afterward. What a change! There was a face beaming with light; eyes that seemed only the windows of a questioning soul behind them; cheeks, ruddy with the glow of health; form and features rounded out into strength, intelligence and beauty.

What brought about this change of the weak worm of humanity into the butterfly beauty of babyhood? It simply grew according to the law of its being. The law of its life, and the conservator of its life was growth; it grew by the use of means provided. Progress in spiritual life finds helpful analogies here.

Once born into the Christian life the law of that life is growth. This is the law of all life. So soon as a thing ceases to grow, it begins to die. This principle of life is a mystery. Scalpel, retort or microscope have never explained it. It is unseen. It is a mystery unsolved, whether in growth of the tree, the lily, or the child. Conversion itself is no greater mystery, than is this inner principle of life in the acorn or lily bulb that bursts forth into the bloom of outward life and beauty. "Marvel not that I say unto thee, thou must be born again."

Conversion is only the starting point in the divine life. We are then but babes in Christ, and we shall always remain weak and puny unless we grow in grace. The caterpiller bursts its shell and is ushered into a new world. You may then call it a butterfly. But what a butterfly! It has possibilities, but all its powers lie latent. If its wings do not grow, its legs develop, its powers untold, it must still cumber the ground and be little better than the worm. Growth alone will unfold the winged beauty that flies in its new world. So it is in conversion. We burst the chrysalis shell of our selfishness and sin, and are born into a new world. It is by growth that we realize the possibilities of the new life.

In order to grow in grace, we must use the "means of grace." That old phrase is a good one, it includes private family prayer, the reading of God's word, meditation, and worship. It is by attending to the "means of grace" that we shall be able to realize in our experience the truth of the old hymn.

> Grace taught my roving feet
> To tread the heavenly road,
> And new supplies each hour to meet
> While traveling home to God.

As the plant in the garden is fed and nourished by the showers and sunshine, and grows into bloom and fruitage, so the Christian heart must be nourished by the sunshine of God's presence and the dews of divine grace. There must be a constant use of means for growth in grace. The act of breathing that I performed yesterday will not suffice to keep me alive to-day. I must breathe every moment to supply the oxogen, that keeps up the fires within my system, else animal life ceases. So spiritual strength must be renewed.

The Psamist calls the Christian a tree, and what a fine analogy it gives us of growth. Let the sap cease to flow through the roots and trunk out into the branches and leaves; let the leaves, which serve as lungs, cease to drink in the forces of air and sunshine, then the tree begins to die. The leaves drop, then branches fall, one by one, until only a bare, rotting, sightless trunk is left to oumber the ground. How many bare and ugly trees we now find in the church, where growing Christians should stand like "trees planted by the river of waters, giving, forth there fruit in their season." Would you realize the beauty and and stateliness of Christian life, described by David, then grow in grace. Be content to grow slowly. The Scriptural method is, "Frst the blade, then the ear, and then the full grown corn in the ear." A mushroom or toadstool may spring up to the full in a day, but it is only a toad-stool still. The oak bursts through the earth slowly. Its growth is slow but strong, till it towers aloft, stengthened by the very blast that destroys the over grown plant.

Growth is conditioned on the surrounding atmosphere. This is true of the plant, the body and the soul. To a large extent we can control the atmosphere in which we live. In some wards in New York city the death rate is one in sixty-four, while in others it is one in twenty-three. In the former, the air is pure, the sunlight plenty, giving the lungs a pure atmosphere in which to work. In the latter, the ventilation is shut off; the air, breathed over and over, is heavy with impurities, and freighted with carbonic acid gas. Hence the lungs and bodies become diseased, because men breathe in death instead of life. It is so with the spirit of man. It chooses its own atmosphere, its company, its books, and papers, which bring either growth in grace or growth in evil. Sensational novels, Sunday newspapers and flashy fiction are poison to the soul and bring spiritual death.

Let your soul growth be measured by no human standard. Let perfection be the goal. Paul in old age, even after a life of growth, after a vision of Christ and an experience that was unspeakable, yet cried out: "I press forward to the mark for the prize." That mark is perfection, and that prize is heaven. There may be perfection in the growth of a tree or the rose, but there is no limit to the soul's capacity for growth. I believe in perfect love, in sanctification, but not in an experience that shuts off further growth. After a life of spiritual progress, there will still be experiences beyond and beyond. Even in heaven we shall grow. Let us heed the exhortation to grow; to grow downward in, knowledge of ourselves, in dependency and human-ity; to grow inward in purity, faith love, gentleness; to grow upward in victory over the world, in the fullness of God, in prayer and devotion; to grow outward in the fruits of the spirit, in sacrifice and work for God and humanity.

Circuit—College Study Outline

BY D. M. BIRMINGHAM, A. M.

Theology, or the doctrines concerning God, continued.

TRINITY.

I. 1. Anti-orthodox views patripassions, Sabellians, Arians. 2. Orthodox views; Apostolic fathers; Apostolic and Nicene Creeds; Creed of the Methodist Episcopal Church. 3. Show that the doctrine of the Trinity is not absurd or unintelligible. 4. How are the doctrines of the atonement, original sin, regeneration, justification, etc., affected by the denial of the Trinity?

II. Show by Scripture proofs. 1. The Trinity in unity. 2. The personality and divinity of the Father. 3. The humanity and pre-existence of Christ. 4. The divinity of Christ, by the titles ascribed to him (God, Son of God, Lord, Jehovah). 5. By the attributes ascribed to him (eternity, immutability, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience). 6. Works ascribed to Him. 7. Divine worship given to Him. 8. The personality and divinity of the Holy Spirit, by the qualities and acts and works ascribed to him.

III. Divine providence. 1. Proof from God's character and man's weakness. 2. From the Bible. 3. How different is its exercise in the natural and moral government of God? 4. Show from the Bible the nature and extent of general providence; God's special providence in regard to the good; His peculiar care for His people. 5. How does prayer affect divine providence?

IV. Show from the Bible: 1. The existence, condition and office of holy angels. 2. The existence, fall, state, employment, power and destiny of evil angels.

Note.—I would suggest a careful reading of the Bible, in course, with pen and note-book at hand; giving special attention to the several topics of this outline, and writing in the note-book the most prominent passages, as proofs of these various topics, each under its own heading.

Columbus Distrist.

MR. EDITOR.—I desire to let you know the winding up of the first round on the Columbus District. When you last heard from me I was on the eve of going to the Industry circuit to hold Bro. James Jarman's quarterly conference. Which place I was successful in reaching the 16-17 of Feb, held the quarter, had a nice time. Collection $4 55. From here I went to the Ellinger and Tolan work, where on the 23rd I met Bro. C. Chase and the brethren and held the quarter; had a splendid time. Collection at this place was $5.35. From this place I went to Columbus circuit, found Rev. P. Gates the pastor at his post; had his officers all notified and we enjoyed a pleasant session on March 1st; next day (the 2d) I preached to a crowded house. At three o'clock in the afternoon we enjoyed ourselves in a love feast meeting. The collection at this place resulted in the sum of $11.45. The 4-5 I was to hold Bro. Thomas Derven's quarter, but being informed by him that it was of no use going down there, I did not go. Bro. Derven is on the Egypt and Pin-oak circuit, which has only has six members, and one of those has been on the county for two years. He said that the people would not come to hear him preach, but he intended to keep on trying to do all he could. The 7-8 I was to hold Bro. J. Cæsar's quarter at what is know as the Wharton circuit, but the pastor and brethren failing to meet me, I did not get to hold it; however, in a day or two I got to see the pastor and had a talk with him. My next place was Caney. On my way there I had the pleasure of visiting the city of Houston and preached for Bro. W. H. Logan's congregation in the beautiful new Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church. I was also nicely entertained all night by Bro. Logan and wife. Next morning (the 15th) I left Houston on the Columbia train, arrived at Columbia at 6 o'clock that evening; where I met Bro. Baldridge's son awaiting my arrival with a horse. Having about 18 miles to ride, we concluded to go but 10 that night. Next day (the 16th) I met the pastor and brethren and held the quarter, and had a real nice time. I was very well pleased with the work at Caney. The collection at this place was $7.15.

Mr. Editor this closes the first round on the Columbus District. I found all the preachers at their work, some doing well, and some I cannot tell how they live and get along at all. I think we will succeed in building one or two church houses this year on this district, and make same very necessary repairs. At Columbus we want to repair the church, or do something to help the looks; this can be done by repainting it and putting a cupola on it. We need better houses all over the district. There is not a more needy field for Church Extension work than the Columbus district. Schools are tolerably good on the district, would be better if there were sufficient houses. We ought to have a fine two story school house building in the city of Columbus, and I think we will have it. Some of the friends are talking very strong about it. We have some very good and able people in the city of Columbus, and can do any thing they want to do. More next time.

The Way the Battle Goes at St. Paul.

DEAR EDITOR—We made a rally on the second Sunday in March to raise money to pay off the indebtedness of our new building. On that day we called in the envelopes which had been previously put out. I asked the people for $200. When I did so of course there was the usual grunt in the congregation. You know how it sounds. It is generally made by some one who intends giving very little, or nothing at all. However, I thank God we raised it, and no one was hurt. When on last Sunday night I made the announcement that we had taken in all $202.35, the people rose and sang, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow," and we went home rejoicing.

And this is not all. God has graciously poured out his spirit in our midst. The church has been revived, sinners have been converted and backsliders reclaimed. We have had over forty conversions and about fifteen backsliders to return. Quite a number of the Sunday-school teachers and scholars have been converted. The good work still goes on. Pray for us.

Yours, in Christ,

I. B. SCOTT.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

R. Hays, Shubuta: "The people received me kindly. Have taken [illegible] into the church by letter and 1 on probation. At quarterly conference gave Elder Campbell $4.30. The estimate for pastor was $300; for elder $34; for bishop $1.50; benevolent purposes $22; house rent $[illegible] per month. We are building a new church and want to get into it soon."

C. K. Newman, Jones Bayou: "I arrived at my appointment Feb. 16 and found my people without a church. The brothers were lamenting over the lost church. I found [illegible] members. I went to work to raise money to build a new church, and up to this date have collected [illegible]. We propose to build a new church 38x42; to cost about $1,600 when completed; $185 collected, and on subscription list; we will complete the new edifice by the 4th Sunday next."

TENNESSEE.

T. T. Henry, Kingston: "By reason of the extraordinary cold and lasting winter we shall have cause to work a little faster than usual to stand in the front rank at the next conference sitting. The Lord has blessed us with some conversions and a number of accessions since conference."

TEXAS.

S. Pleasant, Austin: "It was reported this appointment has 59 members. If they are here I can not find them. The people are poor. I bought a horse when I came, and could not have corn to feed it. I loaned it to a brother, and it was soon reported dead. I then went to preach afoot. Some of the brethren are dead in the church; There is a good Sunday-school, with a good lady teacher from the day school who assists. I have a local preacher on the work who is a great help to me."

Lemole Edwards, Leona: "I entered my work Dec. 28, 1883, and was cordially received by the people. There are three appointments on the work, with two churches belonging to us, and one union house belonging to us and the Missionary Baptists. We went to work, and with the assistance of the Lord, we have purchased 3,600 feet of lumber, and most of it is on the ground to build a church 20x38, which we expect to have completed by the second quarter. Our new presiding elder, Rev. G. W. Smith, held his first quarter, March 8th and 9th, and we had glorious time. Also appointed a committee for raising funds to build a church at Two Mile. The following are the committee: Frank Hutton, Geo. Langham, Chas. McDaniel, John Holly, C. Lust, J. Hopkins and A. Harris. Collections for presiding elder $7.25; pastor [illegible]; for delegates to general conference $1; preachers salary estimated $300. The elder preached a fine sermon on Sunday night and administered sacrament to 84. We have a Sunday-school in prosperous condition, and a school taught by myself. Pray for us."

LOUISIANA.

[illegible] of our preachers reports a [illegible] from an interior town a few days ago. The daughter of a man lost an infant child. He went to a Catholic priest who [illegible] but notwithstanding the suffering condition of the woman he turned his back and left her. His heart could not reach such a case. The old man went to dig a grave for the child, and after he had worked two hours preparing for the burial of his grandchild, news came to him of the death of his daughter. The Roman Church could not administer to her. The old man called on the Mayor, who could do nothing as she had relatives, but gave him a dollar personally to help. The old man went to a place where liquor was sold and drank away the dollar. Some good people made a coffin to represent a coffin and carried the woman and her child to the grave. There were no mourners; a colored man and boy took the coffin from the hearse and covered it in the grave. Not a word was heard, no hymn was sung, not a word of prayer. The pastor who writes says, "I think the Mohammedans would have done more."

Alexandria—Its Prospects, Etc.

BY REV. J. F. MARSHALL.

This is the nearest town of importance to the geographical centre of the State. It is handsomely situated on Red River, ("old Red", as it is sometimes called by the inhabitants of those parts,) at the the mouth of Bayou Rapides, which takes a north-westerly course from here. Its central locality gives it many advantages over other towns. Some have advocated it as the proper place for the State capital. But the style of the place (inhabitants not over 3,000), which I think indicates the number and strength of its advocates, is the main cause of its giving way under the more powerful claims and numerous advocates of the present capital. However, it is destined to be one of Louisiana's best towns. It already enjoys the presence of two railroads the Texas and Pacific railroad which connects New Orleans with San Francisco, the Morgan's La., and Texas railroad which has its local terminus here, and still another to come, the Natchez, Red River and Texas railroad, which has about ten miles completed in this direction from Vidalia, La. If ever completed, this will be of more material interest to this section than either of the present roads, and will make this a railroad centre, second only to New-Orleans in the State. Besides this, there are two lines of steam-boats, the Red River and Coast line and an independent line, which constantly ply the waters between New Orleans and Shreveport. So it is seen that there is no lack of facilities for transportation, or communication with the outside world. This town affords three newspapers, one daily, one tri-weekly, and one weekly. The adjacent country is all that can be wished in an agricultural point of view. King cotton (?) is the main staple produce, and in this, is the people's mistake; they depend almost entirely upon cotten which is an uncertain product, it failing all fails. There is at present a temporary business depression, caused by the shortness of last year's crop. But there is still another greater evil, which if not removed will blast the glowing prospects of this beautiful section of the "Sunny South!" i. e. the land monopoly. Until those who own the lands will conclude to divide up their large uncultivated estates, and give the poor and willing laborers of all races an opportunity to purchase and pay on easy terms for these idle lands, there never can be a proper development of the resources with which this section is blessed by nature; and hence the retarding of the prosperity that would naturally occrue there from to all classes. So it is hoped that these lords will proffit by experience and submit to the inevitable. More could be said on this score touching the taxes, they are required to pay, but do they pay them, or do these estates simply change at tax sales from the hands of one monopoly to another? The Police jury has imposed a high license of $300 on all vendors of intoxicating beverage by the drink, throughout the parish. The motives of the gentlemen who passed this ordinance will not be impugned, but it certainly fails of its orginal purpose, for instead of checking the sale of liquor it only puts the business in the hands of the richer merchants and more "respectable" houses. And now I am pleased to tell of the visit of a stannch and able friend and advocate of temperance, in the person of one of the fair sex, Miss Henrietta G. Moore of the State of Ohio, who came a short time since, representing the Woman's National Christian Temperance Union. Her lecture was worthy of the speaker, By her irresitible logic array of figures and almost faultless rhetoric, she seemed to convince even the most skeptical that prohibition was right and sure to triumph. Our church here is looking up and keeps abreast of the times. The people like the SOUTHWESTERN, and as in the past will continue to support it, because it supports them. It has certainly become an indispensable member of the great family of our church advocats.

The History and Results of the Separation of Our Work in Arkansas.

In 1878 among the preachers, the division of the conference and work was talked up, the plan was agreed upon. Conference came on and the prechers commenced to come in, and when certain ones were in, certain colored brethren were sent for, by certian white brethren. A plan of separation was laied before them, and they agreed to go on the committee. The first I knew of the matter was when one (whom I think as far from Christ, as it is from the East to the West) made a motion that certain brethren (six in number) be constituted a committee to draw up a plan of dividing the conference. They were appointed and sent out to do their work. A plan was soon agreed upon, and they returned with the dirty thing. The plan was to divide the coference on a strictly color line basis. This plan was voted down, which was Christ like. Some of the white brethren were so determined to have a division of the work, and to get rid of us colored brethren, that they held another constitution, and agreed that they would not admit a single colored man into the conference on trial, and if a plan of separation was not agreed upon, that they would locate every colored man in the conference. At that time there were only six colored men in full connection in the conference. We had ten or twelve at the door of the conference for admission, and there were about six on trial. There we were, about 22 or 24 of us were at an awful crisis. We were threatened vengenance if we did not agree to do a thing which our consciences were not free to do. Just think of 22 or 24 men who, no doubt, were called of God to preach the holy Gospel of Christ, being threatened to be kept out and turned out of a Methodist conference of holy ministers called and sent of God to preach against sin, and not to commit such sins as was committed in that act. As bad and wicked as it was, it was the case. To save ourselves, and for the sake of the fifteen hundred members we represent, we consented to divide on what we under stood to be a geographical line but was just the same as the first plan proposed, when the final end was reached. The color line was fully established in Arkansas. The colored membership was forced out from among the whites, to do as the old maxum say, "root pig or die." It was a sad day, with many of the colored brethren, but with the whites it was the day in which they heaped up wrath against the day of wrath. The rosults of this division. There has been a wall built between the white and colored work in this State, whose length is too great to be gone around, and whose hight cannot be surmounted. This wall is a wall of distinction. There is no more oneness existing between the Arkansas and Little Rock Conference, than there ought to exist between two conferences of different denominations. This wall is a wall of difference. These conferences do not appear to be of the same church, but of different denominations. These things have gone on so long, until I feel, when I meet one of the brethren of the Arkansas conference like I had met with one of the preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. I would receive just as much, if not more fraternal greeting from one of them who knew me as I would from one of the preachers of the Arkansas conference, with three or four exceptions, and they are transferes. The division has not done a particle of good, but has done a great deal of harm. Why was all of this? Why to satisfy the lusts of the flesh, and not to fulfill the law of Christ. There is no Christ in it, nor can be. Christ never knew any thing about it, and knows but little, if any thing about it now, only as he knows it to be an awful sin which was willfully committed. Therefore if Christ knows nothing of this matter only to be wrong, he knows as little of those who forced it on.

What is in a Name?

BY REV. L. M. HAGOOD.

Very much indeed, by some, is attributed to a name. Public sentiment in the South among members of our churches, has demanded separate conferences and schools. The outgrowth of separate conferences for colored and white members will, I doubt not, be to the church as the letting out of water, starting a steam car by an inexperienced man, if it does not prove to be the taking of a dog by the ears. As a result of this separation the oncoming time of public sentiment now demands the change of name for the Freedmen's Aid Society, a colored Bishop, and separate schools for children belonging to the same church but of different colors. The reports of this society are said to be more favorable since the change at the last General Conference, but it would be more satisfactory if we could see the balance sheet, so all would know whether there was a decrease of Northern and an extra increase of Southern effort on account of the seeming course affairs of this Society are taking. The action of the Mississippi Conference as to change of name to many is a prodigy, unless it be laid to the charge of Rust University, from the fact that no conference, save it and the Texas Conference, have expressed a desire for change of name. Just how this is many can not understand. Will some one explain? This has all arisen, some think, from the fact that many of the white members of our church in the South are moved by public sentiment, and in too many cases, on this subject, are governed by policy rather than the "Sermon on the Mount." Public sentiment in the South curls the lip, tosses the head, and petulantly stamps the foot, and declares that no effort made, money appropriated or laborers sent among them will be accepted from the M. E. Church unless they say how and have it their own way. Our church has a right, and ought to remain working for colored and white only where the New Testament idea of Christianity can be promulgated. One Sabbath day's service in a year, with a New Testament sermon against caste prejudice from each white preacher of our Church in the South, would settle the question in a short time to the honor of the church and the glory of God. As it is they now say they will gladly accept aid, and they will have fewer crosses to bear if the Freedmen's Aid Society's name be changed. It may be true that Northern preachers in the South are an insult to the people, for Bishop Pierce says so. But is it true that our white preachers here must compromise with error at the expense of truth and right, leave behind them, and out of their sermons the New Testament doctrine of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man? remove far from them, as they cross Mason and Dixon's line, the last vestige of the underlying principles of our church's success elsewhere than in the South? Such change of name will, indeed, as one high in authority is reported as saying, "let the many colleges of our church in the South die and focalize the work at some central point into a grand university;" such, I presume, as we are to have at Little Rock and Chattanooga, where any one of God's children can go, if not colored. This idea is working well already, for some of our best institutions already feel it, and the church will soon, if it continues, have a cemetery specially for schools and colleges in the South, and our enemies will follow each corpse to its last resting-place crying victory! For one I do not believe our church made a mistake in the planting of her institutions of learning here in the South. If the name of this society is changed then revolutions do go backward. Why change it if not at the bidding of corrupt public sentiment, that cheers because the grounds for a university where colored students are not to be admitted have been purchased? Will it not show more plainly and increase class legislation? Our Congregationalist brethren had this same question before them as to whether any color line should be drawn, and they said no. Shall we say less? If the change of this name will not hinder the progress of our work in the South among colored and white then nothing will. All who are acquainted with our work here in the South feel a timidity just here, and many declare openly that it will be a miserable concession to caste prejudice unworthy its projectors, and destined not only to diminish its resources but decrease in a measure its usefulness and influence among all who will not bow down and worship a corrupt public sentiment. It means more, probably, than it seams to mean, and the brethren of the Mississippi Conference will find it so when, at the General Conference, a clear definition is given as a "Northerner" of Texas. The place of birth with matters of this kind cuts more of a figure than the birth-place of men. Let all be educated, but no compromise of principle to do it. I once heard a story of a dog crossing a bridge with a pretty good bone in his mouth, but seeing, as he supposed, a dog below him with a better bone in his mouth, dropped the one he had to capture the other dog and bone, and so lost both. Illustrations of this kind are beneficial even at this enlightened day, and therefore let us in this matter make haste slowly.

Methodist Heroism.

In these days of multiplied comforts, the tendency is to slide into a self-indulgent and easy-going mode of life. And to break the enchanting charm of this tendency, we should revert occasionally to the heroic age of Methodism—Go back and read the times when Asbury was the leading spirit of the little army of itinerants who sounded the gospel trumpet up and down through the land, following close on the track of the daring frontiermen. His heroism, a loadstone to steel, attracted brave hearts around him. He did not sit in an easy rocking chair in some Episcopal palace, and say, "Go," but leading the way in the thickest of the fight, said, "Come on, follow me." These men carried their lives in their hands, and did it cheerfully because they carried death-defying grace in their hearts. A Methodist historian says: "They were continually in peril of their lives, from cold and exposure, from breaking their necks on mountain precipices, from drowning in rivers which had no bridges, from being transfixed by the arrow of some skulking Indian, or dying in the hands of mobs of semi-barbarons white men who had a constitutional hatred of all ministers, more especially these; but with a courage which amounted to exultation, they kept steadily at work, gladdened by the wonderful success of the Word which they preached, and conscious that the eye of their heroic Bishop was watching, and his great soul planning their campaigns, and that his toils and suffering were often greater than their own."

Here is a Bishop on a salary of $60 a year, who often found no bed but the ground, no roof but the sky. Under such circumstances, he ties his horse to a tree, spreads his blanket, by prayer commits himself to the care of the sleepless, Eternal God, lies down to dream on his saddle-bags of the best plans of promoting the growing empire of his Redeemer. Oh, if the great army of the Methodists had such a heroic spirit now, what brilliant conquests would be constantly made!

The "Holy Club" of Oxford.

BY REV. J. M. FREEMAN, D. D.

In this centennial year of the history of our Church, it may be well to note the beginning of that wonderful revival which swept through England, crossed the Atlantic, and, after the lapse of years, resulted in the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church. There is a special propriety in doing this in a Sunday-school periodical designed "for teachers and young people," inasmuch as the founders of Methodism were young men, and, like the ancient Bereans, they "received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily."

Oxford has great attractions for the tourist because of the natural beauty of its situation, its magnificent piles of architecture, its renowned schools of learning, its libraries of rare and valuable books, and the great names connected with its history. But especially has it marked attraction for the Methodist traveler. It is the Antioch of Methodism, for here the godly band of young men who studied the word of God, and sought to regulate their lives by its teachings, were first called Methodists. As the wits of Antioch gave the name "Christian," as a term of contempt, so the wits of Oxford conferred the title "Methodist," to ridicule the methodic manner in which these young men sought to pass their daily life. They also called them "Enthusiasts," "Reforming Club," "Supererogation Men," "Sacramentarians," "Bible Bigots," "Bible Moths," "The Godly Club," and "The Holy Club."

But who were the men thus reviled, and what were the practices which raised this storm of reproach? The men were but few in number. We cannot ascertain that at any one time during the six years of their history in Oxford they numbered over twenty-five or thirty, and very often a half score or even less would have represented them all. They were fellows and students of different colleges connected with the great University. Without neglecting their scholastic duties, they spent two hours a day in private prayer; they visited the poor, the sick, and the prisoners; they gave freely of what little they had to help the needy; they received the Lord's Supper once a week; they sought to induce the ungodly to attend religious services, and to lead a religious life; they met every night to confer abut their work, and to study their Bible, especially the Greek Testament. Their methods and aims resembled those of the "Religious Societies," begun by Dr. Horneck, in London, fifty years before.

The central figure in this little group of young men, or the "Curator of the Holy Club," as the wits nicknamed him, was John Wesley. For fifteen years of his early life he was associated with Oxford; first as a student in Christ Church, and, after graduation there, as a fellow in Lincoln College. He was elected to this fellowship when only twenty-three years old. He was a slender young man, short of stature, with pale face and long hair. With health by no means robust, he had an iron will, an unflinching courage, and a determination to make the most of his time. Thus, when entering upon the duties of his fellowship, he said, "Leisure and I have taken leave of one another." But, better still, when he found himself separated from some of his frivolous friends of Christ Church, he determined to change the course of his religious life, and "resolved to have no acquaintance by chance, but by choice." Such a man was fit a leader for the "Holy Club."

Yet not to him, but to his brother Charles, five years his junior, belongs the credit of originating the little band. It was while John was absent in Epworth and Wroote, as his father's curate, in 1729, that Charles, then only twenty-one years old, proposed the plan to two of his fellow-students, Morgan, of Christ Church, and Kirkham, of Merton; so that, when John returned to Oxford in November of that year, he found the three already engaged in their godly work. He immediately joined them, and naturally gravitated to his place as leader.

The leadership he retained until he left Oxford for Georgia in 1735. After this the organization gradually dwindled, but its influence remained, for its members, scattered as they were, carried the sacred fire with them, though some of them in after years lost all interest in the cause. Among those who afterward became noted we may mention Broughton, Hervey, Clayton, Gambold, and Ingham. One of the last to join was the most wonderful preacher of them all, George Whitefield. His zeal never flagged, and the precious influences of his Oxford college days continued with him to the last. We must not fail to allude, in passing, to the help which the band received from the advice and counsel of the venerable father of the Wesleys, and of their clear-headed, godly mother.

In their meetings for study and for prayer God was preparing these young men to awaken a slumbering Church, and to arouse a skeptical and depraved nation. True, some of their doctrines and some of their practices were not of a character which we can now commend; of their erroneous tendencies no one was more fully convinced than John Wesley himself in after years. But the fact yet remains that this noble band were seeking after a better life, sometimes groping in the dark, it is true, yet always seeking, and ever looking to the word of God for light, and to the Spirit of God for power. And, as the years sped on, the light and the power came, until all England was stirred and quickened with a revival such as had not been witnessed since apostolic times.

It must not be forgotten that this revival began in a literary institution, and among literary men. These men were diligent students of their college text-books, but, most of all, they prized "the wisdom that is from above." As Methodists, we should be unmindful of our origin were we to fail rightly to appreciate the value of education, or the importance of revivals of religion in our schools of learning. The history of the Methodist Episcopal Church shows that the spirit of sound learning has been fostered among us, until we have now connected with our church nearly one hundred and fifty schools of various grades. In all these schools the religious element largely prevails, and revivals are of frequent occurrence, showing that the original Oxford fire continues to burn in the hearts of the young Methodists of the present generation.

The Methodist visitor to Oxford still gazes with interest on the massive walls and stately towers of the college of Christ Church, with its grand hall and broad staircase and richly carved ceiling; its varied apartments and vast quadrangles. He sees the wide-spread meadow stretching in the distance like a carpet of green velvet, and reaching to the river; and the famous "Broad Walk" inviting him to a ramble under the friendly shade of its stately trees. He listens to the chimes of the college bells, and hears the celebrated "Great Tom" strike the hours. As he looks and listens he is thrown back to the time when the youthful Wesleys and others of the Oxford Methodists trod these halls and paced these walks. A ten minutes' walk to the north of Christ Church brings him to the narrow Turl Street, where, on the corner of Brazenose Lane, he finds Lincoln College, and his interest is immediately heightened. Here is the chapel, small, yet beautiful, rich in cedar-carving and rare old stained glass windows, and here the pulpit where the young tutor, whose name had since become [illegible] stood and preached. You cross the quadrangle [illegible] to what is [illegible] Chapel and [illegible] you are in "Wesley's room," as it is still called. Changed it must be in appearance since he left it in 1735, yet in size and form the same. It is about fifteen feet square, well lighted, and pleasant. Here the "Holy Club" often met, and talked and planned and prayed. How many supplications have gone up to Heaven from this room and from the diminutive, cell-like bedroom adjoining! The college wits of that day little thought that there were among those whom they ridiculed men who should shake the world; but God knew, and the world yet throbs with the mighty pulsations of their apostolic labors and their godly lives.

The lesson our Sunday-school teachers may learn from Oxford, to practice in this centenary year, is threefold: Study the word of God; be faithful in labors; be instant in prayer.—Sunday-School Journal for May.

Returned with Interest.

In 1874 Kansas was devastated by grasshoppers, and the whole state suffered almost to starvation; especially did the remote settlements feel the blight. Had it not been for the generosity of the people in older states, Kansas would have been almost depopulated; but their prompt aid saved us. At that time some of us said, in our efforts to create a temperance sentiment, that the people had been destroying the grain by distillation and our citizens by rum, God sent the grasshoppers to eat up our corn as a lesson; now we have prohibition and floods of corn, and neither authorized saloon-keepers nor grasshoppers.

Kansas sends a whole train loaded with corn to the flooded districts of Ohio. The grandest thing we ever beheld was that train, on which was these mottoes, "Cast thy bread upon the waters for thou shalt find it after many days;" and "Kansas clouded with grasshoppers in 1874 and flooded with corn in 1884." "Charity given by Ohio in 1874 to Kansas, returned with interest in 1884," This is one of the grand outbursts of that charity which is the outgrowth of our holy religion. Let infidels scoff, we will go on doing good and run the risk of the results in eternity.—Kansas Methodist.

"I Did Steal That Sheep."

A writer in the Baptist Weekly retells this old story of the practical shrewdness of an old minister named Amasa Brown;

"A member of the church charged another with stealing a sheep. The culprit denied the charge. Both were men of influence. The church was divided. A council was called and Mr. Brown was there. There were no witnesses, except as to character. It was the word of one man against the word of another man. One was a slanderer, or the other was a thief. Elder Brown suggested a most extraordinary measure to elicit the facts in the case. He called the two men to the rostrum, before the pulpit, and directed the man who made the charge to engage in prayer—and requested the audience and council to look at his face while he was praying. He made an earnest prayer. He appealed to the Lord, as one who knew the charge was true. Then the other was called on to follow. He made a regular prayer for the church, the pastor, etc., and said: "As touching this matter of the sheep, O Lord—a-hum; as to touching—touching this—ah"—when he sprang to his feet, and exclaimed, 'Brethren, I cannot pray. I did steal that sheep!' So the matter was settled."

In the Salem (Mass.) Normal School there is a class of girls learning carpentry. Last year a graduate of Vassar reshingled her father's house and built a porch, just for the fun of it.

When others are suffering, drop a word of kindness and sympathy. If they are suffering from a Cold, give them Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. A few doses of this valuable remedy will afford instant relief, and a twenty-five cent bottle will cure the worst Cough.

True Hospitality.

I pray you, O my excellent wife, cumber not yourself and me to get a curiously rich dinner for this man and woman who have just alighted at our gate, nor a bed-chamber made ready at too great cost; these things, if they are curious in them, they can get for a few shillings in any village inn; but rather let that stranger see, if he will, in your looks, accents and behavior, your heart and earnestness, your thought and will, that which he can not buy at any price in any city, and which he may travel twenty miles, and dine sparely and sleep hardly to behold. Let no emphasis of hospitality lie in bed and board; but let the truth and love and honor and courtesy flow in all thy deeds.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Temperance in New York

The following bill has passed both houses of the New York Legislature;

The people of the state of New York, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows;

Sec. 1. Provision shall be made by the proper local school authorities for instructing all pupils, in all schools supported by public money or under state control, in physiology and hygiene, with special reference to the effects of alcoholic drinks, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system.

Sec. 2. No certificate shall be granted any person to teach in the public schools of the state of New York after January 1, 1885, who has not passed a satisfactory examination in physiology and hygiene with special reference to the effects of alcoholic drinks, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system.

Stop Him.

Stop whom! Why, that boy with a quid of tobacco in his mouth, a cigar between his teeth, a profane word upon his lips, a care-for-nothingness in his manner. Stop him! He is going too fast; he does not know his speed. Stop him before tobacco shatters his nerves; before pride ruins his character; before the loafer masters the man; before ambition and youthful strength give way to low pursuits and brutish aims. Stop all such boys! They are not to be classed among "our boys."

If Thaddeus Stevens were the leader in Congress to-day he would say to that body, 'Though there were a duty of 10,000 per cent on every article which an American artisan is producing in competition with a foreign artisan, yet would I die in my tracks rather than vote to reduce that duty by one per cent; for by such a vote I would admit that a protective duty can be a burden, whereas no really protective tariff can by any possibility be a burden. It can only enhance the price, while it is promoting a production which otherwise could not be conducted in this country at all; and the American people make a steady profit, and not a loss, in promoting every branch of production which increases, as the iron and steel industry so largely does, the aggregate earnings and productions of the whole people. To do this is less a burden than free schools are a burden from which to relieve tax-payers"—Inter Ocean.

"As when the sun approaches toward the gates of the morning, he first opens a little eye of heaven, and sends away the spirits of darkness, and gives light to a cock, and calls up the lark to matins, and, by-and-by, gilds the fringes of a clond, and peeps over the eastern hills, thrusting out his golden horns like those which decked the brow of Moses, when he was forced to wear a veil, because himself had seen the face of God, and still, while a man tells the story, the sun gets up higher, till he shows a fair face and a full light, and then he shines one whole day, under a cloud often, and sometimes weeping great and little showers, even so is a man's reason and his life."

Young Folk's Corner

WE ARE COMING—A BAND OF HOPE.

BY MRS. ALEXANDER COOPER.

We are coming, we are coming,
An army bright and strong;
We are coming, we are coming,
To help the cause along.
Our hearts are young and hopeful,
Our motives pure and true,
So, men and women, if you wish,
We'll march along with you.

Chorus—We'll march along with you,
We'll march along with you,
So, men and women, if you wish
We'll march along with you.

We are coming, we are coming,
Like David, long ago,
We are coming, we are coming,
To lay the giant low,
For when we cast our ballots,
He'll surely lose his head,
And on our banners we will write,
That wicked king is dead!
Chorus

We are coming; yes, we're coming,
An army bright and strong;
We are coming; yes, we're coming,
To help the cause along.
We're proud to show our colors,
The red, the white, the ble,
So men and women, if you wish,
We'll march along with you.
Chorus.

A Boy Emperor

American boys would probably prefer the freedom they enjoy to living in the following fashion: The Chinese emperor is a lad thirteen years of age. He lives in a state of semi-seclusion in the palace of Jan Chien-Tien, where he is waited on by a staff of picked retainers, who never approach him otherwise than on their knees. His mother visits him once a month, and she kneels while ntter ing her first sentence. Considering the extraordinary respect in which parents are held in China, no more complete recognition of the transcendent character of the imperial dignity can be imagined. His father goes through exactly the same ceremonial. The emperor devotes two hours and a half daily to the study of Chinese and the same time to Manchu. Needless to say, the professors approach him on their knees; but, to mark the respect to letters which Chinese traditions exact even from the emperor, he invites, or rather commands, them to rise when the lesson begins. He passes two hours each day in riding and in archery, and in winter he takes sledging exercise. Eight eunuchs wait upon him at table, and have orders to prevent his partaking too freely of any of his favorite dishes, as boys even though they be emperors, will sometimes do. He sleeps in a magnificent Ningpo bed, the frame of which is of massive gold and ivory, and which belonged to his distinguished ancestors, N'ang-Hsi and Ch'ien Lung—St. James Gazette.

You never will be happy until you realize that you have no responsibilies outside of your own sphere of duty. Let others trouble themselves over the injustice of nature in giving Jupiter seven moons and the earth but one. You may thank God that you have nothing to do with the moons of Jupiter; but that you have your own work, and that you may leave to Him the ordering of the rest of the universe.—S. S. Times.

"I will give you my head." exclaimed a person, to the famous philosoher Montesquien, "if every word of the story I have related be not true." "I accept your offer," said Montesquien; "presents of small value strengthen the bonds of friendship and should never be refused."

Never attempt to do anything that is not right. Just as sure as you do, you will get into trouble. If you even suspect that anything is wrong, do not do it till you are sure your suspicions are groundless.

Paul did not stop preaching because all his converts did not hold out. Many of the converts, even of Jesus, went back, "and walked no more with Him." If a man tumbles into the river, are we to refuse to rescue him because he might fall in again?

The power of choosing right or wrong makes man a moral agent; his actually choosing wrong makes him a sinner.—Lyman Beecher.

Facts and Reasons.

Effects Produced by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and by Nothing Else so Perfectly.

It strengthens and invigorates sufferers from enervation, languor, weakness, and mental depression.

It has an almost magical effect in curing eruptive and cutaneous disorders.

It eradicates from the blood the taint of that terribly destructive disease, Hereditary Scrofula.

It expels from the system the baneful poison of Mercury, which is as serious as that of Scrofula.

It purifies and regenerates the life current polluted by the corruption of contagious disease.

It stimulates the secretory organs, effects the removal of all impurities from the blood and makes it new, rich, and pure.

It restores health to sufferers from thin blood and impaired vitality.

It saves, by its thorough purification of the blood, from Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and Tubercular Consumption.

It cures Scrofulous affections of the Liver and Kidneys, and their symptoms, Jaundice and Dropsy.

It cures Scrofulous Catarrh, Itching Humors, and the purulent Sores caused by Scrofula.

It clears and improves the complexion.

It neutralizes the poisons left in the system by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, and restores the debilitated patient to perfect health and vigor.

It is, in short, an unfailing remedy for all disorders arising from impurity of the blood, where such disorders have not become so deeply seated as to be beyond all human aid.

Advantages that AYER'S SARSAPARILLA Possesses over all Others.

It is composed of the most efficacious alterative, diuretic, and tonic drugs known in pharmacy, among which are the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Stillingia, and the Iodides of Potassium and Iron.

It is a highly concentrated medicine, scientifically and honestly compounded so as to secure to it the highest degree of activity and perfect uniformity.

It has received the hearty endorsement of the leading men in the medical profession, who recognize it as a standard pharmaceutical preparation, and prescribe it in their practice.

It contains no poisonous minerals or other dangerous drugs, the use of which for temporary effect in the many crude and cheap mixtures sold as alteratives, produces effects on the system often worse than the diseases they are offered to cure.

It costs no more than any other, but would still be the cheapest blood-purifying medicine in the world, even were its price three times greater, since it is the only one that does "real, lasting good."

We have reason to believe that the number contributing from genuine religious motives to the benevolent agencies of Zion is much greater than at any former period. We are coming to rely less upon "uncertain jets of sensibility" in our methods of raising money, and more upon the enlightened individual conscience. Ministers generally are seeking to inculcate the primary elements of Christian giving, namely, as unto the Lord; with uniformity; according to ability; with faith in the final triumph of Christ's kingdom; and with breadth of charity for all the world, like unto that of the Master, who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

Writes a correspondent of the Nashville Advocate on tobacco:

Four years ago to-day I ceased its use, and I have no language to describe the beneficial results. In ten months I gained forty pounds of solid flesh, which I have been able to retain ever since; and at this writing I am one of the stoutest of men. My voice, sight, hearing, and memory have improved, and I feel well-nigh recovered from all the sad effects of this terrible habit. I feel that I have regained my manhood, and am able to reassert my self-control. God be thanked for all these benefits!

Whatever tolerance is given to tobacco-using ministers already in the Methodist Church, the fragrance of the new preachers in that denomination is to be of a very different sort. And this certainty of cleanliness with godliness, so far, seems to have popular approval, as indicated in the hearty applause of the audience and delegates at the recent session of the Philadelphia Conference, when the candidates for the ministry responded with "I will," to Bishop Warren's question, "Will you abstain from the use of tobacco in every form.—S. S. Times.

Rev. Dawson Burns of the United Kingdom Temperance Alliance gives to America the credit of the first temperance organization. This was the American temperance society, organized in Park street church, Boston, February 13, 1826. This he says, was where the modern temperance movement was born.

There never was a stricter temperance pledge than that of Solomon. We think it sufficent to say, "drink not;" but he said, "Look not on the wine." The color, the sparkle, the very sight of the intoxicating dranght is enough to awaken the appetite in some men, so that it becomes necessary for them to make a covenant even with their eyes.

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn., and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close connection. Saving several hundred miles many hours travel between the above points. It is in fact now the only direct route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily. Also through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, for emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is economized by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Comparatively few of the white people of this State (Louisiana) attend church, and but few of those who do attend church are men. A greater proportion of the colored people go to church than of the whites. A large proportion of the children of the state never, or seldom, hear the gospel preached. But few of the children attend Sabbath-school. The character of the next generation is being formed under Sabbath-breaking influences.

Senator Cameron, of Wisconsin, who is one of the committee investigating the elections in the South, says, "I believe the situation in the South, under the rising generation, is even worse, in many respects, than it was ten or twenty years ago. Before the war, the planters were rich—at least well-to-do—and they educated their children, sent them north and abroad, and the whites of that section were as a rule intelligent. Since the war they are poor, and those who have grown up to manhood since that time have not had the educational advantages given the generation which preceded them. The consequence is, I think, that the South is going off now, in that respect at a faster rate than it was. It follows, too, that where there is less political freedom; that the denser the ignorance of the voting classes, the more closely you draw the cord with which you bind their victims."

The House of Representatives, at Washington, D. C., last week, tendered Gen. Grant a very cordial and complimentary reception. It took a recess of fifteen minutes to allow the members and officers to pass before the speaker's stand in succession, and then shake the General's hand. Gen. Grant being somewhat lame from his fall last winter, stood in front of the speaker's stand, resting heavily on his crutches, with Mr. Randall on his right and Speaker Carlisle on his left, while the members and officers filed by and shook his hand. The enthusiasm over his reception is finely pictured by the effect upon Mr. Morse, of Massachusetts, who seemed to be in ecstasy over the occasion, and who shook with the General four times. Gen. Grant was looking well, although he leaned heavily on his crutches, and in this respect somewhat the appearance of an invalid. The grand old man lost none of his protige and we bless him with many years of active health and usefulness is our prayer, as it is of millions of Americans.

Men to Steer By.

It is said of Thomas Jefferson that once as he entered the hall of Congress a question was being taken, and not knowing much of the merits of the question itself, he asked, "How did Roger Sherman vote?" Mr. Sherman was from Connecticut, and was by trade a a shoemaker, but Mr. Jefferson thought it safe to follow him. The supreme need of the day is men that we can trust; men who, under no no circumstances will compromise. Christ likens his disciples to a city set on a hill. Looking from any direction the city on a hill can be seen, it is always there, always in one place. It is an object to take compass by, and by which the traveler may guide his steps. Looking at the "city on a hill," the dwellers in the valley know which way is north and which way is south. The traveler is never lost, he always knows which way to steer so long as he is in sight of the cities on a hill. Just so with men who have a conscience and are governed by Bible principle. They are on a hill, firm and well established. They do not seek to be conspicuous, and yet they are not ashamed if seen. It is always safe to steer by them, to vote as they vote. It was not possible for Mr. Jefferson to have bestowed a higher compliment upon that shoemaker. He was on a hill; it was safe to steer by him. It is not every conspicuous person who is a city on a hill; it involves this, but this is not all. The church has never suffered for the want of conspicuous men, and does not now, but the class by whom others could safely steer have not been half so numerous. James Buchanan and Abraham Lincoln were both conspicuous men in their day. One was the tool of corruption and oppression; the bare mention of his name awakens the fiery indignation of the moral sense of the nation. Lincoln was a city on a hill; great and grand, his light shines clearer each year. The nation felt it safe to steer by him. He had the material out of which martyrs are made. It hardly becomes those who are the light of the world to take on any of its dark and wicked ways. He who is right, and is doing right, need not stop to inquire who or what stands with him; better stand alone in the right, and die alone in the right than to make the least compromise. Daniel did his best service for wicked Babylon when he kept his windows open and prayed with his face towards Jernsalem. This world will never be converted to God by conformity to it, but it will be overwhelmingly impressed by men who have a Bible principle and a sound conscience. It is always safe to steer by them. They are the true thermometers that never mislead.

The Cincinnati Riot.

The increase of crime in Cincinnati, due to bad government, led to the incarceration of over 20 murderers in the jail. Only one had been sentenced to death after three trials, and three verdicts of guilty in the first degree. Recently a colored family was murdered in Avondale that the bodies might be sold for dissection. The details of crimes were paraded in the public prints, and when Wm. Berner, aged 18 years, was merely convicted of manslaughter to 20 years in the penitentiary, for murdering his employer for his money, public feeling was aroused to the highest pitch. The first indignation was aimed at the the jurymen, some of whom were assaulted and driven away. The leading attorney for the defense in this case and several similar ones, was generally denounced. Berner was sentenced, and taken from the court-room to the train for Columbus. The same (Friday) evening a meeting of substantial citizens met in Music Hall, denounced the verdict, the jurors and the sentence of Berner; and appointed a committee of fifty to consider what lawful measures were necessary for the better suppression of increasing laxity in the administration of criminal law. After adjourning the crowd in the street, numbering thousands filed out to the jail and county buildings, after the usual manner of mobs. They overpowered the sheriffs and deputies, and gained the cell floor, when they learned that Berner had been removed, and the other murderers were secure in their cells. Policemen arrived, and the mob retired before them. Militia assembled at their armory. The assault on the jail continued, the iron gate was broken, then followed a hand to hand fight between the police and the mob, 25 of whom were arrested and locked up. Militia re-inforced the police, the contest continued, the militia fired, the mob rifled a gun store; great crowds gathered. Six men and one woman had been killed and over 30 wounded. Along the railroad towns crowds were awaiting the train to lynch Berner; he escaped from custody, and was recaptured and safely lodged in the penitentiary on Saturday. The news, however did not reach Cincinnati until Sunday. On Saturday call was made upon Gov. Hoadley for troops and the Fourteenth Regiment, 450 men, with a Gatling gun, arrived and marched direct to the jail. The Fourth Regiment remained in the depot. At 10 o'clock Saturday night the crowd pressed upon the policemen, who fired two volleys of blank cartridges. Then shots began to fly in all directions. With sledgehammers the entrance of the court-house was effected, and the mob rolled in barrels of petroleum and set it on fire. The fire department could not respond until furnished with guards, and the building was totally consumed. The law library containing 20,000 volumes was consumed. Total loss about $1,000,000. The militia poured heavy volleys into the rioters, who robbed a gun store, and prepared to force an entrance, and five in succession were shot down in the windows. Sunday was a day of great excitement. The soldiers were on duty with fixed bayonets, and cannon and Gatling guns commanded the streets. The militia killed one man and wounded several who disregarded the lines. All the Ohio State militia were ordered to Cincinnati. The mayor issued his proclamation, called a committee of citizens to his aid, the superior force of soldiery and good counsel moderated the mob spirit; and on Monday steps were taken for the resumption of civil authority unaided by the military. In all it is estimated that 39 were killed and 122 wounded. The lessons of this outbreak should prove impressive to many other large cities beside Cincinnati. New Orleans may be preparing for an outburst of popular wrath, who can gainsay it?

What are Your Boys Reading.

We have time and again called the attention of our readers to the great importance of providing wholesome reading matter for their homes. The country is being flooded with trashy, sensational and dangerous reading matter; dime novels, police gazettes, obscene and pernicous story papers etc. Such works are being scattered broadcast over the land, producing evil fruits that are daily ripening, promising boys and birls in all the arts of the devil. From them thousands of boys are yearly graduating in burglary, robbery, murder, arson, debauchery, and in all the ways of sin and ruin. This evil is fraught with the most dire consequences to this nation. Next to the liquor traffic, no other agency is calculated to do greater damage in this country. The publication and sale of such books and papers, which are corrupting the morals of the youth of the land, should be prohibited by law in every State. In the absence or inoperation of such ligislation, parents should faithfully see to it that their children do not become contaminated by them. Teach them to shun such reading like deadly poison. But the task, however, is a useless one, unless, in place of theis dangerous literation, parents provide for their children healthy reading matter. If your boys can read, they will read. They will read whatever comes to hand. Let them once get their taste perverted, and the case becomes a hopeless one. It is equally the duty of parents to provide their children with wholesome reading matter, as to provide them with wholesome diet. Start in time, before the star of hope in your family be set to rise no more. The New-York World devotes a column and a half to briefly recounting the desperate deeds of youngsters in that city and vicinity in one week. It includes six highwaymen, seventy-one burglars, fifteen thieves, two murderers, one would be murderer, one bigamist (seventeen years old) and one forger, all under eighteen years of age and averaging about thirteen. All this in one city, in one week, the results of dime novels and other such works. And what is alarming, it is shown that the evil is increasing. The SOUTHWESTERN is solidly planted against all such deadly nightshades. It is devoted to the moral as well as general culture and information of its readers. Subscribe for it, and thereby admit an assistant in your task of cultivating your children and family in the admonition of the Lord, and the respect of good society.

Woman's Home Mission Work

We rejoice to see the growing interest among the women of our church in this needed and noble work. To-day we publish for general service the forms of the constitution and by-laws for auxiliaries. It is important that the object of the Society be correctly understood, and not confounded with other interests or enterprises, however commendable they may be. It is definitely stated in the by-laws for conference societies as follows: "While the object of the Woman's Home Missionary Society is to promote the cause of Christ in this country, and while it hopes to enlist every member in Christian effort, and thus to strengthen the church in our own land, its work is purely missionary. Hence membership dues and other moneys donated for missionary purposes can not be used for local needs." Local needs are to be supplied not by collections in church or Sunday-school, interfering with other church work, but by such special methods as may be approved by the vice-presidents and managers of the conference districts. The membership is to consist of ten or more women. Individuals, auxiliaries or conference societies may, subject to the approval of the Conference Board, and of the General Executive Board select special fields of labor, and provide for the support of the missionaries therein employed, and they may also educate beneficiaries selected by themselves. The missionary is required to be moved by an earnest desire for the advancement of Christ's kingdom, and a willingness to labor for it according to her ability. She must be in good health; furnish satisfactory testimonials of education; also of her ability to teach, and of her success if a teacher; possess some executive ability, and some experience in domestic economy enabling her to direct mothers and teachers to better home life.

While the work is officered by women, and aims through women to secure better home lives for thousands of ignorant and suffering women, it is the glorious privilege of editors, pastors and all zealous Christians to contribute to the treasury, and even to acquire an honorary membership.

Editorial Correspondence.

Going out of the Crescent City on the New Orleans and Northeastern Railway the traveler passes over twenty-one miles of spiling, making the longest continuous stretch in the United States. Never have I rode over a road with a smoother bed. My point of destination was Pearl River. I had been instructed to leave the cars at Slidell's Station, but learning there was a Pearl River station on the railroad I concluded to keep on till I reached that point. On arriving there I soon found that it was not the place I was in search of. It was situated on a point of land called Honey Island. Just why a name thus sweet and pleasant should be given to a place so uninviting I could not divine. All that I could see was the platform where the cars stopped, eight men, and a little way off four small dwellings in process of erection. Four of these men were the descendants of Ham and Japheth on the line of amalgamation. The work of blending these different races is going on. The Pearl River I was anxious to reach was ten or twelve miles distant, and must be reached. Taking me to be engaged in the United States mail service, one of the white men proposed to take me there for $2. I accepted his proposition, and in about three hours he was able to start. My driver was a native of Louisiana, and seemed to be a kind-hearted man; he knew all about the outer life of each man along the road; one was described as a strict Methodist, respected by all people; another as one who only had his name on the church book, he was a no account man; alas! there are by far too many of this class; another, he said, was a Baptist, drunk six days in the week. These were white men. The country through which we passed had a number of creeks, and their banks were full; they were mostly forded, however, without much difficulty. While crossing one, when in the middle of the stream and the water covering the bottom of the carriage, the horse came to a sudden halt, and by no amount of coaxing or driving could the animal be persuaded to move along. Turning to me the driver asked, "Are you a church member?" I answered, "Yes, I am a Methodist." "Oh, Jerusalem," he exclaimed, "I am not a Baptist, I do not like staying here. I suppose I must go in to the water but I do not want to go under," and suiting his action to his word he leaped into the water which was nearly up to his arms, going before the horse he was easily led, when he could not be driven. That horse was much like many human beings who can be led where and when they cannot be driven. Our churches need leaders; happy is that man who has grit and grace enough to go before a stalled church and lead it on and out of the slough upon a good, dry, hard path. How many of these creeks and bayous we forded I cannot say. Pearl River village was at last reached, and no Methodist itinerant could desire a more cordial welcome than was extended to the writer. I have said that my driver was a white man, his name was Porter, he is a cousin to Mr. Porter, the postmaster at at Pearl River, who is also superintendent of our Sunday-school, but he is a colored man. If it is the mind that makes the man the white Porter need not be ashamed of his colored cousins. There must be something essentially wrong in that state of society that throws upon the community so many children who have no lawful fathers. It requires not the gift of prophecy to foresee the day when such a state of civilization must pass away. In the meantime the mixing and blending of the races is going on. The creeks were so numerous and full that was it thought not wise to have a meeting in the evening. Sabbath was a perfect day; the whole external world seemed in excellent temper—no heat, no cold, no wind, a beautiful, smiling day. The congregation was good and attentive. The reports at the quarterly conference were full of promise. The Sunday-school growing from week to week. The sacramental service a season of refreshing. Monday was a day of rest. In company with brothers Hardy and Field I visited a turpentine orchard in which there is said to be over five hundred and fifty thousand boxes from which the gum of the trees is gathered, put into barrels, taken to the still and manufactured into turpentine, tar and rosin. Each tree has from one to three boxes. It is counted one man's work to take care of eleven thousand and fifty boxes. Nearly all of the people at Pearl River own their own homes, and those that we saw had every indication of comfort. At no place have we seen a more attentive and respectful congregation, who with willing hands and loving hearts are doing the best they can to provide for their pastor and make his ministry among them a success. God bless our Pearl River church and give it a year of prosperity.

Freedmen's Aid and Separate Schools.

DEAR EDITOR.—There appeared an article the 7th inst. in your noble paper from the pen of L. B. Caldwell of East Tennessee University, Athens, setting forth a strong desire to change name and policy of the Freedmen's Aid Society, and make it a General Educational Society for our entire work in the South. The only reason Bro. Caldwell gave for the change is to meet the emergency. What emergency? Caste prejudice, separate schools for members of the same church, means nothing else. A thing that I don't believe the General Conference will do, is to foster caste, when the principles of the church have always opposed prejudice on the color line. Bro. Caldwell thinks it a matter of impossibility to educate the two races together in the same schools. Why not? The colored members of the church are willing to attened schools in the same schools with Bro. C., and if his people will not attented the schools of the church, simply because colored people go, it shows at once that there is no reason but prejudice. I am satisfied to build separate schools, and to educate the two races from the funds raised by the Freedmen's Aid Society will only cause confusion, especially when one of the races is hostile to the other race. Bro. Caldwell seems to think if the coming General Conference fails to change the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society that the church will fail in the South. To change the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society is wrong. It is right to let the Freedmen's Aid Society retain its name. If we fail let us fail by doing right, rather than to do wrong and succeed. I visited towns last fall in the North where white and colored attended the schools, and in some of those towns the Methodists are the leading people. Several of the pastors informed me that their Freedmen's collection reached $700, but still their children attended school with colored children. The question with me is: are the colored people South worse than the colored people North; or, are the white people South better than the white people North?

Bro. Caldwell says the Freedmen's schools are not located where the whites could attend if they would, and the section where illiteracy prevails to a most alarming extent is where the colored people are almost entirely wanting. The above reason is too narrow. Our Freedmen's schools are located where they are accessible, where any that are anxious to educate can attend. I am satisfied that there are few localities in the State of Tennessee where the colored cannot be found. Let Bro. Caldwell locate a school where the colored people are thinly settled and advertise that colored students will be admitted, and Bro. Caldwell will see not less than a score of colored students there in less than a month. I think that is only another shade of caste.

Bro. Caldwell says it is impossible to educate the races together in the South—an idea that is very common in the South. Southern railroads, Southern hotels, Southern churches, Southern schools, Southern prejudice, all of which the M. E. Church will never tolerate. I am satisfied that the coming General Conference will do right and stick to principle, and not cater to caste policy and narrow prejudice. Brother, we can educate together now. I would like to know when the time will come when the principles of the M. E. Church will be admitted in the South? I remember very well when the street cars first commenced running in Nashville that it was impossible for the colored people to be admitted, but the strong arm of the law took the matter in hand and very soon the street car doors were opened to all alike. So let the strong arm of the church do likewise, and these impossibilities will adjust themselves. The colored people, with their meagre means, are compelled to travel hundreds of miles before they are admitted in schools of high grade, for no other reason than they are Negroes and are prejudiced, passing by schools of our own church. I am satisfied that there are colored people in the neighborhood of Athens. I remember some 15 or 20 years ago there were from $5000 to $10,000 collected from friends in the North for the Athens University, with the understanding that colored students were to be admitted. I have never heard of colored students being admitted in said university as yet. But maybe the colored people have all been forced to leave Athens and surrounding country on account of caste prejudice. I am not surprised to hear utterances like the above come from Bishop Pierce and men of his make-up, but we are surprised to hear such utterances come from one who professes to be a teacher of the Bible and a leader of the principles of our blessed old M. E. Church. I ask the brother to please read the following Scripture lessons: Isa. 11th chapter; Acts, 10th and 11th chapters; St. John iv; Phil. iii, iv.

The magnitude of the work to be done by the Fredmen's Aid Society demands concentration, and not separation. When, in the darkest hour this country ever saw, Abraham Lincoln issued that immortal document which electrified the world and shook the shackles from American slaves, the four millions of colored people were found to be scattered all over the South, moneyless, friendless, and without any school facilities, the M. E. Church, true to the interests of the colored man, as she always was, organized this noble and grand society. The Freedmen's Aid Society has done a work among the colored people that no other organization could have done. The Society has reached thousands, but there are tens of thousands to be reached that will only be reached through the efforts of the Freedmen's Aid Society. The six or seven millions of colored people in the South are dependent upon their generous friends of the North for a higher education. I am opposed to any change in the present plan of the society. The Freedmen's Aid Society, like all noble and great organisations, was formed for a peculiar purpose. Bro. Caldwell said, and well said, that the freedmen thinks that the old Church helped to hang up the North star, was chief director and stockholder in the underground railroad, and helped to make Lincoln and Grant Presidents. We are satisfied that the Church took a large stock in bringing about our freedom. We are also satisfied that it took a larger stock in organizing the Freedmen's Aid Society, to educate the thousands of our people that it has already reached, but there are tens of thousands yet to be reached that will only be educated by the wise plan of this society.

To enable our school in Nashville (Central Tennessee College) to meet the demands, we ought to have at least twenty-five acres of land belonging to the school. In that respect we ought to be equal to Fisk and Roger Williams. The Central Tennessee College, for the first time in its history, is crowded to its utmost capacity. Our noble president, Dr. Braden, is working heroically to stow the students away as they come, but he has been compelled to refuse a great many for want of room.

It seems to me to organize separate schools on caste prejudice are steps backward, and will place our church in an awkward position. The question of mixed schools is being settled every day. As far as my observance goes there are mixed schools in all the Northern States, and the legislatures of all the States in the Union are mixed. The railroads South are conceding to the colored people rights that they have heretofore denied. I left Nashville on the evening of the 10th inst. I applied to a sleeping car conductor for a birth; he very politely said yes. I was permitted to take a sleeper from Nashville to Cincinnati. It would not have been possible for me to do that a year ago; so you see there is a change for the better. The General Conference of our own church, which will soon meet at Philadelphia, consists of the most talented men of the world. The colored members will take their seats, and no one will object. With all this light on the question of right, there are those that profess to be friends of the M. E. Church asking to change the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society for the reason that there are a few poor whites in the South who will not attend our church schools unless we change the name and policy of the Society, and build up separate schools for the two races; and label the schools for the whites, in the largest letters, "No Negroes Allowed Here;" a thing I am satisfied the General Conference will never do. Let us build our schools where they will be most acceptable for all the people (or members of the Church), and act on the principle of the M. E. Church, and settle the question by letting all who want to come, and those that don't stay away. H. W. KEY.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., Feb 28.

Rev. Julius Sinclair.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to announce through your paper that Bro. Julius Sinclair, of the Woodbury Circuit, Murfreesboro District, died March 14, 1884. Bro. Sinclair died at his post; in full triumph of living faith, aged 28 years, and a member of the M. E. Church about 6 years. He leaves a dear wife and 4 children to mourn his loss. Bro. Sinclair was admitted on trial in the Texas Conference at Brownsville, Texas, in 1882. He was a young man of great piety, and loved by all who were acquainted with him. The funeral service was attended by Rev. Thornton Woods, Rev. Wesley Lillard and the writer. We heartily sympathize with his bereaved wife and children. A. PHILLIPS.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., Mar. 30, 1884.

The Philadelphia Conference delegation is: Ministerial, T. B. Neely, Joseph Welch, William Swindells, W. J. Paxson, J. M. Hinson, J. B. McCullough; reserves, J. S. J. McConnell, S. A. Heilner. Lay, Robert E. Pattison, R. C. McNeal; reserves, James Black, Jonathan Vannote.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

Rev. John Lea is supplying our work at Stuart's Chapel and Spring Creek. He has started to work at Stuart's church with the purpose of succeeding. Owing to an accident whereby he got crippled at Stuart's Chapel, by a falling piece of timber, to bad roads, high water in the swamps, inclement weather, and lack of traveling conveyance he has not been able to visit Spring Creek as yet, but will in the course of a few days be able to so arrange his affairs as to give close attention to both points on his circuit. Our highest hope is that Bro. Lea will succeed in gathering a good membership at Stuart's Chapel and in building a church for our people at Spring Creek. Much faith and hope will not fail to give these results. The close of this conference year will testify whether Bro. Lea, and his people have been abundant in these necessary elements to success.

At Marksville, a grand opportunity presents itself to our church. In that town there is no Protestant church of any denomination, and if Bro. Neptune Randolph, who supplies that work, succeeds in the future as he has since conference, we doubt not that our work will be permanently established there, before many more days. He has already enrolled 13 members, is negotiating for building site, and is planning for immediate development.

At Cotton Port, Bro. Stephen Green, the pastor there has not been able to do much on account of the threatening overflow. Indeed these annually expected freshets blights the prospect of our best efforts in that as well as in other portions of our work in this section. With returning confidence, however, we hope to be able to count up tangible results on this circuit.

Washington charge, under the pastorate of Bro. S. E. H. Morant, started off upon the highway for another year of blessed experiences. Bro. Wm. Davis, who was here last year, did some excellent work; the evidences of which are still apparent on every side. Bro. Morant starts right where Bro. Davis left off, and is doing well. We have few better charges outside of New Orleans, than this charge. Every indication in the quaterly meeting held there recently, pointed to a year of remakable results. We congratulate Bro. Morant upon the present outlook if his work.

R. P. Brown, Milam: "On the first Sunday night in February, about 9 o'clock, a party of white men came to a colored man's house (named Harrison) and called for him, but he was not at home. They crept into the house and searched for him. His wife cried for her step-father, and he came. Just as he got near the house they shot at him. On the third Sunday night they came to the house of Mr. Reed, another colored man, and took him out and whipped him shamefully. They went to Mr. Woods and shot 8 times, 3 balls lodged in the house. Mr. Reed and Mr. Woods are laboring men. Nothing has been done about it. Pray for us."

If you have any pain, ache, or ill-feeling from any cause, if you seem "pretty well," yet lack energy and do not "feel up to the mark," if you suffer from disease, we beg you to at once try these remarkable curatives. They cannot and do not injure like medicine. Always doing good, never harm. There is no shock or sensation felt in wearing them. There is no waiting a long time for results; electro-magnetism acts quickly, generally the first week, more frequently the first day, and often even during the first hour they are worn, their wonderful curative powers are felt.

The mind becomes active, the nerves and sluggish circulation are stimulated, and all the old-time health and good-feeling comes back. They are constructed on scientific principles, imparting an exhilarating health-giving current to the whole system. Professional men assert there is hardly a disease which Electricity or Magnetism may not benefit or cure, and they daily practice the same, as your own physician will inform you.

THE CELEBRATED Dr. W. A. HAMMOND, of New York, formerly Surgeon-General of the U. S. Army, lately lectured upon this subject, and advised medical men to make trial of these agencies, describing at the same time the most remarkable cures he had made, even in cases which would seem hopeless.

The Corsets do not differ in appearance from those usually worn; we substitute our flat steel magnetic in place of the ordinary corset steels. These Corsets are all equally charged, differing only in quality and design. They are elegant in shape and finish, made after the best French pattern, and warranted satisfactory in every respect. The above applies equally as well to the Electric Belt for gentlemen.

The prices are as follows: $1, $1.50, $2 and $3 for the Corsets, and $3 each for the Belts. We now make all these Corsets in drab and white only. They are sent out in a handsome box, accompanied by a silver-plated compass, by which the Electro-Magnetic influences can be tested. We will send either kind to any address, post-paid, on receipt of price, with 20 cents added for packing or registration, and we guarantee safe delivery into your hands. Remit in post-office Money-Order, Draft, Check, or in Currency by Registered Letter. In ordering, kindly mention and state exact size of corset usually worn. Make all remittance payable to GEO. A. SCOTT, 843 Broadway, New York.

N. B.—Each Corset is stamped with the English coat-of-arms, and the name of the Proprietors, THE PALL MALL ELECTRIC ASSOCIATION.

Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brushes, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00; Flesh Brushes, $2.00. Dr. Scott's Electric Tooth Brushes, 50 cents; Insoles, 50 cents.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	24x30
Shakespeare and his Friends	24x30
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	30x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	26x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	20x26
Farmer's Saturday Night	24x24
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	22x30

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary,

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The 'Model Home."

In a late number of the SOUTHWESTERN I read an account of the exercises in connection with the dedication of the Adeline Smith Industrial Home at Little Rock. The object of that enterprise is to make a model home, where girls may learn the practical duties of life, and which may be imitated. What can be more appropriate than that girls learn, in connection with mental training, to make a fit place for themselves, where they may develop intelligently those faculties, which must be called into action, in woman's work of life? A young girl may have good knowledge of books, and yet be unable to manage a home, and in consequence, her work in the future, may be much hindered and embarrassed. It would be well if more girls could have the benefit of that model home training. Many must be denied that privilege, but that may be no reason why they may not have homes nicely kept. They may learn much from their mothers, in cooking, in neatness and economy. Indeed the mother is the proper person to teach her girls those things.

A model home. There is much implied in that. Every one has a desire for the rest that it promises, but somewhat different are people's ways of seeking it. Many suppose that a model home will come if plenty of money is made and things get fixed right. But is it when there are perfect arrangements, and beautiful surroundings.

Once I saw a home where much taste was displayed, and where plenty abounded, but the people had frowns on their faces, and spoke unkind words to each other, and were discontented and seemed to have no idea that their wants were more than half supplied. I saw another home, perhaps a little less pretentious, and where there was order and neatness, and the inmates seemed contented and happy. I saw there on a table a well worn Bible, looking as if it had just been used, for upon it was lying a pair of spectacles. That was a silent assurance of the comfort and peace in that house, that was evident in many ways. Again I saw a home, where there was little of this world's goods. The floors were bare, but clean, and the furniture was poor and old, but there was an air of comfort there. The people were thankful and contented with their lot in life, and they seemed to have enough, not only for themselves, but for the stranger that was within their gates." I have seen homes where there was no order, where the children were dirty and contentious, and the grown people had bitter and envious feelings and where they thought they could do nothing to make their homes pleasant, because they had nothing.

My observations have led me to believe that the only model homes [illegible] where people make the best use of what they have, and where they love, serve and trust in God. Genuine Christians, though they may be poor in this world's goods, find a comfortable place for themselves, and they are orderly and careful and useful. How can they be Christians unless they are? Truly, it is the very nature of Christianity to make people happy, active and helpful. A lazy, careless Christian! Did any one ever see one? To make a home, its significance should be understood, and the rule for its management should be, to have in view the comfort of others. Then its labor would not be drudgery, but a real delight, in proportion as the inmates work for each other, the home becomes a model one.

I sometimes think when they [illegible] education, that [illegible] above home duties. A great mistake. An help in doing one's [illegible] and might be needed about the house [illegible] music or any other [illegible] know a girl who [illegible] and graduated, and [illegible] to her home, she thought she was fitted for something better than helping her mother in the house work and in caring for the younger children, and so she sat down and waited for something to come to her, more to her taste; but she waited a long time, and threw away many opportunities of doing good for herself and others, because of her false views of life. Oh, that all girls would very early in life, choose the Savior is their better part, and being guided by Him, grow up to be noble and useful women. That would be a safeguard from danger and save them from much unhappiness. I have know very restless and unhappy girls, despising their home lives, and trying first one thing and then another, of what the outside world could give them, and all the time the void in their hearts was because they wanted God, and if they had had Him they would not have wanted so much of the world. I have many times thought that if people do not trust God for a place of comfort and rest here, they may not find mansions prepared for them in heaven. Young girls who may not have the privilege of being trained in that "model home," may be assured that if, in the home where are their parents, brothers and sisters, they go to work with a purpose to make all around them comfortable, they will find themselves improving. They must learn to make biscuit, and corn bread nicely, and do many other things as their mothers wish it, and then when they have homes of their own, a habit will be formed, that will make them of some force in the world, and will lead to prosperity and happiness.

L. C. BRADEN.

GRUEL AND BEEF TEA FOR THE SICK.—Among the more appetizing recipes we should hardly omit offering a few remarks on the making of gruel and beef tea, which though so familiar in name, often prove but mere slops, especially in the houses of the middle and lower classes. The first named requisite can be more easily made with Robinson's patent groats than in the older way of boiling the corn meal, and if a fire is not handy, it can readily be prepared over a gas or spirit lamp. When special nourishment is required an egg may be mixed with the gruel. The white and yolk should be previously well beaten, and the boiling gruel then poured on. If desired it could be flavored with a squeeze of lemon or a few drops of ratafia or vanilla. Beef is perhaps the second convalescent orthodox diet, and can be be readily made with Liebig's essence; but, unless an absolute necessity, this should not be used in preference to the old-fashioned tea of our grandsires. If the invalid has the misfortune to be in lodgings where, as in many case, but one female drudge is kept to do everything required, then Liebig's may be useful; but to some tastes it is not very palatable, and it is a question if it is as nourishing as that made from the fresh meat. In all cases where not forbidden beef tea should be slightly thickened; this can be done by boiled or baked flour.

COCOANUT BREAD.—Add to three quarts of wheat meal one grated cocoanut (or in that proportion); mix with water to a stiff dough; kneed till the dough becomes spongy; mould into any desired form, and bake in a hot oven twenty to thirty minutes. This bread is a great favorite on festive occasions.

CODFISH CAKES. — Choose a thick piece of so-called boneless salt codfish, weighing one pound; soak for an hour in lukewarm water; then pull it in pieces and put over a slow fire in two quarts of cold water; when it begins to boil drain it, cover a second time with cold water, and when it comes to a boil the second time remove from the fire; if allowed to boil it will be tough; put the fish in a large earthen bowl, and if you tire easily sit down, as your task will call for patience; pick your fish into the finest possible flakes, or, rather fluffy shreds, and remove all the bones; mix with an equal quantity of hot mashed potatoes, season highly with pepper and a dash of tobasco sance; add a beaten egg and butter the size of an egg; flour your hands and mould into small balls; this quantity will make sixteen fish-balls; the usual errors are having the fish cakes tasteless, because too fresh, or so salt they are equally bad. As some fish is much more salt than others, this is where the genins of the cook will come in. If the mixture is too fresh add salt. If it is too salt, rinse the fish in cold water before mixing with other ingredients. If you find it still too salt when you are about to mould into cakes, put a small sancepan on the fire with butter the size of a walnut, stir in a large tablespoonful of flour, add a little boiling milk to make it like a thick sauce and mix this thoroughly with fish and potatoes.

They may be sauted, or fried, by immersing in hot fat. Cold boiled codfish makes very nice cakes, but if not seasoned highly, they will be insipid. This is, of course, esne cially a breakfast dish and should be accompanied with cresses and boiled eggs. Garnished with cresses they make a very tasteful little fish course for a family dinner.

Simpler Living and Longer Living.

Numerous controversies of the theory that meat is essential food to produce strength of mind and body in man are found. Possibly no more forcible example of the falsity of the theory exists than the primitive and unsophisticated community that lives high up among the Carpathian mountains. The population of this remote region numbers several hundred thousand individuals who neither use strong drink nor eat animal food. The food of those Arcadians is principally oats, either simply boiled or ground and made into cakes. During four or five months of the year those of them who accompany their flocks and herds to the mountain pastures live exclusively on goat milk whey, which seems to contain all the requisites for sustenance. When they return to the valleys at the end of the season they are as strong and vigorous as when they set out. The entire race are noted for their vigor and energy, and they are superior intellectually and physically to the neighboring population. Their physique is of remarkable purity, and, although for the most part lacking in culture, they are poets and artists by nature. Though poor they are content, and though their diet is spare and monotonous they enjoy perfect health and live long lives. These are facts that are not enthusiastically colored. Are they not worthy of consideration by those who find it hard to provide for the many mouths dependent upon them for food? Although it may not be necessary to live on so spare a diet as the hardy mountaineers whose example we have cited, their vigor and hardihood are things worth having even at the expense of some deprivation. Their oatmeal, particularly, is not to be despised as a health-giving and life-sustaining food, whose cheapness recommends it. There is very little doubt that poor people in the United States might very materially lessen the expenses of the family table without diminishing the family comforts.

Liver, Kidney and Btight's Disease

A medicine that destroys the germ or cause of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver ComplaintS, and has power to root them out of the system, is above all price. Such a medicine is Hop Bitters, and positive proof of this can be found by one trial, or by asking your neighbors who have been cured by it.

Wise Words on the Liquor Traffic.

The New York Tribune well denominates the question of dealing with the traffic in intoxicating liquor "the question of the age," and says:

"It is impossible to examine any subject connected with the progress, the civilization, the physical well-being, the religious condition of the masses, without encountering the monstrous evil. It lies at the center of all political and social mischief. It paralyzes energies in every direction. It neutralizes educational agencies. It silences the voice of religion. It baffles penal reform. It obstructs political reform."

And we commend to the thoughtful attention of our readers the following paragraph, which it is somewhat strange to find in a political newspaper:

"There is needed something of that sacred fire which kindled into inextinguishable heat the zeal of the Abolitionists, and which compelled the abandonment of human slavery, to rouse the national indignation and abhorrence against this very much greater evil. Nothing short of this, it is to be feared, will impel time-serving politicians to approach in a spirit of earnestness a subject which is distasteful to them mainly because they think they cannot afford to do without the help and support of the class who derive from the degradation of the foolish and ignorant the means whereby they continue to rule and plunder those whose sagacity is not proof against their snares."

A Very Singular and Exceptional Case.

The following details of a case is one of the exceptional cases which we meet with in our dispensation of Compound Oxygen, and one that illustrates in a very striking manner the subtle and deeply-searching and active power of this new agent;

ST. CLOUD, WIS., Jan. 16, 1882.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN: Dear Sirs:—I believe it to be a duty I owe to sufferers from blood and skin disease to make a brief statement of my case. About ten years ago I had several inflamed dark spots come on both of my ankles. These spots, when they first appeared, were of a dark copper color, and much inflamed and rigid. They gradually grew larger and more troublesome, with always a sensation of numbness, and sometimes paroxysms of most intolerable itching. I had for several years previous to the appearance of these spots on my ankles been troubled with inflammatory rheumatism. My joints would be sometimes badly swollen and inflamed. I had much trouble and pain with my left ankle for the three or four months before commencing to use Compound Oxygen. The whole of the outside of my left foot and ankle resembled in appearance and color a large piece of liver. It was much swoll n and as rigid as an iceberg, with nine or ten very painful dry sores. The central one was about one inch in diameter, and most exeruciatingly painful. I showed it to several knowing ones, who pronounced it a cancer. The effects of the Compound Oxygen were truly wonderful. It worked like a charm. In a few days after commencing its use, my feet began to bleach out; the lumps all dissolved; the skin and flesh of my feet soon became soft and white, the sores became less painful, and soon began to heal. The sores are now all well, and my feet and ankles are as good as new. In fact, I have got a new pair of legs; to all of which I am indebted to Compound Oxygen.

Respectfully yours, H. SPARKS.

The effect of Compound Oxygen in this case gives a striking proof of the law governing its action. It had no specific relation to the disease from which the patient was suffering, and did not act directly upon the affected parts, but, instead, infused new vigor into all the nervous centres, quickened all the life-forces, and restored to healthier activity every organic form in the body, and the result came as a natural and orderly sequence. The case is exceptional only in the character of the disease, not in its cure by Compound Oxygen.

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases will be sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1010 and 1111 Girard street, Philadelphia.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

NEVER FAILS.

"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, and fifty other complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as

THE GREAT

NERVE CONQUEROR

It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invalnable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists. (14)

Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time, the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—*Rev. General News Items.

Gen. Graham and the English troops have sailed from upper Egypt to Suez.

The reduction of the public debt during the month of March was $14,238,324.

The National convention of inventors opened at Cincinnati, with 2,000 delegates in attendance.

The Review of Birmingham Ala., notes a movment on foot to establish a college in that city.

The House committee were unanimous in the opinion that Gen. [illegible] Boyuton had not been sustained.

The Louisiana delegation in Congress have asked the Mississippi river commission to consent to the appropriation of $100,000 of the sum already appropriated, to them, to be used in strengthening the levees below the mouth of Red river.

The Boston Transcript, one of the leading journals of that city, is owned exclusively by ladies, and is probably the only daily paper in the world thus owned. They have shown that woman can achieve success in even this direction.

The services of the Rev. W. H. Kincaid have been secured as an assistant to Dr. De Puy in the editorial management of The Daily Christian Advocate, which is to be issued by the Book Agents during the approaching session of the General Conference in Philadelphia. Mr. Kincaid held a similar position during the General Conferences of 1876 and 1880.

Rapid is not given to some of the churches in West Virginia distressed by the flood, Methodism has received a blow from which she will not recover in ten years. Some of the church buildings are almost total wrecks—every article of furniture lost, organ, library, pulpit, chairs, and carpet, all ruined. In some places the water was in every house.

Prince Leopold George Duncan Albert, Duke of Albany, Earl of Clarence, and Baron Arklow, the youngest son of Queen Victoria, was the most intellectual and popular of all her sons, and his death has cast a gloom over Great Britain. He was the youngest but one of Queen Victo[illegible], his sister Beatri[illegible] al- [illegible]thin [illegible]ving [illegible]. He reache[illegible] retired had le[illegible] circumlife from [illegible] physical stance d[illegible], which delicacy [illegible]ve to a were [illegible]es of degr[illegible] the the [illegible] re sa[illegible] so p[illegible]ish- ing [illegible] Prince Consort, th[illegible] eager and zealous in advancing the good of mankind. His earnestness in the cause of popular education was proved [illegible] over again by speeches delivered as Chairman of meetings for the advancement of knowledge or at the [illegible] of educational [illegible]. He had made himself very popular with the English [illegible] and his [illegible] rather than a pop[illegible] and [illegible] given up to [illegible] and [illegible] Liv- [illegible] he had [illegible]ays lived [illegible] the stud[illegible] learned men, [illegible] were more [illegible] than the p[illegible] of [illegible] or pol[illegible] and [illegible] of fashion[illegible] deeply [illegible] religious himself, he [illegible] views with respect [illegible] for others, and though a stanch son of the Church of [illegible] sympathy the [illegible] to hold himself [illegible] any schemes for the bettering of mankind, wherever and by whomsoever originated. His chief ambition seemed to be that he might be remembered as one who, in his life-time, strove to leave the world a little better than he found it.

Gov. St. John: Supposing that there are four hundred of these places in Denver, and that each pays $500 per year license. That would place in a year into the city treasury $200,000. Now, suppose the sales at these saloons would average $20 per day each—a low estimate, I think. This would give an outlay over their counters of $2,920,000 per year; or to make it a little plainer, the people pay to the Denver saloon-keepers annually an amount equal to $44 to each man, woman and child in the city, while the saloon-keeper pays back only three dollars for each person. Is not that a grand financial scheme? And are not you men who vote proud of it? How long would it take you to get rich if you conducted your own private business upon such a basis? Then just think of it, you fathers selling the privilege to the saloons of destroying your boys for $3 per head. The most worthless bootblack of Denver is worth more than $3, and it is the duty of you men who vote to protect them by your ballots.

It will be a grand day for Louisiana when Democrats, assisted by Republicans, bring back the school system of Louisiana to where it stood before the unwise constitutional convention of 1879 almost annihilated it, and then advance it to as high a condition of perfection as contemplated by the Republican party which established it. This process will be a noble work of reconstruction, in accord with nobler impulses of statesmanship.—New Orleans Cor. Donaldsonville Chief.

The Democratic State Executive Committee in its address to the people of Louisiana, which is a marvel of political Munchausenism, prepared for the delectation of the gullible, actually enumerates as among the blessings of Democratic rule that "education has been encouraged." There is something said about "garments befitting more ancient dignity," but if they are as thin in texture as that statement, Louisiana had better seek a better covering for decency's sake.—New Orleans Cor. Donaldsonville Chief.

Representative Henley, of California, is chagrined at discoveries he has made since he introduced his resolution calling for an investigation of the [illegible] Commercial Company's [illegible] with the government. The resolution was offered with the expectation on Mr. Henley's part that an investigation would show that a large part of the Republican campaign fund in California was contributed by the Alaska Company. He now knows that a majority of the stock or that concern is owned by Democrats and the largest stockholder gave to the Democratic campaign fund in California the largest contribution it received. Mr. Henley has also received intimations that this stockholder is not pleased with his hasty effort to gather in material for Democratic use in the campaign on the Pacific slope, and that this displeasure may have an unpleasant effect upon Mr. Henley's political hopes.

There are queer corners and nooks left in England yet. A country parson lately went to preach in an old and remote parish one Sunday. The old sexton, in taking him to the chapel, deprecatingly said: "I hope your reverence won't mind preachin' from the chancel. Ye see, chapel's a quiet place, an' I've got a duck a settin' on fourteen eggs in the pulpit."

A member of a fashionable congregation called at a music store and inquired: "Have you the notes a piece called the 'Song of Solomon?' adding, "Our pastor referred to it yesterday as an exquisite gem, and my wife would like to learn to play it."

A clergyman who recently held service in Auburn Prison preached from the text, "Go home to thy friends." And for once in their sin-stained, crime-haunted lives, the audience expressed a desire to follow a good man's advice.—Buffalo Express.

A clergyman in Durham, England, some short time since taught an old man in his parish to read, and found him an apt pupil. After his lessons were finished he was not able to call for some time, and when he did only found the wife at home. "How is John?" said he. "How does he get on on with his reading?" "Oh, nicely sir." "Ah, I suppose he'll read his Bible very comfortably now?" "Bible, sir! Bless you, he was out of the Bible and into the newspapers long ago."

Teacher to little boy: "What is a reptile?" "Don' know." "Oh, yes, you do; something that crawls." "Oh, a baby."

Did She Die?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along pining away all the time for years,"

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"Indeed! Indeed!"

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery.

"From a complication of Kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility

"Under the care of the best physicians.

"Who gave her disease various names.

"But no relief.

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

"My daughter say:

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

"And we are so glad that he used your Bitters, A LADY of Utica, N. Y."

Colds yield to onions like magic, but Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a still better and by far more agreeable means of curing a Cold or Cough. You can buy a bottle for 25 cents at any drug store, and we are sure it will do the work every time.

Answer This.

Can you find a case of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Diabetes, Urinary or Liver Complaints that is curable, that Hop Bitters has not or cannot cure? Ask your neighbors if they can.

The Daily Christian Advocate

The forthcoming General Conference promises to be one of great interest. It is the closing General Conference of the first Century of organized American Methodism. Its reports from every department of our widely-extended work, and the suggestions of plans and recommendations of methods for enlarging the work at home and abroad; the presence and addresses of distinguished Fraternal messengers from other religious bodies, some of them from beyond the sea, and of eminent missionaries connected with our various foreign mission fields; and the discussions by the many able and influential delegates, lay and clerical, (representing nearly a hundred different Annual Conference), of the many great questions which are to be considered at this transition period of our Church history, are sure to engage the attention of our people in all parts of the world.

In order to respond to the demands of this enlarged and increasing interest, and thus give to all our people the earliest, and most ample reports, the Agents of the Book Concerns at New York and Cincinnati will publish The Daily Christian Advocate, to be issued every morning, Sundays excepted, during the entire General Conference session. It will furnish reliable reports of every item of interest in the doings of that highest legislative and judicial ecclesiastical body, also of the sermons and addresses of the distinguished fraternal representative and visitors. It will print numerous pen-and-ink sketches of distinguished delegates, lay and clerical, and of fraternal representatives and visitors present, and will give in each number a summary of the latest telegraphic and other Church and secular news received up to the hour of going to press.

The Daily will be under the editorial supervision of Dr. W. H. De Puy who, in his editorial experience, extending through a score of years in connection with our Church papers, and including three different volumes of the Daily Christian Advocate, is well known to the Church. He will have able and experienced assistants, and no effort will be omitted either in the Editorial or Publishing Departments to make the paper as complete, attractive, instructive, and of as great permanent value as possible.

The first number of The Daily Christian Advocate (an eight-page, neatly printed folio) will be issued at Philadelphia on Thursday morning, May 1, 1884; and the volume will end with the number issued on the day following the close of the General Conference session. The last number will contain an ample and well-arranged table of contents, for the convenience of the many of our ministers and people who will desire to preserve the whole volume for future and frequent reference. The price will be $1.50, postage prepaid by the Publishers.

We respectfully and earnestly request all preachers to bring the paper immediately before their people, and either personally or by proxy make a thorough canvass of their congregations. Let the names be forwarded by April 1, if possible, and certainly by the middle of the month, as it is important to have our mail-list so complete that there shall be no complaint by subscribers not receiving promptly their first number. In no instance should any subscription list, however small, be delayed in order to send by some delegate or visitor to the General Conference.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON 11. April 13. PAUL AT EPHESUS: (Acts xix, 8-22.)

1. Hindrances fall out unto the furtherance of the Gospel. The Jews drove from them Paul, who was preaching in the synagogue on Sabbaths and to Jews and proselytes only; but he found a better place where he preached every day, to Jews, proselytes, and Gentiles, with immeasurably greater success.

2. The nature of unbelief. It is not founded in reason so much as in willfulness. And this is the trouble in every age, among the unbelieving.

3. The exciting nature of a pure and powerful Gospel. The school of Tyrannus became the attractive point in the city to all classes.

4. The indirect results of preaching. The Word was diffused throughout Asia Minor, though the apostle did not himself carry it.

5. Relics from saints have no efficacy. This healing power was confined to Paul, and that during his life time.

6. The sobering power of undoubted divine manifestations. The people revered the name of Jesus, because they saw how those feared who profaned it.

7. The cure of secret evils in the Church by greater enlightenment concerning the true nature of Christianity. Inconsistencies are not always due to ignorance, but usually to perceive harm in [illegible] sorts, of questionable [illegible] is usually due to blindness [illegible] the interior nature of [illegible] Spiritual enlightenment [illegible]. — Western.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The April number of the Pulpit Treasury is on our table. It closes the first year of this fresh, vigorous, progressive magazine. During the year it has given a dozen or more portraits of noted preachers, reliable sketches of their lives, and also views of their churches. The portrait and sketch of Dr. J. L. Withrow is given in this number. The initial sermon is also by Dr. Withrow, the second by Bishop Ryle, and the third by Prof. Dr. J. E. Hamilton. Each sermon is admirable on its theme. Leading thoughts of sermons are by Drs. Barrows, Henson and Moment. Bishop Foss continues his articles on "Mundane Versus Cosmic Culture." Pres. Gregory on "Key to Bible Unity." Single copies, 25 cents; Yearly, $2.50; Clergymen, $2.00. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 757 Broadway, New York.

Pansy for April (Boston: D. Lothrop & Co.) contaiues a store of good things in the way of illustrations and stories for the children. 75 cents a year.

The Leason for May, just received from the International News Co. New York is richly illustrated with the latest fashion plates and patterns. Price 30 cents.

The Song Friend, a musical monthly, published by S. S. Straub, Chicago, Ill., at $1 per year, is now on our table. The present number contains several interesting editorials and contributed articles, together with a number of choice pieces of music. The present is the third number in its fifth volume.

Electra, for April, as a belles lettres monthly for young people, is fully up to its well-earned reputation. It is ably edited by Annie E. Wilson and Isabella M. Leyburn, and published by Isabella M. Leyburn, Courier-Journal building, Louisville, Ky. $2 per annum.

The Outing and Wheelman, for April, abounds in beautiful illustrations, and interesting articles. This publication, while it is especially devoted to the spread of information relative to the bicycle, tricycle and general outdoor exercises, presents to its readers a rare treat of other valuable reading matter. The Wheelman Co. publishers, 175 Tremont street Boston, Mass., $3 a year; 20c a number.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-1y

A New Departure.

Owing to the success attending the sale of Dr. Scott's renowned $3 Corset, and a very general inquiry for Electric Corsets of less price, but possessing the same therapeutic quality and elegance of shape, the Doctor has decided to place upon the market a full line of these beautiful and invaluable articles, which will now retail at $1.00, $1.50, $2 00 and $3.00. Read his large Corset advertisement in this issue, and address him at 842 Broadway, New York.

MARSHALL DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The committee, to arrange a programme for Marshall District Conference, consisting of Presiding Elder H. Webb, Pro. W. H. Davis, Rev W. Wesley and R. H. Harbert, met at 4 o'clock at Wiley University and determined upon the following programme;

Opening Sermon—Presiding Elder G. W. Smith.
Sunday-schools and Church Music—R. H. Harbert.
Work of Freedman's Aid Society—P. Douglass.
Was John's Baptism Christian Baptism?—F. Parker.
Doings of the General Conference—W. Wesley.
Church Extension—T. Moore.
How can we do the most good with our Missionary appropriations? — V. M. Cole.
Whether it is better to have small or large circuits—S. Horne.
Best method of raising minister's salary—John Jackson.
Temperance—A. W. Parker and W. H. Davis.
Use of Tobacco among ministers—L. Woodward.
Seventh commandment—H. Johns.
Is it better, on circuits, to preach at one point only each Sunday or at more than one?—G. W. Norris
Christian Perfection—S. Conley.
Revivals—H. Smith and W. Pollard.
How can we secure the attendance of our sons and daughters at our own schools—W. Epsteos.

The conference opens on Tuesday night at Ebenezer church. Every preacher is expected to be prepared on his subject. Local preachers, exhorters, District stewards and class leaders from each pastoral charge, are expected to be in attendance. A model Sunday-school will be held each day and questions of vital importance discussed. It is the week of the closing exercises of Wiley University, and with one and the same expense both can be enjoyed. R. H. HARBERT, Secretary.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

DEAR BRETHREN—I am requested by Dr. Hartzell, Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, to call your attention to the fact that, according to the action of the last General Conference, unless we raise the $100 assessed this Conference for expenses of the General Conference the expenses of our delegates will not be paid by the General Conference. In view of this fact the presiding elders and pastors in this Conference are requested to see to it that their districts and charges, immediately raise and forward to me, in care of this office, their various assessments for this purpose. This matter should be attended to at once, and assessments forwarded, at least, not later than April 15. Brethren will please take due notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Editorial Notes.

What has become of the Sunday League that some time ago proposed to rescue the Sabbath from its profane desecration in this city? Have they fainted by the way, and given up the task? Where are they?

The Central Tennessee College Record is a small, eight page monthly, issued from the printing office of the college by the student-types, "to carry greetings to friends and to acquire the character of being useful" as they say. Well, go ahead boys, your number one is readable, and does you credit.

The experience of the Collector of Customs and the Postmaster of the city of New York in the administration of civil service methods, as embodied in their letters, have been given to the public in circular form by the Civil Service Reform Association, and should be generally read. These officers have been relieved of many annoyances, and note an improvement of public service in their departments.

Rev J. W. E. Bowen, in a note to the [illegible] says: "I am pleased to say that the New England Conference [illegible] solidly against the [illegible] on the color line in the church, and the abominable [illegible] in our church." God bless and save New England, she once saved the Church from breaking its neck on the question of slavery, and may do it the second time on the question of caste.

R. T. Bentley, of Decatur, Ala., in a communication to the Nashville Advocate, says that while examining Bishop Simpson's "Cyclopedia of Methodism," he came to the conclusion that the work of the M. E. Church, South, in many respects had been overshadowed and neglected. That new general societies and the difference between the two churches are not as clearly defined as they should be. Following the suggestions of a friend, and after consultation, he has issued circular letters and begun the preparation of a cyclopedia of Southern Methodism.

The Blair educational bill passed the Senate by a vote of 33 to 11. Senator Hawley was the only Republican who voted against it. Both of the Senators [illegible] Louisiana supported the bill. The whole amount appropriated is $77,000,000, and is to be distributed as follows: $1,000,000 the first year; $10,000,000 the second year, $15,000,000 the third year; and thereafter it continues at the rate of $2,000,000 [illegible] the expiration of the eighth year. This a large sum. What the action of the lower house will be no one can predict. The measure is one of the greatest importance, and is beset with numerous difficulties. We like the clause that provides "that an equal opportunity for education be given all the children of the State." It gives to Louisiana the first year $300,000, the second year $600,000, the third year $900,000, provided, the State will raise $300,000 for the some purpose. This will be valuable assistance, and will help to get rid of the vast amount of illiteracy prevailing in this State. There needs to be on the part of each State careful legislation and the most consummate statesmanship. We hope that the national government will not trust too much to partisan State legislation.

The latest advices from Shanghai report a serious political crisis at Pekin. The Empress has publicly degraded Prince Kung and four members of the privy council. They were stripped of all their honors because of the dilatory manner in which they have dealt with Tonquin affairs.

The party bosses have about annihilated the Republican party in the South by their inefficient, selfish and corrupt distribution of federal patronage. This is the cry all over the South. In Georgia, the men who make up the manly and respectable backbone of the party are fighting and praying for deliverance from the yoke of Custom House Rings, Post Office wire pullers and party killers.

Our contemporary, the Chattanooga Advocate makes frequent reference to the SOUTHWESTERN, but most uniformly to misrepresent it, and its editor. In a recent issue it speaks of us as "undergoing a change," as being "more tolerant towards the white members of the church." The SOUTHWESTERN never wavers, the views of its editor as it relates to the mission of the church in the South have undergone no change. He still believes that the division of our church work on the color-line was in open violation of the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, the oneness of believers in Christ, but he has a heart that beats strong, quick and warm towards all the members of the church without reference to their race, color or previous condition. We are thankful to learn, however, that our brother agrees with us in our statement that the "mission of the Church is alike to all and equally to all." In view of this proclamation of his faith, so eminently Christian, will he please tell us, how in came to pass that at the recent breaking of ground for the Chattanooga University, and at the great educational meeting which followed, where those grand speeches were made, not a single colored member of the church was present? Have they no interest in the educational work of the church? On what basis do we plant our standard alongside the other branches of Methodism in the South? Were they not invited or did they understand that the school was "exclusively" for the whites, and showed their disapprobation by staying away? Let us have a full and clear statement with reference to this matter. Is that school to be open alike to all and equally to all, or is there to be enforced an unwritten but heathen law that shall forever exclude all the children of our colored members from it?

Palestine District.

MR. EDITOR—After receiving the appointment as presiding elder of the Palestine District I delayed no time in getting moved to Palestine, which is the most central appointment on my work. After a great deal of suffering and hard work, I have at last succeeded in making my first round. The first appointment I met was at Hawkins, but the pastor who was appointed there failed to go to the work assigned him, and the weather was so severe that the people could not turn out to service, therefore I failed to hold the quarter. As for the pastor who was sent to Hawkins, I can only say that I have neither seen nor heard anything from him this year.

Mineola Circuit was the next point I visited. The quarter was appointed to be held at the Dean settlement on the 12th and 13th of January, where we had a comfortable little church, which our people had just finished. But, on the 11th of January, about 12 o'clock at night, it was set fire and burned down. We succeeded, however, in getting the Baptist church to hold our quarter in. Bro. P. Thompson is the pastor at this place. The people intend to build another church just as soon as possible.

Mineola Station—I arrived there on the 19th of January, but failed to find the pastor at his work, although I succeeded in holding the first quarter. The church at Mineola is nearly rotted down, and they need a new church very much. There are only fourteen members at Mineola, but I think they will have a new church there this year.

At Tyler, it seems to me that the last three years of pastoral negligence has succeeded in wiping our church out of existence at this place, both in members and church property. When I arrived there to hold the quarter, I found that the church had been sold to the C. M. E. Church for purchase money, notwithstanding that there was a donation of one hundred dollars Church Extension money wasted at this work, and nothing done.

At Henderson there is nothing. Bro. W. Fletcher was sent there, and he was at his post when I got there, and had been for a month suffering from hunger, cold and persecution, both from the Baptist and C. M. E. Church. I wrote him a card notifying him that I would be there to hold his quarter; he therefore tried to get a church for me to preach in; he partially succeeded, after a great deal of trouble, in getting the C. M. E. Church for one hour on Sunday, under penalty that I would be taken out of the pulpit if I dared to mention the name of the M. E. Church. I, therefore, declined to accept such hospitality, and removed Bro. Fletcher to Mineola, where the people wanted to hear the pure Gospel of our Lord preached by one who represented a church that knew no man by the color of his skin. I can't say, Mr. Editor, that I shook any dust off of my feet when I passed out of that city, but you may rest assured that there was a mighty shaking of pockets to get money enough to pay our fares away from Henderson.

At San Augustine—I met a good, sound, old-time Methodist people at this place, and they seemed to be on the up hill journey. They have a nice little church and parsonage. Bro. B. Williams is the pastor. I think he is the right man in the right place. The people love him. He was as busy as could be, putting a new fence around the church property, and improving it generally.

At Sabine I found Dr. Morris at his post, and everything ready for the quarterly conference, which was held and passed off smoothly.

At Jacksouville I found the pastor and brethren awaiting my arrival to hold their quarter. We also need a new church at this place to preach in. The one they have now is only an old log cabin, which is hardly worth $40.

At Palestine Bro. Minnegan is the pastor. I held his quarter. There would be a good church and parsonage at this place if they were finished. The parsonage has been built for about a year, and has not been covered yet. It is true the minutes of last year show a membership of one hundred and sixty-six, but there is only fifty-three members all told, active and inactive, according to the quarterly conference reports.

At Crockett, Bro. R. K. Whiting is the pastor. On account of some misunderstanding in the appointments I could not hold his quarter. We have no church at Crockett, but have a good lot. The pastor says that they are going to build a new church soon.

At Madison Bro. Aaron Taylor is the pastor. Quarterly conference passed off nicely. They have a nice little church at this place, and are preparing to build a good parsonage. Bro. Taylor is liked by his people, and is doing a good work.

At Jewett Bro. E. J. Dickens is the pastor. We have nothing at this place, but made arrangemets to get a lot. The deed is in the hands of the pastor to be signed. We have a few members belonging to this circuit at a place called Bufalo.

At Leona Bro. T. Edwards is the pastor. Bro. Edwards is doing a good work among these people. The people are poor, and without a church to worship in, but they are making rapid strides towards building one. They have a great deal of the money to build with.

At Centerville Bro. P. Wilkerson is pastor. I held the quarter at this place in a school house. We have no place of worship at this place, Bro. A. Arnold, one of the laymen, has obtained a blank deed from me to have a lot deeded to our church.

At Cotton Gin Bro. W. M. Allen is the pastor. Bro. Allen had everything in perfect readiness. We need a new church at Cotton Gin. Bro. Allen has built a parsonage, and is making arrangements to make additions to it. Here we have a good membership and everything looks fair for the future.

At Fairfield P. G. Brown is the pastor. I don't think I have ever met a warmer-hearted people since I have been on the district. We have a small church at this place; it is really too small to hold the Sunday-school comfortably. The Sunday-school at this place is the best one on the district; they are doing a good temperance work. When I met them on Monday night the Temperance Society was forty strong. We had some essays and addresses on the cause of temperance by Mrs. Alice Blaine, Mrs. P. G. Brown and others, after which thirteen more joined, and on Thursday night following a request was made to the society to open the doors of the same, upon which ten more joined. I can say with safety that Bro. Brown is holding the fort.

At Butler, Bro. M. Wilson. Here I met the brethren on Saturday, and everything passed off nicely. This people has a nice church, and it is doing a good work. The people at this place are buying land and settling down on good homes of their own.

Mr. Editor, taking the district as a whole, I think it is doing a very fair work, notwithstanding there is a great deal of room for improvement. The Sunday-schools are not doing as well as they might do if there was more interest taken on the part of the pastors. I hope to see the day when the preachers of our church in this country will consider the great importance of training the child, while he is young, in the way he should go, so that when he is old he will not depart from the paths that leads to perfection. Pray for us. G. W. SMITH.

Three Minute Talks—No 5.

A large number of young men now in the ministry of our Church have spent but a short time in school, hence they have only a meagre educational outfit with which to prosecute the great work lying out before them. Most of them, I am prepared to say, are deeply sensible of their imperfect training and would gladly embrace the opportunity, should it ever come, to enter one of our institutions of learning as regular students. Their ambition is to go to the front, so far as it relates to an effective pastorate, and finding their way obstructed by their lack of proper mental qualification, it is no wonder they feel an embarrassment which can not be described. Month after month they have toiled on, eagerly watching for a favorable opening and, perhaps, the end of the year has brought only disappointment. Sometimes they have been told that they could not be spared from the active work, and sometimes, that there were no means available to provide for their families should they have a chance to go to school. It is remarkable that notwithstanding these formidable obstacles, they still cling to the hope of getting into school some day. While they stand upon, what I fear will prove, in too many instances, an impassable threshold, I desire to offer them a few hints which I hope will profit them somewhat at least. Let me say right here, that I regard it unreasonable, save in rare cases, for any young man to blame his presiding elder or the bishop for his faillre to enter school. None of our bishops and but few of our elders are open to the charge of standing in the way or opposing the efforts of those preachers who are trying to go through school. Not many of our superiors take delight in looking upon ignorance in the pulpit. They prefer light, always and everywhere. It is not easy to rightly locate the responsibility for the tardy opening of the doors toward which the aspiring preacher looks so wistfully. The fact ought never to be lost sight of that human aid has its limit. We must not expect impossibilites even of our best freuds.

Instead of finding fault, let the young preacher out of school seek to find out the virtue lying hidden in his own unused spurs. While the hope of going to school should be cheirshed, despite the hindrances, it is at the same time important, that not a single moment be wasted in frivolous dreaming, when waiting for its realization. He may have to dig for knowledge under disadvantages, with but few books at his command and without the presence of the inspiring teacher, and yet he may, after all, so successfully conquer the difficulties that beset his path as to attain to a high rank of true scholarship. Some of our noted preachers knew but little of the healthful stimulus of the recitation room. Finding the door closed against them, they resolved at once to begin a course of self-culture and by assiduous application they came step by step, to the foremost rank of the learned and useful. The time has arrived when Methodist preachers, whatever the circumstance of their first starting out, must think, not superficially and at random, but deeply and with method. In school or out of school, with books or without books, with a family or without a family, on a station or on a circuit, with a large salary or with a small salary, he must use his brains. He must think. I have great sympathy for slenderly equipped preachers out of school. I know their regrets and discouragements. Over their rugged path my own feet have trodden and even now I feel the blisters smart, while my steps measure the long distance, the greater portion of which stretches before me. O my brethren beloved, rouse your minds to effort. Place yourself in school if you can, but if this privilege is denied you, take the work or your mental discipline into your own hands, and with constant prayer to God for aid, bend all your energies to the task. Convert your gossiping into study, your indolence into work, and your barren fields will be covered with grain and your harvest will be abundent. D. W. HAYS.

Centenary of American Methodism.

At the last session of Tennessee conference Revs. J. Braden, H. W. Key, L. M. Hagood, James Pickett and J. P. Price were appointed a committee on Centenary of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The committee met and suggested the suitable topics for addresses, the following:

1. The organization of Methodism.
2. Origin and organization of Methodist Episcopal Church.
3. Peculiar doctrines of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
4. Preachings of Methodism.
5. A hundred years of Methodism to spread the Gospel.
6. Adaptability of Methodism to the spread of the Gospel.
7. Adaptability of Method[illegible] to indoctrinate the masses.
8. Peculiarities of (1) itinerancy, (2) class meetings, (3) large employment of the laity; (4) presentation of the clear experience of the clear justification and holiness of heart.
9. 1. Government by Episcopacy. Presiding elder system. 3. Traveling preachers. 4. Local preachers. 5. Class leaders. 6. Official boards: (1) Trustees, (2) stewards, (3) leader's meetings. Benevolence: (1) Missionary, (2) Church Extension, (3) freedmen, (4) education, (5) Sunday-schools, (6) conference claimants, (7) Bible society (8) Tract cause. L. H. HAGOOD, Sec't.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

W. E. Butler, Columbus: "Elder Duncan held our first quarterly conference, and we had a grand time. The work is growing. The elder promised the elder to do more than ever before for the benevolent claims. Pray for us."

A. W. Lewis, Woodlawn: "I found everything, on my arrival here, in excellent condition. I was happy to find a loving congregation awaiting me. Some had been dear comrades in the army, and I was surprised by a number of old friends. We have a regular attendance of 3 believers, 4 local preachers, 1 local deacon. There is a flourishing Sunday-school with 75 members. The first quarterly conference, under Elder Williams, was a success. My predecessor, C. A. Payne, began a noble work. Bro. Payne, of St. Charles St., New Orleans, reports his charge as prosperous, inconvenienced by the loss of the Davis crevasse. He is encouraged by the outlook. He has a good Sunday-school, and expects to enjoy a revival and many willing souls for the Master.

A. Wallace, Robeline: "The first quarterly conference was held by Dr. Duncan, and business was done pleasantly. Collected $5. On Sunday the elder preached at Fort Jesup, and afterwards went to Robeline. He preached to a congregation of 100. The churches seem to be in good condition."

J. Mahaffey, Cotile circuit: "The people are pleased with their pastor. Bro. Patterson has gone to work and the church which was blown down by the storm last fall is rising. The money nicely. The Sunday-school is wide awake, with good attendance. All are trying to reach a standard of education. We are also trying for a parsonage on the church property, and thank the people for their liberality in helping us. Our district is blessed in having a good preacher for this year, a Methodist, but a lover of the Church was not sectarian, and because he differed in his appointments from our church was no reason why he should slander our ministering servants. Bro. Patterson came to us and instead of doing as he intended to do, they have had to leave many members at Opelousas and St. Landry, where he hoped to do much better together than before. Bro. Anderson prospers, and promises gratifying results. The quarterly meeting assembled at Cotile, and as in every quarterly meeting a few of the members met with us. That is right and proper. Let us present an unbroken front to the apostate enemy of God and the cause and the Lord will not fail to bless you his choicest blessings."

J. Monroe, at Eola, writes: "My family with him are getting on very well. In regard to crops in this section of country, of our people are not very much here, hence cannot make a comparative statement as to what it used to be; however, a sufficient amount to warrant us in the belief that the meeting of the Lord's people in special prayer for rain will doubtless be answered."

J. Bolden, at Waxie, Miss., who labored successfully for two years. He is at work, and is getting on as well as he can. "draw back" from what it is, is the best way to express it. This work is greatly retarded by the floods now if the floods come again this season, as expected, the condition of our church and people will be deplorable.

Bro. Spencer Strode was appointed to supply the work at Flat Town; and Bishop Wiley appointed Bro. Jules Auguste on Washington circuit. The needs of the work at Flat Town, since conference, seemed to demand the supervision and services of Bro. Auguste for another year at least, so he has been placed in charge of that work also. He will hardly be able to visit that work more than once a month however, so Bro. Strode has consented to assist him in supplying both of his points as an assistant. Bro. Auguste is a good manager, and preacher, and will doubtless succeed in establishing the work on Washington circuit; and is building a church this year at Flat Town.

MISSISSIPPI.

M. Adams, Ex-Prairie circuit: "March 15-16 our presiding elder was with us. The local preachers and class made good reports. Elder Campbell lectured the Sunday-school, and preached at 11 a. m. Lord's supper was administered to 125, and 5 joined the church, 3 on probation. Collections during the day $18.65; estimate for presiding elder $60; pastor $464; bishop $2.50; conference claimants $2.50; benevolent claims $30."

J. M. Lampkin, Whitefield: "March 11 a dreadful cyclone struck Rankin county, and blew one of my churches from its foundation, and left us out of doors. It blew down dwellings and fences, and swept everything in its course for miles."

S. L. Wilkins, Vaiden: "First quarterly conference was held by Dr. Revels, at Good Hope church. Pastor's report showed the work to be in good condition. Bad weather caused the congregation to be small, but the people had eagerly awaited the arrival of the elder. Collection $5. Paid elder $17. Pray for us."

A. D. Payne, College Hill circuit: "Owing to late beginning on on his first round Elder, J. C. Eckles was not able to visit all of his appointments and therefore he got brother S. A. Cowan to visit us and hold our conference on the 22d inst. And although it was quite a rainy day, brother Cowan and I went to the place of conference, 6 miles away, and found the most of the brethren there awaiting, and must say I never witnessed a better session of conference. During the business of the conference, and without any premeditation with the pastor, Bro. Cowan struck a point of vital importance to myself. Whereas last year my salary on this work was estimated at $265, and the committee for this year had done about the same before he came; Bro. Cowan, by giving the Conference a clear talk on the necessity of supporting the minister and his family, succeeded in getting them to raise the salary to $332. He seemed to think it the elder's duty to help the preachers out on points like this. Yes, I earnestly believe they could do much good to the preachers in this direction, and thereby lighten the burdens of many who are now suffering. On the whole, we are doing well, so far, this year, and by the help of the Lord aim to do much for His kingdom. Pray for us, brethren."

TEXAS.

J. K. Loggins, Brenham: "Elder Pullam held our first quarterly conference in January, but owing to bad weather only a few brethren were present. Reports showed considerable progress, spiritually and temporally; 11 additions, protracted meeting going on. Paid on building $140, to pastor $83.30, to elder $24.05. Pray for our success."

Calvin Curtis, Millican: "About Bishop Pierce, (M. E. Church, South) and his talk about the colored man in the South, I am happy to say we are serving a God who, as Peter said, is no respecter of persons, and I am happy to say we are in a church whose doctrine given to the world invites all sinners. How happy I am to think of 20 years back, when the dark clouds hung over us, and our eyes were blind, and our ears were deaf; the inspiration of God's holy Spirit has opened the eyes of the blind, and unstoped the ears of the deaf. Our eyes are open and our minds are elevated. We are lawyers, doctors, preachers, elders, professors; and, holding such offices, why not be allowed to sit upon juries and to vote? We are citizens and natives of the South, taxpayers and landholders, and have we no right to a literary education? Now stop, and let us ask God in prayer, what will we be in the future. The answer will come; the God whom we serve is able to bring us out more than conqueror; able to take away from the strong and give to the weak. Now while the rich has all the wealth and elevation of mind, the poor has the grace of God in his soul. We are not living respectably and honorably for the respect of the white people, but for the honor and the glory of God."

San Antonio District.

After a drive of 80 miles over rough, rocky, rutty roads, my wife and I reached Fredericksburg—the tip-top of my district—just as Bro. Jacobs and his congregation had nearly given up seeing us. There is something exhilerating in the air of this mountain region, but more in meeting a congregation that has come from three counties, camping on the church lot in their big, covered wagons. Some of these had come 15 miles, some 35 miles, and one man, Bro. Frank Pierce, had come 90 miles to attend this quarterly meeting. When people take so much pains to go to church they enjoy it when they get there. I spoke an hour to his congregation of Jesus and His love, while their eyes were filled with tears and their mouth with praises. At night Mrs. Richardson lectured to a crowded house, on the "Home and the Family," and the evils which damage and ruin homes and families. In the course of her lecture she exhibited charts which show the terrible effects of strong drink on the vital organs of the body, the brain, lungs, heart and liver. We hope and pray that the lesson will not be forgotten.

Bro. Jacobs, the pastor, is a young man in the work, but he is full of faith and good works. Fredericksburg and Hondo circuit has been the dread of that class of preachers who are conscious of the fact that nobody wants them. But Bro. Jacobs is making this desert blossom as the rose.

Bro. Henson is doing good work at San Antonio, as your readers already know, for he is of age and speaks for himself. The smallness of our membership in San Antonio is a matter of surprise to every one who knows its history and its opportunities. Our work there is about as old as our work in Austin, and has had very able preachers. Austin has two Methodist churches and congregations, while San Antonio has only one. The two churches in Austin aggregate 600 members; San Antonio less than 175. The colored population of San Antonio is equal to that of Austin. Why this great disparity in the results of our labor? I believe the work will build up under Bro. Henson's administration.

I have gone once over the district this year with the exception of Pleasanton and Riddleville. The pastors reports show that they have begun in earnest and in the right way to secure grand harvests this year. Bro. Jones, of Hallettsville is proud of his new church, and has commenced his campaign for this year in real earnest. At the time I held his quarterly meeting he reported the largest number of converts of any preacher in the district at that time. I do not know what others have done since.

Bro. Dukes is planning to build a $1000 church at Edna, the county seat of Jackson county. Bro. Mason began a neat church on Mt. Vernon circuit last year and got it far enough along to occupy. This year he intends to finish it. He has also begun his special meetings for revivals, I do not know with what results. Bro. Goodwin is taking hold of every department of church work with renewed zeal. Bro. Walker is striving manfully to make our work a success at Cuero. Victoria rejoices that they have got the right man in the right place. Bro. Mays is stirring them up to build a $2000 church this year.

Mission Valley is working into a new life under the leadership of Bro. Stevens. His quarterly meeting was one of the grandest successes I have had this year. Bro. Townsend and Prof. Westbrook were both present and added greatly to the interest of the meeting. Bro. Townsend is in his glory at Goliad, organizing temperance work, stirring up Sunday-schools, and hunting new fields of labor. The quarterly conference seemed to appreciate his work in a substantial way, by voting for his salary an amount twice as large as they ever allowed a preacher before. I have not much to report for Bro. Gibbons and Bro. Harvey as I held their quarterly meetings early, before they had time to do more than to lay out their work. They are both devoted men of God, and I have firm faith in their success.

The quarterly conference at Goliad invited the district conference to convene at that place this year. I think the majority of the district will be in favor of accepting the invitation, but I cannot now fix the time, owing to the fact that I have just learned that I will be expected to go to the General Conference, in the place of one of our delegates who is likely to be hindered from going.

I have also learned that the Sunday-school Union has appointed Rev. G. O. Richardson to do Sunday-school work in Texas during the months of July and August. In view of this I shall have the district conference and Sunday-school convention together, at a time when he can be with me.

Huntsville District Conference.

The Huntsville District Conference was held at Beaumont, Texas, March 5th. Presiding elder E. Lee in the chair, and conducted the opening religious services. The secretary of last conference called the roll, after which H. W. Wilson was elected secretary and A. C. Colbreath assistant. The usual committees were appointed. The presiding elder reported the district as being in a good condition, peace and harmony prevailed on all the circuits and stations. Not only were the old charges holding their own but new and important fields of work are being opened up, the church is putting on strength and enlarging her borders. The reports of the preachers were all encouraging, showing an increase in the membership, and a good attendance upon the means of grace. Each local preacher and exhorter was called upon, and carefully examined as to what books he was studying, and was urged to subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN and connect themselves with the Sunday-school at their homes. At the public meetings the congregation were good and the brethren all preached good sermons. A new life was given to the church, a number have since been converted to God. Sabbath was a good day, the presiding elder preached a sermon of great strength. The Lord's supper was administered to over a hundred persons. The conference decided to purchase a ground for holding camp meetings. Two sites were selected; one at Willis and one at Livingston. Under direction of our presiding elder, who we all feel is the right man in the right place, we are resolved to make the Huntsville district the first in the conference. We give the other districts due notice and ask them to move on or we shall go by them. The people at this place entertained the conference grandly. We have no better people in Texas than here in Beaumont. For this generous hospitality the conference will love and remember them as long as life shall last.

The Hands of Jesus.

BY W. H. W. REES.

On the first day of the week, the third day after the crucifixion of Christ, the disciples were congregated in a private room in Jerusalem, talking in all probability over the thrilling events of the few days before. No doubt there were many misgivings in the minds of the apostles, and a great many questionings as to the probable upshot of this whole matter, that had so stirred all Jerusalem, and had enlisted their own time and interest, for so many months. "Our hope is forever gone," one probably said. "No king, and consequently no earthly regal kingdom," another might have declared. "What avails the loss of all our valuable time now that our leader has been crucified and is now lying in Joseph's tomb!" might have questioned a third, and while they were thus conversing, Jesus stood in the midst of them, and said, "Peace be unto you." He then showed them His hands, and His side. Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord. St. John 20-20.

Blessed presence, blessed hands! How the sight of those nail prints gave hope and cheer to the grief stricken disciples, and at once scattered all their doubt. The sight of those hands spoke volumes to the disciples, concerning the future. They evidenced the resurrection of the Lord from the dead, and gave them promise of great success in the establishment of Christ's kingdom.

They could preach the word now with assurance, for certainly, he whom the grave could not hold, and death could not bind, could give them a power in their work, that even the murderers of Christ, could not withstand, and so in due time they went everywhere preaching Jesus and the resurrection, until thousands heard the word, obeyed its voice, accepted the great Savior they presented, and were added to the number of the militant host of God.

Those hands of Christ teach some valuable lessons.

1. They dignify toil. Jesus was subject to his parents and worked at the carpenter's bench. He who had spread out the azure blue of heaven, decked the canopy above us with shining worlds, filled old ocean with its finny tribes, stored the mountains with wealth, and spread out the varied, and beautiful landscapes of the valley and plain. This same great and infinite God, became a man, and accepted with cheerfulness his lot. Toiling in his father's shop, and doing the work which he dignified, and which in time dignified him.

Labor is honorable. Honest toil is ennobling; it needs no apology. They whose hands work not are the ones to be pitied, they know not the joy that comes as the natural result of work.

We commend the efforts parents make to give their children a thorough education in the schools, but that education is not complete, that does not embrace the knowledge of some trade. The great apostle to the Gentiles was a tent maker. God as really calls some men to the plow, the plane and the engine, as he does others into the law, and the ministry. And not until we see the dignity there is in toil, will we be great as a people.

2. But the hands of Jesus were busy in relieving the afflicted and the distressed. The touch of His finger on the eyelids of a blind man, floods the man's eyes with vision; He touches the deaf ear and sound travels in over a road where it had never gone before; He touches the tongue of the dumb, and from the lips that had always been silent there issues words of praise; He takes the ruler's daughter by the hand, and the maid that rested in the icy embrace of death, arose; He breaks up the funeral procession coming through the gate of the city of Nain, and restores a dead son alive to his weeping mother and they go home rejoicing together. Shall we not be Christ-like? Shall not these hands of ours aid in alleviating distress, wherever found. Let us build homes for the widow and orphan, asylums for the blind. Hospitals for the sick and infirm, and this multiply the works of Jesus who has said, I am the resurrection and the life.

3. Those blessed hands of Christ prove the glorious doctrine of the resurrection of the dead. The nails had pierced them; they had rested in the grave. The disciples were conscious of these facts, and when they beheld his hands, they were convinced that their Lord had conquered death. Yes, blessed God, Lord Christ is to be the "plague of death, and the destruction of the grave."

He was the first fruits. All the cemeteries will be robbed of their silent citizens some day. How soon no man knows, but the time is coming (and the triumph of the church is hastening its approach), when the strong angel of God shall plant one foot on the road and the other on the sea, and declare time to be no more; and the trump of the archangel shall wake the sleeping nations, and all the dead shall rise up out of their graves, and shall stand before God in the judgment of the great day. All shall come forth, "they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation."

Those blessed hands of Christ shall smite death the second time, and shall cast it into the lake of fire. Through those beautiful pierced hands death is to be abolished, and all who are truly his will come into the great, eternal city, through whose streets no nodding plume or blackened hearse shall pass, nor carriage roll, carrying mourners to the side of open graves, for into that city death cannot enter; nor shall there be and who will say I am sick. There Sickness and sorrow, pain and death Are felt and fear'd no more.

Reader put your hand in the palm that was pierced for you, and be able to say. "He leadeth me."

DEAR EDITOR:—I so seldom see a contribution to your paper from this part of our State, that I thought an article from me might not be devoid of interest. A card from H. R. Revels, D.D., appeared in a late issue of your paper, by which your readers were informed that I had been reappointed as presiding elder of the Holly Springs District. Dr. Revels very kindly proposed to Bishop Wiley, to take charge of the Greenwood District, made vacant by the death of Bro. Barney and leave the Holly Springs District open for me. The Dr's proposition was accepted by the Bishop, and the change was made at once. Every one must recognize the spirit manifested by Dr. Revels as being unselfish and full of brotherly kindness.

I entered upon the work of the year with every assurance that my kind brethren could give, of a hearty co-operation on the part of both pastors and people, and the work goes on pleasantly, but it is not of myself or of my work that I intended to speak.

During the latter part of the month of February, a two weeks protracted meeting was held at Rust University which resulted in the conversion of twenty five persons, nearly all of whom were students. The meeting was under the direction of Bro. W. W. Hooper, who was joined by the other members of the society, all of whom labored zealously for the conversion of the students. Dr. Revels was present part of the time, and preached two telling sermons. The writer who was then without employment was present during the meeting, and preached several times. One of the most beautiful sights I ever witnessed, was to see the teachers leading their pupils to the altar of prayer, and then kneel to pray with, and instruct them in things pertaining to the life to come. Bro. Hooper's addresses to the students was like a father advising his children, so full of counsel and sympathy. In one of those addresses he said, "My heart was made glad to see the students of the senior class coming to this altar," and then he made a statement that is wonderful.

"No student having finished his course in college, has gone from us unconverted." Parents take heed of this. No more powerful argument could be made in confirmation of a reason why you should send your children to Rust University.

In addition to having a faculty admirably adapted to ordinary school work, it has those as teachers who will use every endeavor to cultivate religion and morality in the school.

The school should open next year with its halls crowded. Let students come from far and near, with the assurance that no labor or pains will be spared to help them. Is not such an institution worthy of our patronage and sympathy? Friends think of these things, and avail yourselves of the advantages of a good college education.

DEAR BRO. CUSHMAN—I am with Bro. Moore in the same room, and stayed in during Conference. The Lord is with us. A glorious revival going on in Paris under V. R. Cole. 47 sound conversions up to date.

My object in writing at this time is to give you some thoughts that have been crowding upon me as I look over this work and study its demands. You can use your judgment as to their publicity. The thought is concerning our educational work in the South. Why not organize our whole educational work in the South into one uniform system of graded schools for Christian education, commencing with the preparatory and culminating in one or two well endowed and thoroughly equipped universities. At no period in the history of the church has there been such an opportunity. Now it is upon us within easy reach. The whole work is under the control of the Freedmen's Aid Society, and could be easily carried out. Think for a moment how much more could be accomplished with the same outlay, and how much better the work could be done. Suppose, instead of putting thirty or forty thousand dollars into one building, and trying to maintain the necessary force and grade of a college on that basis, we put say five thousand dollars into a proper school in each of five or six of the principal cities, and in classes of sufficient size to be worked out than is possible under the present plan. Take as an example: At the Wiley University this year we will graduate two theologs, one in the Literary, and one in Science. It will cost [illegible] to instruct these two [illegible] taking five times as much money as the [illegible] one Professor [illegible] the means of experimental [illegible] but the bare text book, and only in the class room. One hundred dollars would [illegible] the expense of transporting [illegible] to Nashville or [illegible] proper might be located and [illegible] saving of [illegible] hundred dollars, besides turning them out thoroughly qualified [illegible] to the [illegible] has it for [illegible] the [illegible] adopted and [illegible] be [illegible] with the [illegible] and more than ten [illegible] to [illegible] with [illegible] and [illegible] with [illegible] to meet the present conditions and demands of the people. We are preparing too much heavy artillery for an aggressive warfare. With such a universal and uniform plan covering all our work in the South, culminating into one well furnished, thoroughly equipped university, would be a great saving of money and labor, and the grandest victory of the age. We are living in an age where every thing seems to be converging into great systems. Why not follow this law and have one great system of education in the South, when it is within such easy reach. Let us hear from educators all over the South, yea, even from the North.

Yours truly, H. WEBB,
Formerly Prof in Wiley University,

"Suppose I do Not Pray: What of It?"

BY D. W. C. HUNTINGTON, D. D.

So said a man who, though he never prayed himself, claimed to be entirely competent to tell other people what they might and might not expect in answer to prayer. Surely "free thinkers," so-called, are as innocent of modesty as of logic and candor.

Praying is speaking to God. It is not musing upon religious things; it is not religious revery; it is not sentimentalizing; it is addressing God. It treats God as personal, as near to and interested in man. It may be read or repeated, provided only that the heart speaks to God through the form. It may be with the voice, it may be in whispers, or the soul only may speak, but the soul must speak—must speak to God. It may be in any place or in any position of body, but this it must always include,—a speaking of the soul to God.

It is asking God. (Matt. vii: 7; Luke xi: 9,13). It is calling upon God. (Isa. lv: 6; Ps. cxvi: 4; Acts xxii: 16). It is crying unto God, lifting up the soul to Him, seeking him, drawing near to him. It is pleading God's promise and taking hold of his covenant. (Ps. v: 2; xxv: 1; lxxiii: 28; Acts iv: 14-30). It is not to be in an unknown tongue for people cannot speak to God through that which they cannot understand. Mere repetition of forms of prayer are "vain repetitions" (Matt. vi: 7). It must be with renunciation of sin and with submission to God's will. (Ps. lxvi: 18; James iv: 7). It must be in the name of Christ. (John xiv: 13; Eph. ii: 18). The penitent thief, the dying Stephen and the apostle Paul prayed directly to Christ. (Luke xxiii: 42; Acts vii 59; 1 Cor. xii: 8). And does any man ask, suppose I never thus speak to God; What of it?

1. First of all, then, then if you never pray you are not a Christian. You cannot be a Christian and constantly violate a plain command of God. You cannot ignore the example of Jesus, Daniel and Paul and, indeed, of all believers in God in all ages and yet be a Christian. It is the sure mark of a wicked man that he does not love to pray and does not think there is any use in praying. (Ps. x: 4; xiv: 4; Job. xxi: 15). The first token that Saul of Tarsus was entering the kingdom of grace was the fact, "behold he prayeth." (Acts. ix: 11). It is the mark of God's elect "that they cry day and night unto him." (Luke xviii: 7). Men are not genuine converts till they pray. When converted they love to pray and when they neglect to pray they slide back into the world. You are certainly not a Christian if you do not pray.

2. Those who do not pray will know nothing of God, which is saving. They may have notions of God, and theories concerning him, but after all they "know not God." A saving knowledge of God includes acquaintance and communion with him. This is never realized by those who do not pray. Men may speculate concerning God and think themselves wondrous wise therein, but they never know God in any saving sense until they pray.

3. Those who do not pray themselves will very naturally doubt whether it does any good for others to pray. They will think that the benefit of prayer at most is only a "reflex influence." They will think that prayer for absent persons is of "doubtful utility," and that prayer itself is wanting in a scientific basis." The reason is they have no knowledge of God as sought, found and realized in answer to prayer. Notwithstanding their proud reasonings God is to them the "unknown God." Their doubts are the offspring of deep ignorance and not of deep thought. Enoch "walked with God." (Gen. v: 24.) Abram "talked" with Him. (Gen. xvii: 3.) Moses' realization of God's presence with him became so intense that his very face shone with the glory of the experience. These were men of prayer. To those who do not pray God will seem to be silent and distant and vague. No one need expect to realize the presence of God who will not speak to Him.

4. Those who do not pray will be blind in spiritual things generally. They will know little more of themselves than of God. They know not what to make of or what to do with man. They place him first among the gods and then among the brutes. Ignorant of God they cannot understand man. They can not see or decipher Providence. They cannot accept the Bible for that is full of God. They stumble at its history and its doctrines. They cannot understand anything about the Holy Spirit or his work in the human soul. They will not ask for his light and so they blunder on in their prayerless darkness. It is pitiful indeed to hear men, cold and dead to spiritual truth, proclaiming their ignorance of God and yet claiming entire ability to discuss the merits of the highest truths of the Bible. Few men have doubts which would not be removed thoroughly and finally by an honest and earnest seeking God. God revealed to the soul is the death of doubts. The hunger of the heart for him is that which makes room for him. The attitude of real prayer is the capacity to receive him. Doubts belong to him who will not ask for light. They are the curse of prayerlessness. It is easy for men to theorize and to babble about God, but they will never see him in that way. If they will speak to him he will make himself known to them.

5. If men do not pray in ordinary life they will not be able to pray in an exigency. Prayers prompted by dread of suffering only are selfish, and how can a holy God answer them! He is too good to place a premium on the double sin of life-long prayerlessness and praying selfishness. That which man most needs from God is not some gift which may be conceived of and possessed separate from himself; he most needs reconciliation to and communion with God. He perishingly needs acquaintance with God. This he will never have if he will not pray, or if he prays only in some signal distress. Scarce a man but would be shocked at the thought that he would never pray again; but he who lives without prayer will in all probability die without comforting access to God.

A patient residing at Binghamton, N. Y., after using Compound Oxygen for two years, gives the gratifying report:

"For two years I could not stand on my feet but for five minutes at a time, or talk as many minutes; but now I can walk four or five miles and to business all day, and I owe my recovery to health to the persistent use of Compound Oxygen, for I used it about two years, gaining a little all the time. Nearly all the physicians who attended me gave me up, and some said they could number my days.

Young Folk's Corner.

WHERE IS HOME.

Home is where affection binds
Gentle hearts in union;
Where the voices are all kind,
Holding sweet communion!

Home is where the heart can rest
Safe from the darkening sorrow;
Where are friends we love the best
Brightening every morrow!

Home is where the friends that love
To our hearts are given;
Where the blessings from above
Make it seem a heaven!

Home is where the stars will shine
In the skies above us;
Peeping brightly through the vine
Trained by those who love us!

Yes, 'tis home where smiles of cheer
Wreath the brows that greet us:
And the one of all most dear
Ever comes to meet us.

A Russian Folk Tale of a Fox.

A fox, closely pursued by hounds, took refuge in the hollow of a tree. When he found himself in safety, out of the reach of his pursuers, he began to question of what use his different members had proved in the preceding chase.

"Eyes," said he, "what part did you take in my escape?

"We," answered the Eyes, "looked sharp to see which were the shortest and smoothest roads to a place of safety."

"And you, Ears, how did you aid to elude the enemy?"

"We," said the Ears—"we listened to hear how far, or how near the pursuers were behind."

"You, Brain, how were you occupied during the chase?"

'I,' replied the Brain, "calculated by the information given me by Eyes and Ears, and decided not only the proper rate of speed for the Feet, but also the path safest to choose."

"What has the Nose to say for himself?" continued the fox.

'I,' said the Nose, "what I did! Why, of course, while the Ears and Eyes were informing the Brain of the state and length of the different roads before us and the distance of the enemy behind, I was scenting the air in front, to feel if there were danger ahead, as well."

"And the Mouth, what help did it afford?" queried the Fox.

"While the Heart was sending its life and action, supplying blood through the whole body, I was aiding the Heart by supplying it with air inhaling the fresh zephyrs."

"What have you, little Feet, to say for yourself?" questioned the Fox, looking at the pretty, little, tired limbs stretched on a soft moss that had grown in the old hollow of the friendly oak, which had given its timely shelter.

"We," replied the weary little Feet—"we ran and ran, as fast as we could, to carry away little Fox from the Dogs, and, at last jumped into this tree and got out of their reach."

"Ah!" sighed the Fox with great relief. "Eyes, Ears, Nose, Mouth, Brain, and Feet deserve to be saved, as you all did your duty to aid the escape from the cruel hounds. But stop! Here is the Tail! What have you to say for yourself?"

"I," said the poor Tail, who unfortunately lived in the age when the use of tails as an equilibrium of power, had not yet been discovered as he slunk down behind the hind legs. "I don't really know what use I was, perhaps only a hindrance swaying up and down against the legs."

"Oh! yes; that is it!" exclaimed the Fox and all the members, who fully appreciated their own usefulness and consequent right to existence and safety. "The tail is a useless apendage, a hindrance, a dead weight whom it does not pay to support or uphold. Let us get rid of him."

So a council was held; and, forgetful, even could it have been proven beyond doubt that the Tail was but an encumbrance, yet, as being one of themselves, that he was entitled to their charity, if not their rights of safety, the members not only voted him as a useless member, but as a dangerous hindrance to progress, and sentenced poor Tail to be delivered to the common enemy, the hounds who were still to be heard yelping and barking around the tree.

"There, Dogs, take the Tail, and let his fate be a warning to members of any towns, kingdoms, communities, or families, that he who cannot fully prove his usefulness to the other members, has no right to exist."

So saying, the poor Tail was hung out of the hole in the tree, and dangled just in reach of the Hounds, by whom it was immediately seized, and the Fox by it pulled out of its place of safety and torn to pieces.

"Alas!" all the members mourned in unison, while being torn asunder by the Dogs, "if we had only but learned this lesson, before it was too late, that union and consideration for the safety of all our members, even if of no apparent use, is indispensable for the existence of the community!"

Sin Stains The Soul.

BY THE LATE MRS. MARY D. JAMES.

I once heard about a boy who dreamed that he was taken to the gate of heaven but could not enter in because of something he had done. An angel opened a large book with names recorded in it. He saw his name with a great black stain opposite to it, and it was a lie that he had told the day before; and he could not enter heaven till that black spot was removed from the book. The angel told him to go back to earth and pray to God to take away that stain against his soul, and then he might come again and enter into the heavenly city. God had said no one could enter there "who loveth or maketh a lie," and "all liars shall be cast into the lake of fire," if they did not repent and forsake their sin. The poor boy awoke from his sleep crying and in great distress. His mother heard him, and went to his room. When she asked him why he was crying, he told her his sad dream, and asked her to pray that God would forgive him and take the black spot away. While his mother and he prayed, Jesus came to him and said, "Thy sins are forgiven thee; go and sin no more."

Has any dear child who reads this a stain of sin upon his soul? If so, none but Jesus can wash it away. His precious blood can take all the stains of sin away and make us pure and clean, so that he will love to look upon us, and will take us to his beautiful city above, when we leave this world.—Guide to Holiness.

Worth Thinking Of.

What Ayer's Cherry Pectoral does:—

It prevents the growth, to serious illness, of a dangerous class of diseases that begin as mere trivial ailments, and are too apt to be neglected as such.
It alleviates even the most desperate cases of pulmonary diseases, and affords to the patient a last and the only chance for restoration to health.
It breaks up a cold, and stops a cough more speedily, certainly, and [illegible] than any other medicine.
It spares mothers much painful anxiety about their children, and saves the [illegible] ones' lives.
It cures all lung and throat diseases that can be reached by human aid.

How Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Does Such Good.

It expels the mucus from the throat and the air passages of the head, and cleanses the mucous membrane.
It allays inflammation, puts a stop to tickling in the throat and coughing, and enables the patient to rest.
It heals sore throat, reduces the swollen tonsils, and restores natural tone to the affected vocal cords.
It soothes to natural [illegible] slumber, during which Nature [illegible] strength to combat disease.
It clears out and heals diseased air-cells in the lungs, and helps Nature to [illegible] the waste made by the corrosion of pulmonary disease.
It puts a stop to the cankerous decay of Catarrh.

Why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so Perfect a Medicine.

Because it is a scientifically ordered compound, of great potency, the product of years of study, observation, and experience in the treatment of throat and lung diseases.
Because it is prepared from the purest forms of the drugs employed in it, chemically combined by a process of such perfection and accuracy as would be unattainable, even by the most skillful pharmacist, dealing with small quantities.
Because it is not only the most [illegible] medicine for the uses to which it is designed, but, owing to the large quantities in which it is made, is sold so low a price that it is within the reach of every [illegible].
Because it is an active [illegible] that must be taken by the [illegible] scribed in the directions [illegible] each bottle, and not a [illegible] syrup that may be [illegible] mouthfuls.

Where Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Stands Before the World.

It is popularly known to be a medicine that has cured laryngeal, bronchial, and pulmonary affections where all others had failed.
It is a favorite household remedy to-day with people whose lives were saved by it, when they were young, a generation ago.
It has held the first place in popular estimation for nearly half a century in this country, and is more and more highly appreciated, year after year, both at home and abroad.
It evokes daily, from all over the [illegible] expressions of gratitude [illegible] by its use.
It is everywhere recommended by [illegible] table druggists, who [illegible] conversations with their patrons, [illegible] from their own experience, how [illegible] magical are its effects for good.
It is regularly prescribed by [illegible] clans of the best standing, [illegible] mended by Professors [illegible] leges, to their students, [illegible] for all diseases of the [illegible]

Women's Home Mission Work.

The Woman's Home Mission Society of First Street M. E. Church, New Orleans, presided over by Mrs. M. H. Chapman, held an interesting meeting last week. The president thanked the member for their expressions of confidence in a well received speech. With the true missionary spirit it has been decided, in accord with the rule of the General Society at Cincinnati, to forward the membership fees to its treasury. A circular having been received from Mrs. Dr. Bust, by Mrs. Joan Bentley, the corresponding secretary, announcing the determination to establish model homes for the instruction of young ladies in [illegible], and that one was contemplated for New Orleans, a resolution was adopted by the First Street Society expressing approval of model homes, and especially the opening of on in New Orleans. [illegible] is in charge with which to immediately begin the soliciting of donations for a model home in New Orleans. A programme of essays and addresses on topics connected with the Home Mission work, was made up for the May meeting of the Society. On this occasion friends will be invited to attend, and it is reported that refreshments will be provided for the enjoyment of their guests. This is an excellent beginning, and the women of First Street deserve success.

During the past week Rev. A. E. P. Albert, presiding elder of the LeTeche district, forwarded to the different charges on his district the annual report, constitution, rules, instructions and other matters of interest from the Woman's Home Missionary Society at Cincinnati. With these useful helps on hand, pastors and missionary workers should go right to work and organize branch societies auxiliary to the parent society at Cincinnati. Mrs. Sarah Barksdale, at Alexandria, is the Superintendent for the LeTeche district. For instructions relative to the work of the Society, and its methods of operation on that district write to her.

CINCINNATI, April 9, 1884.

REV. L. P. CUSHMAN—Dear Bro: I have just received the SOUTHWESTERN for April 10th. You have done nobly by our Woman's Home Mission Society. The articles are all excellent, and to the point. This work is destined to take much importance in the future of our church benevolences, for it strikes at the home where the power of every individual for usefulness is determined. With thanks,

Very sincerely yours,
MRS. R. S. RUST.

Louisiana Election Day.

Before another issue of this paper reaches these readers of it will [illegible] of the State of Louisiana, qualified by registration and [illegible] certificate, will be called upon to exercise their right to cast a ballot on which shall be named their preference for the various public offices. From Governor down to constable, all especially in the selection of [illegible] and members of the Legislature, the ballots should be carefully scrutinized, and only such [illegible], no matter what party [illegible] issued, who are able to represent the best aspirations of the people. If the party suits to your convictions, [illegible] which you have usually acted, [illegible], has ceased to any other in [illegible] and efficiency of the [illegible] go to the polls and deposit a ballot for them. Don't stay at home, don't shirk the chief duty of the American citizen; don't [illegible] in to-day your palms and do not allow any ordinary circumstance to [illegible] you from casting a free ballot for [illegible] at your command. If you are sick, get [illegible] and vote. If you are poor, yet [illegible] your rights [illegible] and enslaved by [illegible] Vote, vote early, vote [illegible], then return to [illegible] your homes or places of business and [illegible] with [illegible] you have performed [illegible] duty.

Verdict by the officers of the State charged with that duty. Decide upon your ballot the night previous, if not sooner; be prudent in your conversation on the way to the polls; avoid crowds engaged in heated discussion and, as you value your manhood, avoid all intoxicating liquors, all dens where sold, and all persons primed with them for the perpetration of lawless deeds. Have faith that somehow and at some time God will set right all wrongs, and disabuse your minds of the thought that you are required to be boisterous or belligerent in contact with your fellowmen. We hope for good results from the Louisiana election on the 22d.

The Tennessee correspondent of the St Louis Christian Advocate, M. E. Church, South, makes the following reference to Bishop R. K. Hargrove:

"I wish all your readers could know how sagaciously he outgeneraled both the Episcopalians and Congregationalists at an important point very recently. They had their engineers on the ground surveying, arranging their plans and plots and making all their calculations for capturing a pastor, Church and congregation, but the bishop a thousand miles away or more, very wisely, by a dexterous use of his pen and persuasive employment of his tongue, preserved our church and congregation intact, and did the work so well as to command the highest regard of all parties concerned."

Methodism has furnished the Baptists, Presbyterians, Congregationalist, and Episcopalians some of their most efficient and successful preachers and pastors. So far as these denominations have accepte Methodist doctrines, usages and experiences, they have been benefitted. What they all need is a little more of Methodism.

D. L. Moody was asked: "can a Christian use tobacco?" He replied "Yes, a nasty Christian." Most men who use tobacco admit that it is a dirty filthy habit, and if parents, advise their boys not to use it. Some of the conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, refuse to admit men into full connection who use tobacco. We know of nothing that so completely takes the gentleman qualities out of a man than the habit of smoking. We frequently see men lift their hats to the ladies and then take a seat by their side, and without care or hesitation puff their vile smoke into the ladies' faces Men may put on as many airs as they please but no one who is a real gentleman would thus offend against all decency. The tobacco habit blunts every gentlemanly instinct, and is uniformly degrading in its effects. A man may be a Christian and use tobacco but he will be filthy one. God wants a pure heart and a clear mouth.

PERSONAL.

—Charles Reade, the novelist, died in London, on the 11th.

—Northwest Kansas conference elected J. H. Lockwood, ministerial, and C. E. Faulkner, lay delegate.

—Newark Conference elected Dr. H. A. Butty and J. N. Fitzgerald, as ministerial; and Chancellor Runyon and James McGee as lay delegates.

—The Kansas Conference elected to the General Conference the following delegates: Ministerial, J. A. Simpson, R. Wake, J. R Madison. Lay, Joab Mulvane, Topeka; Wm. Dill.

—Capt. Nelson D. Bush, nominated for the Legislature in the 13th ward of New Orleans, by Republicans, is a member and recording stewards of Valence street Methodist Episcopal Church, and enjoys the respect and confidence of his people.

—The New York East Conference elected to the General Conference: D. Curry, J. M. Buckley, D. A. Goodsell, A. S. Hunt, and B. M. Adams. Judge Reynolds, of Brooklyn, and Oliver Hoyt, of Sanford, were chosen as lay delegates.

—The Rev. Dr. W. H. Potter, of the Western Advocate, the Rev. Dr. I. G. John, of the Texas Advocate, and the Rev. C. B. Galloway D D., editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, have been appointed delegates of the American Evangelical Alliance to the General Conference to be held in Stockholm, Sweden.

—The Texas Methodist Advocate notes that Hon. John V. Farwell, of Chicago, one of the syndicate building the new capitol at Austin, made a brief business visit to that city. He found his way to Central M E Church, and heartily engaged in the class meeting. On invitation he addressed the congregation, to their delight and profit. He is a very wealthy man, yet an earnest follower of Jesus.

—Of the Southern Methodis bishops in session at Nashville, Tenn. the Advocate says: "Bishop Pierce looks thin and rather feeble; Bishop McTyeire is robust; Bishop Keener 'holds his own;' Bishop Wilson is regaining his usual vigor after his recent attack; Bishop Parker is bronzed by itinerancy in Texas, but looks stout, serene, and hopeful; Bishop Granbery comes to the annual meeting in his usual health; Bishop Hargrove is ruddy, strong, and ready to go anywhere."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

Jacob Marshall, Sherman, "We have a very good little Sabbath-school. Bro. Jackson is the pastor this year, and has met all of the members at their homes. We have no house to worship in. He has walked five miles to visit a member and I believe he is worthy of support, a whole souled man. I thought of moving, but have concluded to stay here a while longer."

W. J. Mitchell, Bremond: "I have some grand brethren on this work. The first quarterly conference at Long Branch was a glorious occasion. The elder is much loved, and we have promised him $55 this year, an increase. We are making our mission school interesting. Mrs. Mary A. Perkins, from Central Tennessee College, gives general satisfaction as a teacher. There are three appointments, and all are pushing upward. We are preparing to build a church at Bremond to cost $800."

A. Jackson, Denison: "Elder S. Gates held my quarterly conference, reports were good. We have a good Sunday-shool. Paid elder $5.25; pastor $22.85, on indebtedness $20. The elder preached on Sunday, and administered sacrament to 30 on Monday night."

Spencer Kelley, Wallisville: "Our first quarterly conference was held by Elder Lee; 30 were present at communion. We have four Sunday-schools, which are improving. Elder's collection $12.20."

H. King, Leona: "We are pleased with our pastor, and hope for much success."

C. W. Campell, Huntston, April 8: "We have received $6.50 from Bro. A. Alexander, of Planterville circuit, for the insurance of Houston Seminary; good for Planterville circuit, good for Bro. Alexander! Who next? To-day we have the largest attendance since the school was organized."

H. Harris, Lockhart: "My work is moving along nicely, have closed a protracted meeting at one of my points, with 25 conversions. Will collect all benevolent claims."

S. Horn, Marion circuit: "The storm or cyclone that happened on the 25th inst., blew the roof off my horse before I or my family could get out; it did not hurt any one but there was a distressing time for a little while. This happened at E. D. Hubbard's where I am living. Considerable damage was done to property in the neighborhood. The brethren have gone to work this morning to put up my house."

LOUISIANA.

S. R. Hason, Allen: "I arrived here on my work February 19th. I found the people doing very well They seemed to receive me with gratitude. On my first Sunday at Hason church I received 9 probationers. I desire you our prayers for my circuit's success. I am in the building.

T. G. Montgomery, First Street church, New Orleans: "I am glad to say the Lord was with us, and we had a glorious time. We have received 11 in full membership and 4 on probation. The brethren have raised some money to repair the church gallery for the singing band, the work will be commenced soon, Two clases have united to raise money for other purposes, all to improve the church.

The temperance cause connected with the Sixth Street Methodist Episcopal Church and congregation in this city is moving on strongly and harmoniously. Last Tuesday six were initiated into the Good Templars Society. Sabbath April 20th, there is to be a grand union of all the colored lodges in this city, and a sermon will be preached on the subject of temperance by Rev. M. C. B. Mason. All the friends of temperance are cordially invited to attend. There is certainly need of a great temperance revival in New Orleans. Come and help us in this good work.

Bro. Ford is having a good time spiritually. He began a revival on the 7th and up to this writing there are 13 anxious souls at the altar. The church is also enjoying the revival services splendidly. We look for good things from Clinton Street this year.

TENNESSEE.

J. Bradford, Clifton: "Elder Price held our quarter and gave our people one of the best sermons, advocating the duties of benevolent collections and education. The elder's quarterlage was fully paid; the pastor was paid $47. There was something collected for benevolences, and two joined the church. The high water hinders the farmers and the business of the town."

B. B. Manson, Lebanon: "I am engaged in a protracted meeting. We have had pretty good success, 38 conversions, and 19 additions to the church, and we are expecting others to unite with us."

G. J. Wilcox, Copleville: "The second quarterly conference was held at St. John, March 15, we had a happy time. On Sunday Elder Price gave a lecture to the Sunday-school, held a love-feast and preached at 11 a. m.; two joined the church, 76 were at communion. Collection for the elder $11.05.

Col. Stevenson's Letter.

To the Voters of the State of Louisiana: I have accepted the nomination of the Conservative Republicans of this State, for Governor, and at the same time atimated that I would address a letter declaring more explicitly the objects I sought to aid by my acceptance. Except in their bearing on our State, there is no need to speak at length in relation to national matters. Our home affairs and the dangers with which we are threatened should be paramount at this time. The party which has been in power the last seven years has had abundant opportunity to demonstrate its policy and the effects of its rule upon our State. It is divided into hostile factions of ring combinations, nearly equal, having public plunder and the personal advancement of their chiefs for a chief object, so that the true interests of the State are dwarfed and held secondary to mercenary aims and party rule. The revision of the tariff, now pending in Congress, taken in connection with the Mexican reciprocity treaty just passed, claims the anxious attention of our citizens, and it is time to call a halt, and see if we are not being led to ruin; to lay by party prejudices, and consider whether our representatives and rulers have not been playing into the hands of the enemies of the vital interests of our State.

Our State is peculiarty situated. About one half of it is adapted to the cultivation of sugar and rice, and not to anything else of sufficient importance to replace them. The capital employed in them is threatened with almost total loss; and thousands of persons with loss of homes and employment.

With regard to North Louisiana she can and ought to bear no more than her just share of the public burdens. The State cannot be divided in interest. The prosperity of the whole depends upon all its parts, especially those of such magnitude as are affected by the present state of affairs. The ruin of one part is the ruin of another.

What can remedy these things if the weak and inefficient levee system of our State be continued, and a policy of anti-protection and anti-local aid for public works on the part of the General Government prevails with the concurrence of our pretented Representatives?

Under the rule of the Democratic party, the educational system and school interests generally, have been neglected; their financial support gradually reduced or taken away. The compensation of teachers and their number have been reduced. The public schools are closed during a large portion of the year in the country.

The vital interests of the State are thus committed to one party, and a selfish faction of that party, and it is expected to stifle opposition by denunciations and allusions to issues long past and never more to be of any practical importance to our people. To allow the State of Louisiana further to foster this one party policy, promises but ruin and desolation. We must look to some organization for help. The Republican party stands ready to give our products the protection we need and maintain what we have; its policy favors river improvements the most liberal, aid to levees, and even to our school fund from the National Treasury. There is on taint of free trade, anti-public improvements, or anti-free schools upon its banner. It has no narrow, contracted policy, but promises to all an equal share of the national prosperity. Shall we lie supinely on our backs and not accept it? Shall we continue to follow the politicians who have allied us, presuming party feelings would make us blind, with the enemies of our State and its interests? Shall they cast sand in our eyes by reviving to our view the rancors and discords of the past, when the good men of all sections are casting them off and looking serenely to a national future full of hope and prosperity, in which Louisiana is entitled to its full share, and has nothing to do but join hands with the friends of progress, protection, education and improvement?

Free trade means ruin to sugar and rice.

Free trade means a leveling of the wages of the working man to the level of the overworked, half paid and half fed competition in like industries in Europe. Louisiana not only wants protection as stated, but she wants to see carried out a river policy that will give security against devastating floods such as are now upon us. Louisiana's whole interest lies with the Republican party. It is the party of progress; the party of action. Local prejudices should not longer warp the sober judgment of our people. Issues that engendered race animosities ten years ago, have become so faint that they may be numbered with things of the past. They no longer play a part in politics, except as a cheap capital to be used by demagogues, to frighten weak-reasoning partisans into line.

In conclusion, fellow-citizens, I will say that at the coming election I hope to hear you speak in no unmistaken terms to the ring and canons combination in our State, that stands between the people and a free expression of the will of the majority, and let your voice be loud enough to reach to the halls of Congress, and our Representatives be told that Louisiana does not approve their course in rejecting reciprocal aid protecting her interest, and that she is not, by any means, ready to be delivered over to free trade principles.

Such are my views as an old citizen of Louisiana, with no earthly interest but in and with her, and only hoping to promote her deliverance and prosperity.

JOHN A. STEVENSON.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON III. April 20. PAUL'S PREACHING: (1 Corinthians i, 17-31)

1. Salvation the gift and work of God. With what clear and powerful statements does the apostle exhibit this! It cuts off completely any claim of humanity's ability to save itself, yet not in such a way as to cut off humanity's proper share in the work of salvation.

2. The weakness and offensiveness of the Gospel means of salvation. The Jew stumbled here, the Greek was led to disregard it by its simplicity. In all ages it is a stumbling block.

3. The true relation of ministers to the Word preached, and the duty of the Church to regard it. No one, in particular, of them is essential to the success of the Gospel in general, nor in a single place. It is an abuse to contend about and over them. All true ministers are Christ's.

4. Indications as to the nature of real preaching. That which merely charms either by its profundity, its philosophy, or by attractiveness of form or utterance is of more than doubtful genuineness; it makes the faith of the hearers to stand in the wisdom of men and not in the power of God.

5. The need of a Christ. Apart from him neither philosophers nor scribes could find salvation, how could it be expected that the unlearned should? Even if the higher classes had attained to it, the masses would have found is inaccessible to them.

6. The gloriousness of the relation of believers of Christ. They owe all things to him included in redemption, and enjoy through him pardon, freedom, purity, love, and eternal salvation.—Western.

The Colored Public Schools of New Orleans.

With but a few honorable exceptions, the public school system in operation among the colored people in this city is but a shameful farce, and a disgrace to the city. This fact is self-evident to any casual observer who has seen the progress of the colored children in the schools in other cities where anything like justice is shown to the colored schools. For years we have looked with suppressed indignation at the gross injustice that has been, and that is still being perpetrated against our people in this matter. The school buildings provided are in many instances unconscionable, dilapidated and dangerous, and almost, if not always, inferior to those provided for the whites. Furniture is generally unsightly, and sometimes second-hand, having been used in other schools until there considered worn out for white children. And in some instances we have known of good furniture taken out of colored schools, furniture that had been provided when this State had a Republican form of government, and substituted by second-hand furniture taken out of white schools. In the matter of the class of teachers employed, the case is worse, if anything. They are generally inferior, made up of persons who teach "for a living," independent of proper qualifications; and, when qualified, scarcely take any interest in the children committed to their care. Indeed, we know children going to the public schools who there forget what they had previously learned at select schools. The reason for this is due largely to the fact that the children are mostly all taught by white teachers who do not care for the colored children, who do not sympathize with them, and who, at heart, are opposed to the education of colored people, while they are pre[illegible] to it. convention at length. He thought the new departure will do the Republican party of Georgia much good. That party, within the past few years had lost nearly all its power, and would get along better if whites and blacks held conventions apart. Corn and wheat flourished best in separate patches. There could be no harmony in mixed conventions. A committee of three appointed on permanent organization reported in favor of William Markham, as chairman, W. L. Clark, permanent secretary, and appointing one vice president from each congressional district. Messrs. Longstreet, Norwood, Smith were appointed to prepare business for the convention. The committee reported a series of resolutions for a free ballot, a fair count, honest returns, civil service reform, judicious protective tariff, Blair's educational bill, inviting Northern and Western speakers to address the people of the South, and indorsing the administration of President Arthur. They were adopted.

For Pulpit Scolds.

A certain minister, who belonged to the fault-finding, scolding tribe, having exhausted the patience of several churches, was called to a fresh field. For a little while "all went merry as a marriage bell." But the ruling passion soon began to betray itself, and Sunday after Sunday he plied the whip with merciless fury, until only a few of the more faithful put in an appearance to receive their portion of something that was not "meat in due season."

At the conclusion of one of his excoriating harangues, a worthy deacon invited him to his house to take dinner. After finishing a bountiful repast, which is always the time a thoughtful man chooses to perform a delicate service, he very quietly asked his pastor if he had ever read and carefully studied John's account of the interview between our Lord and Peter, and other disciples, after his resurrection?

"O, yes," said he, "I have often read it with profit."

"Well," said the deacon, "suppose I turn to it, and read it over carefully?"

"O, no," said the pastor, "I can repeat it all from memory."

"But," persisted the deacon, "I prefer reading it now."

So the book was opened at the place, and the deacon began: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He said unto him, Feat my lambs! He saith unto him the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He said unto him, Maul my sheep. He said unto him, the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said to him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he saith unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Lar-rup my sheep!"

The good deacon closed the book with great gravity, saying, "No matter how the story ended."

Instead of being tortured by his inquisitors Mr. Barksdale should have prized the opportunity to hurl in their faces the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth about the statements of the white citizens of Copiah, of the State, and of all the Southern States. That truth is that they will not submit to negro leaders. Rather than do that they will kill them. This is the simple, valuable truth, and the sooner the whole country is prepared to accept it, that the two races may adjust their own relations, the better for all. That is no threat, for any white people on God's earth would do the very same thing under similar circumstances. The whites of Massachutts would not be nearly so patient as the whites of Mississippi have been.—Vicksburg Commercial Herald.

Vital Questions

Ask the most eminent physician.

Of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves and curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always.

And they will tell you unhesitatingly,

"Some form of Hops!"

CHAPTER I.

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians:

What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs, such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to women.

And they will tell you explicitly and emphatically, "Buchu"

Ask the same physicians:

What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fever, ague, etc., and they will tell you:

"Mandrake, or Dandelion"

Hence, when these remedies are combined with others equally valuable,

And compounded into Hop Bitters such a wonderful and mysterious curative power is developed which is so varied in its operations that no disease or ill health can possibly exist or resist its power, and yet it is

The Daily Christian Advocate

The forthcoming General Conference promises to be one of great interest It is the closing General Conference of the first Centnry of organized American Methodism. Its reports from every department of our widely-extended work, and the suggestions of plans and recommendations of methods for enlarging the work at home and abroad; the presence and addresses of distinguished Fraternal messengers from other religious bodies, some of them from beyond the sea, and of eminent missionaries connected with our various foreign mission fields; and the discussions by the many able and influential delegates, lay and clerical, representing nearly a hundred different Annual Conference), of the many great questions which are to be considered at this transition period of our Church history, are sure to engage the attention of our people in all parts of the world.

In order to respond to the demands of this enlarged and increasing interest, and thus give to all our people the earliest, and most ample reports, the Agents of the Book Concerns at New York and Cincinnati will publish The Daily Christian Advocate, to be issued every morning, Sundays excepted, during the entire General Conference session. It will furnish reliable reports of every item of interest in the doings of that highest legislative and judicial ecclesiastical body, also of the sermons and addresses of the distinguished fraternal representative and visitors. It will print numerous pen-and-ink sketches of distinguished delegates, lay and clerical, and of fraternal representatives and visitors present, and will give in each number a summary of the latest telegraphic and other Church and secular news received up to the hour of going to press.

The Daily will be under the editorial supervision of Dr. W. H. De Puy who, in his editorial experience, extending through a score of years in connection with our Church papers, and including three different volumes of the Daily Christian Advocate, is well known to the Church. He will have able and experienced assistants, and no effort will be omitted either in the Editorial or Publishing Departments to make the paper as complete, attractive, instructive, and of as great permanent value, as possible.

The first number of The Daily Christian Advocate (an eight-page, neatly printed folio) will be issued at Philadelphia on Thursday morning, May 1, 1884; and the volume will end with the number issued on the day following the close of the General Conference session. The last number will contain an ample and well-arranged table of contents, for the convenience of the many of our ministers and people who will desire to preserve the whole volume for future and frequent reference. The price will be $1.50, postage prepaid by the Publishers.

We respectfully and earnestly request all preachers to bring the paper immediately before their people, and either personally or by proxy make a thorough canvass of their congregations. Let the names be forwarded by April 1, if possible, and certainly by the middle of the month, as it is important to have our mail-list so complete that there shall be no complaint by subscribers not receiving promptly their first number. In no instance should any subscription list, however small, be delayed in order to send by some delegate or visitor to the General Conference.

Bad Case of St, Vitus Dance.

Minister, is the singular name of a town situated in Auglaize Co., Ohio. It is the residence of Mr. J. Brandewie, who writes "Samaritan Nervine permanently cured my son of a bad case of St. Vitus Dance." $1.50.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

In the issue of the Current of April 19, will be begun a short serial entitled "The Grimms." It is based on the incidents of the terrible Pittsburg riots of 1877, and not only presents a strong picture of the life and surroundings of the "mill-men," but, from its clear and analytic development of character, illustrates that even from desperate and almost hopeless surroundings may come brighter and happier conditions.

Two new serials will begin in the May St. Nicholas, one by Maurice Thompson, entitled "Marvin and his Boy Hunters," in which the author will endeavor to treat the question of guns for small boys; and the other, "The Scarlet Tanager," by J. T. Trowbridge, the story of the adventures of a young naturalist in his efforts to secure a specimen of this rare bird.

A striking literary feature of the May Century will be Julian Hawthorne's paper on "The Salem of Hawthorne," in which the scenes of Nathaniel Hawthorne's daily life and of his romances are described with a personal knowledg and an insight which only a literary son could command. Incidentally, much new light is thrown on the character of the father and on the relations of his scenes and his people to real places and persons. Harry Fenn has made several pictures for the paper.

The numbers of The Living Age for March 29th and April 5th, contain The Aristocracy of Letters, National Review; My Schooldays from 1830 to 1840, The Brutes and their Master, and The Exile in Siberia, Nineteenth Century; Frederick Denison Maurice, Contemporary; Glimpses of the Soudan, Fortnightly; James Hope Scott, Macmillan; The American School of Classical Studies at Athens, Spectator; The Monk-Fish, Nature; The Fabric of Westminster Abbey, Times; The Epitaph on the Countess of Pembroke, Academy, with the conclusion of "The Wizard's Son," instalments of "Gracie," "The Modern Grandmother," "Phœbe," and "A Vendetta" and poetry. The number for April 5th begins the 161st Volume. Subscription price $8. Littell & Co., Boston publishers.

The Art Union for March is No. 3 of this official journal of the American Art Union. There are several fine sketches, and miscellany adapted to all artists. Price 25 cents.

Fords, Howard & Hulbert, of New York send us in pamphlet form "A Circuit of the Continent," the Thanksgiving discourse of Henry Ward Beecher, describing his trip of last year through the West and South. Price 10 cents.

The American Antiquarian is always filled with curious and interesting information relative to ancient peoples, as obtained from mounds, picture writing, and the rocks and plains of the continent. Price $4 per year. Chicago: F. H. Revel, 150 Madison street.

The Musical Herald, of Boston, for April, describes the dulcimer, Aolian harp, the rise of the Sonata, and all the currents of the musical world. Price 10 cents, or $1.00 per year.

The Ladies Choral Cabinet for April has an interesting paper on "Why Seeds Fail to Grow," and some pages on the subject of home decorations, illustrated. Price 12 cents.

The Nashville Journal of Medicine and Surgery is published by H. A. Haselock, at $2 per year. It is edited by C. S. Briggs, M.D. It is a publication of value to the medical profession. The April number has an appreciative obituary of Dr. Yandell of Louisville.

The Season for May, just received from the International News Co. New York is richly illustrated with the latest fashion plates and patterns. Price 30 cents.

From the edition of Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory, now in press, it appears that the newspapers and periodicals of all kinds at present issued in the United States and Canada reach a grand total of 13,402. This is a net gain of precisely 1,000 during the last twelve months, and exhibits an increase of 5,618 over the total number published just ten years since.

D. A. WILLIAMS, P. E.

OKOLONA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The District Conference and Sabbath-school Convention will commence at Tupelo, July 3. We hope to have a large representation of both members of the conference and convention. The committee on programme of religious and literary exercises will publish the programme in due time, but we hope that each pastor in the district will come to the conference prepared to make a report of the amount apportioned to the charge this year for benevolent purposes by the committees, and what amounts have been raised; also how many SOUTHWESTERNS taken in each church and congregation. We will publish the reports in the SOUTHWESTERN. Go to work, brethren, and do your duty; don't say "I will pay a dollar in the fall." The conference at its session held in Jackson, Jan. 16, 1884, did away with publishing the names of those paying one dollar or more in the conference journal.

D. A. WILLIAMS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

To the ministers of the Mississippi Conference—The full amount apportioned to our conference to help defray expenses of the General Conference has not all been raised yet. We have a few days left and it is hoped, dear brethren, that the entire amount, $100, be raised. The Mississippi Conference should not fall behind upon this occasion. Give the money to your presiding elder by the 20th inst., at least, and he will send it to the proper place.

Fraternally yours,

MARSHALL DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The committee, to arrange a programme for Marshall District Conference, consisting of Presiding Elder H. Webb, Pro. W. H. Davis, Rev. W. Wesley and R. H. Harbert, met at 4 o'clock at Wiley University and determined upon the following programme;

Opening Sermon—Presiding Elder G. W. Smith.

Sunday-schools and Church Music—R. H. Harbert.

Work of Freedman's Aid Society—P. Douglass.

Was John's Baptism Christian Baptism?—F. Parker.

Doings of the General Conference—W. Wesley.

Church Extension—T. Moore.

How can we do the most good with our Missionary appropriations? — V. M. Cole.

Whether it is better to have small or large circuits—S. Horne.

Temperance—A. W. Parker and W. H. Davis.

Use of Tobacco among ministers —L. Woodward.

Seventh commandment—H. Johns.

Is it better, on circuits, to preach at one point only each Sunday or at more than one?—G. W. Norris.

Christian Perfection—S. Conley.

Revivals—H. Smith and W. Pollard.

How can we secure the attendance of our sons and daughters at our own schools—W. Ripeue.

The conference opens on Tuesday night at Ebenezer church. Every preacher is expected to be prepared on his subject. Local preachers, exhorters, District stewards and class leaders from each pastoral charge, are expected to be in attendance. A model Sunday-school will be held each day and questions of vital importance discussed. It is the week of the closing exercises of Wiley University and with one and the same expense both can be enjoyed. R. H. HARBERT, Secretary.

The Case of George R. Bristor, D. D.

Dr. Bristor appeared at the Newark Conference in answer to a bill of charges of gross immorality, containing forty pecifications. One of the most thorough committees was appointed by Bishop Andrews. Dr. Jacob Todd, late of Philadelphia, now pastor of St. Paul's Church, Newark, N. J., was designated as Chairman. After a very long and searching trial the committee unanimously found twenty of the specifications sustained beyond the possibility of a doubt. Dr. Bristor was expelled from the ministry and membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church. As his counsel gave notice of an appeal to the Judicial Conference, we shall defer comments till the appeal is heard.

The sequel to the action of the Rev. Joseph Knowles in this case shows that it was legal, judicious, and kind. In the most trying position he was true to the interests committed to him. — New York Christian Advocate.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Panperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to possess a magnificent Standard steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends..... 22x28
Shakespeare and his Friends..... 22x28
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits..... 22x28
Landing of the Pilgrims..... 22x28
Departure of the Pilgrims..... 22x28
Farmer's Saturday Night..... 22x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's..... 22x34

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

The report of the superintendent of public instruction in the State of Indiana for 1883 shows 719,935 as entitled to school privileges. There are enrolled as attending the public schools 560,669. The average daily attendance is only 301,167. The total number of school houses in the State is 9,809, valued at $444,225 85. There are 6,096 school teachers employed. The average wages of the males is $51.46; for males $35.80 per month.

In Republican conventions of the Eastern States Blaine and Lincoln are leading very strongly. Great opposition to President Arthur is manifested in New York. It is not impossible that the name of Gen. Grant will be presented at Chicago, and to settle the conflicting claims of the lesser statesmen of the Republican party. Grant and Lincoln would be [illegible] names with which to [illegible] the best political elements of the country.

Kentucky citizen this Cincinnati Jungle-Book Keeper Woolley most effectually illustrates the absurdity of demanding the trial of members of juries and lawyers and them hurling [illegible] a jury of the most ignorant [illegible] than anything [illegible] since the Cincinnati riot. Selecting juries from a class of [illegible] is not half so much a [illegible] disgrace. Cincinnati [illegible] the wind and has reaped the whirlwind. Other cities will do well to heed this warning. In New Orleans our danger is not so much from the [illegible] element as the [illegible] of the intelligent class.

We are indebted to Hon. Dorman B. Eaton for a copy of the "First Annual Report of the United States Civil Service Commission." It is a valuable document. The facts and principles are not [illegible] incomplete, but they are sufficient to establish the success of the system; of its [illegible] to no [illegible]. Postmaster-General Gresham says: "[illegible] has produced [illegible] satisfactory. Chief Clerk Chandler says: "[illegible] very [illegible]." MISSISSIPPI.

L. L. Crump, Kosciusko: "The first quarterly conference was held by Dr. Revels. Pastor's salary estimated at $300; elders $34; bishop $2; claimants $1.50. The Sunday-school, under Superintendent C. Bell, with Miss Jennie Scott of Tougaloo University, as teacher [illegible] pastor [illegible] Revels [illegible] J. M. [illegible] conducted the love [illegible] at 3 p. m., and administered the sacrament, then he ascended the pulpit and reminded the people of the needs of Rust University. Collection $18.75."

MISSISSIPPI.

L. H. Neville, Hazlehurst: "I arrived at charge Feb. 2. The brothers met me at the depot. I found my work in a fair condition, and we are doing very well. Our first quarterly conference convened at Brookhaven March 22. Our beloved elder preached but sorry to say that our elder could not preach on account of sore throat, yet we had a great time. Apportionment for the charge this year, for pastor $300; for elder $40; for missions $6; for Church Extension 10; for Freedmen's Aid Society $1; for education $2; for Tract Society $1; for Sunday-school Union $1.50. The rain was so that only about 20 were out to take the Lord's supper. We had a general out pouring of the Holy Ghost upon us. We intend to do more this year for the advancement of our Redeemer's Kingdom and spreading of Methodism than ever before in our lives."

A. M. Trotter, Grenada: "I am entering my third and last year's work as pastor of this church, and if the conference should extend the pastoral term(?) to four years would be pleased to stay longer. For here we have some earnest workers for Christ. The prospect for this year's work is good. Last night I was pleased to see four backsliders retake their seats again to go with the people of God. Elder [illegible] was within the 3 [illegible] mat. He was highly pleased with our Sabbath-school, which promises to do much in lifting our people to a higher standard of Christian knowledge and influence. The preaching [illegible] Sunday at 3 p. m. will be [illegible] remembered, [illegible] services were well attended. [illegible] took the Lord's supper with [illegible] to a large number of [illegible] and communicants below [illegible] the occasion was [illegible] refreshing. Pray for us."

J. Garrett, Forest: "Our quarterly conference was held by J. M. Stockport. Stewards reported paid pastor $54.40; elder $6.55. The [illegible] estimated for pastor [illegible], elder $12; for benevolent [illegible] $36.50; missions $4; Church Extension $2; Freedmen's Aid Society $10; education $6.50; Tract Society $1; Sunday-school Union $1. The colored people [illegible] doing well in Caldwell [illegible]."

R. J. Dickens, Jewett: "My work is in bad condition. I found only 14 members; no house at either place. Elder Smith met me and had no house to hold the quarter in. I will have a church lot in a few days, and if the Church Extension will assist us we will soon have a house erected. Pray for us."

W. Hamilton, Hearn: "Elder W. B. Pullam held our second quarterly conference, and at night preached a sermon full of gospel light, which all present seemed to enjoy. I also preached a sermon at night and administered the Lord's supper. The collection was as follows: For the pastor $12; for elder $3.25; for rent $3; traveling and moving expenses, $8; for building purposes $68.74; total $107.80. The number that joined the church during the quarter was 38."

Thos. Cole, Calvert: "My second quarterly conference was held by Rev. J. L. Smith. The brethren of the Franklin work were well pleased, and the children of the Sunday-school were glad to meet one who loved children. Bro. Smith gave the Lord's supper, and his sermon brought six of our Baptist brethren to the table. He preached at Chapel Hill at 8 p. m., and 33 mourners came to the mercy seat; 3, at this writing, have confessed a hope in Christ, and many such are at the pool waiting. I have received into full connection 9, baptized 10 infants and 11 adults, 20 conversions, 10 on probation; unconverted 12; 1 by letter; 3 backsliders; 2 from the Baptist and 1 from the A. M. E. Church. Raised $118; $6 for presiding elder, ($7 not included second quarter); $23.60 for pastor, 2 bells and $51.50 on hand to repair the Chapel Hill church. Pray for my success, as I am between the hawk and owl and both think I am a chicken. There are two Sabbath schools on the work."

GEORGIA.

Since the opening of our School of Theology, several married students, with small families, have entered. Others have arranged to come next year. They are intelligent, earnest young men who are anxious to take advantage of the opportunities here offered. As they cannot, with their families, room at Gaulmon Hall, the difficulty is for them to find suitable homes. Houses near here are scarce, and the rents are high. For two ordinary rooms, the yearly rental is sixty dollars. This makes a heavy drain upon their small resources. It is more than they can afford. Yet they even show themselves ready to suffer, in order to get a better preparation for the important work to which God has called them. To give relief, Dean Thirkield has gained permission to erect some cottages on the grounds south of the Theological hall. With the aid of the School of Carpentry, neat, comfortable cottages can be built for $200. One is now in process of erection. A half-dozen ought to be provided. This is built on his own responsibility, but he hopes this summer, to raise funds to help him out in this good work. He has faith that his friends in the north will come to his aid in this important enterprise. There are few investments of money that pay 30 per cent, as this will do. A small rental to keep up insurance and repairs, will be charged. Let our generous friends help us to build several of these houses, which will enable both the young preachers and their wives to enjoy the advantages of the university.—Elevator.

Satisfy your thirst for knowledge by reading from authors of experience in usefulness; satisfy your thirst for pleasure by seeking that kind which has no tendency to degrade, and which you could with propriety, invite your dearest friend to, and which your conscience tells you God would wholly approve of; satisfy your thirst for drink with that beverage prepared by God alone to nourish and invigorate his creatures, pure cold water.—Rural Lantern.

By contracting a severe Cough and Cold, I was compelled to give up my business and keep to the house. A neighbor recommended me to try a bottle of Dr. Ball's Cough Syrup; it was procured and used; to my astonishment relief was instantaneous. Edw. W. Clayton, Waverly, Md.

Navasota District.

The district conference of the Navasota district convened at Hempstead March 20, 1884. Rev. W. B. Pullam, P. E. in the chair. The conference was opened with reading Scripture and prayer by the P. E. Roll called and a majority responded to their names. On motion John L. Smith was elected secretary, and was allowed to choose his assistants, and named Thomas Cole and J. E. Shackelford. The presiding elder addressed the conference on the subject of pastoral labor and Sunday-schools. First to the pastors respecting their duties as pastors, he urged that the rules of the church be enforced, and that the local preachers, exhorters, and all the members of the church attend the Sabbath-school. He also urged that the pastor and his wife take an active part in the Sunday-school. Again he urged that the pastors would not be so lazy as to give all the mornihg to the work of Sunday-school and thus deprive the older people of an 11 o'clock sermon; He urged that they meet the Sunday-school at 9 o'clock and class at 10:35 o'clock. After this address the committees were appointed as follows: first, examination of candidates for license to preach: J. E. Shackelford, W. Hamilton and B. M. Taylor; second examination of local preachers in each of the four years course of study: Enoch Jefferson, J. E. Shackelfrod and A. Alexander. Home mission work the preachers in charge. The amount for benevolent purposes, was presented by the presiding elder urging each preacher to see that the amount is raised. The committee on the programme for literary exercises, for the next meeting: B. M. Taylor, W. H. Jackson and John L. Smith. The presiding elder made his report of the district; the report was favorable showing the district still growing, temporally and spiritually. All the pastors made favorable reports, except Prairie Plains. Rev. E. D. Bookman, was not present because of high water, he sent his report by mail. Rev. K. Williams, of the A. M. E. Church, was introduced to the conference. On motion a committee was appointed to assist the secretary in preparing the minutes for publication, consisting of Revs. J. E. Shackelford, and B. M. Taylor. Rev. M. H. Nichols, former presiding elder, visited the conference. On motion the case of Samuel Dupree was called and refered to a committee for trial, as follows: Elijah Jefferson, Major Reedy, J. H. Holland, J. A. Tillery and Simon Thorman. Rev. J. K. Loggin was appointed chairman in the case. The committee found him guilty and recommended that he be expelled from the church. The Rev. C. W. Campell was introduced to the conference and addressed the conference in the interest of the school, showing the risk the building is in without the insurance, after which the brethren subscribed as follows:

Millican, John L. Smith, $3; Navasota district, W. B. Pullam, presiding elder, $3; Brenham, J. K. Loggin, $5; Brenham circuit, W. H. Jackson, $2; Bryan, B. M. Taylar, $2; Franklin, Thos. Cole, $3; Baldwell circuit, Abner Thomas, $3; Patterson circuit, F. Gilmore, $3; Hempstead, E. Jefferson, $5; Anderson, D. Frierson, $3; Bellville circuit, R. J. Campbell, $2; Hearne, W. Hamilton, $3; Bryan circuit, L. Felder, $3.50; Plantersville, A. Alexander, $3.50; Courtney circuit, T. Snell, $3; Iola circuit, F. D. Bookman, $3; Prairie Plain, L. Horn, $3; Navisota Station, J. E. Shackelford, $6; Burleson circuit, S. Alton, $1; J. E. Gibson, $1; San Felipe, J. H. Holland, $2; J. Bobs, $1; S. Thurman, 50c.

The above subscription was taken to pay the insurance for three years. The Rev. J. H. Carter, of the West Texas conference was introdduced to the conference.

The case of Bro. Daniel Atkins was investigated, and nothing found against him. The committee on examination of candidates for license to preach, reported in the case of Bro. James Washington and D. Hoggans, and recommend that they remain in the same relation. The appointments for Local preachers and exhorters, Bellville circuit, Richard Grove; H. Smith, Buck Horn; T. Jackson, Richard Grove and Scaggus chapel; J. Neal, Richard Grove; C. Mitchell, Bethlehem and Easely chapel; N. Thomas, Pleasant Grove and Pinole chapel; Z. Lawrence, Asbury and Mount Calvary; Ed. Blackwell and C. Singleton, Hutchison Place; P. A. Yarborough, Mount Calvary; H. Stubblefield and A. Chatman, Wilkinson and Bryan; S. Thurman, Boonville, E. Jefferson.

The reports of local preachers, and exhorters were called for and reported favorably. The class leaders reports were called for and reported favorably, with some exceptions of those who were absent. The following resolutions were introduced:

1. Resolved, That this district conference heartily endorse the work of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and its visits to our homes, and that we recommend that each member of the district take the paper as it is the only organ that proclaims our rights.

2. Resolved, That we ask the editor not to leave out the important facts here stated for the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN, from the Navasota district.

La Fourch District.

DEAR BRO.—I desire to give you a summary of the several points on my district. I left New Orleans on the 27th of February to make my first quarterly round. Taking the train on the Pacific road, I stopped off at St. John and St. Charles, where I was met by Bro. Payne, the pastor in charge. Having held his quarterly coference, and finding everything in peace and harmony, the pastor full of hope and the people full of zeal, I left for White Hall. I met Bro. Hilton at his post, striving earnestly to make his first year at White Hall a successful one. The outlook is very favorable, hence, we may expect a very prosperous year for Bro. Hilton. He is also devoting all of his energies to the erection of a parsonage.

Leaving this station I came to Darrowville, a very extensive circuit, and bids fair in the future to become very valuable to the church. Bro. Bowers is the pastor in charge. The people received him kindly, and promised a hearty support in all his operations.

Leaving Darrowville I came to Donaldsonville, where I met Bro. Smith very happy, having been sent back by the bishop to complete his third year. He is doing all he can to make this his last year the most successful of the three. The prospect is very flattering, and the people of his charge have pledged themselves to help him to accomplish this object.

My next point is Boyou Goula, where I found Bro. Robinson, very much encouraged. Notwithstanding the feebleness of this charge the Bro. is full of hope, and proposes to do a grand work, this year for the Master.

From Bayou Goula I returned to Donaldsonville. Finding that I had to change my mode of traveling, I embarked the next morning and sailing down the Bayou La Fourche, reached Napoleonville. Here Bro. T. McCarrey is stationed for his second year, and is in the midst of a very successful one. Already he is negotiating to erect a new church on a site four miles from his present charge. If he should succeed, which I have every reason to believe that he will, this point will be a strong hold.

Down the Bayou is Woodlawn. The pastor is Bro. J. W. Lewis, who is here for the first year. The outlook is encouraging, every thing was in order at the quarterly conference. Bro. Lewis is preparing to complete the improvements commenced by his predecessor.

Hence I came to Thibodaux, and met Bro. Davage, the pastor in charge. Reports being in order held his quarterly conference. Bro. Davage is full of hope, and very much pleased with his new appointment. The thing which is needed here is a parsonage, and Bro. Davage is making speedy preperations to erect one. This addition will make Thibodaux quite a valuable and important charge.

From Thibodaux, I came by way of train to Terrebonne and met Bro. Carr hard at work in the third year. He proposes by God's help and his people's co-operation to make this the best year of the three, and from what I can see everything is favorable.

At Houma I met Bro. A. N. Jackson deeply engaged, planning to make his year a successful one, and the prospect is that he will succeed.

From the town of Houma, twenty miles in the woods, is Dulce a beautiful situation held by Bro. Claiborne who is very much beloved by the people. There is evidence of good work in the past and a prospect of better in the future.

Returning to Houma, having missed the train, I remained over night, and preached for Bro. Jackson. Boarding the train on the morrow, and flashing rapidly up the Morgan railroad, I came to Morgan City, where Bro. Armstead is stationed for his second year. The overflow threatens Morgan City, and if the water rises as rapidly as it has been I fear it will demoralize the work at this point. Bro. Armstead though is very hopeful, and is waiting on the salvation of the Lord.

Leaving Morgan City, my next station is Centreville, Bro. S. Evans is the pastor, in charge, working under very favorable auspices. I predict that this year will be one of very great success.

At Bayou Sale I found that Bro. Coleman that had been away to remove his things. This is a very feeble charge and much cannot be expected of it, but the outlook seems grand, and the few members are in good spirits.

At Franklin, Bro. J. W. Hilton is the pastor in charge. I found him moving on grandly, everything in harmony. The people are very much satisfied with their new pastor, and the fact is there is very prosperous year can be expected.

Taking a buggy in company with Bro. Hilton, of Franklin, we drove five miles and came to Latreche. At Latreche, Bro. Lyon has done two years hard and substantial work. He is now winding up his third year. The church is in a healthy condition. The pastor and people are determined to make this year the most successful of the three. The Morgan Louisiana and Texas Railroad Co., are constructing a branch road out to Cypremort. Already the work has reached Keppel's plantation. The junction of this road will be at Baldwin La Teche, so that soon this place will be an important station and a very valuable property to Methodistm. At LaTeche we have the LaTeche Seminary under the able management of the Rev. Dr. Godman and family. This institution is pleasantly located on the banks of the Bayou LaTeche and affords every facility to any young man who wants an education. The Dr. says that the outlook was never so favorable as it is at present. Over 200 children are in attendance; the rooms can scarcely hold them. I would recommend this institution to every young man who wants an education. E. WILLIAMS, P. E.

The Complaining Spirit.

The good and the bad are mingled in human life in proportions which we but imperfectly measure. It is our ignorance which lays the foundation for the optimism which makes evil the insignificant thing, and for the pessimism which defies the world to show us any good. What shall the prudent man do when the discouragements of life press on his attention and seem to be the sum of life? In religion, his refuge is faith; in earthly relations, he may brace his heart by looking steadfastly at things which are always true. It does not do to let go our cables and anchors of conviction. Some things have to be settled early in life and left settled to the end. Among these is the moral order of the world and the necessity of conforming to it. Another is that each of us will get, or fail to get, the good of life according to our conduct; that each of us shall eat the fruits of his own doings. A large measure of human unhappiness is directly traceable to a habit of looping to things outside of us as the causes of our failures. A boy trembling under the frown of his teacher, wipes his eyes and whimpers, "I want to do well; but everything is against me." The teacher smiles, it is such a common fallacy! But the teacher replies, "On the contrary, everything is in your favor except only [illegible]." That is the substance of what God says to all human consciousness. When a proper contrition comes to us we echo that voice: "It is my fault; I deserve it all."

In the education of children we are properly solicitous for their earthly happiness, but we are apt to go the wrong way about it. The best preparation for a happy life, the best human culture for happiness is that which fixes in the young mind a habit of attributing failure to its own indolence, neglect, bad judgment, or willfulness. The opposite habit easily grows fixed. A sinful soul instinctively says: "The woman whom thou gavest to be with me gave me of the tree." Somebody else, not I." It was the stone, not our stumbling. It was the snake, not our unshod foot. It was the rain storm, not the holes in the roof. The season was bad, not "we failed to adjust ourselves to the season." It is something outside, not something inside, that we think of in the day of failure. To get rid of that habit is to go far on the road to happiness; for the habit accustoms us to thinking and uttering lies, and leaves all our faults to grow and go on undoing us. When we say that the fault is outside of us, we may take a little momentary ease in the thought, but it cannot bring us any real happiness to believe that we are inevitably victims of fate, or nature, or man, or God. It is a dreary consolation at best. On the other hand, if we feel that the fault is ours, we shall know the keen pain of conscience, but we shall also know the joy of resolving to be and to do better in future. 'I stumbled over the stone; I will be more careful about my walking. It is not God's business nor my neighbor's business to keep the stones out of the way; it is mine to avoid them. The fall has hurt me a little, the shame of it has hurt me more; but I will look out sharply for such stones hereafter."

How many homes there are in which incessant murmuring at man, or providence gives the children a false view of life! What worse instruction can there be for a child? Nature in him repudiates his responsibility, and now parental teaching conspires with the inward moral disorder to cast away the restraint of duty. The atmosphere reeks with a pollution which the child cannot escape. He is taught, ceremonially, not to lie, steal, and sin, but he is practically taught to distrust the safety of a true life, and believe that bad men and devils reign on earth. Catechism is powerless in such an environment. The child's heart is corrupted by those who love it—corrupted unintentionally, but not the less effectually. Happy the child who gets a firm hold on the royal belief that the decisive power over his life is within himself! Better exaggerate here than diminish one hair's breadth the sense of personal responsibility. The curse of life is Adam's poltroonish answer to the Almighty: "The woman gave me—the woman whom thou gavest to be with me." That cowardly plea in one form or another forever goes up to heaven. It is our neighbor, our environment, the lot God has appointed us. This everlasting murmuring paralyzes our hands and hardens our hearts; but its worst evil is that it defiles our children. From their fathers and mothers they catch the murmuring and unmanly spirit, and are half undone before they begin their own lives. These words of ours will be read in many households where there has been too much murmuring, too much complaining. Into such homes we long to carry a better spirit. Dear souls, what good does it do you to murmur? Do you not proclaim that you are growing more gloomy and less useful? Above all, do you not fear that the poison of a concealed atheism may drip off your bitter tongues into the ears of your children? Is another more prosperous than you? What good do you get from the comparison, and what evil may the children not get from thinking that the evil of which you accuse your neighbor is the way to prosperity? It is not true, this atheism of yours. When the bad man's grain is better than yours, it is because he has better obeyed the agricultural statute-book of the Lord; for God is altogether fair and just in the fields—and the instance covers a large breadth of life. Teach your children to believe in the power and reward of honest industry and trustful faith in God. —Northwestern.

Light.

The world is in darkness. There is the darkness of sin. All flesh has corrupted its way. The world lieth in wickedness. There is the darkness of sorrow. Sin brings misery, sickness, death. Affliction come because of it; there are grief and tears. There is the darkness of ignorance. Men are alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them. They do not like to retain God in their knowledge. Separated from God by their sins, they wander farther and farther from him, and lose all right apprehensions of him; and, apart from his word, they know nothing of the way of reconciliation to him: All is darkness.

All true light is from Jesus Christ. He is the Sun of Righteousness. He gives light to the world, revealing the will of God, making God known, opening and making known the way of reconciliation with God, renewing and sanctifying the heart, guiding through life and fitting for heaven. He is light. He shines by his life and by his death, by his word and by his Spirit, and by the lives, the example and influence of his people. Though absent from the world and ascended into heaven, his influence is felt, his light is seen. He is the true light, the author and source of all light and glory.

Yet in a very important though subordinate sense, his people are the light of the world. They are enlightened, illuminated and made light in the Lord for this very purpose. Thus the Saviour teaches: "No man lighteth a candle, and putteth it out of sight, but on a candlestick. Let your light so shine." The light of grace is kindled within you that it may shine—let it shine! All your light comes from Christ, and it should be reflected by you that others may see. Remember that, as illuminated by Christ and reflecting his light, Christians are the light of the world, made new creatures, brought from darkness to light, made light in the Lord, that they may give light, that they may shine.

They are to give light by their example. They are so to live as to illustrate the heavenliness of their religion, and not only recommend it to others, but in their own manner of life show how all men should live. Their pathway through the world should shine with heavenly lustre, pointing out to others the way to glory—showing every one all through life how to step heavenward.

They are to shine and direct others also by their efforts. They must not only be good, but do good. By precept as well as by example they must try to lead others to the cross of Christ. They preserve the knowledge of Christ in the world; they must also diffuse it. Thus Paul says: "Amidst a crooked and perverse generation, ye shine as lights in the world of life," Phil. ii. 15, 16.

By prayer. They are to live lives of prayer, and seek for others as well as for themselves the divine blessing. God hears the prayers of his people, and in answer to them he often confers unspeakable mercies, saying: "Let there be light," and there is light.

By influence, too. With a holy, prayerful life, and a life of effort and self-denial for Christ, there is a silent but prayerful influence; and the Christian's whole influence must be such as to be safe and salutary. It must all tend and all draw heavenward, and thus it will surround the Christian; it will make his face shine; it will make his garments sparkle; it will make path brilliant; it will throw a beam of heavenly light on the darkness around him; it will attract the thoughtful to the cross; it will excite the careless to inquiry; it will make the portion of the world through which he moves partake somewhat of that nature and glory of heaven. Oh, the high privilege of the followers of Christ—to be the world receiving light from the great central Sun, and reflecting it, pure and heavenly, on the benighted and sin-darkened world—on benighted wanderers around them! Oh let us get more light from Christ! Let us give more light to the world. W. J. M.

Since the Cincinnati riot, many allusions have been made to the effective work of the San Francisco Viligence Committe thirty-five years ago, and it has been suggested that it may be necessary to have similar organizations in some of our large and corrupt and lawless cities. The San Francisco Vigilance Committee was, however, a necessity growing out of cruder conditions. There are remedies within reach in our times, requiring only courage to grasp them, and they are not tumultuary remedies. San Francisco, in 1849, had a Mayor and Common Council but no police force; not a street was paved or lighted, and each individual had to protect his own property from a gang of desperate roughs, calling themselves "Hounds," who attacked different quarters of the city at pleasure, firing at men, women, and children, indiscriminately. One day, the citizens organized and arrested a number of "Hounds," improvised a court, impanelled a jury, and tried and convicted the prisoners, who however, escaped, as there was no jail in which to put them. This stopped the exploits of the "Hounds," temporarily. In 1851, lawlessnes took root again in the city and incendiarism was frequent. One evening a merchant was knocked down in his store by some robbers, who were subsequently arrested and placed in jail. Fearing that they would not be punished the people appointed a committee, who secured a jury and the prisoners were sentenced to fourteen years imprisonment. Several more scoundrels were subsequently arrested and hung with the celerity of lightning. The majority of the rascals fled to Australia and other points, whence they had drifted, and perfect security for life and property was obtained. Then the committee left the regular authorities to exercise their functions, and the city had peace for a long time. They stopped when they had removed the source of disturbance, and did not in turn become a terror to the community. We do not want lynch law in our cities now. What is needed is for each citizen to stop complaining about corruption and to go to work and insist that his voice shall be heard in the conduct of municipal government, and that public affairs shall be committed only to men who can be trusted.—The Current.

The Mother's Influence.

It is hard for a young mother, who has not overcome the impulsive tendencies of her youthful nature to realize the influence she exerts over her little ones. She is constantly surrounded by successful imitators, who copy her morals and manners. As the mother is so are her sons and daughters. If a family of children is blessed with an intelligent mother who is delicate and refined in her manners, and does not consider it necessary to be one woman in the drawing-room and an entirely different person in every day life, but who is a true mother, and always a tender, charming woman, you will invariably see her habits of speech and perfect manners repeated in the children. Great, rough men, and noisy, busy boys, will always tone down their voices, and step lightly, and try to be more mannerly, when she stops to give them a kind word or a pleasant smile, for a true mother will not fail to say or do all the pleasant things she can that will cheer those whose lives are shaded with care and toil. The mother of to-day rules the world of to-morrow.

A note from Chas. Purvis, a colored planter near Cottomport, informs us that he has already 3 or 4 acres of cotton already up. This is quite early for cotton and we hope he will realize a big harvest from it. To ensure the rapid growth of his cotton Purvis has only to vote and support the Democratic ticket and every thing will come out alright. Let him just try it.—Marksville Bulletin.

"The stong point of the negroes," says a recent writer, "has always been their religious fervor. One of their old-fashioned revivals is calculated to fully discourage the devil and all his imps." It was in such meetings that the best of the old negro "spirituals" were originated, and here it is where their power is most fully manifested. The colored people make a business of getting religion when they set about it, and music is their most efficent aid. Some of their songs are genuine inspirations.—Musical Visitor.

Equality in Education.

The educational bill recently passed by the Senate provides that an equal opportunity for education shall be given to all children of the State. Certainly there can be no doubt as to the import of this clause, but just what it will mean in Mississippi, Alabama, North or South Carolina, Georgia or Louisiana, [illegible] dominate and there are constant murmurings because so much money is paid out for nigger schools is not quite so clear. Educationally Atlanta, Georgia, is said to be one of the foremost cities in the South. A recent [illegible] of General Gustavus J. Orr, State School Commissioner for Georgia, makes statements that show how even in this city race prejudice dominates and ways are easily found to discriminate against the children of the colored race in the kind of buildings provided and in the salaries paid their teachers. For instance, the principals of the white schools are paid $1,500, while the principal of corresponding grade in the colored school receives only $600 or $500. Few men in Georgia are more interested in the matter of popular education than Commissioner Orr, and his statements are the most earnest [illegible]. The school population in that State is nearly equally divided, but referring to 1882 and giving statistics, he shows "that only a little more than a fourth of the whole sum paid for teachers that year was paid to teachers of colored schools." And he says, "I feel sure in my own mind that, as a rule, they (the colored people) are fairly dealt with by the boards. The school authorities are doing them no wrong." He [illegible] that the boards discriminate against the colored teachers, but still says that they are doing them no wrong." We suppose that these statements of Mr. Orr were only intended for the South, but they are exceedingly significant, and we think that it would be wise in the National legislators at Washington to pause and consider the import of these statements. Another point Mr. Orr admits that the State school law of Georgia "practically excludes colored membership on the school boards." We fear that this increased amount of money in the hands of those where race prejudice dominates will become a strong temptation to do a greater wrong to the dependent class. A big sum of money is put into the hands of the State authorities. Let our National legislators see that "equal opportunity for education be given to all the children of the State."

What is Holiness.

There are persons who are always talking and writing about it; they do not explain but not a few continue rather than expound. There is a story told concerning John Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. Rev. Thomas Scott, the Bible expositor, wrote notes on it; he thought that Pilgrim's Progress was a hard book for people to understand, and he would make it clear. A pious old lady, a member of his church, had the book and was reading it on a time when Mr. Scott called to see her. He said: "Oh, I see you are reading Pilgrim's Progress. Do you understand it?" The good woman answered honestly, "Oh, yes, sir! I understand Mr. Bunyan very well, and I hope some day I shall be able to understand your explanation of it." Holiness, of what the Bible says we know it, is not half so difficult to understand as the explanation of some people. Holiness is a creed, but it is something more. It is well to say I believe in it, that it is a wholesome and proper doctrine. But if there is no experience it is truth in a pigeon hole. The mere creed holding holiness people though they are "groaning after it," and have a distinctive theory their indistinct experience makes it utterly impossible for them to explain, a creed that comes within the compass of human experience. A man needs to feel what he preaches. Whoever talks about faith must be able to point to the Savior in whom he trusts. If he talks about pardon or the renewal of the heart his own experience will give a glow and impressiveness to his words to which the creed holder is a stranger. So if he talks about holiness, and can himself speak of the blood that cleanseth from all sin. If he can tell how it touched, cleansed and fired his own heart, his talk is not a dead letter, a mere disquisition or essay. It will be a discourse breathing with life, animated by the Holy Spirit, filling every avenue of the soul. The people will discern at once that it is not a mere theory about which he talks, but that he is giving a joyous expression of his own blissful experience. Those who have experienced holiness will find no difficulty in stating to their fellow-travellers the creed, though they have never read a book. Holiness is something more than repentance, pardon, regeneration or the witness of the Holy Spirit with our spirits that we are the children of God. It implies all of these, but it is more. Nor is it a mere repression. This spirit finds no place in Mr. Wesley's writings. With him there was a removal, a purging, a cleansing, an entire deliverance from sin. He sang,

"Purge me from every sinful blot,
Cleanse me from every evil thought,
From all the filth of self and pride."

There is nothing of repression here. Holiness is that act of God's grace by which men are cleansed from all. This is no new doctrine. Nor is it held and taught exclusively by any one denomination. It is the inheritance of God's universal church. To us the great wonder is that all do not have the experience and enjoy it. We advise all to get the experience, and then get the little book "Scriptural Views of Holiness," by Rev. W. McDonald, and carefully and prayerfully read it. It will help you in your experience and in your creed.

Societies and Funeral Services

Several questions relative to these two subjects have been put to us by a thoughtful and interested subscriber. His first question is, "Ought preachers to organize secret societies, and if they do so, ought they to organize them in the church of God?" We answer emphatically that no preacher ought to organize any society, or introduce in his church any movement that has any tendency to cripple or retard the progress of his charge. If secret or other societies are found to have such influence the preachers ought not not to organize them in their churches. We feel no antagonism to secret societies, or to any other society, benevolent, social, reformative, protective, commercial, mechanical or otherwise; so long as they do not interfere with the life and prosperity of the church. The interest of the church with us is supreme; hence the moment we find that they injure the church we feel it our bounden duty to antagonize them. The ministry, and the laity as well, should "love the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob." As a general thing, however, there seems to be too many "burial" societies among our people, which are eating up the influence and vitality of our churches. In too many instances we find that local and grand officers of these societies exert an undue influence upon our members. This ought not so to be, and our ministers, when they find this to be the case, stand very much in their own light when they assist in the spread of such societies among their members. We have known of church members going through the mud and rain in obedience to the call of their societies, when they would not attend to the work of the church in fair weather. We have known of their paying their last dollar to their societies when they would not give a penny to the church. They implicitly obeyed their presidents and officers, when they would listen to neither their pastor or leader. Another objection is, that sometimes a pastor of a charge this year becomes chief officer of the society in his church. He is removed to another charge before his term of office closes in the society, and he continues to come there to preside over that society, largely composed of the members of the church whence he has been removed, to the annoyance of the new preacher and to the great injury of his new flock. For these reasons, and many others, we think it wise for preachers to ponder well the matter before they lend themselves to the insidious spread of the too numerous societies that are sought to be spread in their charges. Another consideration is, that our people are too poor to support so many societies, with their army of travelling and other agents who are fattening upon their scanty earnings. Some of our people are supporting a half a dozen or more of such societies. But what is the remedy? It is for the members of the church to be as liberal to the churches as they are to their societies, and for the church to deal justly and charitably with her sick, unfortunate and dead members. Let the church care for her poor, relieve her sick and bury her dead; and the necessity for societies, with all their evil influences to the injury of the church, vanishes.

The next question of importance is: "Ought funeral sermons to be preached? If so, should the funeral sermon of one who belonged to a church be preached in another church to which he did not belong? Is it proper to preach funeral sermons of sinners?" Funeral sermons ought to be preached, whether of saint or sinner. That of the former for the encouragement of Christians; that of the latter for the warning of impenitents. The time and place for such sermons, however, we think might properly be left to those immediately concerned. While it might be deemed proper to preach the funeral sermon at the time, or soon after the burial of a person, we think it highly improper to rack up the list of those who died a year or more ago to reproach their funeral sermons. Such a course might be considered redundant and out of place. Another objection to the custom of preaching "funeral sermons" a year after death by the friends of such dead is that of calling former pastors from distant fields to preach the sermon—involving loss of time, needless expenses, and oftimes unnecessary friction between former and present pastors. As we indicated in an editorial some time ago, we repeat now, that our people have too many "burial societies." God is increasing the race for active usefulness, and it is His purpose that we prepare for such a life. What our people now need is economical, business, co-operative and other such associations as are calculated to advance their material interests. For their moral and spiritual improvement, let them enter fully in all the teachings and spirit of the church, and thereby they will amass wealth, build up character, obtain education, and become good, happy and prosperous citizens, and pillars in the church of God.

A Southern correspondent of Zion's Herald says:

"On a table are two pamphlets. Both have the imprint of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. One is the Journal of the seventieth session of the Tennessee Annual Conference, M. E. Church, South, the other the Minutes of the sixteenth session of the Tennessee Annual Conference of the African M. E. Church. Both conferences began the same day. Both occupy the same territory—middle Tennessee. The African has two or three appointments beyond the boundaries of the white conference. Comparisons are said to be odious, but I will risk the odium. What has been wrought by the superior Methodists in seventy years and the inferior in sixteen? We report 47,900 members; they only 8,283, including probationers. But they contribute for ministerial support $15,847.12, or over $1 90 per capita; while we only raise $65,926.44, or less than $1.40 per member for the same purpose. We have 52 parsonages for our 169 preachers in charge of districts, stations and circuits; they have 14 for their 57 preachers. They have secured homes for nearly one-fourth of their preachers in sixteen years. We have not secured homes for one-third of ours in seventy years. We report 13 home missions; so do they. But they report only 868 members on their 13 missions, while we report 3180—nearly four times as many. But they will be equal to us in one thing, if not in numbers. Their 868 members give $1,485.66 for ministerial support, while our 3,180 contribute only $1,316.20, or more than four times as much per member from the poor Africans as from the poor whites. But we have 524 churches, they have only 90—ours valued at over half a million, theirs at over one hundred thousand dollars."

These facts and figures given by a member of the Tennesse Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, South, need no comment of ours. A similar comparrison of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church on the same territory would show that in the grace of liberality the colored exceed the white. He must be smitten with judicial blindness who does not see that in the course of a few years the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church will become a mighty host. We believe that the most effectual means of promoting tranquility and loyality is to remove all restriction. The most thoughtful men in the church have come to regard the action of the General Conference of 1876 as incompatible not only with the genius of Christianity but also with the spirit of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The church is here "as a whole" in the completeness of its agencies and aims. Let us remove all odious restriction based on the color of a person's skin.

A few weeks ago the editor of Elevator, published by the students of Clark University, Atlanta, Ga., allowed a correspondent to say, "We were borne along on the current of the eloquence of Mr. ——, whose words fell upon us so forcibly that it was like sitting under the falls of Niagara." Being misled by the "we," which is generally monopolized by editors, there resulted a misapplication of our comment. We said "it was surprising to behold in imagination such intense vitality in a writer who had been sitting under the falls of Niagara; one would suppose that such a watery blast would have unfitted him for editorial service." We are now informed that our innocent allusion has led prominent exchanges to make sport, take the article in serious earnest, and attribute it to the editor of the Elevator, whereas, "one of our best students, and one who ordinarily writes excellent English, had assumed a grandiloquent style to burlesque a debate which was not remarkably deep," and should bear the blame. We can conscientiously say that we regret that any playful remark of ours, made under any possible misapprehension of the true state of the case, has led any prominent exchange to made sport of the editor of the Elevator. We believe him to be a very worthy young gentleman, tender on the subject of his own reputation and that of his associates. Let it here after be remembered that it was a student, in a grandiloquent mood, who was struck as by the falls of Niagara, and was so well appreciated that prominent exchanges actually enjoyed his figure of speech.

Drs. Rust and Hartzell, Secretaries of the Freedmen's Aid Society have published a tract. On one side is a "Map of Illiteracy in the United States," illustrating by various shades the degrees of intelligence and ignorance of the different sections of the country. On the other side the work, aims, results and wants of society are set forth. It is a valuable tract and ought to be circulated in all of our churches, give the people facts; let them see the needs of the cause and they will give the money to help on in this noble work.

The prominence of the silver coinage question makes peculiarly timely the paper on "The Bank of England," which is announced for the May Harper's. It is to give a clear account of the history, features, and functions of this centre of the financial world.

PERSONAL.

—Rev. Braxton Bolden wishes his correspondents to address him at Washington, La.

—Rev. S. G. Colburn, editor of the Arkansas Methodist, Secretary of the Little Rock Conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, died in Little Rock, April 1.

—The Savannah Echo of the 13th announces the death of Robert H. Harden, its business manager aged 22 years. He was energetic in business and in religious faith a Baptist.

—Rev. H. H. [illegible] Minister of Wesley chapel was summoned away last Sabbath to attend the bedside of his brother, Rev. McAllister, who is seriously ill at Forest City.—Arkansas Herald.

—We learn that Dr. Wm. P. Miller has decided that on account of his health and the feebleness of his estimable lady, he will be unable to attend the General Conference of the M. E. Church, and his mantle has fallen on good shoulders.—Birmingham (Ala.) Review.

—John D. Slayback, lay delegate of the New York Conference, signalized his election by giving $10,000 as the nucleus of a permanent fund for the benefit of the worn-out preachers, their widows and orphans, of that Conference.

—Rev. E. B. McCauley, presiding elder of Marion District, Central Alabama Conference, gave us a pleasant call last week. Bro. McCauley is delighted with the SOUTHWESTERN; thinks it is the paper for all of our people without reference to race, color or previous condition.

—Miss Frances A. Willard announces her retirement from the temperance lecture field, after ten years of continuous work. She will devote herself to the care of her aged mother, and to literary work. A few outstanding engagements, however, remain to be filled.

—Samuel Bowly is dead. For more than fifty years his name has stood for all that was heroic in the early days of total abstinence in Great Britain. He passed away on his eighty-second birthday, a Christian philanthropist, whose memory is embalmed in the hearts of more than his own countrymen.—Union Signal.

—At the recent session of the South New England Conference Dr. Hartzell was the preacher in the place of Bishop Foster, whose delicate health forbade the effort on his part. The Providence Morning Star says the sermon was plain, practical and eloquent. After a long discussion this conference by a unanimous vote passed a series of resolutions condemning caste.

—Rev. J. W. Fisher, Munnerlyn, Georgia, Savannah Conference, is doing good work for the SOUTHWESTERN. Last week he sent us a list of ten whom he calls reliable subscribers. Bro. Fisher is a loyal Methodist, and works in harmony with all the great interests of the church. May the Lord multiply this class.

—Bishop Wiley and Dr. Rust were in the city last week as the representatives of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to complete the sale of the property located at the corner of Camp and Race streets in this city. No men are more abundant in labors, but they never seem to tire. Dr. Rust is always on the move. The outlook for the New Orleans University was never so full of promise as now.

—Rev. George Winn, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Mobile, Alabama, gave us a call last week. Bro. Winn is here in connection with his presiding elder, Rev. E. B. McCauley. They are making an effort to secure funds towards liquidating the debt that is upon the M. E. Church in Mobile. They are worthy men, and represent a needy church and people. Those who give them a helping hand will make no mistake, unless it is in the smallness of the amount they may contribute. "The liberal soul deviseth liberal things and shall be made fat."

Mending.

Not long since, in a copy of the Earnest Worker I read the following: "A New York journal contained a note written by some young clerk, asking why there were no such things as mending shops in the city, where strangers, like himself, with no mother, or wife within reach, could have their rents repaired or buttons sewed on at a reasonable price. A poor widow seized the hint, and with her sewing-machine, ironing-board, opened a little room, and do the needful with needles and plenty of thread. She put on patches, darned socks, mended gloves, etc. Work crowded on them, and soon now, have a large establishment." A mending shop! I like the idea so well, that I would go into the business at once myself, if it were not that I have as much on my hands, of other work as I can do well. I see in it, not merely a business, but one in which much satisfaction in doing work that will endure, and in the consciousness of convenience and comfort, that it would afford to others, the mending shop would be a great blessing to the students, clerks, railroad men, and others, who are often, on their leaves and who are often, on sundays, in need of the help it would furnish them.

A gentleman friend of mine has recently had a letter—I [illegible] which I am sure must have been true. A man who has been travelling [illegible] in the South, wrote that all along the railroads [illegible] hundreds of colored men, and many more of white [illegible] or leaning [illegible] of their pantaloons tied up [illegible] many [illegible] pantaloons tied up [illegible] which [illegible] done. There is much satisfaction in doing work that will endure, and in the consciousness of convenience and comfort, that it would afford to others, the mending shop would be a great blessing to the students, clerks, railroad men, and others, who are often, on their leaves and who are often, on sundays, in need of the help it would furnish them.

A woman in a mending shop would have rare opportunities of saying kind and loving words, to many wanderers from home influences, and of pointing them to the One, who could repair rents in their moral natures and make them all whole.

Of course, every one who is the head of a house, should see to it, that her own family wear whole clothing. When there are boys, who are fond of sliding down hill on their pants, or going about on their hands and knees, trying to make horses of themselves, the mother's work-basket, is usually quite full of torn garments. When the boys and girls have grown to be men and women, and have gone out from her, as she looks over the past, she will realize that she once had much satisfaction, over her basket of mending.

FOR THE FAMILY SCRAP-BOOK.—Wild mint scattered about the house will rid it of rats and mice.

Save your cold tea, it is excellent for cleaning painted wood.

A little swede oil and beeswax rubbed in mahogany polished it up beautifully.

A little tea-cup of fresh water should be put in every room where there is mice, especially an open fire. The mice smelling the gas escaping from the coal and other impurities, [illegible] may be made to stay away as many as when fresh air is admitted. The slightest leak of gas is not even for five or ten minutes. They will burn as light and crisp as when first baked.

Flowers may be kept fresh over night if they are excluded entirely from the air. To do this wet them thoroughly, put in a damp box, and cover with wet cotton or wet newspaper, then place in a cool spot.

When one has had a fever, and the hair is falling off, take a tea-cup of sage, steep it in a quart of soft water, strain it off into a bottle, sponge the head with the tea frequently, wetting the roots of the hair.

One of the best ways to cure sore throat is as follows: Wring a cloth out of salt and cold water, and keeping it quite wet, bind tightly about the neck. Cover this with a dry cloth. It is the best to use this remedy in the night.—Baptist Weekly.

BOILED CIDER APPLE SAUCE.—For one bushel of sweet apples, pared and cored, use one gallon of boiled cider. Put the cider into a brass boiler. Put the apples into the boiler, and cover tight. If the boiler will not hold one bushel of apples two kettles should be given for cooking. Care should be taken that they do not cling to the boiler or scorch. Cook very slowly over a moderate but steady heat. Do not stir the apples while cooking.

TOMATO SOUP.—The water in which a leg of mutton has been boiled should be freed from fat. There will be about one quart. Place over the fire with one quart of tomatoes cut, but not peeled; a small onion, a peice of carrot, half a small turnip, a little celery and parley. Cook for two hours, mash through a sieve, and if not thick enough, use a little barley or rice flour or a roux, made as described before. Croutons must always be served with tomato soup. Canned tomatoes can be used in winter.

CRAB OMELET.—Boil three large crabs and pick them, beat up six eggs season with pepper, salt, parsley and thyme, mix all together and fry in butter.

CHOWDER.—Cut a codfish in slices crosswise, have ready three or four slices of salt pork with some soaked crackers, (biscuits) and sliced potatoes. Arrange these in a saucepan in layers, a slices of pork at the bottom, until all the materials are used up. Season each layer of fish, with salt, cayenne and minced parsley. Fill up the saucepan with water and put it on the fire to simmer very gently for three hours. A little curry powder is an improvement.

SHOLDEUR OF MUTTON AND OYSTERS.—Take a shoulder of mutton that has hung for several days in salt, bone and sprinkle it with pepper and pounded mace. Put a layer of oysters over it, roll it up tightly, and tie it into a neat shape. Put it into a saucepan with an onion and a few peppercorns. Add sufficient water to keep it from burning, and stew gently, with the lid on the stewpan, until tender. For sauce, stew some oysters in a little good gravy, thicken with flour and butter, and when ready to serve, pour over the mutton.

An old man was walking through the garden one heat of the day cultivating with his own hands, and depositing the promising seed in the fruitful earth. Suddenly there stood before him a vision. The old man was struck with amazement.

"I am Solomon," spoke the phantom, in a friendly voice. "What are you doing here, old man?"

"If you are Solomon," replied the venerable laborer, "how can you ask this? In my youth you sent me to the ant; I saw its occupation, and learned to be industrious, and to gather. What I learned I have followed out to this hour."

"You have only learned half your lesson," replied the spirit. "Go again to the ant, and learn to rest in the winter of your life, and to enjoy what you have gathered up."

The fact is, the Democratic party is a party of fraud. Neither in its history of the past nor its practice of to-day has it a solitary thing to stand upon. To speak calmly and truthfully, it is the party of ignorance and rum in the North, of bull-dozers and ballot-stuffers in the South. And its true character always comes to the light the very moment it is put in power; which, the North seeing, turns from it in disgust and at the first opportunity puts it aside, as will undoubtedly be the case at the forthcoming Presidential election.—Christian Recorder.

An Eastern monarch commanded his minister to furnish a motto that should check in adversity, and prevent excessive joy in prosperity. He gave the monarch for his signet: "This too, shall pass away." MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives, two sisters, Harriet and Mary. I left them in Warsaw, Missouri, in 1863. I got a letter from Harriet in 1869, and I have not heard from her since. Father came to Texas before the war. Mother died when I was a small boy. I heard that brother Jim was killed in Springfield, Mo. Harriet Mary and I belonged to A. Scott, and father to Levi Simpson. They lived in Lafayette connty, Missouri. Father's three sisters were Leana, Fannie and Lucy, and three brothers were Jordan, Church and Mason. My boss was killed at Scott. I go by the name of John Simpson. Address me at Floresville, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives. We were eight in family, in the State of Georgia. Father was named Anthody Dardy, in Troupe co. Mother was named Amy Davenport, in Clark county. Sisters Ann Dardy, Louisa Dardy; brothers, Sandy Davenport, Bob. Davenport, Sam Davenport. I have not seen any of these since 40 years ago. I went to Holmes county Mississippi with Dick Williams, who had married Jane Frazir, the daughter of Dick Frazer, and lived there three years, and then I was sold to Sam Townshad, and moved to Marion, Perry county, Alabama. Address me, No. 30 Jefferson street, Topeka, Kansas.

ANTHONY GRIFFIN.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for the relatives of Mr. Charley Conner—a mother, four sisters and a step-father. His mother's name was Hannah Frazier, sisters Annie Douvie, Loubetta and Plinkey Frazier. Before the war they belonged to Mr. Henry Greene. He has not seen them since 1870. He left them on Mr. Henry Greene's plantation, southeast of Memphis, Tenn., in the year mentioned above. Address me, at Home Park, P. O., Yazoo River, Miss.

J. D. SMITH.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people. I have a mother, and two brothers. We belonged to Mr. Williams, in Ambush county, six miles from Lynchburg, Va. The last I heard of my mother she was on the steamboat going to Richmond, Va., to get in the speculator's roll. My mother was named Sallie Tucker. My brother John and I were left in Ambush county, Va. Some time after that I was sold. Brother John was left with Miss Mary Tucker, his young miss, in Ambush county, Va. My father was named Peyton, he belonged to a man by the name of Mr. Ellis, who owned a tobacco factory in Lynchburg, Va. Also three uncles in Lynchburg named Monroe, Jack and Merchant. Uncle Monroe was a leach doctor. It has been near forty years since I left there. Address me at Oxford, Miss.

ALFRED TUCKER.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to inquire for a relative of mine, it is my child; she was sold from me when about 10 years old. We were formerly servants of Elizabeth Hoflers. Her name was Sarah Francis Brown. My name at that time was Eliza Fry. She was carried South by a man named McGill, and was sold to a man in Haywood named Harvey Curry; this was about 8 or 9 years before the rebellion. I had strict account that she was there up to that time. I have been seeking for her ever since we have been free. We both resided in the city of Louisville, Ky., in which I still remain. She is my only child. My name at present is Eliza Gedding, residence 1536 Kentucky street, between 15th and 16th streets, Louisville, Ky.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find the whereabouts of my kin people, two brothers and one sister. Brothers are named Horace and Robin Haril and sister was Rossetta Haril. Brother Horace married Sarah Ann Garrett. Robin's wife was named Virta Cartwright; sister's husband was named Alex Haril. I left them all in 1867, 2½ miles from San Augustine, Texas, on Mr. Bill Garrett's plantation. In slave time we all belonged to the widow Sallie Harril. Our father's name was Adam Haril; he died when we were quite small. Our mother was named Eliza; she is living with me, and desires to find her boys that they may care for her in her old age. It was about two years after emancipation when I left them. I have heard from them several times. I ask Rev. Robert Williams, the pastor at San Augustine, to please take this letter and seek for my relatives. Address me, in care of Rev. Willis H. Jackson, Brenham, Texas. MRS. ANN LEE.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my sister. She left us, in Georgia, two miles from Allatoona. She left this place and went to the iron works to the man who she belonged to, named Bird Tracy. This was the last time I heard from her, and was in the year 1865. At this time she went by the name of Liza Tracy. Tracy bought her from Leonard Huff. We all belonged to Huff. My mother's name is Lena Huff, father's Sam Huff. I am the oldest daughter, my name was Becky Huff, next oldest was Lina Huff, who is now absent from us, next oldest brother Anton, next, Vina Huff, next Marionthine Huff, next Valentine Huff, next, Amelia Huff, next, Frank Huff, next, Tennessee Huff. There were nine of us, but sister Lina is absent. When Leonard Huff brought us to Texas we came to Caldwell county, in the year 1865, we have been here ever since. I am married now, and go by the name of Becky Henry. I married since the emancipation. If any one knows anything about her please address me at Luling, Texas, Caldwell county, in care of Sanford Huff.

MR. EDITOR.—I desire to inquire for my mother and brothers. My mother's name was Lucy, my brothers, were, Joseph and David Jones, and belonged to Thomas Davis, Greenville county, Va. My name was Mason Jones, now it is Mason Hopson. I hope the preachers will assist me. Address me at Arpeckaville, Lafayette, Texas.

SOLOMON HOPSON.

MR. EDITOR—I have got a letter from Turner Petty's people through the inquiry in the paper. God bless the paper. It is being the people together.

Our General Conference, which will meet next month, will not cost a tithe of what will be necessary for even the legitimate expenses of either of the political conventions which will convene in Chicago in June. Yet when we consider the number, character, and position of our membership, and the potency of their influence, both as individuals, and as organized in Churches and benevolent associations, the relative importance of these gatherings might be hard to decide. We fear the far-reaching results of either are not appreciated. Methodists should cheerfully give their mite to meet the expenses of their quadrennial conference, go to Philadelphia if they can, read reports, and send memorials—in short, take a loyal, hearty interest in its work.—Western.

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

It has come to this while all who are using the new Vitalizing Treatment now being so widely dispensed by Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, Pa., specialists in Chronic diseases. This is not a drug treatment. It does not introduce an enemy into the system, but a kind and gracious healer. It does not assault or deprave nature, as is always the case when crude drugs are taken, but comes to her assistance and restores her weakened vital forces. All of its effects are gentle, pervading and vitalizing. If you are suffering from any disease which your physician has failed to cure, send to Drs Starkey & Palen, for their pamphlet, and learn all about this wonderful treatment.

Plantation Melodies —AND— REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION By Rev. F. G. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their [illegible] weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung by generations of the colored people of the South. Some of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time, the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in thirty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop L. H. Hamline. "I should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—*Dr. E. E. SECOND QUARTER. LESSON VII.
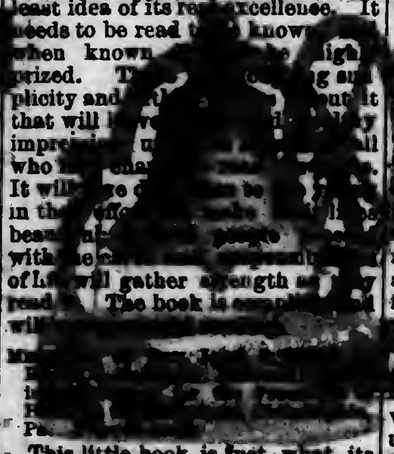
ABSTINENCE FOR THE SAKE OF OTHERS.
(1 Cor. viii, 1-13.)



The instruction of this lesson may be summed up as follows:

1. The [illegible] knowledge. Intellectual pride is not [illegible] are intrinsically as valuable as they seem to be.

2. The value of love. Its presence furnishes a basis for a correct knowledge of God and of men, and, hence, of our duty to both. It is capable if allowed to have its way of treating the most vexing questions in Church life. Without it no concord can exist.

3. The nature and relations of God. There is but one God, and he is the source whence all things which do appear are derived. He is the Creator of the whole human race.

4. The relations of Christ to [illegible]

NEW BOOKS.

HAMPERED. By Mrs. A. K. Dunning American Tract Society, 150 Nassau St. New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 94 Camp St. New Orleans. Price 90 cts.

This book introduces us to a hampered family and people. It illustrates the thought that in this life our plans are frequently crossed; we are hampered, but worry never helped any one, while a firm trust in God and a proper use of means always brings deliverance to the hampered one. It is a pleasing and interesting book, useful and entertaining. The author is full of her subject, and her writing is evidently a work of love.

The most unfortunate thing about this otherwise charming book is its title. The name does not give the least idea of its real excellence. It needs to be read to be known, and when known it will be highly prized. The [illegible] and simplicity and [illegible] about it that will [illegible] impress [illegible] all who [illegible] It will [illegible] in the [illegible] beauti[illegible] with [illegible] of Life will gather strength and [illegible] read. The book is [illegible]

This little book is just what its name indicates. It is simply a memorial, not a biography. We have read it with interest, only sorry there was no more of it. We became acquainted with Bro. Inskip at Hamilton, Mass., in 1870, and from that time up to the time of his death we have read his utterances with the greatest satisfaction. He was a man of convictions. What ever truth commanded his attention had the whole of him. His talents, instincts and experiences were right in the line of full consecration. As a leader of camp meetings we never saw his equal. With him there was neither retreat nor defeat. We are glad to commend this book, and hope it will have the readers it deserves. It should be in every Christian family.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

[illegible] Magazine for May will [illegible] of [illegible] unreadable, but [illegible] aged, periodical. Howard Pyle, author and artist, will lead the number with a frontispiece and two other charming full page pictures illustrating "A May-Day Idyl of the Olden Time," a quaint, old-fashioned love-story, told in letters. The fine-art feature will be another of the "great pictures" engraved by Closson—this time Titian's "Belle." The heroes of the number are the Emperor William, a careful study by Bismarck's biographer, Dr. Busch, and Dr. Schleiman, of whom Prof. Mahaffy writes; there are also portraits of both, as well as of President Monroe, Rufus King, and Henry Clay, in connection with [illegible] Higginson's paper on "The [illegible] of George [illegible] as he calls [illegible] Monroe's administration. the first of some poems of a new kind, "Transcripts from Nature," William Sharp. Among the non-illustrated articles will be a thoughtful paper on the control of the dangers from defective vision, by one of our leading oculists, Dr. Jeffries; a study of "The Thunderer of the Paris Press," viz., the Journal des Debats; an amusing story by Brander Matthews, "The Rival Ghosts," and a number of poems.

"The Sins of Legislators," the third article in Mr. Spencer's series on the political tendencies of the times contributed to The Popular Science Monthly, leads in the May issue. These papers are attracting great attention, both in England and in this country, one of their first effects being the call of Leicester upon Mr. Spencer to take a seat in Parliament. The present article is a scathing exposure of the vicious consequences of intrusting legislation to utterly incompetent men—a practice equally prevalent in England and in the United States. He shows that nowhere else in human society are important interests given over to blockheads, ignoramuses, and mountebanks, as in the working politics which selects our law-makers. The varied and cumulative results of this system, and especially its influence in degrading and corrupting government, are shown with Mr. Spencer's usual inexhaustible command of pertinent facts. This number contains also Robert Giffen's address on "The Progress of the Working-Classes in the Last Half Century," in which he shows that their condition by no means calls for a change so revolutionary as that which Henry George proposes. "Christian Agnosticism," by Canon Curteis, is a reply to Spencer's recent article on religion, and is characterized by a much kindlier spirit and a far more intelligent appreciation of the position of his antagonist than is usually manifested by the critics of Mr. Spencer's religious views. "The Milk in the Cocoa-Nut" is another of Grant Allen's charming science stories. Some interesting Correspondence, with Notes and Miscellany, makes up the number. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

A series of profusely illustrated papers on "Recent Architecture in America" will be begun in the May Century. "Public Buildings" is the subject of the first article. The writer of the series is Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, whose recent papers on "Art and Artists" have shown knowledge, careful study, appreciation, and felicity of statement.

Chas. G. Leland's articles on "Brass Work" in the July St. Nicholas prove so popular that we are that the editor has secured a series of papers on kindred arts from the same author. The first one of these, on "Leather Work," will appear in the May number.

D. A. WILLIAMS, P. E.

OKOLONA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The District Conference and Sabbath-school Convention will commence at Tupelo, July 3. We hope to have a large representation of both members of the conference and congregation. The committee on programme of religious and literary exercises will publish the programme in due time, but we hope that each pastor in the district will come to the conference prepared to make a report of the amount apportioned to the charge this year for benevolent purposes by the committees, and what amounts have been raised; also how many SOUTHWESTERNS taken in each church and congregation. We will publish the reports in the SOUTHWESTERN. Go to work, brethren, and do your duty; don't say, "I will pay a dollar in the fall." The conference at its session held in Jackson, Jan. 10, 1884, did away with publishing the names of those paying one dollar or more in the conference journal.

D. A. WILLIAMS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

To the minister of the Mississippi Conference: The full amount apportioned to our conference to help defray expenses of the General Conference has not all been raised yet. We have a few days left and it is hoped, dear brethren, that the entire amount ($1,400) be raised. The Mississippi Conference should not fall behind upon this occasion. Give the money to your presiding elder by the 20th inst., at least, and no sooner if to the proper place.

Fraternally yours,
J. L. SHUMPERT, Sec'y.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 372 pp. Price, stiff paper, .$1, 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Editorial Notes.

A bill is before Congress to restore Gen. Fremont to his rank in the army, and placed him on the retired list. We hope it will pass. Gen. Fremont served his country long and well, and is now old and in possession of moderate means.

The Knight's Sword and Helmet, is a Pythian monthly published at Fort Madison, Iowa, H. W. Dodd, manager; price $1 per year. The March number heralded the New Orleans excursion, and the May number will probably describe how overcoats were found serviceable in a supposed torrid clime.

A New Jersey law prohibits the sale of cigarettes to minors under 16 years of age; a bill has been introduced in the New York legislature for the same purpose. Such a law should exist in every State but especially in Louisiana, where thousands of youths are enfeebled and yearly hurried to their graves by poisonous cigarettes.

We are in weekly receipt of Living Words, a weekly publication of sermons by Rev. J. H. Thompson, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, New York. These sermons are plain, straightforward, full of Gospel truth. They are abreast of the times in freshness of thought and power of presentation. The reading of them must be a great benefit.

An exchange refers to an able discussion upon "Christian Evidences," during which a strong objection was made against Darwinism, namely: "The connecting link between the monkey and the man had never been found by scientists." If it is the mind that makes the man, certainly there cannot be much force in this objection. In a moral and real life sense there are multitudes of the members of the human family who furnish the connecting link; they fill up or bridge over the chasm.

There are a number of things just now that tend to bring our country into disrepute, such as the free love character of the divorce laws in many of the States, the wholesale swindlers in the public service, the freedom of dynamiters to make excursions into other nations, the financial failure of justice to prosecute and punish the most glaring delinquencies, the [illegible] Cincinnati Hog-raised politicians, [illegible] please, these things are humiliating to every true American. They touch his sense of honor as an American citizen.

The General Conference at Philadelphia will have to wrestle with the subject of caste in the Methodist Episcopal Church. We question no man's motives, but this matter needs to be ventilated, and in the language of the Western when referring to the Birmingham disgrace, we say "kick it along," and "kick" it out of the church.

Senator Garland of Arkansas, in his speech on the educational bill before the U. S. Senate, deserves honorable mention for the following expressions: "I want all races in this country to be brought up to the very highest phase of education, brought to the very front rank of knowledge and information. It is as important to the people with whom they are thrown daily that they be educated as it is to themselves."

Rev. W. McDonald, Vice-President of the National Association for the Promotion of Holiness, announces in the last issue of the Christian Witness and Advocate of Bible Holiness that at the special request of Mrs. Inskip he has undertaken the preparation of a Memoir of Rev. John S. Inskip. Rev. J. E. Searls, of New York city, is to be associated with him in this work. No better selection could have been made. These brethren are everyway competent. With them it will be a work of love.

Mr. Ellis has introduced a bill in the House to reimburse the State of Louisiana to the amount of $312,000 for the loss of the State House at Baton Rouge, which was destroyed by Federal troops in 1862. The bill provides that 250,000 acres of the public domain be ceded to Louisiana to extinguish the claim, or land scrip be issued to her to that amount. This will afford the Democrats in Congress another chance to blunder. It is not probable the Senate will inaugurate the payment of Confederate war claims. The South must capture the Presidency before that much longed for pehion arrives.

The Knight of Pythias, said Supreme Chancellor Linton forms the third benevolent association in American in size, the order is adding 1000 Knights a month. Their reception in New Orleans was of a pleasing character. He also said the mingling of Knights from North and South served to wipe away sectional prejudices. In Pythian halls such prejudices are ignored. Pythianism was also charged with the mightier mission of wiping out national prejudices. Let the manly Northern Pythians whisper in the ears of their Southern brethren, that a lesser tendency to put monuments of Confederate chieftains in public squares would also lead to that desirable end.

Representative Ellis introduced a bill providing for a Federal loan of $1,000,000 to assure the complete success of the New Orleans Exposition. The House committee on appropriations agreed to report favorably, with the condition that the amount expended on the beautifying of the grounds and erection of buildings shall not exceed the aggregate amount of subscriptions or loans or mortgage the income out of which it is proposed to repay the government. Mr. Burke, director general, had previously reported to the President that demands for space were crowding upon him, and that it was necessary to meet them by increased expenditures.

Three Minute Talks—Concluded.

It is possible that one may find the reading of even "three minute talks" a little tedious, if too many of them are strung together, so after having continued mine through several numbers I am admonished to bring them to a close. I have experienced much pleasure in jotting down the thonghts which have appeared in the series of talks, not because I was vain enough to suppose that everybody wonld care to read them or to appreciate them afterward, but because I had the conviction that a few persons might receive some benefit from them. In this I have not been disappointed, judging by the tone of a half dozen letters now lying before me. The right use of our power for doing good is in the helping the few that stand at present within our reach, not in sitting with folded hands waiting to hear the tramp of the great multitude expectant of our blessing. Because my pen does not wield sufficient power to hold the attention of the many thousands who read, must it remain idle? Not if there are in any place one man or woman struggling to overcome in the battle of life who will welcome the message it sends forth. It is God's plan that His disciples go to whom they are sent, be the number few or many. Our spheres are given to us, not made by our endeavors, and our chief business is, to fill them grandly and well whether they be small or large ones. Sad, indeed, will be our failure, if we allow the shining abilities of the profound thinker to shame our little, insignificant talent into obscurity and inactivity, to be consumed away by the rust of neglect. Understand me, we are not to go out of our way and attempt to do indifferently and awkwardly what some other person is ready to execute with ease and thoroughness. We are to stand in our lot. There we will be sure to find "a work which no other can do," and which we are enjoined by the highest authority, to "do with our might." All are not intended to write for the press, though, I am persuaded, there are not a few who have hitherto kept silent that might greatly assist others in their upward march, if they would but employ their pens occasionally. How many times have those who have been instructed and charmed by the articles which have made their appearance in the SOUTHWESTERN, of late, from Mrs. L. C. Braden, been compelled to express regret that she kept back the wealth of her cultured and experienced mind so long as she did. Why do so many yet withhold words which, if sent broadcast, might cheer and lighten so many hearts? There is no need of encouraging a timidity which represses utterance. If what you have to say is in no way calculated to help the reader, well intended but practically worthless, the editor, whose heart is more kind and sympathetic than some imagine, will discover the fact and quietly and good naturedly consign your manuscript to the waste, where it will perish without inflicting the least harm upon any one. But if it happens to be of a character which will leave no doubt as to its helpful tendency it will certainly appear in the paper as soon as proper space can be found in the paper for it. It also occurred to you that yon onght to try to do good by the use of your pen, there is no excuse for your refraining from attempting it at once. Up and at it, and if you blunder seriously, no one, save yourself and the editor will probably ever know it, unless yon so far forget your sense as to allow your disappointment to be noised abroad. You are not however, likely to blunder and fail if you are in real earnest, use plain speech, stick to your subject, condense until nothing remains bnt what yon actually wish expressed, and then breathe into the whole the spirit of love and good will toward all men. In our essays to do good there are, it should be stated, other means to be employed besides the press. Friendly letters through the mails to absent ones are important agencies, not to be overlooked. I can never tell how much I have been forwarded on my way by the inspiring words contained in the kindly letters which have fallen into my hands from much esteemed correspondents, learned and unlearned. Spoken thought, too, is potent. What a privilege to speak words of warning, of encouragement and good cheer to those with whom we come into contact. How oft we have been made to exclaim: Did not our hearts burn within us as he talked with us by the way! Stewards, to whom the Lord has entrusted but one talent, stand not idle. Look around you. Lay hold! Work while it is day! The night cometh! D. W. HAYS.

Columbus District.

MR. EDITOR:—I have been able to hold three quarterly conferences on my second round. I began at Columbus March 22-23rd; the reports of the class leaders were very good and encouraging. The weather being bad, we did not get a congregation.

April 5-6 we were at Alleyton, where we met all the brethren and enjoyed a real nice time; place and people shows up well. They have a live man for a pastor. Bro. Cogswell was able to report $2.65 for benevolent purposes. Sunday-school was a day long to be remembered by us all, on account of the out pouring of the Holy Spirit. Monday night we had love-feast, the glasses were set on the table to contain the contributions of the people for the missionary cause, and we realized the snm of over $3. I hope all the preachers on the Columbus district will follow Bro. Cogswell's example. Begin at once brethren to raise your assessments; do not wait until conference, (or just before). Please don't let Columbus district come behind, build churches hold protracted meetings and raise all your collections; you have no excuse, all you have to do is to save souls and build up the work of Christ's church. Do not neglect those very important duties.

From Alleyton we went to Oakland where we met Bro. Cooper, the pastor and brethren, held the quarter and had a nice time. Sunday the 13th we dedicated Brown's Chapel church house. The contributions of the people resulted in the sum of $15.30. This place and Alleyton were very close together in their collections, that of Alleyton being 13.05. Bro. Cooper is a man that is much beloved by the people of Oakland circuit, because he is a pastor to them. Oakland and Alleyton are both live places, may God bless these two circuits and their pastor. Yours truly,

P. M. CANMICHAEL.

Austin District.

DEAR EDITOR:—I met the quarterly conference of Cunningham and West Point on the 16th of Feb. Here the brethren were on hand and the meeting was a success all through. Four joined the church on Sunday. I need not tell you that the sacrament was administered, for you know I would be a poor presiding elder to neglect that part of my duty. The committee apportioned $350 for the pastor's support; they have 130 members, if each one will pay $2.70 the paster will be paid. They say he is the man for them, and I hope they will prove it by paying him all they promise.

Feb. 21st found us in the district conference; here we had a good time, not in shouting but in doing up the work of the district. We expect to make ourselves felt as well as heard.

March 1st, we were with Bro. J. W. Robinson and his people at Gatesville. After being encouraged all the way round, when we got here we went under the cloud. We arrived at 12 a. m. and waited until sundown for the brethren to meet but they did not get to gather until near nine in the night. We have no report from this place; the Lord pity those brethren.

Bro. Nesly and his members met us promptly March 8th on the Cedar Creek circuit, here we come ont into the sunlight again. The quarter passed off nicely. Sunday was a grand day; the pastors salary was fixed at $175, members 53, they must pay about $3.30 per member, they can do that if they will. Pay your pastors, brethren, and they will preach better.

March 15-16 we were at Georgetown, here we found the work greatly revived. Bro. Watkins had been going on with a protracted meeting for some weeks and had great success. The quarterly passed off lovely. Saturday and Sunday will be long remembered by some at least. Pastor's salary is $400, the members must pay about $5.35 each; they can do this, five dollars a year is cheap enough for a good sermon every Sunday.

We met the brethren at Davilla March 22-53, here things looked gloomy. However we held the quarter on Saturday. The brethren turned one well but had no repors. The membership is about 60, and the pastor's salary was fixed for $180, $3 per member. Pay it all brethren.

March 20th found us at Port Sullivan with Bro. M. Foster; he had his meeting going on. We found the church alive; there were several conversions, twelve or fourteen joined the church on Sunday and a nice lot of children were baptised. Quarterly conference members were all out except a few from Port Sullivan church. The meeting was held at Milam Grove. At Port Sullivan they have built a new church since conference and I preached in it on the 31st of March. This work has 100 members on it and they will pay their pastor $300 this year; don't fail brethren, we must pay better salaries or the preachers who can preach will quit.

The quarterly conference for the Austin circuit was held by Rev H Swann. Things are not very encouraging on this work. Though the meeting was just as good as could be, the preacher, Bro. Pleasant, is a young man and has a large family. I don't know just what they promised but I think he said $175, and more if they could. Bro. Dunkins is getting along well on the Liberty Hill work, the people like, and are trying to help him all they can. This is a new work, the quarter will be held on the 19th of this month.

At Belton Bro. Alonzo's meeting was held on the 3rd of March, he was doing well. They promise less this year than they paid last. I will say nothing about it. Now Mr. Editor upon the whole I think the district is in a fair condition; there are a few men on the district whom the people will not try to give a support and there is no elder or bishop, who can make them do it. The brethren that I refer to must improve, or quit the field, that is the truth of the matter. They cannot hold an official meeting, they care nothing for the Sunday-school, and in fact don't know what to do when they are there; poor work poor pay, good work good pay is my experience. The people never go back on me, when they have money I get some of it. Read, brother preachers, you must study or can not succeed. I have written the truth and I expect to be stoned for it. Mr. Editor, pray for me.

Yours, C. J. MADISON.

And now will some of the Bobtails rise and explain, how it happened that the eighth ward ballot-box stuffers were provided with such a perfect counterfeit of the the genuine box? This little game smacks of the olden time when the voters on one side were all white and the other black, but it is too stupid a fraud to prevail just now. —Baton Rouge Truth.

The people of India, it is said, four-fifths of whom depend directly on the soil, are increasing in poverty every day. The official members of the Famine Comission admit that the Indian agricultural laborer is only one-eighth part as well off as the negro was in the former slave States of America.

A young man in Brattleboro, Vt., has just received a bequest of $5,000 from an old gentleman, a stranger, to whom he did a chance favor a few years ago.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

A. Branch, Shady Grove, Baton Rouge district: "At this point Methodism seemed to have died out and the members gone to the Baptist and Southern Methodist Church, but I have succeeded in bringing together one of the leading brethren; and we are now keeping the foundation of a church. We have opened a school with [illegible] 15."

MISSISSIPPI.

A. M. Trotter, Grenada: "Our church is spiritually alive. We are now in the midst of a glorious revival. We have had 15 accessions. The Lord is graciously blessing our efforts. We have had a great deal of rain, and I don't know whether we will continue our meeting longer or not. The quarterly conference made full collections for all our church claims, and we hope to be able to collect every cent assessed."

[illegible], Grace Hill circuit: "This circuit is about 30 miles long and contains 5 churches and 85 members. We promised to pay our pastor, A. S. Williams, $300. He will [illegible] January 24, and up to [illegible] we had raised for him $33, including a donation of $25.85, for which $50 is to be given the church. Our pastor had to move on account of the overflow, but will be back [illegible]."

W. Bohman, Pickens: "The Sunday-school is doing well for the Master of Christ. It is divided into companies of workers. We are going to have a celebration and a [illegible] sermon, and we want to make a grand time."

TEXAS.

E. W. Parker, Jefferson: "First quarterly conference was held at Wallace Chapel, and although some of the brethren were prevented from attendance by the water, we received great encouragement from the sermon of Elder Webb. Collection $7.10. Thirty-six up [illegible] communion. May the Lord bless Bro. Webb in his work."

W. H. Stevens, Mission Valley: "Several members have been converted. We are [illegible] the use of intoxicating drinks, the use of tobacco and [illegible] evil habits. Elder G. W. Townsend held my first quarterly conference, and told us many things to revive our souls. We had also with us G. W. Townsend, [illegible], E. E. Cooper, J. [illegible] and J. C. Mayo. The trouble did all they could for me and my wife [illegible] Comey: "Get [illegible] E. M. Manson, Hon. John Boyd, [illegible] Humbert, Rev. H. Dunlap and S. W. Hall. The school proposes to educate ministers and their children free of charge.

The amount collected for Sunday-school Union, $4.25. The following is the resolution offered on the subject:

Whereas, This is the centennial year of Methodism, and will be one of the greatest years in the history of the church; therefore, be it

Resolved, That each pastor see that children's day be rightly observed in all of their charges.

Whereas, It has been suggested that the term of presiding elders and pastors be changed, on looking at the good accomplished in our Methodism for the first hundred years, and obeying the instruction given, "let not your good be evil spoken of;" therefore be it

Resolved, That we are opposed to any change in the pastoral term of stationed preachers, hereby instructing our delegates to advocate the same.

On the second day of Conference the Revs. T. J. Searcy, A. Moody and P. S. Sham of the Missionary Baptist Church, were introduced. Also Rev. N. B. Smith and others from the A. M. E. Church.

J. P. Pason, P. E.
E. M. Manson,
J. W. Hunt,
Secretaries.

Our District Sunday-school Institute was held in connection with the conference. The Institute was opened with scripture reading by the president, E. M. Manson. The president made some points in regard to the election of officers for the year took place, viz: E. M. Manson, President; S. B. Danley, J. B. Bradford and [illegible] Fields, vice-presidents; [illegible] Secretaries. [illegible] was introduced and addressed the audience; the lecture given was full of logical thoughts and the [illegible] returned the speaker their [illegible] thanks by a standing vote. J. E. Marbrey gave a lecture on good literature and how to circulate it; after which the little [illegible] of the Sunday-school Union and Tract Society were distributed. Rev. T. J. Searcy, of the Missionary Baptist Church, gave a lecture on the teacher's qualifications. Rev. N. B. Smith, pastor of the C. M. E. Church, read an essay on parents training their children. A. Moody made himself very active in getting homes for the visitors, he also took part in discussing the several topics. Wm. Whitmore read an excellent composition on the peculiar dangers of the young. Rev. C. E. Alexander, Miss N. C. Tally and Mrs. B. Pickett furnished instrumental music for the occasion. Our President gave a clear view on how to catechise a Sunday-school. Rev. S. B. Danley gave a splendid outline of the lesson on Sabbath. Then followed stirring remarks of J. E. S. Reed, on why parents should attend Sunday-school. The quarterly review was given by C. E. Alexander.

I must say, dear editor, in conclusion, that I think all who attended the district institute said to themselves, "It is good for us to be here."

Yours truly,
E. M. MANSON.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Marshall—Ebenezer Church.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN: I promised you in my letter of February to tell you in my next some "good things" about Marshall. According to promise and request of Bro. Albert when he was with us, I write you a long letter. If this takes up too much space cut the chaff out and give it to your waste basket. The first thing I will say is about the financial condition of Ebenezer. On Saturday night, April 12th, a grand rally, such as never before was known in Marshall, was made in the form of a Musical, Literary and Jug Breaking entertainment. The following is the programme:

Anthem—"Make a Joyful Noise."
Prayer—Rev. Lucina Luke.
Solo and Chorus—"We Come, Dear Friends"..... Miss M Roberts
Oration—"Temperance"..... J R Price
Breaking Jugs—Solo and Chorus—"'Tis Strange..... Miss Nora Hawley Essay—"Spring..... Miss Phœbe Johnson
Breaking Jugs—Sol.—"Free as a Bird," Mrs R H Harbert
Stump Speech—"Ain't I Right, eh!"..... M Pemberton
Breaking Jugs—Solo and Chorus—"Don't Leave the Farm, Boys"... Miss Susie Nash
Recitation..... Miss Eliza Kendall
Breaking Jugs—Quartette—"Dawn, Pet, [illegible] Maggie Roberts and Johnson, Messrs Simeon Wilson.
Oration—"Character"..... Simeon Reed
Breaking Jugs—Quartette—"Only a Dream of Home"... Mrs Harbert and Miss Neal, Messrs W Jackson and T C Bledsoe.
Stump Speech—"Or any Other Man"..... W F Bledsoe
Breaking Jugs—"Jonathan"... W F Bledsoe.
Awarding Prizes—Quartette—"Moonlight on the Lake.. Misses Roberts and Johnson, and the Messrs Bledsoe.

The literary exercises were rendered so well that constant applause was elicited. The result was that when the jugs were broken and refreshments sold (we did not trespass on the Sabbath, either) we had in our hands $183.50. To show our appreciation for the noble efforts of some who had jugs, we request you to publish the following names and amounts: Easter Heyden, $1.45; L. B. Ross, 35c; Alice Wilson, $2; Hattie Jackson, $4.05; Lovie Johnson, 30c; Stella Robinson, $1.20; Laura Johnson, 90c; Maggie Goosby $1.50; Isabella Johnson, $7.37; Fannie Adams, $2; Mary Carroll, 25c; Nora Hawley, [illegible]; Linie Edor, $2.43; Mary Johnson, $7.47; Mary Granberry, $3.05; Frankie Nickens, $31.35; Hattie Goodby, $1.46; Hattie Williams, $3.45; Laura Knighten, $1.80; Katie Porter, $2.65; Eliza Kendall, $13.10; Mary Adams, $1.80; Clara Brown, $5.20; Lizzie Whitmore, $2.90; Fannie Abner, $1; Hattie Tipper, 50c; Phœbe Johnson, $15.55; Harriet Neeley, $10.15; total $199.26. Refreshments $39.50; tickets $43; grand total $282.43; subscription collected, $82.75; making total in hand $239.23. The following are those who sold tickets and the amounts they turned in. Edmond Brown, $8.85; Mattie Greenberry, $1.55; H. Tibbs, 75c; Mattie Johnson, 25c; Wesley Sanders, [illegible]; Izzie Whitmore, $5; Minerva Roberts, 75c; Ida Jones, 25c; Mattie Dixon, 75c; Lafayette Lewis, $6.25; Kittie Jackson $7.25; Nancy Jackson, $5.15; Marion Sanford, [illegible]; Sallie Jones, 50c.

Prizes awarded those who collected most in jugs: [illegible] head was awarded to Mrs. Frank Nickens; centre table awarded to Miss Phœbe Johnson; oil painting (gilt frame) awarded Miss Eliza Kendall.

Prizes awarded for most tickets. Edmond Brown, rocking chair; Kittie Jackson, chromo (gilt frame); Lafayette Lewis, wall pocket.

We paid off every old debt, local debts, and sent $57.50 to the Church Extension Society, which will not be due till October, 1884. So you see we are in the best of financial health; not owing any one but the Church Extension, and by having sent the $50 which is due October, 1884, we are relieved of financial troubles until October, 1885. Help us to thank God for such a grand success.

On the following day, Sunday, 13th, which was Easter Sunday, the Sunday-school appeared on the same platform occupied the night before by the entertainment company, all neatly dressed and sashed, to render the beautiful, instructive and impressive Easter service sold by our Publishing Houses. No words of mine are adequate to give the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN anything like a clear conception of the exercises in Marshall. All the pieces were appropriate and well delivered. The music was grand. It was arranged to have exercises in the morning, afternoon and night. At 3 o'clock Dr. G. J. Starnes, a graduate of Meharry Medical College, of Nashville, preached the Easter sermon. He was with us also on Saturday night. At 7:30 o'clock the whole Sunday-school was formed on the platform and did credit to themselves, the M. E. Church and the trainer. The public say, "They were the best two nights they ever witnessed." Our school is steadily increasing. I neglected to mention in connection with the musical entertainment that Rev. S. M. Luke, of the First Baptist Church; Rev. G. B. Lynch, of the A. M. E. Church; Rev. S. Conelly, of the M. E. Church, and Rev. G. J. Starnes, M. D., were the committee that broke the jugs and counted contents. I acknowledge my thanks to Miss L. Vansycle, of Wiley University, for assistance.

We have received the children's day exercises for June 8th, and who are looking forward with interest for its arrival. I cannot fail to mention something about the Historic Medal issued by our Board of Education; they are "things of beauty." When I received them yesterday I was surprised to find them so complete. Before I got home, of the ten I sent for as samples, I only had three left. Every person who see them say, "I must have one." Before I left town I had my pen charm taken from my watch chain, and put in its place a Methodist Historic Medal. Nothing is so desirable for Methodist preachers as this for charms. I have quite a number of subscribers to it, and am taking more. It ought to be in every Methodist family. It can be worn by ladies by attaching a ribbon and hanging about the neck. If we are Methodists let us be known by her signs. Several white persons are subscribers to it. Mr. Editor, we are on the upward march in Marshall. We intend to advance with the progressive movements and times; and, by the way, Methodist are known generally throughout the country and the world by their progressiveness. Not that they are discovering new Biblical truths, or changing their babes, or seeking to know the sentiments of the popular masses as they may adopt the ring the bases of their aspirations, but, as in truth they (I mean the church) are sure that they are right and then go on to mould the sentiment of the communities, by training the young and enlightening the understanding of the old. Brethren, let us keep up, not lag behind anything; be leaders of your communities if proper leaders are not found in them. I pray that in all our congregations we may train our children, youth, and those of riper years so that they will be nothing else but [illegible]. Having relieved ourselves of [illegible] troubles, we are preparing to [illegible] the Lord's name in Ebenezer Church. We commence, on Thursday night, to have our church revived and try to have sinners converted to God.

Do you not think some of the above things are "good things?" Pray for our success. Dr. Starnes is still with us, and will lecture at the court house Saturday, 19th inst. He is making a deep impression on the people of Marshall. If I have written too much please allow for me. You know how one feels who has won a victory. More after a while.

Respectfully,
R. H. HARBERT.

About Alcorn A. and M. College.

EDITOR ADVOCATE:—Dear Sir:—An editorial note in your issue of the 10th inst. referring to a letter of mine in the Boston Watchman, makes me say: "Being a State institution, we teach no theology and study no Bible." I fear this bare statement taken out of its connection may lead some of your readers to infer that we are a "God-less school."

My statement to the Watchman is as follows: "Being a State institution, we of course teach no theology and study no Bible—only as it is done in the Sunday-school and from the pulpit—and we are doing all we can in God's name to direct our students away from the dark below, to the light above."

Please allow me farther to say that we have preaching every Sunday, and a weekly prayer meeting, besides devotional exercises twice each day. In these exercises the word of God is freely used. In the absence of God in Christ we recognize that all is vain.

As to the school having ever received an annual appropriation of $50,000, I may have been incorrectly informed by there whom I thought knew. By inserting these lines in your esteemed journal you will confer a favor upon those whose hearts yearn for the race's elevation. Very sincerly yours,

N. H. ENSLEY.

A Colored Bishop.

MR. EDITOR—The question is asked by a great many of our people will we have a colored bishop this general conference year. I am not in favor of a colored bishop, if he has not the qualifications for a bishop. It is not the color that makes a man. I am not in favor of a white man, if he has not the qualifications for a bishop. There are too many of our people looking to color for the success of our church. If the church finds a colored man for bishop this general conference, all right; if not, all right. I think the old Methodist Episcopal Church is the grandest church in the world; she has all races working for Jesus. Let us not be weary in well doing. I believe the General Conference will do everything for the interest of the church.

Destruction of the Inquisition at Madrid.

We have been furnished by a friend with a letter written by a former President of Galesburg College, Illinois, May 1, 1843, containing an account of the destruction of the Inquisition of Madrid. The author of the letter received the account from the lips of Col. Lehmanonsky, who commanded the troops who did the righteous work. Our readers by reading the thrilling account will the better understand the dangers to society which Roman Catholicism threatens:

BALTIMORE, May 1, 1843.

Mr. EASTMAN:—Among my fellow passengers on the Ohio river, was Col. Lehmanonsky, formerly an officer under Napoleon, and now a minister of the Lutheran church. He, however, remembers the scenes of olden times, and describes them with wonderful interest. Of his lectures on the character and life of Napoleon I had often heard, but never before has it been my privilege to meet with him. He is indeed a remarkable man; although past three score and ten years old, he retains the erect posture, the firm step, and activity of an officer of fifty. His skin has all the softness and delicacy of middle life, while the vigor of his gigantic frame, the quickness of his eye, and the power did of his voice, all indicate that it would be no difficult thing for him, circumstances render it necessary, to resume his place upon the war-horse, and again lead forth his troops to the deadly combat, and cause his voice to be heard from rank to rank amid the din of conflict. His lectures I have always heard represented as intensely interesting. Such I can well conceive they are, for besides possessing a memory of remarkable tenacity, and an unusually ready utterance, he has had means such as perhaps no other living man has had, certainly none in this country, of knowing the men and things of which he speaks. His acquaintance with Bonaparte commenced on his first entering the army, when he found himself a private soldier, under this distinguished man as his captain. For twenty-three years he served with him in stations of trust, which rendered the most intimate relations necessary, and it was only when Napoleon was confined on the Island of Elba, that Col. Lehmanonsky retired from the service. I have dwelt thus long on the character and circumstances of this veteran officer, for the purpose of introducing to your readers one of the many narratives with which he favored us while passing up the Ohio. And if I could impart to it on paper, a tithe of the interest it possessed as it fell from his lips, and beamed forth from his eye, I should have no doubt of its being read by every reading member of the families to whom your paper goes. Of one thing I am sure, that I shall be rewarded for writing it, by the pleasure it will afford at least to one of those families. I give it, as nearly as my memory serves me, in his own language.

"In the year 1800," said Col. Lehmanonsky, "being then at Madrid, my attention was directed to the Inquisition in the neighborhood of that city. Napoleon had previously issued a decree for the suppression of this institution, wherevere his victorious troops should extend their arms. I reminded Marshal Soult, then governor of Madrid, of this decree, who directed me to proceed to destroy it. I informed him that my regiment, the 9th of the Polish Lancers, were insufficient for such a service, but that if he would give me two additional regiments I would undertake the work. He accordingly gave me the two required regiments, one of which, the 117th, was under the command of Col. De Lile, who is now, like myself, a minister of the gospel. He is pastor of one of the evangelical churches in Marseilles. With these troops I proceeded forthwith to the Inquisition, which was situated about five miles from the city. The Inquisition was surrounded with a wall of great strength, and defended by about four hundred soldiers. When we arrived at the walls, I addressed one of the sentinels, and summoned the holy fathers to surrender, to the imperial army, and open the gates of the Inquisition. The sentinel who was standing on the wall appeared to enter into conversation for a few moments with some one within, at the close of which he presented his musket and shot one of my men. This was a signal for attack, and I ordered my troops to fire upon those who appeared upon the walls. It was soon obvious that it was an unequal warfare. The walls of the Inquisition were covered with the soldiers of the holy office; there was also a breastwork upon the wall, behind which they kept continually, only as they partially exposed themselves as they discharged their muskets. Our troops were in the open plain, and exposed to a destructive fire. We had no cannon, nor could we scale the walls, and the gates successfully resisted all attempts at forcing them. I saw that it was necessary to change the mode of attack, and directed some trees to be cut down and trimmed and brought on to the ground, to be used as battering-rams. Two of these were taken up by detachments of men, as numerous as could work to advantage, and brought to bear upon the walls with all the power which they could exert, regardless of the fire which was poured upon them from the walls. Presently the walls began to tremble, and under the well directed and persevering application of the ram, a breach was made, and the imperial troops rushed into the Inquisition. Here we met with an incident which nothing but Jesuitical effrontery is equal to. The Inquisitor general followed by the father confessors, in their priestly robes, all came out of their rooms, as we were making our way into the interior of the Inquisition, and with long faces, and their arms crossed over their breasts, their fingers resting on their shoulders, as though they had been deaf to all the noise of the attack and defence, and had but just learned what was going on; they addressed themselves in the language of rebuke to their own soldiers, saying, 'Why do you fight our friends, the French?' Their intention apparently was to make us think that this detachment was wholly unauthorized by them, hoping if they could produce in our minds a belief that they were friendly, they should have a better opportunity in the confusion and delay of the Inquisitor general to escape. This artifice was too shallow and did not succeed. I caused them to be placed under guard, and ordered the soldiers of the Inquisition to be made prisoners. I then proceeded to examine this prison-house of hell. We passed through room after room, found cells, dungeons, and wax candles in abundance, but we could discover no evidences of iniquity being practiced there; nothing of those peculiar features which we expected to find in an Inquisition.

Here was beauty and splendor, and the most perfect order on which my eyes had ever rested. The arrangements—the proportions were perfect. The ceiling and floors of wood were scoured until they were highly polished. The marble slabs were arranged with a strict regard to order. There was everything to please the eye and gratify a cultivated taste, but where were those horrible instruments of torture of which we had been told, and where were the goods in which human beings were said to be buried alive? We scattered in all directions, and I was determined to find them, if they were to be found. This we had never done, and I was prepared to give up the search, convinced that the information was different from others of which I had heard. Gen. De Lile was not easily induced to give up the search, and said to me, 'You are commander to-day, and as you say so it must be, but if you will be advised by me, let this marble floor be examined more. Let some water be brought in and poured upon it, and we will watch and see if there is any place through which it passes more freely than others.' I replied to him, 'do as you please Colonel,' and ordered water to be brought accordingly. The slabs of marble were large and beautifully polished. When the water had been poured over the floor, much to the dissatisfaction of the Inquisitors, a careful examination was made of every seam in the floor, to see if the water passed through. Presently Col. De Lile exclaimed that he had found it. By the side of one of these marble slabs the water passed through fast, as though there was an opening beneath. All hands now were at work for futher discovery. The officers with their swords, and the soldiers with their bayonets, seeking to clear out the seam and pry up the slab. Others with the butts of their muskets sticking the slab with all their might to break it, while the priests remonstrated against our desecrating their holy and beautiful house. While thus engaged, a soldier who was striking with the butt of his musket, struck a spring and the marble slab flew up. The faces of the Inquisitors grew pale, and as Belshazzar when the hand appeared writing on the wall, so did these men of Belial shake and quake in every bone and joint and sinew. We looked beneath the marble slab, now partly up, and we saw a stair case. I stepped to the table and took from the candlestick one of the candles four feet in length, which was burning, that I might explore what was before me, as I was doing this I was arrested by one of the Inquisitors, who laid his hand gently on my arm, and with a very demure and holy look, said, 'My son you must not take that with your profane and bloody hand, it is holy.' 'Well, well,' I said, 'I want something that is holy to see if it will not shed light on iniquity, I will bear the responsibility.' I took the candle and proceeded down the stair-case. I now discovered why the water revealed to us this passage. Under the floor was a tight ceiling except at the trap door, which could not be rendered close, hence the success of Col. DeLile's experiment. As we reached the foot of the stairs, we entered a large square room, which was called the Hall of Judgment. In the centre of it was a large block, and a chain fastened to it. On this they had been accustomed to place the accused, chained to his seat. On one side of the room was one elevated seat, called the Throne of Judgment. Here the Inquisitor General sat, and on either side were seats less elevated, for the holy fathers. Behind the throne in the second hall of the Holy Inquisition. From this room we passed to the right and left, through arches to small cells, extending the entire length of the palace; and here, what a sight met our eyes! How has the benevolent religion of Jesus been abused and slandered by its professed friends. These cells were places of solitary confinement, where the wretched objects of inquisitoral hate were confined year after year, till death released them of their sufferings, and there their bodies were suffered to remain until they were entirely decayed, and the rooms had become fit for others to occupy. To prevent this practice being offensive to those who occupied the Inquisition, there were flues or tubes or winding to the open air, sufficiently capacious to carry off the odor from these decaying bodies. In these cells we found the remains of some who had paid the debt of nature, some of them had been dead apparently but a short time, while of others nothing remained but bones, hair attached to the floor of their dungeon. In others we found the living sufferer of every age and of both sexes, from the young maiden and maiden to those of three score and ten years, all as naked as when they were born into the world. Our soldiers immediately applied themselves to releasing these captives of their chains; striped themselves in part of their own clothing to cover these wretched beings, and were exceedingly anxious to bring them up to the light of day. But aware of the danger, I insisted on their wants being supplied, and being brought gradually to the light, as they could bear it. When we had explored these cells, and opened the prison doors of those who yet survived, we proceeded to explore another room upon the left. Here we found the instruments of torture, of every kind which the ingenuity of men or devils could invent. At the sight of them the fury of our soldiers refused any longer to be restrained. They declared that every inquisitor, monk and soldier of the establishment deserved to be put to torture. We did not attempt any longer to restrain them. They commenced at once the work of torture with the holy fathers. I remained until I saw four different kinds of torture applied, and then retired from the awful scene, which terminated not while one individual remained of the former guilty inmates of this ante chamber of hell, on whom they could wreak revenge. As soon as the poor sufferers from the cells of the Inquisition could with safety be brought out of their prison to the light of day, (news having been spread far and near, that numbers had been rescued from the Inquisition) all who had been deprived of friends by the holy office, came to inquire if their's were among the number. O, what a meeting was there! about a hundred who had been buried alive for many years, were now restored to the active world, and many of them found here a son and there a daughter, here a sister, and there a brother, and some, alas! could recognize no friends. The scene was such that no tongue can describe. When this mark of recognition was over, to complete the business in which I had engaged, I went to Madrid and obtained a large quantity of gun powder, which I placed underneath the edifice, and in its vaults, and as was applied the slow match, there was a joyful sight to thousands of admiring eyes. Oh! it would have done your heart good to see it; the walls and massive turrets of that proud edifice, were raised towards the heavens, and the Inquisition of Madrid was no more!"

Is It True?

BY L. M. HAGOOD.

In the Central Christian Advocate of March 12th as to the separate conferences I wrote under the heading—

"THE ENABLING ACTS."

It is thought that the next General Conference will remove these "acts" from our book of discipline. None of the conferences in which are colored members, have taken any action in this direction since they were enacted except the Kansas conference and they have only "missed" more than before. The St. Louis, Missouri, and Kansas conferences can only have a "separate conference" colorably, according to these "acts" and the rule is now too short for concerted action. When these acts were removed our book of discipline will contain nothing pertaining to color or previous condition. There is, to my mind, no analogy between our German, Scandinavian and colored work; because the former two speak a different language. The colored members in the M. E. Church are a part and parcel of the whole Church and are as faithfully looked after as any other conferences and districts, with exceptions in their favor on account of former and present disadvantages.

"If asked to give my reason why no separate conferences" should exist, I say: 1. Because few, if any, of these conferences have been separated without compromising some principle, and now in many instances, observing the signs of the times, it is thought not the best way to train up a race or lay the foundations of the Church of the future. The colored man is a factor in the make up of the government that cannot be easily dispensed with or ignored. Christianity and education will make him more and more important in church and State. No race can be what it ought to be if the children are raised up under the influence of prejudice, and that the meanest kind of race prejudice. In every movement of to day we should be careful to think of the interests of the Church of the future. 2. Because it is exceedingly harmful in that it separates the ministers and members of Christ's church so there is no Christian fellowship among them whatever; not even the same interest is manifested between them that existed when they were members of the same conference. 3. But few separations on this line have occurred unless on account of feeling over this unseemly prejudice. and even now ill-feeling exists between them so that they seldom, or never, visit each other's conference because part know they will be "coolly" received, and the others are ashamed of their past record on the separate conference question. In this South land there is, in many cases, more fraternity between the Southern Methodists and the white members and preachers of our church than among their former colleagues of the mixed conference. 4. Whatever others may say to the contrary, the church only grants the petition of its members. It has in no instance demanded a separate Conference on this line. If some have been led astray by Rip Van Winkles, who bow at the shrine of a corrupt public sentiment and doff the hat at the sight of this goddess of caste and prejudice, and have asked, for "they know not what," they are to blame and no one else. 5. It is inconsistent. The brethren of the conference and church only meet together at conference, and there take the Supper of the Lord together, except when the presiding elder and pastor in charge think it will infuse their influence in the community and ask that it be dispensed with. 6. The results of this will be disastrous, as some products from seeds sown in the past, are beginning now to appear. God only knows what troubles have already come to us, as a Church, on the account of this matter or how many friends have turned their benefactions into other channels on account of our seeming inconsistencies just at this point.

And now comes Bro. Sams with "The history and results of the separation of our work in Arkansas," in the SOUTHWESTERN of the 10th inst. Is it true that all the colored conferences are evolutions from caste prejudice? Will not other historians answer who were at the conference when separated? Best to let us know the whole matter before the next General Conference begins. I understand that the separation of Tennessee conference on this line was strange indeed. The Conference Minutes of 1876 lie before me and read: "Division of Conference. From a knowledge of the facts, as they have occurred to us, who have labored in the conference from its organization, and since, we declare it our firm conviction that the continuation and success of our work as an organization, depends upon this division of our annual conference, at its present session. Signed: J. M. Turrentine, J. R. Fuller and J. M. Carter, Committee." These brethren were nominated to take action in the matter, they went to work and two papers were reported as follows:

1. "In view of the present diversity of opinion, in reference to the influence of the division of our conference, that this committee agree to the following plan: That the matter of the division of the conference be presented to our colored membership and they be fully informed as to the request of our white brethren, and their opinion of the effect of the present condition of the conference, on our white work; and the committee meet just prior to the next session of this annual conference, and if the brethren who are now in favor of the division shall continue to ask for it, we agree to arrange for such a division at the next session."

But the tray was turned around when the minority report was submitted as follows:

2. We disagree with the majority of the conference, and report as follows: "In our judgment, the best thing that can be done under the circumstances, to advance the interests of our common cause, is to organize the McMinnville and Memphis districts, as we understand their arrangements, into a new conference, and that the organization be recognized one year hence." The committee was, O. O. Knight, J. E. Cole, J. R. T. Ransome, B. B. Manson, H. W. Key and T. Ward. The three last presented minority report.

About the same kind of a one-sided affair took place at the last sessions of the Missouri and St. Louis Annual Conferences. I was present at the session of the latter conference, and when the question came up one of God's stewards suppressed discussion by at once moving previous question, and hence the action taken there. Now I ask in this case, remembering how wide this chasm, filled with the slain of God's army, has grown, and continues to grow, what is the conclusion of unprejudiced Christian men? Has the upheavings of this smoking volcano at last found vent at Chattanooga and Little Rock? If so is not the same volcano preparing for another eruption at the next General Conference, in changing the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society? If this, what next?

A Good Story of Mr. Phillips.

Several clergymen boarded a street car in Boston one day, and one of them, hearing it intimated that Wendell Phillips was in the car, got up and asked the conductor to point him out. The conductor did so, and the minister, going up to the orator, said:

"You are Mr. Phillips, I am told."

"Yes, sir."

"I should like to speak to you about something, and I trust, sir, you will not be offended."

"There is no fear of it," was the sturdy answer; then the minister began to ask Mr. Phillips earnestly why he persisted in stirring up such an unfriendly agitation in one part of the country about an evil that existed in another part.

"Why," said the clergyman, "do you not go South and kick up this fuss and leave the North in peace?"

Mr. Phillips was not in the least ruffled and answered smilingly:

"You sir, I presume, are a minister of the Gospel?"

"I am sir," said the clergyman.

"And your calling is to save souls from hell?"

"Exactly sir."

"Well, then, why don't you go there?"

A person laboriously climbed the stairway at Park Place, New York, only to find the gates closed and the ticket office deserted, and only the big letters, M. E. R. R. (Metropolitan Elevated Railroad) staring at him from above the office window. "Of course," he muttered, as he descended the stairway again, "I might have known that no Methodist Episcopal Railroad would run on Sunday."

Persons who care the least about pleasing others will always complain the most when others do not please them.

INDIGESTION AND CONSTIPATION

ARE CURED BY

AYER'S PILLS.

Dyspepsia

Is one of the most dangerous of the diseases caused by these complaints. Affecting, as it does, the centre of life—the stomach—it quickly deranges and imparts the whole system, physical and mental. Its symptoms are manifold, and many of them so serious that they are generally regarded and treated as special maladies.

The Only Cure

For the various forms of dyspeptic diseases, is in a medicine that will remove its primary cause, by restoring the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels to a healthful condition. Any other treatment is as useless as an effort would be to make a watch keep time by simply gilding its case, when it had a broken main-spring.

Ayer's Pills

Are the best medicine to accomplish the necessary work of cleansing, stimulating and restoring. They are more thorough in their purgative effect than any others, yet are not violent in their action, exercise a powerful influence for good upon the other vital organs as well as the bowels, and effectually

Banish Disease.

For Biliousness, Jaundice, and other evil consequences of hepatic disorders, there is no remedy so prompt and thorough as AYER'S PILLS. They are also, by their efficacy in regulating the digestive functions, of the greatest value to women in the most critical stages of existence.

Kidney Diseases

Also spring from disorders of the digestive functions, and are not only exceedingly painful in themselves, but have symptoms, such as Dropsy, Rheumatism, which are of the gravest character. The work of the kidneys is the purifying of the blood. When, through disease, they cease to do this

Prompt Relief

Must be accorded to avert these serious consequences. Medicines that lull the pain by dulling their sensibility, or that stimulate them to unnatural activity, do infinitely more harm than good. To restore them to health, the kidneys must be cleansed, their inflammation allayed, and their strength restored.

Ayer's Pills

Do this more effectually than any other. Their diuretic effect is not less marked and beneficial than their purgative power. Not only do they, at once, relieve and remove disease, free the clogged, and rouse the liver and organs, but their combined effect, when taken in small doses, is to regulate the machinery of life, and Restore Health and Vigor.

For all the several varieties of Piles, and for the many Cutaneous eruptions produced by Blood Poisons, Scrofula into the circulation during the process of consumption, no cure is so speedy and thorough as AYER'S PILLS, which tone the bowels and aid nature.

The book for these times, and all times, is "Christian Doctrine and Church Council." Every Methodist minister should have a copy. Price, cloth binding, $1.75; paper, $1.25.

"The small sins spoil the vines," but these sins are much thing with God as a small sin. With him sin is always sin, and the wages of sin is death.

It is a curious fact that every Republican candidate struggling for the nomination for the Presidency thinks it desirable to couple his name with [illegible]. Senator Edmunds, with all his wit to originate [illegible]. They first flung out [illegible] and Lincoln. But it was soon originated that [illegible] by all the Lincoln [illegible]. And now we have [illegible] Blaine and Lincoln [illegible] and Lincoln. Last week [illegible] Butler and Lincoln. Here comes a serious question. Would [illegible] whom everybody [illegible] Vice President make a good President? How would it work to reconstruct the ticket and have it read Lincoln and Edmunds, or Lincoln and Blaine!

Mr. Moody is reported as saying that all persons desiring to join the church should [illegible] wanted to do. If they desire to be mere silent partners, and refuse to do nothing better tell them they are not wanted. Here is a valuable thought. The church is not a place for drowsy, sleepy men and women. It is not the place for mere dress parade and display. Nor is it a hospital to [illegible] and wounded who are there to be nursed and waited upon. The church of to-day needs men and women who [illegible] and are ready for any and every good work and word. We have too many of the three-handed people. The right-handed and the left-handed are well enough, but those who [illegible] and are out [illegible].

Recently the great Wabash and Pacific railroad issued an order forbidding all of their employes to use tobacco while on duty. This of course created quite a stir, and over [illegible] their employes resigned at once: but no harm came to the corporation, their places were readily filled with a class [illegible] loved neatness, [illegible] A great sect [illegible] put its hand on [illegible] it, why may not [illegible] of it and deal [illegible] and we only ask the [illegible] into the [illegible] wholly abstain from the use of tobacco" but [illegible] that no man [illegible] shall be admitted in to the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church?

Lat the sixteenth [illegible] Freedman's Aid [illegible] Methodist Church [illegible] have seen no [illegible] the rise and [illegible] work among the [illegible] of the special [illegible] itinerant system [illegible] of Conference [illegible] the situation [illegible] brethren in the [illegible] all [illegible] Christian priv[illegible] have been in[illegible] And all such action, [illegible]

New England on Caste.

The New England Conference at its late session ordered a special committee on caste. The committee was composed [illegible] ablest men of the conference. After careful [illegible] agreed upon the following [illegible] to the General Conference:

Whereas, We believe that the policy of the separation of our Conferences on the ground of complexion, race, or social condition, tends to perpetuate and intensify the degradation of one portion of our membership, and is alike abhorrent to the principles of free civil society and to the spirit of the Gospel; and

Whereas, We are convinced that such a separation involves an uneconomical and wasteful use of the means contributed to our benevolent societies; therefore,

Resolved, 1. That the General Conference be respectfully requested to take such measures as shall abolish the caste or race condition of membership in our Annual Conferences in so far as such a distinction has the sanction of the church, and to unite in one any two English-speaking Annual Conferences occupying the same territory.

2. That the General Conference be also requested to urge upon the Freedman's Aid, the Missionary, and the Church Extension Societies, (1). That no countenance be given and no aid extended to any institution of learning anywhere from which any person is excluded because of complexion or race; and (2). That no claim upon the Missionary or Church Extension [illegible] or for the building of any church edifice whose privileges are reserved for the sole use of the whites, should be honored.

HENRY J. FOX,
WM. R. CLARK,
B. K. PEIRCE,
D. SHERMAN,
GEO. PRENTICE.

H. J. Fox having spoken earnestly and eloquently to the motion to adopt, said motion was carried without dissent.

At the South New England conference the report of the committee on the Freedman's Aid Society caused quite a discussion on the color line. All the speakers agreeing that the separation of our conferences on the ground of race complexion or social condition, had a direct tendency to perpetuate and intensify the prejudice that grows and of the former condition of the colored members of the church; that it was abherent to every principle of free civil society, and in open and direct violation of the genius of the Gospel. The report was amended and adopted. The report on caste was presented and ably sustained, and after a long discussion was adopted unanimously.

The Methodist Episcopal Church is a city set on a hill which cannot be hid. On the question of slavery she has fought with beasts at Ephesus, and triumphed gloriously. Our foe is past, and behold another comes! The hydra of caste, the perfect embodiment of all that is hateful and harmful to human society, presents itself; it comes as an angel of light; it assumes to be pious, to be the helpmeet of education and religion, and under the plea of expediency, not a few are ready to succumb to its dictation. It touches closely our sense of honor to see the church that has said so much about believers being one body in Christ and every one members, one of another, that was the pioneer after the war in the work of building churches, and erecting schools from which no persons were excluded because of their race, color or social condition, to yield to the clamor of this hapy caste. Our brethren of the New England Conference are right in all of their utterances on this question. A fierce battle is to be fought, Gog and Magog are to be gathered together, Herod and Pilate are sure to become friends. May God help our brethren of New England to hold fast whereunto they have attained.

Methodist Quarterly Review.

The April number of this quarterly is fully abreast with the times. The first paper, by Rev. B. I. Dunn, is an interesting sketch of John Fletcher, who was, without doubt, the most saintly character of his age. He was born in Nyon, Switzerland, on the 12th of September, 1729. He dates his religious convictions from an early period of his life. After leaving the university he studied the works of Cohorn and Vauban with a desire to enter the army. He raised a company of his own countrymen to enter the strife between Portugal and Brazil. While waiting for the ship to sail, the maid who waited on him at the breakfast table let the tea kettle fall, which scalded him so bad that when the ship sailed for Brazil he was not able to go. Wesley says the ship after it sailed "was heard of no more." The falling of that tea kettle doubtless saved his life and gave to Wesley a helpmeat in every respect. His statements of his own religious experience in the fifty-second year of his age, will always be dear to the hearts of all lovers of the Lord Jesus. His last act on earth was to raise his right hand in token of the presence of the Lord Jesus.

The second paper relates to the of William Tyndall, the first translator of the Bible into the English vernacular, by Rev. R. Wheatley. Tyndale saw that much of the fruit of his ministry was lost because the people could not read the Word of God in their own language. "Without the Bible," he exclaimed, "it is impossible to establish the laity in the truth." Thenceforward the translation of the Bible into the English language became the great object of his life. Romish priests persecuted him at every point, declaring that the Bible contained an infectious poison, and ordered all books having any part of the New Testament destroyed. But all the rage and cruelty of his enemies did not prevent him from accomplishing his life's great work. Rome, "drunken with the blood of saints," was bent on his destruction. "Friday, October 5, 1536, brought him release from all sufferings." On that day he passed to his reward. The people received his Bible with gladness; aged people learned their letters in order to read it; poor people saved their earnings, clubbed together and bought copies which they read in turn to the crowds who came to hear. William Tyndall did not live in vain.

The third article is an able review of Bishop Hurst's "Bibliotheca Theologica," by Prof. Charles J. Little, State librarian of Pennsylvania. Rev. Marcus D. Buel has an able paper on Agnosticism. The Methodist doctrine of the atonement is ably discussed by Prof. John T. Tigert, of Vanderbilt University. The paper that will be read with most interest by Methodists is by Daniel Curry, D. D., on the "Scripture Doctrine of the Devil." Dr. Curry believes in a real personal devil, and after giving his characteristics, as set forth in the Bible, recounts the conclusions to which he has come as follows:

1. There exists in the spiritual cosmos a being of vast power, called the devil, Satan, the adversary, etc. —an ever-active force, essentially wicked, and perpetually warring against God, in and through mankind, for the promotion of sin and the ruin of souls. 2. The holy scripture gives us no account of his origin, nor any insimation respecting his history before he appeared in this world. 3. Through the fall of Adam (by the temptation of the devil) our world (that is, the whole human race) has come under his domination, so making him the god of this world; "the prince and power of the air," "the ruler of this world." This person is himself purely spiritual, and capable of acting on men's spiritual natures to deceive and incite them to sin, but wholly independent of all physical laws of subsistence, and unable to act in anywise physically or mechanically. He is now the great inciting and stimulating cause of the actual sin found in our world, as he was the procuring cause of original sin. 6. In the conflict now proceeding in the spiritual cosmos Christ (as Messiah) and the devil are the leading combatants, and every man is abetting one or the other side. 7. The end and outcome of the conflict now pending in our world—of which the human race is at once the subject, the arena, and the prize—shall be the complete triumph of Christ over the adversary, and His own glorification as the head of the triumphant church, in which all men who shall have been who shall shall share in his triumph and glorification, while the devil and all who remain his liege subjects and abettors, shall be driven away to receive the destiny prepared for them.

D. A. Whedon, D.D., has a second paper on "Probation after Death." H. A. Buttz, D.D., President of Drew Theological Seminary, has a scholarly paper on "The Gnomic Aorist in the New Testament."

The synopsis of the quarterlies, the book notices, the summary of foreign, religious and literary intelligence is varied, and shows skillful criticism based upon careful examination.

Rev. Mr. Harrison and Caste.

We believe that all discrimination in church or religious work based on the ground of race, complexion, or social condition, is a alike abhorrent to all the principles of civil society, and to the spirit of the Gospel. It would seem that in the hour and article of conversion the hydra-headed monster caste should have no place. We have read the following from the New-York Tribune and other papers, with a sense of shame and humiliation:

"During the last few weeks, Harrison, the 'boy preacher,' has been working up a tremendous revival in St. Louis, in which all have been invited to come forward and be saved. It appears, however, that this invitation was not intended to be taken literally, for the colored people who attend the meetings are told that on no account must they come forward, but take seats in the gallery or by the door. The excuse offered for this course is that the white people who come to be converted would be offended if the negroes were allowed to come forward. The colored people of St. Louis need not feel anxious at their exclusion from the front seats in Bro. Harrison's revival. They can obtain salvation in the gallery or at the door quite as quickly as those who would exclude them from the privileges of a common Christian brotherhood."

Refering to the above the Christian Recorder, has the following.

The 'boy' preacher, Harrison, insists that his colored hearers shall go to the gallery and there receive from his lily-white hand the Gospel he dispenses. To this the colored people of St. Louis object. Well, let them stay away and go to their own Churches. This 'boy' preacher is scarcely an exception to the average 'evangelical,' the moment he attempts operations in the South. The white seekers after 'religion' in that section insist on having a Gospel of their own and the average 'evangelist' gives it to them.

Alluding to this the Christian Standard justly asks.

"Can this statement be correct? We hope it will be promptly denied. We shall be happy to publish an emphatic contradiction. Surely we are not to have caste asserted, even in the hour and article of conversion! God will put no difference between us and them, purifying our hearts by faith. What God hath cleansed we must not call common. If we preach free grace, shall not the altar or inquiry-room be as free as the grace?"

The Recorder and Standard both seem to corroborate the statement of the Tribune. We have hoped that there was some mistake in this matter and have patiently waited for a denial. God despises caste, and is hastening on the time of its utter abolition. The time will soon come when of all this unchristly conduct it shall be said that one who —"Shall lift again

His hand against his brother, on his forehead
Shall wear forevermore the curse of Cain."

The Louisiana Election.s

April 22d was the day fixed by law for the election of State and parochial officers in Louisiana, and a new municipal government of New Orleans. On that day the chosen agents of the small minority which conspired to overthrow the Republican form of government in September 1874, which succeeded in doing so in 1877, and which has ever since cheated and defrauded the majority of the people of the right of expression at the polls, had full possession of the machinery under a villainous and unobstructive election code, and figured up results to suit their own convenience. There will be no reversion of these results. There is no reliance to be placed on juries, judges or laws for the punishment of election frauds in this State, such accidents being duly provided against. The Governor says he has no authority over the State Registrar, because he is a constitutional officer; the State Registrar replies to applications for permission to witness an honest count that he is hedged by the law. The General Assembly chosen under such auspices will not smite the hands that raised them up, like mushrooms, oft-times in a single night. Having thus plainly outlined the general situation as viewed by honest men of both political parties, it seems almost superfluous to say that Samuel D. McEnery will be the Democratic Governor of a Republican State, for the next four years, by a majority of near 40,000 votes. There may possibly be a dozen Republicans in the next General Assembly.

It might be supposed that such results would rouse public sentiment to the highest pitch, and lead to the driving from place of the men who brought them about. But the excitement appears to be temporary, and the necessity of holding together a Solid South for Democratic uses and Confederate vindication will effectually silence all protests from within the Democratic household. So far as Republicans are concerned they must submit, having been abandoned years ago by the national government, which is powerless to guarantee the rights of citizenship to its defenders.

There are facts that should not be lost sight of, and in a minor way have affected the size of the Democratic majorities for the State and municipal tickets, viz.

1. The Republicans lacked in leadership, and did not act as a definite party, for definite purposes, enthusiastic for definite principles.

2. The impression got abroad and was popularly believed that a few Customhouse officials, having secured the election of their chiefs and themselves as delegates to the national convention were indifferent as to the State campaign. Whatever mysterious designs may have been fostered by them, or silent electioneering done, certain it is that few mass meetings were held, and the masses believed they had been given Quaker guns to carry strong redoubts.

3. In the city of New Orleans one Republican parish committee endorsed the Citizens Democratic ticket, its successor, chosen between times, endorsed the Independent Democratic ticket. A proposition to nominate a Republican ticket, and take advantage of Democratic dissensions was frowned down. Republican voters were perplexed by the situation, the air was full of reports of bargains and sales by leaders, many remained away from the polls in disgust, and other sold themselves on private account. Says the Louisiana Standard "Negro strikers were bought like cattle."

4. The Citizens Democracy which was loud in its expressed determination to secure a fair and honest count, and to use such force as might be necessary to obtain it, was not supported by thousands who neither voted or appeared at election places. Several hundred deputy sheriffs, specially sworn to protect the election commissioners of the Regular Democracy, took possession of the voting places at the close of the polls, and drove away citizens and the mayor's commissioners who designed to witness the count.

5. Mayor Behan deserves the thanks of the friends of law and order for his refusal to attempt, with his small police force, to enforce the presence of his commissioners. The horrors of Cincinnati would have been surpassed in New Orleans had force been resorted to, and it is not probable that the victory of the ring Democracy would have been less complete in any particular.

The remedy—from whence shall it come? When may Louisianians become free citizens of a Republic? God is just. Men are laying up wrath against the day of wrath. It is possible that a close presidential election will hinge upon the brazen frauds of the ballot box stuffers, and a national party may refuse to abide the decision. Will this begin the next great civil war which is to continue the work left off in 1865? Stranger and seemingly more impossible events have happened. Primarily it is the duty of Christian men and women to cry out against the great shame which to-day is apparent in Louisiana.

We cannot see how Louisiana can receive much benefit from the proposed educational subsidy. According to the provisions of that bill, none of the money can be used either for erecting school buildings or for paying rent on buildings used for school purposes. It is to go directly for educational purposes. We have in this State full 280,000 school population, and if at any time they should all attempt to do the just and right thing and go to school, not over 75,000 could find sittings. Men who have been trained from their infancy to regard the Negro as a chattel will not suddenly turn round and help in their education. The persons who made and enforced laws against teaching Negroes to read and write will not be apt to make any liberal provision for their education. It is a question yet to be settled whether the proposed grant is to accomplish much for the education of the colored people. We hope for honorable and helpful conduct towards the Negro, but doubt when venerable men like Bishop Pierce tell us they ought not to sit as "jurors," and putting them into any "position of trust or responsibility is an insult to the Southern people," and a paper like the Vicksburg (Miss.) Herald takes up the Bishop's thought and frankly says, "They (the South) will not submit to Negro leaders; rather than do it they will kill them. This is the simple truth, and the sooner the whole country is prepared to accept it that the two races may adjust their own relations the better for all." These words are ominous. Politically they mean that, in Mississippi, as the whites are Democrats and the colored are Republicans, that the Republican party in that State shall have no existence. With this educational fund in the hands of such men there will be every kind of dishonesty in its management, and so far as it relates to the work of education neither the Negroes or poor whites will receive much benefit from it.

Rev. J. M. Shumpert, presiding elder of Jackson district of the Mississippi Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has our thanks for a copy of the journal of the sixteenth session of the conference held at Jackson, Mississippi Jan. 16-21 1884, Bishop I. W. Wiley, D.D., presiding. J. M. Shumpert secretary. The journal is an honor to the conference.

PERSONAL.

—Mrs. Joseph Dickson, sister of Mrs. Bishop Foss, died at her residence in St. Louis a few days since.

—The Rev. W. H. Daniels, transferred from Rock River to New England Conference, was stationed at its late session at Amherst and North Amherst.

—Rev. F. D. Hemenway, Professor of Hebrew and Biblical Literature in the Garrett Biblical Institute, at Evanston, Ill., died April 19. He had been prominent in Methodist Church work for several years.

—Rev. Mack Henson called last Saturday evening. He was on his way to General Conference. He is alternate for Rev. S. Gates, ministerial delegate of West Texas Conference. Bro. Henson is a loyal and sturdy son of the church, and alive to the needs of Methodism in the South.

—On the evening of April 18th a reception was given Bishop and Mrs. Hurst, in the parlors of the First Methodist Church, Des Moines, Iowa, on the eve of their departure for Europe, and the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

—Mr. John F. Slater, Norwich, Conn., will [illegible] a large sum of money for [illegible] colored people in the South. He has been ill several months, and is now in New York for [illegible] ment. The [illegible] fund is some $60,000, and is in the hands of Dr. A. G. Haygood, of Georgia, for distribution. Mr. Slater expresses himself as highly pleased with the progress [illegible] so far has been made in the work of the fund.

—The Rev. Dr. Reddy has just returned from a three months' absence in Florida, during which he has traveled about [illegible] miles, preached 28 times, [illegible] two new churches, and [illegible] to [illegible] them free. [illegible] in reviving [illegible] our public addresses, and returned with improved health and high hopes for our Methodism in Florida provided men and means can be furnished [illegible] ing pr[illegible] vocate.

OUR [illegible]

LOUISIANA.

C. D. Bryan, Mandeville: "We are having glorious times. The church is crowded with people on church nights, and many are joining the church. We had our love feast, and we felt the Spirit of God working in our midst. Four old backsliders [illegible] again and told how wicked it is to live out of the army of Christ. Our Sunday-school continues increasing. We have 100 children attending our Sabbath-school. We have a large choir of 35 members, conducted by Mrs. A. E. Bryan, and the choir helps to make the church prosperous. Pray for our success."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. A. Wilson, Hernando: "The district meeting of the Holly Springs district was held in Hernando April 3-5. The good people of the town had made great preparations to accommodate the visiting preachers and friends, but were sadly disappointed, as few of the brethren come, but we had a fine time, and not a word of complaint was uttered. Friday night was the Centennial meeting. Bro. J. O. Eckles, presiding elder, gave us an able address. Bro. A. M. Trotter followed with an able one, and Bro. M. H. Foster gave us a live one also. We had a fine time, and the people were very sorry when we left. The quarterly meeting commenced on Saturday evening. On Sunday morning we had Sunday-school at 9 o'clock, and an old-fashioned love feast at 10. We felt [illegible] Ghost, and we were highly blessed. At 11 o'clock Bro. J. O. Eckles, presiding elder, preached us an able sermon. We were made to laugh and cry. While Bro. Eckles was preaching we thought that the spirit of the Lord was upon him. 100 [illegible] of the Lord's supper. Collection [illegible] of $12.00."

N. Tate, Dalewille: "Elder Campbell [illegible] with us April 26. He preached an interesting sermon. My people were awakened, one was received in full membership. Collection for minister $10.00, for presiding elder $5.65, [illegible] estimate for minister $300, presiding elder $40, Bishop $1, conference claimants $1."

L. W. Keesee, Cleveland: "Elder Price [illegible] is in Tallahatchie, and delivered stirring, edifying sermons. He [illegible] the building of the new [illegible] Sunday-school is growing [illegible]. The church is looking up."

T. Watkins, Georgetown: "Elder O. [illegible] moved to hold our quarterly [illegible] meeting. There were [illegible] in eight weeks, and 37 joined the church."

J. [illegible] "Elder G. W. Brightwell [illegible] us March 29 and [illegible] quarterly meeting. We were [illegible] ing very patiently and going forward in the Lord's service. About 11 o'clock Sundry many hearts were made glad by the appearance of the presiding elder and his wife. At 8 p. m. he preached one of his soul-reviving sermons. At night Mrs. C. A. Reichardson gave us a lecture on the duty of home, which no doubt will be for the better, as I have already heard of the old chews of tobacco saying they were going to quit the weed. The Lord's supper was administered; 8 joined on probation. Collection for presiding elder $11. We worship here in every small school-house. We propose to build a church house, for the school house cannot hold the people who regularly attend. We expect to build a house worth $1000. The committee will decide whether we will build of frame or rock. I hope the reader will pray that the Lord may bless us in our efforts. They are a church going people; they love to pay their pastor; they are a working people. But there is one thing that hurts some of them and their families. They prefer to rent or lease land. They are allowed 160 acres of land, and they should go and get it. If they will only look at this great evil as I do I think they would rather buy or settle in this way. When a man rents he robs himself, his God and his family. He gives from one-fifth to one-half what he makes to persons that are able to buy and sell him, and takes it out of the mouth of his helpless family. May the Lord help them to think for themselves. My Sunday-school numbers 180, church members 49. Sunday-school at Hondo is superintended by Rev. Pierce, and is doing very well. Bandera has 50 persons of color, 41 are members of the Sunday-school superintended by Rev. H. Williams. Centre Point 49 scholars, superintended by D. Hamilton. Fredericksburg 54 scholars, superintended by Mrs. M. Russell. At Fredericksburg we have some money in the treasury for building, and subscriptions of over $100, and if we can get help from the Church Extension Society we will be able to accomplish our aim."

Louisiana Conference Statistics.

The statistics of the last session of the above named conference, show the following to wit: Probationers, 1,758; full members, 10,501; local preachers, 317; making a total of 12,576. Beuevolent collections were reported as follows: Missionary Society, $621.35; Board Church Extension, $238.80; Tract Society, $38.50; Sunday-school Union, $46.30; Freedman's Aid Society, 1,045.45; education, $81.10; making a total for the six objects named, $2,071.50, or an average per member of 164, an average for each of the six objects of .027. The conference received at its session $5,500 from the Missionary Society, $39 from the Chartered Fund, $38 as its share of the dividend of the Book Concern; authorized by the board of Church Extension $1000, making a total of $6,618, not including the hundreds of dollars that may be spent within the bounds of the conference this year by the Freedmen's Aid Society, Tract Society and Sunday-school Union.

From the above figures it will be seen that the Louisiana Conference at the good old age of sixteen years receives from the treasuries of the church considerable over $4,546.50 more than it pays in. During the year there were 98 stationed preachers, the preachers were reported as having done the best they could, and presiding elders, ditto, taking it for granted that they all did the best they could, would it not show our conference up as having a good supply of ministerial failures? In 1880 the conference was asked to raise only $100 on the General Conference delegates expenses, it raised only $36.45, while the delegates expenses amounted to $296.05 or $259.60 more than the conference raised.

It appears to me that we, as Methodist preachers, should manifest our appreciation for the help of our friends by helping ourselves more. Instead of raising an aggregate of 164 per member, it should be at least [illegible] per member. One may say we have our salary to look after, so do I, but we begin on that (the salary) the first of the year. Why not begin on our benevolent collections the same time; it takes cents to make dollars. Are we true to our trust in laying these different claims forcibly before our people and calling on them to contribute? Some of our smaller charges reported far in excess of the larger ones last conference, why is it thus?

A brother, who is an officer of one of our leading churches and one (church) which has had some of the best pastors in the conference, and certainly has one of the shrewdest presiding elders, says that a benevolent collection for the conference never had been called for in his church, nor the claims placed before the people; what money was collected, was gotten out side upon the public. Such is the best "they could do." It seems that a child 16 years old should be able to stand alone if not walk, and one at such an age that will continue to wallow and tumble aronnd in the lap of a good mother, is an intruder. Much is said by some of us about caste in the Methodist Episcopal Church, etc.; I think we should all throw our heads together and make ourselves be felt by work and then we would not have to hollow so loud to be heard. The Washington Conference is the only colored conference in the connection self-supporting. Let us in this centennial year bestir ourselves and work.

Holly Springs District Conference.

Conference met at Hernando, in our church, on the 3rd inst., in pursuance to call, Presiding Elder J. O. Eckles in the chair. Rev. E. Lane, of Grenada circuit, led the conference in prayer. A. M. Trotter was elected Secretary, and the usual committees were appointed. Rev. J. L. Wilson was elected assistant secretary. The first day was spent in appointing committees, and in arranging for the business of the session. At night Rev. A. D. Payne, of Abbeville, preached and his sermon will not soon be forgotten by those who heard it.

The second day's session.—The writer led in prayer. A few other brethren of the district had arrived and their names were added to the roll. The third question was taken up and the presiding elder made his report. He stated how the bishop had providentially appointed him to preside over the district. That he was very grateful to Dr. Revels for unexpected kindness; that the Doctor had, unknowingly to him, corresponded with the Bishop and had consented to go to Greenwood district, and the Bishop then appointed him to this district. His predecessor had laid his plan and commenced his first round; that he had visited all the charges and circuits but one or two which Dr. R. had visited, and had found all the brethren at their posts, and was encouraged to think that their efforts would be crowned with success; earnestly urged the brethren to make our churches comfortable, that our congregations might be larger in cold and wet weather; was highly pleased with the way the brethren of the district received him.

Each of the pastors present reported their charges in good spiritual condition, revivals were in progress in some and many accessions had been made in others. All the brethren believe that text reported by St. Mark, "What things so-ever ye desire, when ye pray believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them."

At 11 o'clock a good congregation having gathered, I addressed the conference on the subject "Entire sanctification." This was urged as a Scriptural duty for all believers, and listened to with marked attention. At 3 o'clock on the same day, Bro. M. H. Foster, told us about the "Power of the tongue." The speaker showed us that the tongue had great power for good.

CENTENARY MEETING.

At night our large church was filled with people, without regard to denomination, desiring to know about our centenary celebration, and from the enthusiastic and continuous applause they were not disappointed in their desires. Rev. E. W. Ellison, of the A. M. E. Church, read a Scripture selection and led in an earnest prayer. I was called to preside over the meeting. Rev. A. D. Payne chairman of the committee presented the following resolutions:

Whereas, It has pleased the Father and giver of all good and perfect gifts to bless us with the opportunities and privileges of this centennial of our glorious and ever onward American Methodism;

And whereas, there is a great boon for Christian education throughout the country, in both State and church;

Whereas, The whole of our beloved Methodism, including the whole Wesley family, are marking this age with their educational offerings, even with foot prints that shall tell future generations what they have done in this great boon;

Therefore be it resolved, by this conference, that we heartily join in the boon with our offerings; and further, that we go down from this conference with a renewed determination to leave no unturned stone in our efforts to raise a grand district monumental fund for the endowment of a chair in the Rust University, as was resolved by our late annual conference. And that every member of the conference, whether they be present or absent, do every thing an earnest Christian could be expected to do, toward the furtherance of the object of these resolutions. It was moved and seconded that these resolutions be adopted.

The presiding elder was here introduced, and for an hour and a quarter, held as it were, a riveted hold on the entire audience. He was followed by two other brethren who made rousing speeches. The resolutions were then adopted by a unanimous rising vote. At a late hour in the night the doxology was sung and benediction pronounced. The good seed was here sown and in due time the harvest will be gathered.

On the third day several very important resolutions were adopted, especially on temperance, urging every member of our church to take a decided stand with the prohibition movement, and any member who does not so act, is not worthy of his position among Christians. On the duty of the pastors to enforce the discipline both financially and spiritually, urging them to visit each of their churches and as far as possible individual members, more than once a month, as is frequently the case. Each of the resolutions was enforced with appropriate speeches.

Rev. A. D. Payne spoke on the duty of class-leaders, and the brethren will long remember his stinging words on the question "Are there any who walk disorderly," and the common answer, none in my class. It would do good if all our pastors and class-leaders would their give undivided attention to this question of our discipline. The whole proceedings were crowned, on Sunday at 11 o'clock. The church could not seat the people, and Bro. Eckles fully came up to our high expectation in his sermon. The sacrament was administered to a large number of communicants and all who attend the conference left for their different homes to be better Christians and do more for Christ than ever before.

DATE CAKE.—1 cup sugar, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup shortening, 1 cup milk, 3 eggs, 1 pound dates chopped, 1 pound raisins chopped, 1 teaspoonful soda, cloves and cinnamon to taste.

CRACKER PUDDING.—18 Boston crackers, rolled fine, swelled in boiling water. Stir into this 1½ cups sugar, 1 cup molasses, 3 eggs, 3 pints of milk, 1½ cups raisins, rolled in flour, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, and piece of butter.

Keep a dish of Indian meal on the toilet stand near the soap, and rub the moist hands on this before soaping them for washing. It will surprise you, if you have not tried it, to find how it will cleanse and soften the skin, and prevent chapping.

It is better not to put woolen carpets in the closets, as being dark and quiet moths and other vermin are more apt to collect. Straw matting is all right enough if more easily kept in order. Even heavy brown wrapping paper is not a bad substitute for a carpet in closets but little used.

Make a small square bag of flannel, leaving one end partly open. In this put all the remnants of soap as the pieces become too small to handle easily. When the bag is filled, baste up the opening, and it makes a good bath tub arrangement.

ABOUT PEA SOUP.—The late peas are sometimes thought to be improved if when cooking a small piece of pork, or bacon, or corned beef is cooked with them. Remove the meat before serving, and thicken the soup with flour or arrowroot.

INK STAINS.—Ink stains on mahogany or black walnut furniture may be removed by touching the stains with a feather wet in a solution of nitre and water—eight drops of a spoonful of water. As soon as the spots disappear rub the place at once with a cloth wet in cold water. If the ink stains should remain, repeat, making the solution stronger.

FRUIT IN TIN CANS.—The fruit put up in tin cans should be taken out when the can is opened for use. If exposed to the air the juice is poisonous. Even the best fruit in cans is not healthful.

CHICKEN PIE.—Cut [illegible] in pieces for frying, season with salt, pepper, and a little flour, and fry a light brown. Put in a stew pan with a quart of boiling water, and stew until tender. Take out the chicken, and add a little more flour, wet with cold water, to thicken the gravy. Season to taste with salt, pepper, and butter. Put in the chicken and let it boil up once. Serve hot.

NEW BOOKS.

THE WAY TO GOD and How to FIND IT. By D. L. Moody. F. H. Revell, Chicago. Price 60c.

This book forms a fourth to a series of authorized works by Mr. Moody which have come from this house during the past three years. It consists of new chapters or sermons in which truth is presented in a clear convincing style, so peculiar to Mr. Moody. These [illegible] have been spoken [illegible] God has owned [illegible] and as they take the printed and [illegible] form for preservation they are none the less valuable. It is a good book to have on the table, to put into the hands of the young or old. Its perusal will do good.

Mr. [illegible] is a writer of rare merit [illegible]. He has written [illegible] which have generally [illegible] themselves to popular favor. The present novel is one of his best, if not actually [illegible] he has ever written. It is [illegible]ing, pure, instructive and [illegible] moral.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending April 12th and 19th, contain Contemporary Life and Thought in France, and Abont Old and New Novels, Contemporary; A Fortnight in French Cochin China and Cambodgia, and A Sequel to "Rich Men's Dwellings," National Review; Abraham Hayward, Fortnightly; The Life of Lord Lytton, Blackwood; Richard Doyle, Painter and Humorist, Month; A Social Study of Our Oldest Colony, Macmillan; Greek Brigand and Village Superstitions, Gentleman's Magazine; Frederick Denison Maurice, and Charles Stuart Calverly, Spectator; Papal Poets, Saturday Review; The Axioms of Geometry, and The Mechanical Theory of Magnetism, Nature; Italy after the Resumption, Economist; Greek Fire, Knowledge; with instalments of "The Baby's Grandmother," "Beauty and the Beast," "A Renegade" and "Valentine's Day" and poetry.

The tide of immigration setting toward our shores is subject to fluctuations, but there exists no reason to anticipate that during the life of the present generation it will fail to reach the average height of the past ten years; immigration, therefore continues to be one of the great economic questions of this country, and it involves a political problem of the highest importance, that of naturalization. That our naturalization laws are defective in many respects is notorious, and the demand for their revision will no doubt acquire added force from the publication of an article by Justice William Strong upon that subject in the North American Review for May. In the same number of the Review, Edwin P. Whipple offers a candid judgment of Matthew Arnold, as a thinker and as a man of letters. Richard A. Proctor, under the title of "A Zone of Words," writes of the vast multitude of the pigmy kindred of the earth, known as the asteroids. In "The Railway and the State," Gerrit L. Lansing essays to prove that the multiplication and extension of railroad lines, and the establishment of low rates of transportation, are hindered rather than helped by governmental interference. Prof. Henry F. Osborn, of Princeton College, has a highly interesting article on "Illusions of Memory." Helen Kendrick Johnson contributes an essay on "The Meaning of Song." Finally, there is a joint discussion of "Workingmen's Grievances," by William Godwin Moody and Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, of Harvard University.

Harper's Magazine for May opens with a blithe note of springtime, in Mr. Pyle's quaint love-story, "A May-day Idyl of the Olden Time." The portrait by Titian, known as "The Bell," is a [illegible] engraving from the original painting—the second of the series of "Great [illegible] engraved by W. B. Closson. For the first time, Kairwan, the Holy City of Tunis, is adequately exposed to the view of Christian readers, in [illegible] F. Jacassy's article and [illegible] pictures. Dr. Moritz Busch's biographical sketch of [illegible] Wilhelm is in the present number. The Emperor's position, in his long conflict with the Prussian Diet, is here clearly and satisfactorily explained. Certainly, as judged by results, the royal policy has been justified, though it is inconsistent with the Anglo-Saxon idea of constitutional government. Ernest Ingersoll contributes a second paper on Washington Territory, west of the Mountains; effectively illustrated. A very interesting paper on the Bank of England is contributed by W. H. Rideing. Colonel Higginson, in his American History Series, treats Monroe's administration as "The Era of Good Feeling. Professor J. P. Mahaffy, of Oxford, contributes an able and entertaining biographical sketch, entitled "Dr. Schliemann: his Life and Work," illustrated with a portrait. In a single number we find contributions from an eminent German writer, a first-class French artist, a distinguished English novelist, the most piquant of American historians, the most popular of American story-writers, an expert ophthalmic surgeon, the most thoughtful of Southern authors, an Oxford professor, an officer in the United States Navy, and the newest London poet.

A very striking portrait forms the frontispiece of the May Century. It is a likeness of Chief Joseph, the Nez Perce, and is accompanied by a paper describing the last campaign of this remarkable chief, and his masterly retreat of nearly two thousand miles, with women and children and chattels, through a strange and almost impassable country. The narraton, Lieut. O. E. S. Wood, was on the staff of Gen. Howard, and took an active part in the campaign.

The drawings used by The Century Co. to illustrate a series of articles on the Life-Saving Service and other marine subjects were recently exhibited in the International Fisheries Exhibition at London, and the artist, Mr. M. J. Burns, was awarded a handsome gold medal. Mr. Burns accompanied Mr. S. G. W. Benjamin in The Century's expedition to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and illustrated the series of papers descriptive of that cruise, the fourth of which appears in the May Century.

Kellogg's Vindication at Hand

We congratulate the Hon. William Pitt Kellogg upon the near approach of that opportunity for vindication for which he has so long ineffectually clamored. The course of the Government toward him has amounted to a denial of justice. Indicted for accepting bribes or illegal fees from the star ronte thieves during his term of service as United States Senator from Louisiana, he promptly and indignantly demanded the right to exculpate himself and confound his accusers before a jury of his peers. That right was not accorded him. There were strange delays. The Government counsel were not of one mind in regard to Mr. Kellogg. The whole machinery of the Department of Justice was clogged. The witness Walsh, whose testimony the prosecution claimed was vitally necessary to its success, was treated with contempt and hostility by Mr. George Bliss, and, as Walsh has until lately believed, by Attorney-General Brewster himself. Some sneering Democrats said it was the President who stood in the way of a trial of the case, but this was obviously not so. Would the Hon. William Pitt Kellogg have pounded vigorously on the door of the Department of Justice demanding a vindication while the President was striving to protect him from prosecution?

But at length all obstacles are removed. Attorney-General Brewster sends Brewster Cameron and Mr. Ker to the witness Walsh, in Montreal, calling upon him in the most positive and emphatic manner to come to Washington and testify. George Bliss is out of the way, and Walsh consents. The trial has been postponed until Tuesday of next week to give Walsh time to reach Washington. Everything shows that the day of Mr. Kellogg's vindication is at hand, for the Government is in earnest this time.

One word of advice to the Hon. Willian Pitt Kellogg: If you want the Government to continue to be in earnest, and really wish to avoid the annoyance of a further postponement of your trial, encourage the suspicion already planted in certain minds at Washington and elsewhere that you and your fifteen fellow-delegates from Louisiana to the Chicago Convention are not altogether sure for Arthur, but are open to Blaine convictons.—New York Times.

In behalf of the Committee on Transportation for the approaching General Conference to meet in Philadelphia May 1st, please publish the following: The Committee applied for reduced rates on roads leading into Philadelphia, and have been notified that the following resolution was adopted by the joint executive committee of the trunk lines:

Resolved, That delegates and their families paying full regular fare from principal points within the territory of the "Joint Executive Committee," may be returned to such points upon continuous passage tickets, at one-fourth the lowest unlimited rates, upon presentation of certificates properly issued through the Secretary of the organization, under the rules, and endorsed and stamped by the agent of this committee in attendance at the meeting; such certificates shall certify the rates paid for going passage, and the route traveled; tickets to be for continuous passage, and good to return until May 31, 1884, inclusive.

On application of the committee the limitation has since been modified requiring that the certificates for returned tickets must be presented within three days after adjournment of the conference. A subsequent letter informs us that delegates are understood to include persons having official business with the conference, and that "principal points within the territory of the "Joint Executive Committee" includes all principal ticket stations east of Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati, south of Lake Erie, and north of Quantico, Va. No arrangement has been made with roads leading east from Philadelphia, and arrangements are not yet consummated with roads leading south or east of the points above named. A communication just received intimates that delegates and their family paying full fare for tickets to Philadelphia will be required to bring certificates of that fact from the ticket agent at the starting point. In purchasing tickets delegates should inform the agent of this fact, and ask for certificates.

In behalf of Committee on Transportation. A. J. KYNETT,

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. This is taken from Senator Randall Gibson's speech on the education bill: "I believe that the general education of the people and the diffusion of knowledge are the surest reliance to correct the evils in our political and social conditions and to preserve and maintain these institutions of free government."

The Manual of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for April, comes to us freighted, as usual, with most valuable information concerning the benevolent and publishing interests of the church. This quarterly magazine may be had for fifty cents a year, and it is worth to every active active worker in the church many times that sum.

Speaking of the proposed scheme for national aid, Prof. R. H. Jesse says, in the New Orleans Journal of Education for May: "Apart from the great issues involved in the cause, public opinion, which is the crystallized thought of the day, would receive a severe shock if this effort to elevate the common school system of the country should prove a profitless expenditure of public means."

Under the title Popular Series, the American Tract Society, are issuing a class of excellent books, intended for general distribution. The books are on good paper, well printed and strongly bound and have heavy paper covers with fancy sides. Of this series we are in receipt of "Whiter Than Snow," price 10c., and "Christie's Old Organ," price 15c. For sale by W. D. Shillman, 93 Camp Street New Orleans.

To show conclusively that Gov. Mollbery has not forgotten his long practiced arts as a bulldozer, it is only necessary to read that portion of his speech to citizens of Baton Rouge, who serenaded him in honor of his election, which refers to the Independent Democrats of East Baton Rouge parish, vide the Times-Democrat report: "He said he would find it exceedingly strange if those who had claimed victory in East Baton Rouge should be admitted into the Democratic caucus when the General Assembly convened on the 12th of May, but he rather believed they would be placed alongside of those dark sons of toil at whose feet they had recently worshiped."

Palatka, Forida, is a town which has snddenly started forward from a population three years since of 800 to nearly 3,000. A correspondent of the National Baptist spending the past winter in that town gives the following incident. Seeing one day a colored man standing on the wharf, he asked as to the means of support for the population; and reseived this answer: "Well, boss, we live in summer on fishin' and in winter on half dead Yanks; and, in my 'pinion, if dey stopped comin' for two years, dis place'd be busted."

The Christian Witness and Advocate of Bible Holiness has these timely words, "Talking about holiness is not a God-accepted substitute for being holy. Explaining the doctrine may be essential, but possessing the experience is a necessity. Pointing others to the upper room for the baptism of power, is well, but waiting there ourselves until filled with the fire of God, is indispensable." The one great need in religion is a conscious personal experience. We have good authority for "contending for the faith," but we need a faith that "works by love and purifies the heart. "Lord, give us such faith as this."

Baton Rouge Truth, commenting upon Gov. McEnery's reflections upon the Independent Democrats of that parish, says:

We regret his Excellency should have spoken words calculated to prejudice one faction of our people against the other, the dignity of his high office should have prevented his doing so, and we bumbly suggest that if he fonnd it necessary to speak at all, a few words upon the importance of being law-abiding citizens, condemning ballot-box stuffing, making fraudulent election returns and like practices, would have been in better taste and more to the credit of the Executive and the people he represents.

We are thankful to know that the time when voluntary drunkenness can be used as an excuse for crime is passing away. The New York Court of Appeals takes this sensible view of it.

"The rule is well settled that voluntary intoxication of one who, without provocation, commits a homicide, although amounting to frenzy, does not exempt him from the same construction of his conduct and the same legal inferences upon the question of intent, as affecting the grade of his crime, which are applicable to a person entirely sober."

The "poor drunkard" as the miserable sot has often been called, has a vast amount of sympathy wasted upon him. It is time that he should be considered and treated as he is, a criminal.

We said last week that probably a dozen Republicans would be returned as elected to the General Assembly of Louisiana. Exactly 19 were so returned; but a defeated Democrat, E. H. Farrar, proposes to contest the seat of R. F. Guichard, Republican Senator elect from the first district. If all the eleven other Republicans elect should refuse to take their seats, send in a protest against the late mockery of an election, accompanied by their resignations, their course would be approved and applauded all over the country. This would throw the entire legislative responsibility upon the General Assembly of the dominant class. The Republicans elect, if they accept their seats, will be powerless to affect legislation in any perceptible manner, and would be used as the scape goats for the errors of any Democratic faction with which they might be allied.

The General Conference.

Philadelphia, May 1.—The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was largely attended. Bishop Simpson, Drs. Vernon of Italy, Taylor of Lexington, Ky., Trumbull of Ohio, and Monroe participated in the opening exercises. Bishop Bowman is chairman. Addresses of welcome were made by Dr. Longacre and Gov. Pattison.

Bishop Harris presented on behalf of the descendant of Benson, the commentator, the Bible used by Wesley. A committee was appointed to prepare a response.

After drawing for seats, a recess was taken till the afternoon.

On reassembling devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. Littleton F. Morgan, of the Baltimore Conference.

Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, of New York Eastern Conference, offered a plan for the appointment of the following standing committees, which were adopted: First, on episcopacy; second, on itineracy; third, bonndaries; fourth, revival; fifth, temporal economy; sixth, state of the church; seventh, book concern; eighth, missions; ninth, edncation; tenth, church extension; eleventh, Sunday-school and tracts; twelfth, freedman's aid work in the Sonth.

A plan prepared by Bishop Andrews and submitted by Rev. Dr. Buckley, relative to the constitntion of committees, gave rise to a lengthy debate. It provides that delegations nominate their members to these committees, bnt with the conditions that no delegate shall be appointed to more than two committees, except as hereinafter provided, which two committees shall meet as above provided on alternate days; each delegation shall appoint one of its members to the committee on boundaries, but when the delegation consists of bnt two members, "one ministerial, one lay," its member of the committee on boundaries may be appointed to two other committees, and may be permanently excused from attendance by the committee on boundaries.

Rev. John D. Hammond, of Nevada, offered an amendment, striking out all after the words "as heretofore the several delegates shall appoint their members to these committees." This would virtually remove all conditions.

Rev. Theo. L. Flood, of the Erie Conference, said the plan snggested by Dr. Buckley gives larger conferences a decided advantage over smaller.

Judge George G. Reynolds, of New York Eastern Conference, wished to know on what fonndation the claim rests that two men should have as mnch power as ten.

Rev. Dr. Hatfield, of the Rock River Conference said the only way out of the difficulty is to change the law, giving all delegates equal representation in the Church.

The amendment of Rev. J. D. Hammond was defeeated by a vote of 176 to 185, and the plan snbmitted was adopted.

The conference adjourned until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

SECOND DAY, MAY 2.

The Conference reassembled this morning, Bishop Foster in the chair. The action of yesterday in placing conditions on the appointment of standing committees was recons'dered—yeas 91, nays 141.

After debate, a vote was taken on the following section, and it was lost: "As heretofore the severeal delegates shall nominate their members to committees, but with the following condition: No delegate shall be appointed to more than two committees, except as hereinafter provided, which two committees shall meet on alternate days; each delegation shall appoint one member to the committee on boundaries, but when the delegation consists of bnt two members (one ministerial and one lay) its member of the committee on boundaries may also be appointed to two other committees, and may be permanently excused from attendance."

The Revs. R. Newton Yonng and Sylvester Whitehead, of the British Wesleyan Conference, were introduced to the conference.

Rev. Dr. A. J. Knett, of the Upper Iowa Conference, offered the following as a substitute for the third section: "The several delegations shall nominate their members to committees, but when a delegation consists of less than six members such delegation may be represented on any committee by giving notice on the day when the committees are formed, and the name of the delegate to be enrolled as a member."

Rev. James R. Miller, of the East Ohio Conference, offered a snbstitute, which was adopted, to the effect that each conference be entitled to have a member of the committee on boundaries, and each delegate may nominate a member on each committee, provided they may decline to nominate if they so choose.

A resolution by Rev. Leroy A. Belt, of the Central Ohio Conference, was adopted, requesting the bishops to appoint one of their number permanent chairman of the committee on boundaries.

A judiciary committee of thirteen was ordered, one from each conference district and one at large. A committee of five was ordered on expenses of delegates, and a committee of thirteen on the American Bible Society. A recess was taken.

When the Conference reassembled Bishop Wiley took the chair. Rev. Dr. H. C. Benson, of the California Conference, conducted devotional exercises. At the suggestion of Amos Shinkle, of Kentucky, a resolution was adopted providing for a committee of two ministers and two laymen from each General Conference.

Rev. Dr. A. B. Leonard, D. D., of the Cincinnati Conference, moved that a committee be appointed on temperance and prohibition of liquor traffic.

Rev. Dr. Wm. H. Olin, of the Wyoming Conference, moved that it be called a committee on temperance and constitutional prohibition. Adopted.

It was agreed that the committee shall be composed of twelve ministers and twelve laymen, and one at large.

Rev. Dr. A. J. Kynett, of the Upper Iowa Conference, moved that an organization of committees be made the order of the day for to-morrow morning.

Rev. Theo. Feldon moved to lay Dr. Kynnett's motion on the table. Lost—yeas 154, nays 177. The Conference then approved the nominations of various delegations for the committee on Episcopacy and adjourned.

THIRD DAY

The Methodist Episcopal Conference reassembled this morning Bishop Merrill in the chair. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Nathan Sites, of Foo Chow. Bishop Bowman announced the improved health of Bishop Simpson. Monday morning was fixed as the time for hearing the address of Bishops. Dr. J. M. Trimble, of the Ohio Conference, was extended the courtesies of the plattorm.

The different rules of order with amendments were adopted. A motion was adopted that a committee of five fix the time to make arrangements of memorial services for Bishops and other conference officers who have died since the last meeting. A motion was adopted tor the appointment of a committee of seven on arrangements, for the reception of fraternal delegates and sessions of the conference at which fraternal delegates received shall be held in the evening. The motion of Rev. Dr. Walden, of Cincinnati, the appointment of a committee of one minister and one layman from each General Conference district and one delegate at large on the Sabbath question, was referred to the committee on the state of the church.

Rev. Alfred Wheeler, of the Erie Conference, moved the appointment of a similar committee on marriage and divorce. Referred to the committee on state of the church. The committee on revisal was reported to have organized by the electing of chairman Rev. D. Dorchester, of New England, and secretary Rev. John Poucher, of Indiana. The committee on temporal economy was reported organized by electing Chairman Rev. Dr. C. H. Payne, of Cincinnati; secretary, Rev. W. J. Paxson, of Philadelphia.

After the names of the committees were read the Conference adjourned until 9 o'clock Mondry morning.

Preparatory Schools.

DEAR EDITOR—I heartily endorse the letter of Bro. Webb respecting preparatory schools. I believe much more could be done, and more satisfactory to all concerned, if some such ideas were carried out. I question whether the church will have a grander opportunity for showing her interest in and sympathy for the neglected masses than the one jnst now within her reach. I pray God to give our leaders wisdom to act promptly and fairly in this matter. I trnst the General Conference will kill the color-line question before it gives further trouble. I expect it would be better to lose some members than to sow seeds of discord among Christ's followers. May we have strength and courage to swim against the tide, and rest on the Word which says, "Trnst also in Him and He will bring it to pass."

Yours, truly, I. T. HOWELLS.

Whitman, Texas, April 28.

An edncational jonrnal advises that there should be a regular physician attached to every school of importance, to overlook the physical development of the pupils. The system has salready been adopted in Paris, the physicians making regular tours of inspection, being paid by the municipality.

Last tornado in Georgia ravaged the counties of Harrison, Merriwether, Carroll, Paulding and Clark. Forty-six houses were destroyed in Harrison connty and seven persons were killed. The wind was accompanied by torrents of rain, which did great damage to the crops and railroad lines. In Merriwether county seventeen persons were killed, five fatally hurt and fonr negro children were blown away. Fully $200,000 of damage was done to property.

Columbus District—Texas.

MR. EDITOR: I thought it would be best for me to travel over the whole of my district before writing. But I found it would be until the middle of the conference year before I could reach every point, as the district is large and at some places we have no stationed preacher at all, in at least four counties viz. Trinity, Newton, Jasper and Har on. I have just lately sent two preachers in the above named counties of which I hope them success. I shall s on pay them a visit as they have never had the visit of a presiding elder of our connection at any time, so the people say.

Now in re.ard to the oth er portion of the district, I find the preachers moving on lov ly, with the exce tion of Woodville, as I have not been able to each it yet, but am on my way to it now, in my second round. It is almost impossible to give every point a Sunday having so many n w points to watch over. The district consist of fourteen counties I have been able to meet every appointment bnt one, which is Walker Circuit. My danghter being very sick, being waited on by the Doctor. I thonght not wise t. leave her. As to the spiritual work of the District, we are having conversions at several points. At Orange Brother A. Williams has built a neat church and is adding many to the church. At Beaumont, where we held our la st district conference Brother H. W. Wilson is doing a great work. At Cold S. ring W. McKinzie is raising money to improve, and is doing a substantial work for the cause of Christ and the Methodist Church. At Livingston John Gness, is a tower of stre gth to the work of the church. At Montgomery A. Adair is having a good time, several conversions this year.

At Willis Brother Jeremiah Smith is getting hold of the people and bids fair to do a good work, he has bonght fine seats for the church at Willis costing six dollars a piece. He is a credit to the church, beloved by all that know him.

At Danville A. Britten is making preparation to ceil the church, has a fine people willing to aid in any good cause. At Huntsville Station Brother W. W. Brown is holding the fort like a hero. At Huntsville Circuit, is Brother A. C. Cobreath, a man known in the Texas conference for success. When I first met his quarterly conference we had no quarterly nor church record, now he has both, also sixteen subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, nearly $30 in hand for an organ for the Sunday-school, besides that many souls are seeking Christ. He is a credit to the church anywhere. At Walker Circuit, Brother Richard Williams is loved as a father in the work and standing up well. At Wallisville Brother A. Kelly is spoken of highly, getting many subscribers for the church paper. (S. W. A.) At Moscow Brother Toby Word, is doing a good work. At Lovelady Brother B. Fisher is moving on finely. At Liberty, A. Gillum added many to the church. We are making a good headway in raising benevolent money this year.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

E. Jefferson, Hempstead: "The work is prospering. In protracted meeting, just closed, there were 4 conversions and 30 additions on probation. Elder Pullam held our quarterly conference and preached with power. We have a grand Sunday-school, and are on the look-out for children's day. There are 150 on the roll. Collection for elder $25."

P. G. Brown, Fairfield: "Our quarterly conference convened on March 29. The Fairfield circuit is a part of Palestine circuit, whose presiding elder is G. W. Smith. He makes warm friends wherever he goes. Like Nicodemus, the people say no man can preside with the ability, and preach with the power that he does, except God be with him. After finishing up all the business, and instructing or rebuking as occasion required, he returned home with Nicholas Blain and wife, and on Sunday morning he met nearly a house full of Sunday-school children, which caused him to rejoice as well as the children; and, being introduced to several of the teachers of the school and also to the whole school, he listened attentively to their sweet notes and found that there were a great many who could, with great ease, repeat the ten commandments and answer with fluency the the questions of the catechism, and they nearly all belong to the temperance society. His love for them was kindled to such a flame, that he arose and addressed them in words that will long be remembered. The children declared they would not suffer him to do so much for them in teaching and enlightening them for nothing; they said they intended to make a sacrifice, and so they gave him $1. Then came a masterly sermon to a crowded [illegible]. The congregation gave him [illegible] 50 or 60 partook of the Lord's supper, 2 joined the church; 25 took the temperance pledge. So Fairfield has been much refreshed by the coming of the presiding elder."

John Jackson, Jefferson: "Our [illegible] is improving. Presiding [illegible] H. Webb held our first quarterly conference on the 21st, and [illegible] had a grand time. He preached two powerful sermons that [illegible], and fed 93 hungry Christians. [illegible] lifted a collection of $10 for the [illegible]. The meeting is going on [illegible] up to date we have added [illegible] church 21 and 16 converts. Pray for us."

[illegible] Allen, Cotton Gin: "Our quarterly conference was held [illegible] Elder G. W. Smith, March 22d, [illegible] passed off pleasantly. Our [illegible] very much loved by all who [illegible] him. He gave an elegant lecture on temperance to the brethren [illegible] the conference, and I have not seen so much using of tobacco in the congregations as heretofore. On Sunday morning, as the weather was unfavorable, the congregation was small, and the elder gave [illegible] who were present a very interesting talk in regard to our duties as Christians, which I hope will do much good. At 3 p. m. the elder preached to a large audience, [illegible] met and partook of the Lord's supper. Elder's collection [illegible] $3.75. On Tuesday night 115 [illegible] love feast, and spoke for [illegible] after which 24 persons came [illegible] the altar for prayer. The cloud [illegible] to be breaking away, and [illegible] seems to be prospering well. Our Sunday-school is in good condition. We are at [illegible] repairing our parsonage. One [illegible] energetical old sisters, Cary [illegible], made the church a present [illegible] a glass pitcher for the pulpit. There is also a good school [illegible] up in our church by Mr. [illegible], who is not a member of [illegible], but is of great help in [illegible] school. We ask the [illegible] to pray for our success [illegible] Gin.

[illegible] Culbreath, Huntsville: [illegible] held the second quarterly [illegible] conference. Nearly all members present. The work is in [illegible] better condition than ever before. [illegible] Sunday-school [illegible] is president."

purchased. There are 170 scholars in three schools, and there are $35 in treasury to purchase an organ for each. The elder preached to a crowded house. High water prevented many from attending. Collection $10; paid pastor $40; ADVOCATES taken on the circuit, 17; taken on probation, 8; in full membership, 2."

L. Felder, Bryan: "My quarterly conference was held April 23. Elder W. B. Pullam was with us and preached an interesting sermon, and administered the Lord's supper to 49 souls. The pastor and class leaders made favorable reports. Collection $4.80. Pray for our success."

Alice Blain, Fairfield: "The quarterly conference held by Elder Smith was a glorious one. Early Sunday morning our little house was crowded with scholars who listened attentively to the elder's address. Collection for elder in Sabbath-school was $4.50, in church $15.50. We are moving on. What we need now is a church large enough to hold our congregation. We expect at once to prepare for building a new church. Sabbath-school numbers 90, and has taken the temperance pledge."

C. L. White, Cox: "I was at the quarterly meeting and met Elder H. Webb. He is just the man the people need, and will enable us to make a start upward and onward."

W. H. Jackson, Brenham circuit: "March 30 was a glorious day; 22 joined the church, 2 by converson, 2 by recommendation from the A. M. E. Church. April 5 we baptized 9 adults, 5 infants, and are having a good time. 72 have been added to the church since I have been in this new field. We have also purchased two church bells, through our agents, Messrs. Phillips & Hunt, weighing 190 pounds each, and expect soon to get the third one. Pray for us."

LOUISIANA.

At Camp Parapet and Kenner Bro. Johnson is doing an excellent work. 47 have been received on probation and 37 into full connection since conference. The parsonage has for a number of years been in the rear of the church, in close proximity to a hen house, which made it very unpleasant for any one who might live in it. The trustees own a nice front lot, and have concluded to place their parsonage upon it. At the quarterly conference all the reports were in good order, and indicated a year of permanent prosperity.

At Haven's Chapel Bro. Mason and his people are doing an excellent work. The Sunday-school is one of the best in the city, and is constantly growing in numbers and interest. Upon the church property that was bought nearly a year ago over $230 has been paid, and the trustees feel confident that the note of $150 soon due will be promptly met. Certainly this church has a promising future before it.

At Gretna Bro. Fairfax is doing the best he can under the circumstances. Our people there have not as yet any suitable place for worship, and yet they have a respectable congregation and a good Sabbath-school. All that is needed to build up a strong Methodist church at this point is some place for worship. Here we must work and wait. The door is open to our church.

C. D. Shallowhorne, New Iberia: "First quarterly conference was held March 20. Stewards reports were grand, and we feel happy. Raised during the quarter $89.75; preacher's salary estimated at $500; presiding elder $40; bishop, $2. We are having a glorious time in our Sabbath-school and general church work. Mrs. Shallowhorne has a large number enrolled for the Woman's Missionary Society, which will be organized in a few days."

R. T. Berry, Shreveport: "Our Woman's Home Missionary Society, Fairfield Chapel, was organized Feb. 24, with over 60 members. We expect to commence a school May 1, and every one is in sympathy with it. We feel satisfied our Society will prove a success. Maggie [illegible] is president."

TENNESSEE.

L. Marbrey, Mason: "My second quarter was held by Rev. Jesse P. Price March 29-30. It was a grand occasion. Several of the leaders were out, and their reports were good, and they seem to be much cheered. Ten have been received from probation during the quarter. Collections paid the pastor $40.24; elder $16.0; raised on mission $2.60; Church Extension 60c; Tract 25c; on Sunday-school 40c. We have something on all of the benevolent claims. On Sunday morning at the usual hour met, and we had a lovely time. In obedience to the direction of the Annual Conference, the Sunday-school was organized into a temperance society, assisted by the presiding elder and Rev. C. E. Alexander, superintendent. The elder gave an interesting address on temperance and its progress, and at 11 o'clock the elder preached an awakening sermon, and we went to our homes feeling benefited thereby. Allow me to add here that our Sunday-school is being revived since the opening of the weather. We are trying to fill all our Sunday-schools with our own literature."

MISSISSIPPI.

Wm. Gatewood, Bellefontaine: "Have planted a cotton patch to help our subscribers for the church paper out this year. The Lord bless it."

A. R Jordan, Yazoo City: "My first business on coming here was to direct the getting of boards to cover the church. We went into the woods Monday morning, got them out, and were able to have preaching Feb. 6. Have raised for building $40. We owe $350 on the church. At Rocky Zion the people received me with gladness, and I found everything in order; also at St. John. There are four preaching points on the circuit, but only two churches. At St. John there is no property, but we are trying to get a lot of ground. At Palo Alto there are only five members, but they say they will have a lot if it can be had. Received one into the church. Found only one Sunday-school, but now have three in good condition. Pray for us."

GEORGIA.

The New England Conference recently in session at Lynn, Mass., unanimously adopted some very strong resolutions, condemning the caste spirit, as abhorrent to the principles of free civil society and the spirit of the Gospel. These resolutions were put in the form of a memorial to the General Conference, and a strong delegation elected to support them there. We may confidently look for an earnest battle for the right on the floor of the General Conference with New England's sons in the lead, as they always have been in every good cause. May God help them to win, and rid the grand old Methodist Episcopal Church from the sin-burden of Caste.—Atlanta Elevator.

Huntsville (Tex.) District Conference.

MR. EDITOR:—District conference was held at Beaumont, March 5-10, Rev. E. Lee presiding. On roll call all pastors responded; members presented written reports. Committee on public worship, appointed as follows: On Monday night, W. McKenzie and T. Ward; Thursday, John Guess; Friday, A. Gillem: Saturday, A. Britten; Sunday 11 a. m., A. C. Culbreath; 3 p. m., E. Lee. The missionary sermon preached on Saturday by Rev. Jeremiah Smith, was sublime. On Sunday after the elder's impressive sermon about 100 communed. Our Baptist brethren were in attendance. Collection during the day $4. Received on probation 14; conversions 2. This was the grandest occasion ever witnessed in Beaumont. It has been very dark there but thank God light is springing up. If we had many more men like Elder Lee we could soon take the world for Christ.

Huntsville Disirict (Central Alabama) Conference.

The district conference of the Huntsville district met at Triana April 10, 1884. A. S. Lakin, presiding, in elder the chair. Conference opened with reading St. Matt. vii, and singing 798 hymn, and prayer by the presiding elder. On motion M. M. McKinney and James Moore were elected Secretaries of the conference. Roll called, 28 members answered to their names. The presiding elder delivered to the conference an address on Methodist economy, after which the following committees were appointed:

To examine local preachers in their course of study—B. J. Sterling, James Moore and A. W. White.

On Missions—Robt Carter, Kemp Fields and Henry Arnett.

On appointments of local preachers and exhorters—All the pastors.

On literary exercises for the next conference—Robert Carter, Kemp Fields and James Winn.

On miscellaneous matters—Geo. Miller, J. C. Sammons and M. M. McKinney.

On public worship—B. J. Sterling, James Moore and the presiding elder.

On examining candidates for license to preach—A. W. White, Geo. Miller and J. C. Sammons.

The presiding elder reported the district in bad condition, but hoped, with the help of the brethren, to bring it to the front by next conference.

The hours for opening and adjourning were fixed: morning session, to open at 8 o'clock and adjourn at 12; afternoon session to open at 2 and adjourn at 5 p. m.

The following pastors made reports: Huntsville, James Moore; Madison, Geo. Miller; Scottsboro, M. M. McKinney; Triana, B. J. Sterling; Warrintonton, J. C. Sammons; Whitesburg, Frank Withers; Johnson's Chapel, Kemp Fields; Courtland, Charles Neal; Decatur, Robert Carter; Kirby, B. J. Leigh; Oakland, James Winn; Stevenson, no report.

The list of local preachers was taken up and each one was carefully examined by the presiding elder as to his attendance in the Sabbath school and to the support of the ministry; and the exhorters and district stewarts were likewise examined.

The following resolution was offered by M. M. McKinney, and unanimously adopted by the conference:

Resolved, That the district conferences of the Huntsville district hereafter pass no local preacher's character, nor renew the license of any local preacher who is guilty of using any kind of spiritous liquors.

Resolved, That the district conferences of the Huntsville district hereafter license no man local preacher who uses any kind of spirituous liquors.

Resolved, That the Secretary of the district conference of the Huntsville district be requested to read these resolutions at the beginning of each session of the district conference of the Huntsville district hereafter.

The following named brethren were discontinned as local preachers, and forbidden to preach in the Methodist Episcopal Church: Wm Foster, Hampton Rose, Ishmael Allen, Wilborn Thompson, Louis Smith, Porter Johnson, Aaron Mathis, Henry Paine, Jackson Ruffin, Prince Fennel, B. J. Fields, James Smithers; Pleas Roberts, exhorter.

It was asked by the conference that the presiding elder take Rev. James Moore from the pastoral charge of Huntsville and send him out as an evangelist on the Huntsville district, and appoint Rev. A. W. White in charge of Huntsville. The request was granted and the elder made the appointment. Bro. James Moore then made a short address to the conference, in which he thanked the conference, and promised to do all he could to build up the district.

Huntsville was chosen as the seat of the next district conference.

The committee on examining candidates for license to preach reported, and William Johnson was licensed to preach.

The district stewards reported, and the following estimate was adopted:

	Bishops	P. E.	Mis'n.	Ch. Ex.	Freedm'n.	Educa.	Tract.

Respect for Manhood.

There has been much said about the way the colored people are treated by the whites in the South, but in many cases we are to be blamed. Some of us preach one thing and practice another. We preach that of one lump God made all nations of the earth, and that one man is as good as another, and then we practice that there is an inferior race, and their color makes it. This ought not to be so. We say we are as good as any body; then we should act as well as any body. We have men who are officers in the church, fill the pulpit, who are in public business, and do not serve their own brethren on account of their color. They say if they do they will lose the custom of the whites. Is this right? I say we should not do this. There are some of our preachers who run barbershops, and if a white man comes in with a pipe or a cigor in his mouth, and his breath perfumed with whiskey, and says to him, "By God, uncle, I want you to shave me and black my boots" He says, "Well sir, just sit down here and I will fix you up all right." But if a brother preacher comes in with all politeness, and says to him "I want you to shave me," he denies him, saying, "If I shave you, white men won't come in and patronize me." By such acts we say we are not as good as the whites, making our preaching and teaching void. Then you blame the Southern whites for saying you are inferior. Brethren, we should guard against this evil, and not practice it. It hurts us. You say you are called to the ministry, the highest calling in the world, and then stoop so low as to scrape drunkards chins, and black their boots, and take their curses for their dimes and nickels. Brethren, look up. If we do not respect our color, we should respect our office and high calling. I have been looking and listening to hear some of our smart men take hold of this evil long enough. I see it as a pull down on our church and people. We can do better than that. We have nineteen colleges and institutions of learning in the South, the work of our good friends in the North. A better people cannot be found under the heaven. They teach us we are as good as any body when we act as well as any body. They tell us to get up out of the dust of degeneration. Shall we allow them to bestow their labor upon us in vain? S. KNIGHT.

Houston Seminary.

In reporting amounts received we should have acknowledged $3 from Millican, Rev. J. L. Smith, pastor. We are also in receipt of $2 from Brenham circuit, Rev. W. H. Jackson, pastor, and $3 from Bryan, Rev. B. M. Taylor pastor. Of the whole amount subscribed at Hempstead we do not expect to lose any. The brethren were in earnest when it was subscribed; and we think it will all be paid. But it should be attended to at once. Letters from Huntsville district lead us to think they do not intend to be left behind in the collections for the school. Programme for the closing exercises of the school will be sent out in a week. Exercises will extend from Sunday, May 25, to Thursday night, May 29th. Boarding department is full, and students still coming in. The school rooms are crowded, and chapel exercises generally conducted with students in the three different rooms for want of sufficient space in one. We need more room and another teacher; more desks and more bedrooms. We are willing to compare Houston Seminary with any school North or South. It is doing a grand work, and the people of Southern Texas are beginning to rally to its support.

Ignorance still exists in some localities. A short time ago after an elder brother had met to hold a quarterly meeting, he preached and afterwards decended from the stand to administer the Lord's supper. It was in a place where preaching had been done but they had never seen the Lord's supper given before, and the elder said he was ready to give the Lord's supper, and to his great surprise the whole congregation got up and went out to peep through the windows, and left him and the preacher and the members of the quarterly inside; but the elder sent and had them all come back by the assistance of the pastor and steward. The reason was the people thought that they had no business inside, but I thank God for the old Methodist Episcopal Church that brings light out of the darkness. E.

For Jesus' Sake.

One of the little orphan boys in John Falk's German Charity school repeated at the supper table their usual grace: "Come, Lord Jesus, be our guest and bless the food thou hast provided." A lad looked up and said. "Tell us, teacher, why the Lord Jesus never comes." "Dear child, only believe, and you may be sure that he will come to us some of these times; for he always hears us." "Then," replied the bright lad, "I'll set a chair for him," and he put one by the table. By-and-by a knock was heard at the door; a poor traveling apprentice was admitted, and asked for food and lodging. The little fellow looked at the stranger a few minutes, and then piped out: "Ah, I see! Jesus could not come to-night and so he sent this young man in his place. Is that the way, teacher?" "Yes, my boy, that is just it. Every cup of water or bit of bread we give to the poor and hungry for Jesus' sake we give him. Inasmuch as we do it to the least of our brethren we do it unto the Savior."

Plainfield, N. J., is the scene of a remarkable temperance revival. Hundreds of drinkers have signed the pledge. Rumshops have been closed. Men who have rented property for the sale of rum have publicy acknowledged their sin in so doing, professed repentance, and entered heartily into the work of reform. A wholesale liquor dealer went down to his firm in New York, resigned his place, returned to Plainfield, and in the evening meeting proclaimed himself henceforth a temperance man. The movement has been conducted entirely on gospel principles, and has had the hearty co-operation of all the pastors of the place. Much has also been accomplished in the same direction at Bound Brook and Somerville.—Christian Standard.

Out of the Ship.

BY REV. MARK GUY PEARSE.

"And He sat down, and taught the people out of the ship."—LUKE v. 3.

The Lord Jesus had been preaching in the synagogues; but there were very many outside who wanted to hear Him, and whom He wanted to reach. So He entered into a boat belonging to one of His disciples, that was drawn upon the beach, and when it was thrust a little way from the shore He sat down and taught the people.

Here is the want of our time as of all time. Jesus seeks a pulpit right in the midst of the daily life. —The preaching-place is away from contact with the business. The architecture, the services, all the associations, are very sharply marked off from the factory and the office, from the work-shop and the home. And it is right that we should secure such solemnity and reverence in our worship, and such freedom from interruption;—the Master bids us shut the door when we pray. But there is a tendency in all this to make religion one thing and business another, each having its own time and its own place, and each having very little to do with the other. The shop comes to be a long way from the sanctuary, and the kitchen from the church. It ought not to be so. Our business as Christians is to serve the Lord in every business of life. We are to find the desk and counter as near to God as any place of worship can be; to prove His presence as much in our homes as in His house. Then, again, Christ wants a pulpit in the midst of the people. To have the pulpit in the church only is to have ten thousand out of reach, never hearing His voice, never seeing His face, not knowing that Christ has come. He would teach the multitudes. See Him as He sits on the deck of the fishing craft. One gentle hand rests on the ropes of the rigging; the brown sail hangs behind Him; at His feet lie oars and nets; close about Him is the little group of swarthy sailors. And on the beach the crowd is gathered—anybody may stand and hear Him there—publicans and sinners, Roman soldiers and Samaritans, all are equally welcome. Here was Jesus right in their midst. And here was Jesus having to do with everything about them. The boat was His pulpit. He leaned against the mast. He sat on the deck. His shadow fell on all the fishing gear and on the very water that lapped the boat; so He hallowed all these common things. So, then, the pulpit for which Christ asks is our business, our daily work. There on He would take His stand, and thence He would preach to those who would never see nor hear Him in the church.

Do you envy this fisherman who lent his boat to Jesus? He offers us the same honor. He begs us to do Him the same favor. He comes to each of us and asks us to let Him have our daily occupation as a His preaching-place;—the office and workshop, the counter, the desk, the mother's work in the home, the servant's work in the house—this is the pulpit He seeks. Will you let Him have it?

Look at the boat which the Lord Jesus uses. It was the boat of a disciple. He never thrusts Himself upon any. Where He is welcome, there He comes gladly. He stands and knocks at every heart, unwillingly; but He enters only where they open the door for Him. [illegible] ask ourselves—can we afford to receive the Lord on board our craft? Is it all right and in order that we are glad to see Him coming in? Can we trust Him with the keys of the house? [illegible] hand over the books to Him? He may look through all [illegible] book and ledger, and the out-going [illegible] that they see it all, and [illegible] may run up the colors [illegible] other ship in sight [illegible] of every voice we get [illegible] and what we [illegible] of our talent and [illegible] every [illegible] one thing more than he cared for the business. Whilst he held the fishingline, his thoughts were with the mighty Prophet of Nazareth. As he opened the nets, he was recalling the words of that wonderful Teacher, and longing that he could see and hear Him again. How eagerly Simon received Him into the boat! Earth could afford no such joy; no gain could compare with this privilege—that the Master should sit in his boat and teach the people. That is the occupation from which Jesus will be seen and heard, where such a loving heart longs for His coming, where the deepest and most constant thought of the soul is not to make money; but this desire runs through every thing—to make men think well of Jesus. There will He come and sit and teach, and many shall see Him and hear Him.

It was the boat of a busy disciple. A hard-working man was Peter. Whenever you get a glimpse of him, you always find him very busy. He had been toiling all night; and now we could not blame him if he had been lying down for a nap. But he is still, busily washing his nets. No easy-going man was this basking in the sunshine, and talking very sweetly about trusting in the Lord. He is a disciple; but he is not away neglecting his business. He is ready to give up at a moment's notice when the Lord bids him do so; but till then He will stick at it and work hard. There is one thing about Peter that is very admirable as a business man,—he had a great horror of debt. He could not bear to make the tax-gatherer call a second time. That is the sort of a disciple from whose business the Lord preaches. He will not step on board the boat of any lazy follower who thinks it is heavenly-minded to do as little as possible, and who contentedly runs into debt, saying, "The Lord will provide." Hard-working disciples who can toil all night, if need be—theirs is the business from which Christ will preach.

Then another thing we read is especially important — They are washing their nets. These fishermen would have the outermost thing belong to them clean. They must have clean hands that serve aboard the vessel of the Lord, and everything about the craft must be honest and pure. The Lord will help us to catch fish with dirty nets. He will not come aboard a boat, no matter how fair she may look, where, from stem to stern, everything is not clean. Integrity is the name of the craft in which you will find the Lord, and Honesty is carved at her figure-head.

Then He prayed them to thrust the ship a little from the shore. He might have bidden them as His disciples; He might have commanded as their Lord; but thus graciously He prays them. And eagerly they do His will—Peter standing at the bow, anchor in hand, ready to drop it at the first sign from the Master. That is the business from which the Lord Jesus will be seen and heard, where men are willing to come out beyond the line of others, and to be singular for Christ. It is not enough to have Christ on board, not enough to have Him and hear Him. Ah, how the blessed Lord delights in such a company as this, where trouble is a joy, and anything a gain, if thereby He can be better served! Wherever such love greets Him, there assuredly shall the people see and hear Him.

* * * * * * *

Then there are two or three other thoughts that grow out of the incident. It fares well with the boat when Christ is on board. "And when He had left speaking; He said unto Simon, "Put into the deep and lay down your nets for a draught."

Notice that the Lord said nets.

Simon answered and said—said with a kind of half-pitiful smile, that meant to say the Great Teacher was wonderful at teaching the people, but of course He knew nothing about fishing. How could He, living all His days up amongst the hills? "It is no good, Sir," said Simon, "we have toiled all night and caught nothing. Never-the-less at Thy word I will let down the net." And he took up the first that came to hand.

Ah, Simon, the Blessed Master knows more about fishing than you think! And, my brother, he knows as much about your business as about Simon's.

"And when they had this done, they enclossed a great multitude of fishes: and their net brake." (They needed the nets, after all). Christ never made a rich man while He was on earth, and never promised to do that. But He made everybody blest who was willing to receive a blessing at His hand. His presence in the business maketh rich indeed; and He addeth no sorrow with it.

What's Your Boy Worth?

BY GEORGE R. SCOTT.

Last Fall, with Mr. A. B. Campbell, of Topeka, I attended a temperance meeting held in a school-house in Shawnee County, Kansas. After two speeches had been made a collection was taken up to raise money to prosecute liquor-sellers in that county. A tall Kansas arose and said: "Put me down for $20; I have six boys, and if necessary will make my subscription more; to save them a $100 bill would be a small amount." Yet he was a hard-working farmer; but he loved his boys, and as a consequence hated the liquor-traffic.

In my late trip I asked a man, formerly a New York merchant, how it was that he had taken such an interest in the prohibition movement. He replied: "To my astonishment I found out that my eldest boy had taken a drink of beer." That was enough. He loved him as "the apple of his eye." And now every energy of that business man is brought into active service to protect his son from the ravages of the liquor trade.

In a town in Jersey, after a public meeting, a gentleman asked me what he should do to save his two dissolute, drunken boys. A man of means, and living in a handsome country residence, he could not see why they preferred the saloon to their home of comfort. The liquor trade, knowing that he would foot all bills, was only too willing to give the boys all the poison they asked for. He said he loved them; but he never voted for home protection, as against the saloons, on election day. His boys, practically, were not worth casting a ballot for.

I came across a mother in Ohio who loved her boy so that she would not give her husband any rest until he promised to vote for the Second Amendment. Some people thought she was only a humble, ignorant woman; but she was smart enough to know the value of her boy! You, mothers, who read this article, answer me this question: What's your boy worth? Make the price high, for he is "bone of your bone and flesh of your flesh." Ask father if he is worth a ballot next election. Put the question to him with tear-drops trickling down your cheeks, backed up with a prayer of faith. If you can do it with all sincerity the true value of his boy will appear, and all other questions sink into insignificance.

What is your boy worth?

First: He is worth asking to sign the total abstinence pledge.

Second: He is of sufficient value to be sent to a Band of Hope meeting to be instructed as to the effects of alcohol upon the human system.

Third: He is of sufficient importance for you to know where he spends his evenings and who his associates are.

Fourth: He is of more value than many household pets, and is entitled to more of your time and attention.

Fifth: To say nothing of the value of your boy's good character, he has cost you for food, raiment, and education more than what the average saloon-keeper pays for his license.

Sixth: "As the twig is bent the tree is inclined." How will he be of great importance to you whether your boy is a valuable citizen or a curse to you and the neighborhood in which you reside. If he turns out good he will be worth his weight in gold; if otherwise, better he had never been born.

Seventh: Being immortal, he is worth a life's work to prepare him for a happy hereafter.

No license was ever made high enough to cover the lowest estimate that you can put on your boy if there's a spark of Christianity or humanity in your heart.

Nebraska virtually says its city boys are worth $1,000; altogether too low. New York city puts the price of her boys at $75; less than the price of a city railroad horse. An insult to every mother!

What's your boy worth?

Tell me the value of his soul, and I'll name the price of the privilege to sell intoxicants.

Is it too much to ask the fathers of America to at least set enough value on their boys to yearly drop into the ballot-box a slip of paper that shall voice the sentiment of this journal—

"We demand the Prohibition of the Liquor Tariff."

What's your answer?—New York Witness.

The Madrid correspondent of the London Times is safe in saying that "it is absolutely necessary for Spain to improve, if possible, the material condition of Cuba." Industrially, socially, and politically that condition is horrible, but the most hopeless element in it is the Spanish rule. Even in her high and palmy days, the gift of colonization never belonged to Spain. The only idea of the central Government was to extort the greatest revenue in bullion from the Spanish dependencies in the shortest time. The Spaniards never adopted the English system of making colonies serviceable by making them markets for the productions of the mother country. The Spanish notion was simply that of spoil, and the Spaniards exiled to the colonies fell very rapidly to the condition of the natives. From a terror to mankind Spain has sunk to be a terror only to her own possessions. The Republic of Cuba might not be a very happy community, but its state could certainly not be worse in any respect than the condition of the island as a dependency of Spain.— N. Y. Times.

Walt Whitman says of his poems —"They proceed out of and revolve around one's self, myself, an identity, and declaredly make that self the nucleus of the whole utterance." This will be a surprise to many of his readers who have supposed that they proceeded from an attack of acute dementia.—New York Graphic.

The Current. The liberty of the press is a very different thing from the license of the press. Liberty does not mean liberty to corrupt and plunder men and women and injure society, and when the press undertakes to go outside the lines of liberty it should be subjected to police regulations.

"Is it possible, miss, that you do not know the names of some of your best friends?" inquired a gentleman of a lady. "Certainly," she replied, "I don't even know what my own will be a year hence."

Nervous Exhaustion.

A very large number of persons are sufferers from physical or nervous exhaustion and a low state of vitality, brought on by various causes. They are not sick enough to be classed with invalids, nor well enough to enjoy life, or do any bodily or mental work without excessive weariness or complete prostration—a most miserable and unhappy condition, as thousands can testify. For this class of persons the new Vitalizing Treatment of Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, Pa., is especially adapted, acting as it does directly on the great nervous centres, rendering them more vigorous, active, and efficient. Send for their pamphlet describing the nature and action of this remarkable Treatment. It will be mailed free.

If you would add something to your accomplishments, study a modest behavior. To excel in anything valuable, is great, but to be above conceit on account of one's accomplishments, is greater. Consider it you have natural gifts, you owe them to divine bounty. If you have improved your understanding, and studied virtue, you may have done your duty, and thus there seems little reason for vanity.

A good story about an old Methodist minister baptizing an infant is told in "Echoes from Welsh Hills:" "He took the babe in his arms very affectionately, and addressed in a parternal fashion a few words of advice to the young parents: "See that you train up the child in the way that he should go, that you surround him with the best influences, and that you give him a good example. If you do so, who knows but that he may become a Christmas Evans or John Elias! What is his name?' 'Jane, sir,' replied the mother."

The needle of the compass will not settle until it points toward the pole star, and so the soul can find no lasting peace until it turns with full purpose of faith to Christ.

Dr. Emin Bey has made some measurements of the Akkas, the small people discovered in Africa and first described by Schweinfurth, and finds that when full-grown their heights range from four to four and a half feet. The skin of the Akkas varies in color from a clear yellow to a glistening red, and their bodies are entirely covered with a thick, stiff and filthy growth of hair. They live in huts [illegible] have no fixed abodes, and are a hunting people, skilled in the use of the bow and arrow.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, for emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, MAY 8, 1884.

We desire our agents to send at once all collections made for the SOUTHWESTERN. Heed this notice and act promptly.

From E. H. Vaughan, Secretary, we have received a copy of the minutes of the sixteenth session of the Virginia Conference, held at Waterford, March 5.

The Times-Democrat, of April 27th, published an editorial which outlined the career of Gen. John C. Fremont in appreciative terms, and advocated his reinstatement to the position he held in the army previous to his resignation, as a simple act of justice.

Speaking of preachers Daniel Webster used to say: "When a man preaches to me I want him to make it a personal matter, a personal matter, a personal matter." That is it, let each person in your congregation, feel that you have a special message from God to him.

Zion's Herald has the following incident that helps to answer the question: "Does prohibition prohibit?" "A prominent citizen of this country had fallen a victim to intemperate habits, which grew upon him so that he became totally unfit for business, and as a last resort he went to Kansas to flee, if possible, all temptations to drink. After being there awhile, he thus writes to an intimate friend in this city: 'John, I have seen more than a dozen men who have been confirmed drunkards, and who came here to reform, and all have succeeded! One man, who had been in the habit of drinking for twenty years, told me that he came here about two years ago, but has never touched liquor since. The fact is, if a man gets here he is bound to reform; he can't get whiskey if he wants it.'"

Under the caption "Was it a Mistake," the Northern serves its readers with an octogonal paper. It seems to recognize the doctrine of human brotherhood, but says one thing is certain, it is not consistent with the spirit of Christianity to make the abandonment of caste (caste) "prejudice the condition upon which we will preach the Gospel to the poor and give them knowledge for the lack of which they perish. The degraded must be sought out, instructed and Christianized, and the condition of society must be largely changed where caste, where it has become fixed in the habits, customs and sentiments of the people, will disappear." Let us see. We are aware that true character-building, whether of a man or in a nation, or in a race, is always a slow process. There is no such thing as the uprising of a race in a day. Hence the necessity for wisdom, zeal and patience in our work. But we preach the Gospel alike to all, and offer it to all, without condition; have good authority for saying that the wicked must forsake their ways and the unrighteous their thoughts. We have no doubt as to the works of the flesh or the fruits of the spirit. "These are contrary one to the other," so that the Spirit of God cannot do the things that he would. Caste may be fixed in the habits, customs and sentiments of unregenerate human nature. We expect this, but that can have no dwelling in the heart over which Christ reigns. This is certain, caste is either right or wrong. If right, let us encourage it by all possible means; if wrong, let us say so, and act accordingly. While we do not feel inconsistent with the spirit of Christianity to make the abandonment of caste sin "the condition upon which we preach the Gospel," we might those who attempt to do so easy, and thus encourage their sins, makes a mistake. The issue is before this country and must meet it. Caste or what shall it be?

Old or New Time Quarterly Meeting.

We sometimes come across an old man who lives so largely in the past that he sees but little that is attractive in the present, and has but a faint hope of the future. But the spiritual pentecosts of the past have not faded from his mind; he speaks of them as though they occurred but yesterday. He seems never so happy as when speaking of the log churches, the tall forests and the wonderful preachers and sermons of other days. We like the old people, and are only sorry that some of them cannot see more to cheer them on the heavenly road in the present.

Let us see. Saturday, April 26, looking out of the car window as the car halted at Nicholas Station, we saw Rev. Michael Nelson, who was appointed last conference to Spring Chapel circuit. As we stepped out of the cars on to the platform he gave us a cordial greeting, assuring us that he had a horse that would carry us safely; and, referring to himself, said he had a span that had never once failed him. Our animal was a Mexican pony every way equal to the occasion. The quarterly meeting was to be held at Hope Chapel, one of the appointments on Spring Chapel circuit, full seventeen miles distant. A ride of four hours brought us to the home of Bro. Nelson, whose good wife had prepared dinner for us. After dinner we rode on to Bro. June Byrd's, one of the steward's, who gave us a cordial welcome; telling us that his boys had just returned from a hunt and had brought in two nice deer and a fat turkey, and we could have our choice. We happened to see some bread, milk and honey and we concluded to take that for the present, reserving the venison and turkey for another day. It is seldom that this writer sits at a table upon which there is bread, milk, butter and honey, three articles of food of which the Bible makes special reference. Hope Chapel is a log church situated in a forest of tall pine trees. The flooring, seats and pulpit are all of pine. There is not a piece of sawed timber in the church. Covering, seats, floor, altar and pulpit are all made of rived timber, and all trimming and ornamentation studiously avoided. The door is in front of the pulpit, and a small window just in the rear of it. Quarterly meeting brings together brethren from different points of the circuit, and liberal preparations were made for all who might come. Brothers and Sisters in the Lord and in the flesh, uncles, aunts and cousins must all be provided for. Saturday night the service began with a plain, practical sermon by the presiding elder, followed by an exhortation by Bro. Nelson. The appointments for the Sabbath were announced, and all slowly returned to their homes. Sabbath morning all was astir. In the paths leading to the church men, women and children could be seen wending their way to the house of the Lord. Of the sermons and services of the day we have not space to speak; suffice it to say that everything was primitively simple. The love-feast, Sabbath evening, was sweeter than honey or the honey comb. Words of encouragement came from all who spoke. We greatly admired the rural artlessness of our people at Hope Chapel, so free from ostentation and artificial piety. We had a Christian home at Bro. June Byrd's, every member of the family seemed anxious, by their kind attention, to give us a pleasant home.

Missionary Anniversary.

The sixty-fourth anniversary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was held at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, New-York city, April 5, in connection with the session of the New-York Conference, and in Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn New-York on April 6, in connection with the session of the New-York East Conference. Hon. Warner Miller, United States Senator presiding and spoke on the Methodist Church as a Mission Church. The principal addresses at the first meeting were made by Secretaries Reed and Fowler. Dr. Reed gave an account of the organization of the Society in 1819, presenting the personel of that first meeting. Dr. Fowler presented the work of the Society in the home fields. In 1819 when first organized it gave itself exclusively to home work; in 1833 it went to Africa; in 1836 it went to South America; in 1847 it established the Foochow Mission in China, this was the first movement into foreign languages in foreign lands; in 1849 into Germany and Switzerland; in 1857 into Bulgaria; in 1866 into North India; in 1867 into Norway and Denmark; in 1868 into Central China; in 1869 into Peking, China; in 1872 into South India, Japan and Italy; in 1873 into Mexico; in 1876 into Sweden; in 1881 into West China; in 1882 into Finland; in 1883 into Corea. The following figures indicate the financial advance of the Society; in 1820 the receipts were $823.04; in 1830 $13,128.63; in 1840 $136,410.78. In 1844 came the division of the church on account of slavery, so that in 1850 the receipts of the Society were only $104,579.54. From that time there was an onward movement, getting rid of the foul blot slavery did not kill the missionary spirit in the church. From $104,579,54 in 1850, the receipts went up to $256,722,77 in 1860; in 1870 the receipts were $594,743.77; in 1880 $626,663.89; in 1883 the receipts were $751,469.90.

The services held at the Hanson Place Church were presided over by James H. Taft, Esq., who made the opening address. The other speakers were Bishop Hurst, Dr. Reid and W. L. Phillips, D. D. Bishop Hurst spoke of the magnitude of the work accomplished by the Society and gave some interesting facts and figures about our work in Germany and Switzerland. Both of those meetings were a success, and gave the friends of missionary cause connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church, a new inspiration for the coming year.

It is sometimes said that the Negro knows nothing of gratitude, that he is not capable of being grateful. We incline to the opinion that with most men this is a grace that has its seat nearer the lips than the heart; their lips and life do not exactly tally. Their expressions of gratitude come more in the form of resolutions than in acts. Here colored and white people are much alike; we can see no difference. At a district conference held in Texas a colored brother was called upon to conduct the opening religious service. His prayer was as follows: "Oh, Lord, we come to de at dis time wid love and grace in our hearts, and tanks on our lips. We tanks de, O Lord, for de East, de Bible tells us ob de wise men dat come from de East. It tells us about de stars dat shine in de East and went afore dem wise men to help dem to find Bethlehem's sweet babe. And eber, Lord, since dem morning stars sang togeder de light hab come up each morning from de East. Dis world would be dark as Egypt if dare was no East. De light ob de sun and de light in de soul all come from de East. We tank de, O Lord, don has been sending wise men from de East all de ages. We tank de for de wise men dat hab come from de East to help us poor colored people. Bress every one ob dem, Lord; trow your big strong arms round dem, and tuck um close to yourself. Roughshod dem wid the Gospel. Prepare dem for long trabling, and gib dem de patience ob holding on and holding out. O Lord, bress dis, my broder dat hab come from de East down to Texas. We ax yon, Lord, dis morning to be his captain. You made dat old sarpent, de debil, all green, and yellow and coppery, spotted, snake like am arter him. But, Lord, please don't let dis old sarpent, so full ob pison and hate, obertake him." Here was a heart that was overflowing with gratitude. It is not difficult to remember such events. One would as soon forget the visits of an angel. This man was unlettered, had spent most of his days under the blighting influence of American slavery, but he was as loving and tender as John, as artless as a child. We have listened to him when preaching, and though he spoke in the true dialect of the plantation, our delight was only excelled by our astonishment.

New Orleans University.

We learn that the teachers and students of this Institution are exceedingly busy in preparing for the closing examination and closing exercises. There is to be an exhibition a few days before the close, and the Commencement exercises will be held Wednesday evening the 28th inst. Two young men who graduate will deliver an oration; and Gen. R. B. Elliot is expected to deliver an address at the same time. Those who have heard him will expect a rare treat. The Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered on the previous Sabbath. The exact time and place of each of these will be given hereafter. We doubt not the friends of the University will rally at each of these exercises in large numbers.

The Daily Christian Advocate arrived as we were going to press, and we can only say that it makes an excellent appearance, and is one of the best, if not the very best, General Conference organe ever issued. Drs. DePuy and Kincaid, the editors, have exercised their talents in a high degree.

PERSONAL.

—George C. Cook a highly respected Chicago Methodist, died April 18th, aged 74 years.

—We are informed that Rev. Reuben Bowen, pastor at Jasper, Ark., on trial in the second year in the Arkansas Conference, is dead.—Central.

—Robert P. Thompson, superintendent of the printing office in the Western Methodist Book Concern has completed the fiftieth year of his connection with it.

—Rev. Alpha G. Kynett, son of Rev. Dr. A. J. Kynett, received on trial at the last session of the Philadelphia Conference, was married recently to Miss Elizabeth H. Hardy, of New York.

—Rev. Dr. J. E. Irish, of Madison, Wis., has been appointed consul to Cognac, France. He will leave for his new post of duty after the close of the General Conference session.

—The Rev. John Atkinson, of Adrian, Mich., will soon put into the printer's hands his History of American Methodism. This will be a new history. It is not compiled from the previous histories of the Denomination.

—Mr. John B. Tolman, a verteran printer of Lynn, Mass., has given the Young Men's Christian Association of that city an estate valued at $30,000, stipulating that the income shall be used in promomoting the cause of temperance.

—Bishop Simpson gathers strength steadily but slowly, through a rather disheartening alternation of improvement and relapse. It is hoped that, with care, he will be able to attend the sessions of the Genral Conference.—New York Advocate.

—Miss Clara M. Cushman, only daughter of the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, and for the past five years a missionary at Pekihg, China, leaves this month for her home in New Orleans via San Francisco. She will be accompanied by others who are homeward bound from China.

—Rev. S. Duncan, presiding elder of the Shreveport district, is in the city. He reports his district to be in fair working order, and has given it close attention since the Louisiana Annual Conference.

—Rev. A. Moore, of Louisiana Conference, desires his correspondents to address him box 144, Woodville, Miss.

—If Sister Hester Williams, of Baton Rouge, La., reads the news from North Carolina, under the heading "Our Southern Work," in this paper, as we have no doubt she will, she will see that her example in dedicating a hen to the missionary service is being followed by North Carolina brethren, with generally good results.

—The Educational Weekly says: "Prof. F. A. Friedley, owing to the bad condition of his eyes, has resigned the presidency of DePauw College at New Albany, the same to take effect at the close of the college year, and will go on his farm, six miles below the city."

—Rev. Moncure D. Conway, a prominent divine of London, has resigned his pastorate, and is coming to America to reside in Washington. He will devote the remainder of his life to literary pursuits, believing that there is a wider field for him in that direction than in the ministry.

—Carleton B. Fish, a native of Williamson, New York, a relative of the late W. R. Fish, and a resident of New Orleans for fourteen years, died April 30. His funeral was attended by comrades of the Joseph A. Mower Post No. 1, G. A. R., and religious services were conducted by Rev. M. C. Cole.

—The Greencastle (Ind.,) Times, of April 17th says: "This morning Dr. J. C. Ridpath finished the last page of his General History. He has been engaged on the work for fifteen months and seventeen days. The manuscript extends to over four thousand closely written pages, and has been produced at the rate of over three thousand words per day.

—Prof. A. B. Hyde, of Allegheny College, has been nominated by the Board of Visitors of Garrett Biblical Institute to the chair vacated by the death of Dr. Hemenway. There is talk among the trustees of placing Dr. Terry, of New York, in the same place. Either of these well-known scholars would be a most excellent choice.—Pittsburg Advocate.

—The Rev. Dr. D. D. Whedon is rapidly recovering his customary health. The physician who has him in charge says: "The illness was very severe, but during the last month his improvement has been astonishingly rapid. He is now convalescent, and has no organic disease whatever; and I have no doubt a few weeks more of care and attention will restore him to his usual health."

—Orange Judd, editor of the American Agriculturist for some thirty years, lately retired from its editorial department and located in the West. He desires to gather a complete "postal-card album" of his old readers and friends, and requests them all to send him a postal giving their present location and address, naming also, when convenient, the years in which they were his subscribers. Mr. Judd's address is Chicago, Illinois.

—Bishop Asbury once wrote to a friend: "I have served the Church upward of twenty-five years in Europe and America. All the property I have gained is old horses." So much for the privilege of being a gentleman in society and an embassador of Almighty God. The Bishop once, while presiding at a Conference, when a presiding elder, enumerating the excellence of one of his districts, closed by saying, "And he is a revival preacher," arose and said, "Who is a revival preacher? A man takes his axe into the forest and begins to cut down a large tree. He is soon called away, but leaves his axe. Another takes the axe and continues cutting and goes away; another comes and cuts on the other side of the tree, and after a few blows the tree falls—the last one is your revival preacher."

When the educational bill, recently passed by the Senate, is called up in the House, Mr. Hurd will discuss the question of the power of the Senate to originate appropriation bills. He will insist upon the plain reading of the Constitution, which forbids such an act on the part of the Senate, and because of his fine attainments as a lawyer, his speech upon an imporatant constitutional question is looked forward to with great interest.

The General Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The first Conference of American Methodism that exercised in any respect the functions of an authoritative or legislative body was that called by Dr. Coke and Mr. Asbury, acting by advice of Mr. Wesley, to convene in Baltimore on Christmas, 1784. At this conference, known as the "Christmas Conference," the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized. Previous to this time annual conferences had been held to review the work and make such changes as were thought necessary in the appointments of the preachers. The first of this class was held on July 4, 1773. These however were not legislative bodies; the will of Mr. Wesley, directly communicated or through his representatives, was accepted as law. Whatever may have been the intention of Mr. Wesley in regard to his relation to the new organization of the American societies it at once assumed in fact the functions of an independent body. It did indeed resolve that "during the life of the Rev. Mr. Wesley we acknowledge ourselves his sons in the Gospel, ready in matters belonging to the Church government to obey his commands;" but the superintendents appointed by him were accepted or chosen by vote of the Conference, and made amenable to it, not to Mr. Wesley. What followed two years after plainly indicates the spirit of the new organization.

For the next eight years several annual conferences were held to suit the convenience of the preachers, scattered over the constantly enlarging field of their labors. Matters that required general action were presented in turn at several conferences for their consideration. But this plan failing to give satisfaction, the conferences agreed to call a General Conference in 1792. Baltimore was the seat of all the General Conferences until that of 1812, and here that of 1792 assembled; and having been the first convened by a general and direct vote, it is known in our history as the first General Conference. The Minutes of it were lost, but it was so memorable a session on account of the differences of opinion which resulted at last in the secession of Mr. O'Kelly and his friends that the business of the Conference is pretty well known. It was determined to have a General Conference every four years composed of all the preachers in "full connection," which body was to exercise complete legislative authority. The next General Conference, that of 1796, met Oct. 20. It gave formal boundaries to the annual conferences. The General Conference of 1800 was the first that met in May. Richard Whatcoat was elected a bishop. The qualification for membership in the Conference was changed so as to allow only elders of four year's standing to have part in the proceedings. The Book Concern was removed from Philadelphia to New-York. The fourth General Conference, 1804, met May 6. The pastorate was limited to two years in succession in one charge. The Conference of 1808, the fifth, has historical significance on account of its having formed the plan of the delegated General Conference as it exists at the present day. It was to be composed of one delegate for every five members of the annual conferences; and certain restrictions, known as the "Restrictive Rules," limited the power of the conferences. Bishop Whatcoat having died Wm. McKendree was elected to the Episcopal office.

The First delegated General Conference met in New-York city May 1, 1812. It was composed of ninety members. Since then seventeen General Conferences have been held, and our space will allow brief reference only to matters of the highest importance in connection with the date and place of meeting.

The Seventh General Conference, 1816, met in Baltimore. Bishop Asbury having died Enoch George and Robt. R. Roberts were elected bishops. The publication of the Methodist Magazine was authorized. The ratio of the delegation was changed to seven.

The Eighth Conference, 1820, met in Baltimore and was composed of eight-nine delegates. The formation of the Missionary Society and of the Tract Society was approved. The elective presiding eldership was the chief question discussed. Joshua Soule elected bishop, but declined ordination on account of the action of the Conference favoring the election of the presiding elders. The Western Book Concern was inaugurated.

The Ninth Conference, 1824, met in Baltimore. Joshua Soule and Elijah Hedding elected bishops. Richard Reese and John Hannah, the first delegates from the English Wesleyans were present.

The Tenth Conference, 1828, met in Pittsburgh. The action of the Conference led to the formation of the Methodist Protestant Church. Steps were taken to provide for changing the "Restrictive Rules" which were consumated by the annual conferences. The conference refused on constitutional grounds to constitute the Canadian societies into a separate body; but made provision for ordaining a bishop for them should they become an independent church.

The Eleventh Conference, 1832, met in Philadelphia. James O. Andrew and John Emory were elected bishops. The publication of the Western Christian Advocate was authorized.

The Twelfth Conference, 1836, met in Cincinnati. Beverly Waugh, Wilbur Fisk, and Thos, A. Morris, elected bishops. There was great excitement during the Conference over the anti slavery movement. Two members of the Conference were censured for attending an anti-slavery meeting.

The Thirteenth Conference, 1840, met in Baltimore. The publication of the Ladies' Repository at Cincinnati was authorized. The German weekly, the Christian Apologist, having been commenced was approved.

The Fourteenth Conference, 1844, met in New York. L. L. Hamline and Edmund S. Janes elected bishops. On account of Bishop Andrew having become connected with slavery by a second marriage, the Conference declared that he should "desist from the exercise of his office so long as this impediment remained." The "Plan of Separation" was adopted. The session of the Conference lasted till June 11, the longest on record.

The Fifteenth Conference, 1848, met in Pittsburgh. The Conference declined to receive Lovick Pierce as a fraternal delegate from the newly organized M. E. Church South. The session was largely spent in debating questions growing out of the Plan of Separation.

The Sixteenth Conference, 1852, met in Boston. Bishop Hamline resigned his office. Levi Scott, M. Simpson, E. R. Ames, and O. C. Baker elected bishops. The rule in regard to pewed churches was rescinded.

The Seventeenth Conference, 1856, met in Indianapolis. Theological schools were endorsed. The slavery question occupied the attention of the Conference more than any other. Provision, with consent of the annual conferences, was made for missionary bishops and which resulted in the election of Frances Burns for Liberia. The Central Christian Advocate was authorized.

The Eighteenth Conference, 1860, met at Buffalo. The only questions before the Conference of moment were slavery and lay representation.

The Nineteenth Conference, 1864, met in Philadelphia. D. W. Clark, [illegible] Thompson, and C. Kingsley elected bishops. A committee appointed to wait on President Lincoln. The several conferences recommended to change the rule, so as to forbid slaveholding in the [illegible]

[illegible] Conference, 1868, met [illegible] Delegates from the new conferences in the South admitted. The question of lay delegation referred to the membership of the Church.

The Twenty-first Conference, 1872, met in Brooklyn. Thos. Bowman, W. L. Harris, B. S. Foster, I. W. Wiley, S. M. Merrill E. G. Andrews, Gilbert Haven and Jesse T. Peck elected bishops. Lay delegates were admitted. The Conference selected places of Episcopal residence.

The Twenty-second Conference, 1876, met in Baltimore. The chief debate was on the elective presiding eldership which was not adopted.

The Twenty-third Conference, 1880, was held in Cincinnati. H. W. Warren, C. D. Foss, J. F. Hurst, and E. O. Haven were elected bishops. Provision was made for the Ecumenical Conference to be held in London. The Discipline was carefully revised, but no material changes were made.—Central.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

D. A. Bragg, Yazoo City: "I was appointed by Elder Revels, March 19, and arrived March 28th, to the Mount Olive work. In found one church in a very good condition, temporally, but not spiritually. I have another preaching point, and propose to establish a church about 15 miles from Yazoo City at a little town. I was gladly received by the people. They are open hearted; the membership small but of earnest workers. The estimating committee fixed my salary at $100, and $5 per month for board."

LOUISIANA.

C. Shallowhorne, New Iberia: "We are holding a revival. Backsliders are coming back to the fold, and sinners are being converted."

W. R. Butler, Columbus: "Elder Duncan was with us the first Sunday in April, and we had a grand time. Three were converted and seven came to the altar. Our people are prospering and nearly all have houses of their own. We are going to build a good church. Sixty dollars was subscribed to pay for lumber, and when the crops are laid by, the church will go up. Sixty on the Sunday-school roll. Six subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN. Bro. G. W. Shelby is teaching a good day school."

C. H. Claiborne: "We have labored earnestly and continually trying to get these people to believe that "marriage is honorable in all." We found about 26 families on one plantation living in adultery and scarcely wanted to listen to persons who tell them that it is right for them to get married lawfully. We preached a sermon on marriage a few weeks ago and Hon. Geo. D. Cragin, Sr. assisted. Now we see this question sinking in the hearts of some, and they have taken our advice and got married, others are preparing. We need for Louisiana a law prohibiting men and women from living together without being legally joined."

H. James, Jackson: "At Magnolia Chapel I found on roll 68 members, 1 probationist, the church unfinished and $218 in debt. We are hard at work to finish and pay the debt. The people love their church paper. They can't buy whiskey in Jackson without a physician's prescription."

Floyd Woodward, Campte: "The pastor and members have been praying for the upbuilding of the church. Fifteen have been received on probation, 2 converted and 7 reclaimed. There are many more souls at the altar. Bro. Wright is working well, and we are pleased with him."

TEXAS.

J. Morton, Gibson: "Quarterly conference was held April 5-6, and we had a grand time. The people are improving. Estimated $350 for pastor's salary. The elder stopped with Sam McCarty, a probationer of our church, who enjoyed his visit very much."

A. Williams, Orange: "The presiding elder held our quarterly conference in March. It was a joyful time. Seven joined the church. Collection $16.25. Pastor's salary was fixed at $65 a year.

B. M. Taylor, Bryan: "It is a sad thing to be forced to license a man as lecal preacher, and renew such license, with a quid of tobacco in his mouth, and more especially in the Methodist Episcopal Church; and to say go on, my good brother, n the work of the Lord, chewing your tobacco, spitting and preaching."

W. H. Logan, Houston: "On Easter Sunday Trinity Church was crowded to its utmost capacity. The people could not be seated. The church was nicely decorated with evergreens, flowers of all descriptions, besides emblems of various kinds. The children met in the old church edifice and marched into the new one to the delight of the audience. The exercises were on l aves prepared for Easter Sunday, and were nicely perfumed. The choir furnished good music, with Prof. O. A. C. Todd at its head as organist. Duets, solos and Scriptnre recitations were enthusiastically received. The only displeasure was that so many ladies had to stand up during the services. Our Sunday-school is blessed with a good corps of teachers. I must not fail to mention that it gave an entertainment to raise money to purchase an organ, and $139.66 was realized. All departments of the church are in good condition. Everything has been pleasant since I came."

TENNESSEE.

W. W. White, Seays: "Dr. J. Braden presided at our quarterly conference. He gave an interesting talk to members urging them to be punctnal and true to their duties. He tanght the Bible class in Sunday-school and catechized the children. The number is 22 on the roll. At love feast Gen. Blythe, of the M. E. Church, South, communed with us. The church has 40 members, and has paid all its assessments. We have an earnest, working pastor, and he does all he can to advance our interests. Father Seay is improving, being able to set up awhile every day. We pray that he may be spared to do much more good before the Lord says 'come up higher.'"

J. L. Massey, Martin: "We had a pleasant time at the district conference in Brownsville. Rev. J. W. Hall and I stopped with W. H. Jones and wife. Sister Jones is a member of the C. M. E. Church. Our stay was one of the pleasantest we ever enjoyed. We wish Bro. and Sister Jones many happy days on earth."

ALABAMA.

H. Matthews, Alexander circuit: "My quarterly conference was held April 25-27, by P. O. Louis. We had a good session. On Sunday Bro. Louis met the Sabbath-school, and preached from the pulpit at 11 a. m. At night he preached in Haven Chapel. We could not seat the people, and his sermons resulted in good to the church. I have heard much said about a colored bishop. I think the General Conference will do what is right. Let the bishop be white or colored, so he is a man of God. I know a colored bishop can stop in our families, and eat and sleep with us; so can a white bishop if he wishes to do so. We want a man with the religion of Christ in his soul; and the ability to do what the law and the Gospel requires."

ARKANSAS.

A. Hardeman, Hazen: "I send you five subscribers from this new work, for new members."

NORTH CAROLINA.

F. A. Archibald, in the Western: "We had the pleasure of attending the session of the North Carolina Conference, which was being held at Greensboro. This conference is of colored ministers, with one or two white members. We became deeply interested in their work, while tarrying among them, and listening to the report of their labors. Their mission is an humble one, to lift their race into a higher and nobler life, and they are toiling with earnest endeavor to meet the responsibility that God has laid upon them. Many of these men are gifted and eloquent, and would be qualified to fill any position of responsibility within the gift of the Church. These ministers manifest great interest in the general work and prosperity of the Church, especially in the benevolent work. their people, being generally poor, are unable to do much for benevolent causes, but the reports of the pastors showed that they had done what they could. This was illustrated in the description of one brother of an experiment he made to raise money for the missionary cause, and its success. He said he called on all his members who had got so far along in this world's goods as to have a flock of hens, and persuaded each one to set apart one hen to the missionary cause, and all the eggs laid, or chickens raised by that missionary hen were to be given to this benevolence, and his report showed how well the novel plan succeeded. Dr. Reid, of course was very much interested in the experiment and its results, and very likely he will be telling some of our Eastern conferences how to do it."

Austin District, Second Round.

DEAR EDITOR:—We met the brethren on the Austin Mission April 5th and 6th the quarter was not attended very well. A local preacher was to be buried on the same day of the quarterly conference which kept some away but not all, for some were here in the city, and could have come if they wanted to. The reports were poor, the pastor has none at all, though the work was in a fair condition. The Sunday-school which died last year has been called to life so they say, and some had joined the church, yet the pastor made no report as required by the Discipline; nothing but slothfulness. Truth shines. April 11th., the Wesley Chapel brethren met at night as they have so much to do that they can't spare the Lord two or three hours on Saturday evening. In Jeff Davis's time they were glad when they could stop on Saturday. However we had a fine time after we got together, the pastor and all of the brethren had good reports, showing an increase of 40 in the Sunday-school, and 30 in the church during the quarter. The brethren say they will meet at 12 o'clock on Saturday hereafter and quit the old slave time ways. April 19th found us at Giddings a little railroad town 60 miles from Austin, here the members met me promptly at three o'clock the appointed time; all had their reports ready except Brother Lott the pastor. We had to stop the business and wait for him to make out his report, but when we got it, it was very good; 10 had been received in to the church and some 18 into the Sunday-school. The district conference will meet at Giddings in September, and Brother Lott and his people must have things in good shape. The McDade church is a part of this work, but the men from that place have not courage enough to meet us one time at Giddings they think they should have the quarterly conference meet at their church some times, but I don't see how they can get it unless they go, meet the quarter and ask for it and then vote for it. The people at Giddings loves the quarterly meeting, elder and preacher and of course they will not vote the conference away from their home to go 20 miles to meet the brethren at McDade, when they don't care enough about us to send their reports, which can be sent by mail. All of the brethren on each circuit belongs to the one quarterly conference, and they need not expect the elder come and hold a meeting at each preaching point no never. At Manor April 26 27th. I was very much discouraged to meet five members of the conference there when the conference numbers fifteen, however the fault was not in the pastor, for he had done his duty. When Rev. B. P. Brown was their pastor the excuse was we have no leader, our pastor is a good man but is not up to the times, now they have one that is up with them and the times too, and he let him walk for miles to do work for them, when they could send a boy on a horse for him. He has received $25 from the work since the annual conference in December. He says without a change this will be his last year in the traveling work, for he will be compelled to give up the ministry and take care of his family of wife and 4 or 5 children, and there are others that will have to quit. Nothing to report from here, only from the pastor who had preached, visited and done the work of a pastor. I will say now to the brethren, that I will write to the paper and tell the condition I find the work in as I go around, and if my visits among you do any good I leave that for you to say; there is no need of me sounding a trumpet of what I do at each point. Why don't you write and tell the Editor in a few words how the work is. I will write as I go on hereafter.

C. L. MADISON P. E.

Mr. Kellogg Acquitted.

Washington, May 1.—The Criminal court to-day resumed the trial of the Kellogg case, and Judge Wylie delivered his decision upon the motions by the defuse to reject Price's testimony, and all evidence relating to orders for exemption upon his routes. He said the indictment charged a statutory offense—a violation of section 1782 Revised Statutes. It was not strictly a case of bribery, but one provided for by that section. It forbade any Senator directly or indirectly receiving any compensation in relation to any government contract.

Briefly summing up the evidence already given, Judge Wylie referred to the counts in the indictment charging that Kellogg received $1,500 from Price at different dates, beginning April 18, 1880. It would bring the offense within the three years' limit imposed by the statute of limitations. If Price testified before the grand jury as he did here, then the indictment gave a wrong date, for the bribery took place April 18, 1879, and the prosecution was barred. There was no doubt the prosecution knew it was necessary to have a date that would bring it within the three years' limit. The defendant never is required to plead statute limitations. In the criminal case he simply could not be prosecuted. It the offense charged was really committed on April 18, 1879, it was the duty of the court to say it was impossible to convict the defendant.

The court reviewed the testimony of Price, and concluded that April 18, 1879, was the true date upon which the statute of limitations began to run. The note and orders were accepted for what they were worth. Risk of payment was taken by Kellogg, and there was no liability upon Price. The business was settled, services were rendered, and here is your pay—your pay for orders. The date must be taken as April 18, 1879; there could be no doubt about that.

It was too clear to require discussion. The next question was whether the evidence sustained the charge of the indictment that the defendant had received $1500 lawful money. The court held he had not, and decided that Price's evidence must be excluded.

After a short consultation Mr. Reynolds expressed his disappointment that the motion had been sustained. As the government understood it, the court held that the offense was barred by the statute of limitations. There was, therefore, nothing for the prosecution to do but to submit the case to the court.

Judge Wylie (turning to the jury): "Gentlemen, this defendant is entitled to your verdict." The foreman rose, and, in answer to the clerk's query, respondend: "Not guilty."

Mr. Kellogg and his counsel left the court-room. As they filed through the doorway the district attorney said he desired to enter a nolle prosequi as to Price in the indictment, wherein he is charged with conspiracy with Thomas J. Brady. This course was taken in fulfillment of a promise that Price would not be prosecuted if he told the truth.

Judge Wylie—I have no doubt he told the truth and that you are doing right.

Representative Kellogg has requested Mr. Springer to summon all the witnesses in the case before his committee, and have a thorough examination of the whole matter. Mr. Ingersoll conveyed the message to Mr. Springer this afternoon, and will act as Kellogg's counsel before the committee. Kellogg himself will take the stand, and promises to make it very interesting for certain people who he charges have been pursuing him. He is undoubtedly in an angry frame of mind toward his enemies. For one, in particular, he wants the light turned on the Department of Justice, and particularly on Special Counsel Ker, who got $5000 for drawing up the indictment which the court quashed to-day in such short order. The committee will proceed with the case.

Still More About Home.

One, who has been for several years a faithful worker, in the Freedmen's schools, said to me, "We ought to do more in teaching our girls how to make homes. Theories are not enough. We ought to have some means, by which we can give them practical knowledge. They ought to see how things are done, and so to have something to imitate. We now educate them in books, and they think there is nothing in the world for them to do but to study and teach school."

When our schools were first established among the colored people, they were just from slavery. They were physically free, but their minds were still in the bondage of ignorance. They were ambitious and they needed to grow, and they felt it, hence the eagerness with which they availed themselves of their opportunities to get education, as the means of elevating them to where doors would open before them into fields, in which they could labor, so as to take their proper places in the world. God was leading them.

As soon as any of them had made some progress in the rudiments they were needed as teachers. "Send us teachers," was an imperative call from all parts of the land. Indeed it has been so ever since, and it will probably continue, for never comes a time when we need to stop learning and teaching. But to be sure, there are things to be learned as well as taught. People have bodies as well as minds; bodies are precious gifts, but they are too often neglected and abused. "What we shall eat, wherewithal shall we be clothed," or in what houses we shall live, are questions well worthy of consideration. God does not feed us with manna right from heaven, or clothe us with material, which never "wax old." We have food, clothing and homes must work for them, and need to know how to do it. An education is a help in doing these things efficiently. Very little can be done in this world without it. Mere machines cannot do more than only in the same old way until they wear out. Humanity is not satisfied with the same old thoughts, and in the same old ways. It must be progressive. They are growing wiser and better, and more loving. In proportion as people obey the law of love will their surroundings improve. There are obstacles in the way of practical home [illegible] because of poverty of [illegible] and [illegible] for discovery [illegible] would [illegible] of how to work with them have to use in [illegible] ently. Very little [illegible] in this world without [illegible] Mere machines cannot do [illegible] only in the same old [illegible] until they wear out. Humanity is not satisfied with the same old thoughts, and in the same old ways. It must be progressive. They are growing wiser and better, and more loving. In proportion as people obey the law of love will their surroundings improve. Tasteless looking homes will disappear, and bad habits will die out, and homes will grow better and more, as they should be, based on good principles and to have them. If girls can learn to make pleasant homes, in two or three rooms, where they have little to do with, they certainly will be able to do well under better circumstances.

Once, I unexpectedly visited a home where lived a young married couple, who had been students at the college, and had acquired some education, and I think both had been teachers. They were poor, and so were compelled to begin life in an humble way. The young man was working a small piece of land. Their house was a small cabin, white washed outside and inside. One room served as kitchen, dining room, bedroom, and parlor. The young wife, who was a busy, happy housekeeper, had to cook by a fireplace. Every thing looked in good order. I took a meal with them, and I never tasted better biscuits, corn bread, fried chicken, and coffee, and I never saw a lady preside at a table more gracefully than she did. There were large trees in front of the house, in the shade of which she did much of her work, and which also made a comfortable place to sit, in pleasant weather. The young couple seemed happy, even in their inconvenient surroundings, but they hoped some time to be able to do better. If they had thought that they could not have lived in one room, in such a house, and had refused to do the best they could, would their home have been a pleasant one? They had sense enough to live within their means, so were laying a foundation for future prosperity. If they had borrowed money, so as to have surrounded themselves with more conveniences, they would have placed themselves under a yoke or bondage, from which they might never have been freed.

An intelligent girl, who had been for a long time one of our students, and who was about to be married, wrote to one of the teachers, asking for the loan of some money, with which to buy furniture, so as to go to house keeping suitably. He wrote to her, refusing her request, and advising her not to go in debt, by any means, but to try to have a home in an humble way, if necessary. A few weeks afterward, her teacher received another letter from her, telling him of her pleasant, and happy home, and thanking him not only for his advice but the denial.

Girls should learn the lesson, that happy homes are not in the furnishings. I have heard that "home is where the heart is." That is certainly so. What would the cottage or the mansion be worth, without any one there for whom to love or care? There would be no life there, or joy, or rest. It could not be home, for home is only where there are loving hearts.

APPLE JELLY.—The manufacture of apple jelly is simple enough; proceed a follows:—Take any quantity of good cooking apples, wash them and pick out all decayed parts, then slice them in a copper, tin lined or porcelain lined boiler, and one-third larger than required to hold the apples, next cover them with water half an inch higher than the apples; now place them over a good fire. The boiler is best raised a little, or a false bottom on it filled with water to prevent burning. Bring the whole to a boil, constantly stirring. When it begins to thicken and adhere to the spatula, jelly like, pass the juice through a flannel jelly bag, said bag being suspended above another kettle to catch it; let it drain of its own accord without squeezing or pressing. When all the juice has passed through return it to your kettle, measuring it, and to every pint of juice allow from eight to twelve ounces of powdered sugar, according to the sweetness of the apple—the more sugar you use the quicker it will jelly. Boil this until by taking a little and placing it on a plate in a cool place it will form a jelly, then remove it from the fire and pour it into moulds, which should have been [illegible] in cold water. Cover the jelly, pasting [illegible] paper through white of egg or gelatine, rendering it impervious to air; next cover the top with skin or good oiled wax paper, seeing it fits well, so as to exclude all air.—Confectioner.

FLANNEL CAKES.—One pint of milk, a terspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, the yolks of two eggs, and flour (sifted) enough to make a thin batter just thick enough to bake on a griddle; when well beaten add two teaspoonful of baking powder, mix thoroughly, and lastly, add the whites of eggs beaten to a stiff froth; don't beat them in, but stir gently through the batter; bake at once.

APPLE FLOAT.—Pare and core twelve large apples, boil or bake in as little water as possible, and press through a fine hair-sieve when cold; sweeten to taste, add the whites of two eggs well beaten, and then beat the whole together until stiff. Grate nutmeg over it. To be eaten with cream.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.—Bruised peachtree leaves applied to a wound caused by a rusty nail, will remove the pain immediately and prevent lockjaw.

Many experienced housekeepers, in order to prevent the formation of a crust in the tea-kettle, keep an oyster shell in it. The shell attracts all the stony particles to itself.

If you put a little sugar of lead in the water in which you first wash a muslin or calico, and let it remain in the water awhile, the colors will remain brilliant.

There is a greenness in onions and potatoes that renders them hard to digest. For health's sake put them in warm water for an hour before cooking.

To destroy ants, wrap a piece of gum camphor in cloth or paper to keep it from dissolving, and place it in or about your cupboard or sugar, and it will drive away these pests.

The flesh of poultry that have always been allowed their liberty and air and sunshine without stint is much superior to those confined while fattening in filthy coops.

A Grateful and Heroic Negro.

The circumstances of the most heroic and romantic deed connected with the late Everingham disaster was related to us yesterday. After the boat had been banked and a roster of the crew was called, Assistant Pilot Wingate did not answer.

"Where is Wingate?" some one shouted. "Asleep, in his berth," was the answer, and by this time the supports of the upper deck were being eaten rapidly away, and the flames circled round and round over the hurricane deck, licking the glass of the state-room doors, to disappear now and anon through the black curls of dense and stifling smoke, then again to streak the black sky like the livid pulse of destruction that it was, and then to soar away and vanish into the oblivion of heat to sear the invisible atoms of the air. It was in the midst of this panorama of horror that a black form was seen rushing toward Wingate's berth and impending death. A surge, a crash, and the door gave way and Wingate and his rescuer, through ways left free by Providence, escaped in safety to the shore. This negro, on hearing that Pilot Wingate was in his state-room, banished all fear of his own safety to rescue him, which was done in return for the saving of his own life by Wingate when the Wylly went to pieces against the Fort Gaines bridge last April. He was going under for the third time when Wingate snatched him from his grave. This was gratitude, and a heroism equaled by no instance in the calamitous records of many and many a day, and deserves a monument in marble.—Eufaula (Ala) Times.

Never try to raise a family without a good news paper, provided it contains the advertisement of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, for this valuable medicine is necessary to keep your children in good health.

Good men have the fewest fears. He has bad one who fears to do wrong. He has a thousand who has overcome that one.

SONGS IN THE NIGHT.

BY JESSIE HOWARD BELL.

Sing, my heart, the dawn approaches,
Shadows fly with night;
The king majestic in his splendor
Cometh clothed in light.

In his train are peace and gladness,
And all the joys of time,
Grace and beauty are his heralds,
Bliss and love sublime.

The white-robed mountains blush for joy;
The crystal waters laugh;
The valleys throb with waking life,
And dawn's sweet nectar quaff.

The moon forsakes her sapphire throne;
Stars lay their sceptres down
Before the crimson king of day
In jewelled robe and crown.

Sing, my soul, the dawn approaches;
Sorrow's night is o'er;
The king majestic in His splendor
Stands waiting at the door.

Sing, my soul, to thee He calleth;
Arise, forget the night;
Soar to fields of matchless glory,
To worlds of living light.

Shout with seraphs in the anthem,
"Peace, good-will to men,"
While the starry arch of heaven
Echoes the refrain.

Sing, my soul, thy flight is upward;
Sing for joy alone;
Sing for pain and sorrow vanquished;
Sing, the race is won!

Sing thy way through fields eternal;
Sing at Heaven's gate;
Sing before the Throne Supernal;
Thy victory's complete.

Worth a Licking.

Some years ago in Georgia, that band of Christians known as Ascensionists were having a grand revival. One day when the meeting was in full force a storm came up, and a young gentleman who was out hunting with his servant took refuge in the church door. Being curious to see the service, the two hunters crept up into the gallery, and there hid in a place where they could observe without being observed.

"Come Lord, come; our robes are ready. Come, Lord, come;" cried the preacher, while all present gave a loud "Amen."

"Marsa Gabe," whispered Cuffy, lifting his hunting horn to his mouth, "let me gib dem jist one toot."

"Put that horn down or I'll break your head," replied the master, in a whisper.

The horn dropped by Cuff's side, and again the minister cried, "Come, Lord, come; we are all ready for thy coming. Come, Lord, come."

"Do, Marsa Gabe—do jist let me gib one little toot," pleaded Cuffy, wetting his lips and raising the horn.

"If you don't drop that horn, Cuffy, I'll whip you within an inch of your life," whispered the exasperated master.

"Blow, Gabriel, blow, we are ready for his coming. Blow, Gabriel, blow," pleaded the minister.

Cuffy could no longer resist the temptation, and sent a wild peal ringing from end to end of the church, but long before its last echo died away, his master and himself were the only occupants of the building.

"I's ready fur de licking Marsa Gabe," said Cuffy, showing every tooth in his head, "for I 'clare to gracious its worf two lickings to see de way common farm cattle kit git ober de ground wid skeared 'Scensionists' behind dem."—Editor's Drawer, in Harpers' Magazine for March.

Social Equality.

Some of the richest men in Austin started in life in a modest way, and are still plain, unostentatious people, but their sons put on a great deal of style. One of the latter, who was better posted about other people's affairs than about his own family's, remarked:

"Your father was nothing but a stonemason."

"I know where you got that information," quietly remarked the other.

"From whom did I get it?"

"From your father,"

"How do you know that?"

"Because your father used to be my father's hod-carrier.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find the whereabouts of my kin people, two brothers and one sister. Brothers are named Horace and Robin Haril, and sister was Rosetta Haril. Brother Horace married Sarah Ann Garrett. Robin's wife was named Virta Cartwright; sister's husband was named Alex Haril. I left them all in 1867, 2½ miles from San Augustine, Texas, on Mr. Bill Garrett's plantation. In slave time we all belonged to the widow Sallie Harril. Our father's name was Adam Haril; he died when we were quite small. Our mother was named Eliza; she is living with me, and desires to find her boys that they may care for her in her old age. It was about two years after emancipation when I left them. I have heard from them several times. I ask Rev. Robert Williams, the pastor at San Augustine, to please take this letter and seek for my relatives. Address me, in care of Rev. Willis H. Jackson, Brenham, Texas. MRS. ANN LEE.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my uncle. I left him in Georgia. He belonged to John Curagan, and his name was Randall Curagan. My sister Susan belonged to Isaac Hind, and lived in Augusta. Another sister was Eliza Henderson, a brother Green Henderson. They and I belonged to Bob Henderson. I was Ellen Henderson, but am now Ellen Nooney. Address me at Luling, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister Nancy, whom I left in Mississippi. Mother was Henrietta, and I left her in Poindexter's trader's yard. Address me at Lockhart, Texas. PHILLIP SCOTT.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my brother, Billy Collum. Mother, two sisters and I belonged to Wm. Collum, in Smith county, Tenn., near the county seat. Mother was Silvie Collum. Sisters were Harriet and Sarah. I last saw brother in Sumner county. He went to Greeneville, Miss., and I never saw him since. Address me at Livingston, Tenn.

GEO. COLLUM.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for Robert Niel, Abraham Niel, Gabriel Niel, Mrs. Flora Niel, Mrs. Siroe Niel, and a mother named Bertie. I left them in Donley county, Georgia. I was sold in Georgia to Johan Moorse, a Methodist preacher, and came to Texas. Address Isak Moorse, Honston, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my friend, who left this State and went to Sherman, Texas, in 1867, with Dr. Jones, his master at the time of the surrender. His name was Wash Jones, and formerly it was Wash Perkins. He had three children, Tump, Dink and Mary Jones. His wife was Eliza Jones. His owners used to call him Bull Baby Jones. Address me at Goodlett, Ark. P. W. JONES.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to inquire for my children whom I left in Louisiana, at Flat Lake. We lived with a man in the time of slavery by the name of Jesse Paxton. He sold me to Erwin Williams. My three children were a son, Davie, two daughters, Maria and Cathrine. I was called Kitty Paxton, but am now Kitty Presnell. I heard that they were living near Little Rock, Ark., over the river. Write to Navasota, Grimes county, Texas. KITTY PRESNELL.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother. I was born in Columbia, Newbury county, South Carolina; her name was Lucy Mosely; She belonged to Jacob Mosely. She had five children, Henry, William, Rachel, Andrew and James Mosely. Two of them she left in South Carolina, Henry and William. Henry was sold and brought to this State by Bob Heldman and Pink Harris. They lived near some village or courthouse. Last time I heard from them was in Utah, Ala. Address me at Starkville, Miss.

SAMARITAN NERVINE NEVER FAILS.

"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says a skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, and fifty other complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as

THE GREAT

NERVE CONQUEROR

It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists. (14)

Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first times with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krekhiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

CONFEDERIT X ROADS
(Wich is in the State nv Kentucky,)
April 5, 1884.

The wimmen uv the Corners are given us much more trubble than the men. We kin git on with Bigler and Pollock, for we kin fite them, but when the wives, dawters and sisters nv the Corners git to invadin the sackred precincks it worries us. Only last nite ther wuz almost a tragedy. They cum in and led out the Deekin, Issaker Gavitt and Kernel McFelter by the ear, took em home and locked em in their cold houses, and they retnrned and sot up in Bascom's bar-room till 12 o'clock at nite. It wnz terrible.

I hev studied woman with great care; and I am free to admit that she has her yooses in this world; but she is not a man and never can be. All attempts to convert her into sich will alluz result in ignominyus falyors. Woman in ornamental; and in certain capacities yooseful. In her proper speer—movin in her regler orbit—nothin kin be better. The wife uv Issaker Gavitt is to Bascom a pleasin picter when she is the foreground uv a wash tub, pertticklerly ez he knows that all the money she earns at that pursoot he will inevitably spend at his bar. There she is in her nateral speer, and is good. But when that same bein flies out uv her orbit, and flies into hizen, she is like a comet, which sloshes abont among worlds and smashes things. When she rushes frantically into his bar with her four hungry brats close behind her, and forbids him to sell likker to Issaker, ez she wants what she hez earned, at least, to buy pervishens and shoes for the children, she don't please me at all; she is interferin with Issaker's prerogative ez a man, and, while I don't delite in brootality, I can't deny that she richly deserves the black eye which she allns gits on sich occasions.

I wuz never so convinst uv the danger uv women gettin' out uv their speer ez I wuz one nite when she wuz tryin' to get Issaker home, and he struck her. "Heavens! it we only could do suthin," said this brazen wretch, chokin' with teers and pashun, "it's a quick enuff we'd shut up sich holes ez yourn!" This to Bascom!

The remark wuz full uv meaning [illegible]. Issaker and the others, who spend the most uv their time and all their money with Bascom, agreed with me that nothin' cood be so dangerous to our liberties ez [illegible]. They hevn't the reasonin' feculties uv men, and hevn't the stiddiness necessary to a proper exercise uv the governin function. Bascom's customers hev often commenced the discussion nv this qnestion, and wood doubtliss hev struck out suthin startlin ef they cood hev kept sober long enuff to hev developed their idea; but this I know, that every man who frekents his bar is opposed to wimin, ceptin at home in their place.

I hev my reasons for not lovin women too much. I was wunst the head of a family; that is, I wuz where I wuz entitled to be so by law. In my youthful days I married. My spouse wnz the owner, in her own rite, of a productive farm in Neo Jersey; and I had plotered in my mind a life nv felicity sich ez the poets dream uv. It wuz a froot farm; and I sed to myself, Looizer Jane shel pick them peaches, Looizer Jane shel market them. Ez for me, I shall lay me on my back under the trees, and, smokin the time, try to forgive Eve for bringin labor into the world. I thought I wood compel Looizer Jane to make reparashen to me for the evil her mother inflicted on me and all men.

I had miscalculated Looizer Jane. When I [illegible] my direcksbens the first time, [illegible] she should do, she refoosed. I remonstrated with her, when that infooratid and muskeler female knocked me down with a chair and histed me out of the house by main strength. When I returned she poured hot water on [illegible] which accounts for my baldnis—and told me if I came near her for three years she'd kill me. At the end nv that period she got a divorse, on the ground uv desershen! since which time I hev wandered up and down the earth with nobody to care for me. The court didn't even grant me alimony!

She hez been rumin' the farm ever since.

The only proper marriage arrangements I hev ever seen is among he Soo Injuns. The sooperior bein' uv that tribe, when he wants a wife simply knocks down with a klub the maiden onto whom he hez fixed his luv. This is in token uv his sooperiority. Ef she survives she rises, and immedjiately goes in his lodge, cooks his dinner, which the gnshing child uv nacher eats and immedjiately goes to the nearest settlement and gits ez drunk ez a lord, which practis is continooed every day till deth doth them part. She dresses the game, tans the skins nv the buffalo he kills, cultivates the corn, and, in short, does the work uv life, which gives her master the time necessary to his mental and moral improvement.

Ahl with all our boastid civilizashen, we kin yit learn snthin from the noble red man! Ef sich cnstoms prevailed among us I wonld hev me a wife to wunst, but rather than to be coerced ez the married men uv the Corners are, I will remain single forever. Ef I cood find a woman willin to work for me, it wonld answer, but what I kin borrer barely supplies my appetite, and I don't keer to further burden my capassity. The woman which wants me must be willin to keer for me. Them's my only terms. No man with a consoomin appetite hez any bizness with a wife. She don't recognize the necessity uv supplying it, and murmurs at cold rooms, and bad cloze, which is annoyin.

No man kin support Bascom and a family at the same time. He must give up one or the other. Ef he hez a appetite for Bascom the wife must support herself and children, and if she is a loven wife she will help her husband out with Bascom. Sich a wife I could cling to, but no other.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON VI. May 11, 1884. VICTORY OVER DEATH. (1 Cor. xv. 50–58.)

1. The certainty of the future life. The New Testament is committed to this doctrine. No kind of [illegible], however perverted, can wrest it to the support of an opposite view.

2. The resurrection of the body. There is a spiritual body, of which the natural body is the necessary antecedent. It is not incumbent on believers in this doctrine to explain every thing about it satisfactorily. Alleged physical impossibilities do not particularly embarrass faith. God will see to these things.

3. The Christian's ground of triumph. He constantly feels that it is not all of life to live in this earth. There is a joyful and blessed state awaiting him, toward which he ever turns in times of despondency, and never turns in vain.

4. The necessity for an undisturbed prosecution of labors in the Lord's kingdom. Persons shifted about continually by the breath of circumstance will accomplish little. While those who steadfastly pursue their work shall have their labors crowned with success.

5. The assured realizations of the future will justify all faith and toil while on earth. No one need unduly pursue his way. All will come out just as promised.—

[illegible] says: "Next to a clear conscience for solid comfort come an old [illegible] who probably never suffered with a cold, otherwise he would have taken to Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup as the good thing to secure relief.

MARRIAGES.

[illegible], on April 10, by Rev. D. [illegible], Mr. George Holland and Miss [illegible].

[illegible] Hereford to Miss Gertrude [illegible], in New Orleans, March 31, 1884, Rev. J. Gould officiating.

[illegible] Church, Dulac, La., [illegible] Miss Elsie Thomas, [illegible], 1884. At the same place, April [illegible], Will Miller and Miss Mary Jane [illegible]. Rev. C. H. Claiborne, officiating.

[illegible] Enterprise, Miss., [illegible] and Mrs. [illegible], April [illegible] Brooks and Mrs. Millie Mc[illegible], officiating.

DEATHS.

[illegible] died March 15, in full [illegible] years. He had been a member of the church 40 years. —D. C. BROWN.

[illegible] upon to attend the funeral [illegible] Sister [illegible]. She died March 4, aged 11 [illegible]. D. RIDLEY.

[illegible] death of a faithful [illegible] and [illegible].

On Tuesday, April 8, 1884, at 7 p. m., Mrs. Mary E. Thompson, beloved and devoted wife of Charles Thompson, aged 32 years, fell an heir to death in the bloom of life; a flower of a large family and relatives; none knew her but to love her for her devotion and Christian example.

H. J. WRIGHT.

Natchitoches, La.

Sister Martha Morrow died April 3, after long suffering, and full triumph of faith The last night she lived she said, "God bless the arms that lift me up." Dr. W. B. Morrow, her husband, asked, "What arms?" And she replied, "the arms of my Savior." Then she sang the song "Sweet Bye and Bye," and passed away. She was a member of the M. E. Church, South, and an old slaveholder; but I can say, thank God she was loved by them all. They remained with her till she died. During my ministry I lived there three years and found no warmer friends. Our presiding elders were always welcomed at her house. Dr. Morrow is a grand Christian gentleman. Our people love him. He was made trustee of our church at Chapel Hill and Franklin, and he serves to our great satisfaction.

J. S. WHITAKER.

Hempstead, Texas.

Bro. Sims Dillingham, a member of the M. E. Church, passed from labor to reward April 7, 1884. He told his wife just before he left her that he was willing to go. Bro. Dillingham has been a member of the church here for six years. We share the bereavement of Sister Dillingham.

M. SMITH.

Winchester, Texas, April 11, 1884.

Sister Hattie Bates, member of the Darrow M. E. Church, died, in full triumph of faith, Saturday, April 12, leaving a devoted husband, three little children and a host of friends to mourn her loss. She died requesting me to sing at her grave, "How sweet the name of Jesus sounds."

Mrs. H. L. Gilbert was born in Winchester, Va., in 1812, and died in Houston, Texas, Jan. 20, 1884, aged 71 years, 10 months and 6 days. She joined the church when 14 years of age, came to Texas in 1872. She was a faithful member, a teacher in the Sunday-school and an honored Christian lady. She leaves one daughter and a host of friends to mourn her loss.

W. H. LOGAN.

The HARTER MEDICINE Co., St. Louis, Mo, commence this week their advertisement of Harter's Iron Tonic. While this house is one of the most successful and most prosperous in the United States, their medicine is still more so, and thousands and thousands of people who have been cured of their various ills by the use of it, would rise up and testify of its merits if they could be reached. We know of no medicine that we can so safely recommend to our readers.

Quarantine having commenced, the mail sevice between New Orleans and Mexico and Cuba by sea has been withdrawn. Mail will be sent via New York.

Three Valuable Books for Forty Cents.

By sending 40 cents in postage stamps to the Echo Publishing Company, No. 5 Jefferson street, Savannah, Ga, the following named three valuable books will be sent to any address: First, "A Great Truth in a Nutshell," an interesting history of the Negro race in America; 70 pages, nicely bound in heavy board and covered with imitation morocco. Second, "Dr. Foote's Hand Book of Health—Hints and Ready Receipts," contains over 128 pages and is decidedly one of the most interesting and instructive works of its kind ever produced from the American press. Third, "A Valuable Treaty. The Horse and His Diseases," by the well-known Manufacturers of Kendall's Celebrated Spavin Cure for horses. The above named three books are really worth $2, but as a means of clearing them out, we offer the above inducements. Send along your 40 cents in postage stamps to the ECHO PUBLISHING CO., Savannah, Ga., and it will not be regretted.

It is stated that Osman Digma has sent a message to King John, of Abyssinia, through friendly Shiekhs, threatening to attack Abyssinia unless the Christians of that country become Mussulmans.

A Good Investment.

MESSRS. CRADDOCK & CO.:

Please send another $12 box of CANNABIS INDICA. This remedy has entirely cured me of Bronchitis and Catarrh. I gained nine pounds in two weeks. The $36 spent with you has done more good for me than the $200 paid to doctors.

BEN. F. JONES,

No. 820 Garrison Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

This remedy speaks for itself. One bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. There is not a single symptom of Catarrh or Consumption that it does not dissipate at once, and it will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2.50 per pint bottle, or three bottles, $6 50.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jeld-1y

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	28x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5 which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

A national feeling against slavery is said to have developed in Brazil within the last five years.

The Methodists of Des Moines, Iowa, have petitioned the General Conference for a continuance of the Episcopal residence there.

The Chattanooga Advocate truly says: "After the magnificent achievements already won in the South; after so many sacrifices by our faithful membership for the sake of belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church; after the investment of so many millions of dollars with such wonderful results; after the Church has been planted in all these States, we can no more think of abandoning this field than we would any part of the North."

During the recent discussion in Congress on the tariff Mr. Price, of Wisconsin, advocated the protective system as benefiting the laboring man and enhancing the price of labor. Whereupon Mr. Weller, of Iowa, asked whether the idle and vicious element in the large cities might not be attributed to protection? Mr. Price replied that ninety-nine per cent. of it might be attributed to saloons kept by men licensed by demagogues, and supported by fools. Mr. Price thought that the people have played with the tiger long enough, that it is time now to fight the beast. We most heartily re-echo all that he has said concerning the need of prohibition.

Ex-Collector W. P. Kellogg, could not be tried on the merits of the charge of bribery against him because of the statute of limitations, and the judge was compelled to direct the jury to acquit. He claims still to be anxious for the examination of the matter on its merits, and has asked the House committee on the expenditure of the Department of Justice to undertake it. The almost criminal neglect and carelessness of the government attorneys deserves and is receiving censure. James B. Pride testified to paying drafts to Kellogg, and they were produced in court, but he placed the date of first payment one year previous to the time given in his testimony before the grand jury. This difference of time turned the case out of court. Price had been promised [illegible] to secure his testimony which was regarded as essential to conviction, and it looks as if he had [illegible] his former partner in the [illegible] business. This trifling [illegible] with a grave accusation [illegible] the death blow to [illegible] potentially speaking.

James R. Keene, the largest and most audacious grain operator in this country, failed last week, the cause being a falling market. Mr. Keene began his speculations in California in the mining stocks of that State. He next went to New-York and gambled successfully in Western Union telegraph and in railroad stocks. Next he managed a grain corner in Chicago, which was not successful. There was too much grain in the West for him to successfully "corner" it all. His last exploit, says the Chicago Tribune, was to "bet against the market. The falling market piled stocks and all sorts of riffraff securities upon him in immense quantities. He took them and sold at a loss, always expecting, gambler fashion, that the tide would turn and he would be on the upward boom; but the turn never came. His accumulations melted away; his property disappeared piece by piece, and at last came the inevitable smash and, in the language of the street, 'he laid down,' and that is the end of James R. Keene. There is nothing in the catastrophe that calls for any sympathy, because there is nothing in his career that is entitled to commendation. He has met with the fate that sooner or later overtakes every gambler. Like the dog in the fable, he plunged into the stream after more meat, and finds himself with the meat he already had gone utterly and nothing left but a monthful of muddy water. The only compensation in the case is that his fall cannot hurt any others except gamblers, and to whatever degree they may be hurt is not of special interest to the rest of the world."

General Badeau, who was recently Consul-General at Havana, has published a letter charging the State Department with derelictions from duty, screening a corrupt Consul clerk, neglect of the rights of American citizens in Cuba, ignorance in negotiating a certain treaty with Spain, and a number of other things of a serious nature. He says he is prepared to place the matter in the hands of a Congressional Committee. It is the prevailing opinion that General Badeau has been very arrogant in the administration of his duties as Consul-General, and that because the State Department did not see just as he did and do things in his way, he resigned his post and returned to the United States to fight the President and Secretary of State.

The Waldenses of Italy are making an earnest appeal to their friends and supporters in other lands for more financial aid. They are increasing rapidly, and claim that in the last five years the number of communicants has about trebled itself, but a calamity of a peculiar nature has overtaken them. They receive a large part of their support from foreign contributions. For many years their drafts from these sources being as good as gold, secured to them ten per cent premium, but with the recent regulation of the finances in Italy they returned to specie payment and a gold basis, which naturally struck off this ten per cent, and they are, therefore, so much in arrears. In the present year, with their increased demand for churches and the reduction of their income they find themselves in a dilemma, and thus call on their brethren at a distance for aid. On the first of April they announced that they would be in arrearage no less than 40,000 francs.

The General Conference.

FOURTH DAY.

Philadelphia, May 5.—To day Job Mulvane, delegate from Kansas, presented a resolution relative to equal lay representation in the General Conference. Referred to the committee on lay representation.

The report of the Board of Managers of the Missionary Society was ordered printed.

Rev. Dr. Reid, Michigan, offered a resolution for reference to the judiciary committee instructing the committee to report to the General Conference such substitute for or amendment of the rules defining the two orders as in their judgment is so required. So referred.

Dr. McCabe moved that Wednesday morning be fixed for the election of bishops and General Conference officers.

Rev. T. B. Neely, of Philadelphia, thought the conference should move slowly to the election. We wanted to know whether the candidate for the Episcopacy has a warm heart, which will not be chilled when he reaches that lofty elevation, and when elevated, whether he will remember whence he came. After debate the motion was referred to the committee on Episcopacy.

Bishop Simpson appeared on the platform and was greeted with great applause.

Bishop Harris read the address of the bishops. It is a lengthy document, and gave an account of the work of the Church for four years. It referred to the death since the last General Conference of Bishop E. O. Haven, Levi Scott and Jesse T. Peck and of Rev. George W. Woodruff, secretary of the last conference. There are 99 annual conferences, 14 missions, 11,349 traveling preachers, 12,026 local preachers and 1,769,534 members and probationers, an increase in four years of 69,232. The number of traveling preachers who died was 954, and of members, 58,891. The accessions were 158,787. In 1883 there were 18,741 churches and 9,815 parsonages, valued at $79,238,055. There are 10 theological seminaries, 45 colleges, 66 classical institutions and 8 female colleges.

The bishops in their address referred to the laxity of the laws of divorce, and asked more stringent regulations with regard to the solemnization of the marriage of divorced persons. It also stated that it would be necessary to elect additional bishops. The number was left to the discretion of the conference.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the subject of marriage and divorce was referred to the committee on state of the church was laid on the table.

After benediction by Rev. Dr. Porter, the conference adjourned until to-morrow morning.

FIFTH DAY.

Conference reassembled with Bishop Warren in the chair. The report of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society stated that the past four years had been most successful; the pages circulated numbered nearly 3,000,000. There are 3,255 auxiliaries connected with the society.

The receipts for four years were $504,584.

It was moved that Thursday of next week be fixed for the election of officers of the General Conference. Referred to the committee on episcopacy.

A motion that supernumerary or superannuated preachers be considered disorderly when they go into another church without the consent of its pastor, was referred to the committee on itinerancy.

A motion of Rev. Carter, of Tennessee, in the matter of change in discipline so as to read: "The Holy Catholic and Universal Church," was referred to the committee on revisals.

A resolution of Amos Shinkle, of Kentucky, was adopted to the effect that a committee of seven be appointed by the bishops to consider and report the best methods of entertaining the General Conference. The motion of the Rev. T. B. Neely was carried for reference to the committee on itinerancy of a series of preambles and resolutions, referring to the need of flexibilty in the term of ministerial service and asking that the committee be instructed to take the subject of limitation or non-limitation into consideration and report what changes, if any, should be made.

A proposition to organize self-supporting Methodist Episcopal churches in foreign lands was referred to the mission committee.

Rev. Wm. Taylor, of the South India Conference, offered the following, which was referred to the committee on missions:

"I want the committee on missions, I want this body to say it is lawful and right to get people converted to God, and to organize them into supporting Methodist Episcopal Churches in foreign countries, just as we always have been accustomed to do in the United States; and such churches, under the jurisdiction of our bishops, fulfilling the disciplinary conditions of membership, shall be eligible to direct legitimate relation to the Methodist Episcopal Church without being put under the jurisdiction of a missionary society; such churches opposing no bar but assisting the missionary society in the work of founding missions among the poor in the same countries that rule, by which young ministers may be ordained for foreign work at beginning instead of the end of their probation, may be made applicable to ministers sent to foreign self supporting fields that the bishops be authorized to organize the West Coast Conference of South America as soon as they deem it advisable."

SIXTH DAY.

The conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church reassembled with, Bishop Foss in the chair.

Wm. H. Reed, late delegate from the St. Louis Conference, conducted the devotional exercises.

A resolution that the name of the Freedman's Aid Society be changed to that of the Southern Educational Society was referred to the committee on Freedman's Aid Society and work in the South.

A communication from the Philadelphia Conference of Baptist Ministers was read. It stated that a committee had been appointed to convey the fraternal greetings of that body to the General Conference. Referred to the committee on fraternal correspondence.

A resolution was offered that the committee on revisals be instructed to inquire and report as to a plan for a more perfect unification of our denominational societies. Referred to the committee on the state of the Church.

A resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of twenty-five, one minister and one lay delegate from each General Conference district and one delegate-at-large to devise and report a plan for a division of the General Conference into two legislative houses, and also to consider the desirability and feasibility of procuring a site and erecting a building thereon, in which are to be held the meetings of the conferences, was introduced. The resolution was divided into two parts; the first was referred to the committee on state of the Church, and the second, by 128 yeas to 106 nays, to the committee on temporal economy.

Rev. W. N. Bloodworth, of Illinois, offered a resolution that it is the judgment of the Conference that in all elections the question of prohibition should come first and then party. Referred to the committee on temperance.

A resolution as to whether a mission shall be made an annual conference, be attached to an annual conference, or remain a mission, was referred to the committee on missions.

A resolution was offered that the committee on temporal economy be instructed to report a plan for a more equitable basis of appropriation for the Episcopal support, and other funds needed throughout the Church.

Rev. Earl Cranston, of Colorado, claims that an assessment should be made so as to be fair and not oppressive to the weaker conferences. Referred to the committee on temporal economy.

Rev. S. G. Smith, of Minnesota, offered the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the committee on itinerancy be instructed to inquire and report what legislation, if any, is needed to make uniform throughout, the method of applying the pastoral limits that work so advantageously with reference to the People's Church, of Boston.

Rev. J. M. Shumpert, of Mississippi, offered the following:

Inasmuch as there has been a great deal of discussion, both in the religious and secular press, of caste in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and inasmuch as caste is a curse to any nation, and more especially to a religious denomination, and inasmuch as we believe caste prejudice is a sin;

Resolved, That it is the sense of the General Conference that no trustee of church, school, college or university should exclude any person on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

Referred to the committee on state of the Church.

The committee on fraternal relations reported, recommending that the Conference hold a special session Wednesday evening next, in order to hear the Wesleyan delegates from England and Rev. Jean Paul Cook, of France. Adopted.

Bishop Harris exhibited the bust of John Wesley, which had been lent the Conference for a few days by Rev. R. W. Todd, of Wilmington. Adjourned.

SEVENTH DAY.

The Conference reassembled Bishop Hurst in the chair. Rev. William Taylor, of South India, conducted devotional exercises. The report by the committee on episcopacy, recommending Thursday, May 15, at 10 o'clock, for the election of bishops was adopted. The report by the committee on memorials to deceased members, recommending memorial service for such members on Tuesday morning next was adopted. The committee on fraternal delegates was granted permission to withdraw the report relative to the reception of delegates from the South and Canada.

Rev. Dr. C. Crawford, of New York, offered a resolution that the committee on itinerancy be instructed to consider the expediency of amending discipline, by striking out the clause authorizing the appointment of missionaries to neglected portions of the city. He did not favor the removal of the time limit. Referred to the committee on itinerancy.

Rev. Dr. King, of New York, offered a resolution, that the committee on the state of the Church be instructed to consider the matter of the protest against assaults on Romanism or civil and religious liberty in different States.

Rev. Mr. King offered a resolution, which was adopted, that in the judgment of the conference, committees have the right only to act and report as to subjects referred to them by the conference.

Judge Sibley, of Ohio, moved that the committee on episcopacy be requested to consider and report upon the limitation of time for bishops hereafter elected, and whether twelve years should not be a proper time.

Rev. William Swindells, of Philadelphia, moved that delegates be authorized to add to the expenses the amount paid for meals when their time was so occupied with business of the conference and committees as to be unable to reach their homes in the city.

Dr. Curry, moved as an amendment that the amount should not exceed fifty cents. The resolution was adopted, with what the bishop called the fifty-cent amendment.

Rev. Morris R. Locke, of Southern Illinois, moved the reference to the committee on revivals of the matter of the use of the Methodist Hymnal.

Amendments were offered relative to its reference to the committees on itinerancy and Sunday schools.

Rev. C. C. McCabe, said the people will sing such hymns as they please, no matter what the conference says. A delegate asked if the Methodist Hymnal was placed in the pews, would it not be used by the congregation? Rev. Dr. McCabe said a number of books of his "Hymns of the Heart," consisting of extracts from the Methodist Hymnal, had been placed in the association hall, and all but five had disappeared. [Laughter.]

Rev. Dr. Lanahan, said he found one of the books on his seat and supposed it was a present.

Rev. Wm. Swindells, said there could be no surer way of breaking down the book of discipline than by putting in them laws that cannot be executed.

The resolution on two Methodist hymnals was referred to the committee on itinearncy.

The committee on reception of fraternal delegates reported that they had succeeded in securing the evening first selected, viz: Thursday evening May 15, for the reception at Areh Street Church of delegates from the Church in the South and delagates from the Church in Canada. The report was adopted.

A resolution of Rev. Henry Graham, of Troy, relative to licensing evangelists by the annual conferences was referred to the committee on itinerancy.

Rev. H. W. Key, of Tennessee, offered a resolution protesting against a change of the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society. He said to do so would prove detrimental to every object for which the society

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

A. Lockhart, East Waco circuit. "This is my second year. I have received valuable assistance from Elder Gates, who held the quarterly meeting in March. We are doing finely; have 2 Sunday-schools, with 12 officers and teachers. Received this quarter 9 in full connection. Elder's collection was $7.25. On Sunday several came forward for prayers."

B. M. Taylor, Bryan: "It is not correct to say this work was in good condition, when I reached it. I have previously stated how I found it. Another quarter has passed, and Elder Pullam has paid us an interesting visit. We rejoice that we have some strong Methodists here. One addition last quarter. Raised by subscription $30.05 to put a floor in the church. Then we shall commence to pay off the Church Extension debt of $250. The committee on parsonage and furniture, consisting of Sisters Texas Thomas and Amanda Wilson, with the assistance of other good working sisters, went to work and gave a festival, raised about $9, and in addition to some furniture already in the parsonage, they almost fixed it up inside, and when I am in the parsonage I feel as comfortable as if I was at home.

Margaret Harris, Davilla: "Our church is getting on finely; our pastor, R. P. Brown, is up and doing."

M. Beddick, Houston: "The Easter services were held in the morning, many parents of pupils being present. Opened with prayer by pastor, and a short address by Mr. Frank Vance. Mr. Robert Lee is superintendent, and Miss Rosa Kyles, assistant. Quarterly conference was held by Elder Moore April 6-7; we had a good time. The elder preached a glorious sermon, after which the sacrament was administered to 50. Presiding elder's collection was $7. St. James charge is improving. Pray for us."

J. T. Gibbons, Floresville: "I was appointed by the Bishop to Floresville and Mt. Pleasant circuit, but as the supply failed to attend, I was changed by our worthy presiding elder from Mt. Pleasant to Riddleville circuit, still retaining part of the circuit to which I was first appointed. This makes me a very large field of labor, but I think was a very wise change after looking into the condition of the work. It gives me plenty of hard and earnest work to do, and no time to spare, but will give a preacher a pretty comfortable support. Last Saturday and Sunday the elder and his excellent wife were with us at Floresville. The quarterly conference went off pleasantly. Saturday night the elder gave us sermons full of the Spirit of God. The earnest manner in which he reproves sin and encourages godliness will never be forgotten by the people of this circuit. On Sunday, at 3 o'clock, Sister C. A. Richardson gave an interesting lecture, on what it takes to make a good Christian home, and explained some things which puzzle us, etc. At night we had preaching, and the Holy Spirit was present at the love feast. We are trying to do all we can to build up the Church at every point, and need the prayers of the church."

Parker Brown, Fairfield: "Allow me to say a few words in regard to the work at this place. We have a flourishing Sunday-school of about 60 members and officers, but I am sorry to say some of our members are not as interested as they ought to be in the school. They do not realize the importance of the help they can be to this good work. Some of our members do not take the Advocate, on the ground that they are not able. I would like to know how such a person can approach God with such an excuse, when the SOUTHWESTERN only costs two dollars a year! How many who call themselves Christians come to such a conclusion, I think they are not able to take a church paper, when they can get at one circus double that amount! I think it is time our eyes were open on this subject, and come to the conclusion I will take my church paper, and I will pay my pastor, and give to all the benevolent causes as far as I am able; and stop saying I can't do anything for the church, I am too poor; but rather say, I will do something for the cause of Christ. We are moving on; we predict a glorious harvest this year; we need a church to accommodate our school. Pray for us."

TENNESSEE.

A. Phillips, Murfreesboro: "We have had a glorious revival in this city; for three weeks souls were made happy, and sinners converted. There were 46 conversions and 39 additions. Among the converts were 8 old persons, the others were young people. Church and Sunday-school are in a prosperous condition. Elder H. W. Key is having grand success in raising money for the McMinnville church. Our work has suffered greatly in the South for want of good church houses, and the elder believes in them. Murfreesboro district is improving; most all of the brethren are building churches or parsonages. We expect to build a parsonage as soon as possible, and stop the preacher from renting."

E. M. Manson, Brownsville: "Our second quarterly meeting was held on the 7th, and the collection was $6.10 for the presiding elder; pastor $35 for this quarter; missions $3.45. We have our Sunday-school organized into a missionary society. There is a bright future before our church here if the right steps can be taken. I am sorry to say that I have lost my horse, and that will hinder me greatly."

J. W. Hall, Bell circuit: "My second quarter was held April 12 13, 1884, with grand results. The elder was on time. Rev. R. Mitchell, of the C. M. E. Church, was with us and preached with credit. Saturday Rev. J. J. Barr, of Henderson circuit, preached. Several of the officers were on hand with written reports. The reports proved the circuit to be in good condition. Monies raised during this quarter: for elder $10.60; pastor, $40; missions, $3; Church Extension, 75c.; Freedmen's Aid, $1; Sunday-school Union 10c.; Education 10c., and for temporal relief $1.25. Sunday the elder catechized the Sunday-school. Love feast was a happy occasion. Several funerals were preached by the elder, assisted by A. Burdett, of Friendship circuit, and the pastor of Bell circuit. In the afternoon, assisted by J. J. Barr, he administered the sacrament of the Lord's supper to 88 persons."

MISSISSIPPI.

C. W. Ivy, Mashulaville: "I have not forgotten that I heard Rev. James Lynch say, when he was our presiding elder on the Meridian district, to one in my presence, that he thought if the M. E. Church got a colored bishop in 20 years it would be time enough, and that is my earnest opinion to this day."

P. Blue, Enterprise: "A few weeks ago I invited the pastor of the M. E. Church, South, Rev. J. M. Weems, to preach for my congregation which he did to the satisfaction of all. In return he invited me on Easter Sunday to his church to hear a sermon by him on the "Resurrection," to which I responded, and to my great surprise on entering the door just as he was about announcing his text he stepped down from the pulpit, placed a chair beside the pulpit and kindly invited me to be seated, apparently without the least fear of affronting his people, after introducing me."

ARKANSAS.

G. W. Baber, Palestine circuit: "When I entered this work Feb. 25 the water was so high I could not do anything; but it is going away and we can get about a little. We have two acres of land on which to build two churches. On April 12-13 Elder O. R. Smith held our quarterly meeting, and we had a very good time. Paid elder $4.75; pastor $3.10."

Falling Off in Collection.

MR. EDITOR:—During the session of our last Annual Conference held in Jackson, Miss., Jan. 17, 1884, we met Drs. R. S. Rust, and J. C. Hartzell, corresponding secretaries of the Freedmen's Aid Society, and Dr. Kynett, corresponding secretary of the Church Extension Society.

We were made to rejoice when we saw those men come in while the conference was in session, and to hear them speak of the general interest of these societies. But we felt a little sad when Dr. Kynett said that there had been a falling off in the collections for the Church Extension Society, and said he could not account for it. This looks like going backward instead of forward. I thought at the time, that there were several reasons why these collections were falling off. But as the conference was drawing to a close and we were anxiously awaiting our doom, I thought it best to speak of this later. One great reason is, that there are some of our churches that used to have their stationed pastors; but now these points have blended into other points. These points that used to have their own pastors, used to send up their collections for all the causes of the church.

We mention Hazelhurst, Miss., to show our readers that we are not mistaken about what we say. This point used to have its stationed pastor, and used to aid in all the general work of the church. But since that time, that point has gone down so low that it is not able to support a pastor. We don't see why such a point went backward, unless it is that the pastor failed to carry the people, and being stationed more than one or two years, the people have been attracted by other denominations; and where the largest congregation is, there the most money is.

It is known that our church has great opportunities in some places, and these seek to carry the influence of the whole congregation against our church, especially where our people are not very well informed, and where the pastors fail to carry the people. Such a state of things will not only weaken the congregation, but will weaken the collections, and church every way. We know of a certain pastor of our conference, who was assigned to a new field of labor, and on going there found himself in a strange place. He asked some one standing by, the way to the church to which he was assigned. The person could not tell which was the church until he named the minister who had proceeded him, saying, "His church," and he found it a difficult task to make the people understand which was the Methodist Episcopal Church. They would call it, "The church over yonder" or "The other church." The other denominations carried the people their way. The pastor who was at that place would sometimes, be carrying on a meeting, and the people would walk just by the door, and go off to another church. Some of the people living at the door of the Methodist Episcopal Church, would walk a mile to join another church. This state of things went on for 3 years. Our readers will understand that we are not saying anything against the brother who was appointed there, for we believe he did all he could for the Master. Yet when our people are not well informed and the pastor fails to carry them, it will injure the cause. Another thing that injures the work is, that our people have not got comfortable churches, and in the winter they will not attend church, because they cannot keep warm; and when the wind begins blowing a light cannot be kept burning. Build such churches as we need, put stoves in them, get lights for them, have them well seated, and you will find that the people will attend better. The result will be, better collections for the Church Extension and every other object named in the church. My brethren, the time has come for us to stop building barns.

Another thing that injures the cause is that some men don't want the charges to which they are assigned, and before they will go to them they will quit, because they don't find things as pleasant as they would have them. Bro. G. W. Barney, who is now resting with the saints, said that a certain brother had been appointed to his work and he went off and left the work. It was sometime before another man could be found to go and take the work and the sheep were left to wander about until some one could be found to lead them. I think he said that this brother was from some other church; that brother must have wanted the conference to give him a first class appointment. His actions indicated that he must have wanted such or none. This brother is not the only one who has come to us seeking a good position. They must be humored to stay in the church. They forget that there are those who have labored and are laboring in this conference to build up the cause of the Master. Some of them can hardly get bread, yet, they are to labor on. But these men we speak of, must have the best places or they will leave. Well the quicker they leave the better it will be for the church.

In looking over the journal of the conference of 1883, we find that 45 appointments sent nothing to the Church Extension fund. Dear readers, in my humble opinion these things will injure both church and congregation, and collections of every kind. Yours Respectfully,

H. L. KENNEDY.

Intemperance.

Intemperance has become one of the leading topics of the day, and its fruits are known throughout the bounds of the civilized world. In a concise manner I shall attempt to describe its effect upon the individual. Intemperance paralyzes the arm, the brain, the heart. All the best affections, all the energies of the mind wither under its influence. The man becomes a maniac, and is locked up in the hospital, or imbues his hand in the blood of his wife and children, and is sent to the gallows or doomed to the penitentiary; or, if he escapes these consequences, he becomes a walking pestilence on the earth, miserable in himself and loathsome to all who behold him. How often do we see two whole families contaminated by the vicious example of their parents; husbands, wives, daughters and sons, all drunkards and furies: sometimes wives murdering husbands; at others, husbands their wives; and worst of all, if worse can be in such a group of horrors, children murdering their parents. But below this grade of crime how much is there of unseen and untold misery throughout our otherwise happy land proceeding from this fatal cause alone. I am persuaded that if we could have a statistical survey and report of the affairs of unhappy families and individuals, with the causes of their misery annexed, we should find nine cases out of every ten, if not a still greater proportion, resulting from the use of ardent spirits alone. With this conviction, which seems to have become universal among reflecting men, the apathy shown to the continuance of the evil can only be ascribed to the circumstance that the mischief, though verbally admitted, is not seen and felt in all its enormity. If some fatal plague of a contagious character were imported into our country and had commenced its ravages in our cities, we should see the most prompt and vigorous measures at once adopted to repress and extinguish it; but what are the most fearful plagues that ever carried death and havoc in their train through the eastern or western countries compared with this? They are only occasional, this is perenuial. They are confined by climate or place; this malady is of all climates, and all times and places. They kill the body at once, this consumes the body and soul by a lingering and dreadful death, involving the dearest connections in the vortex of ruin. What parent, however exemplary himself, can ever feel that his son is safe while this living fountain of poison is within his reach. God grant that it may soon become a fountain sealed, in our country at least. What a relief, how delightful it would be to turn from the awful and horrid past to the pure, peaceful and happy future! to see the springs of life, and feeling, and intelligence renewed on every hand; health, industry and prosperity glowing around us; the altars of domestic peace and love rekindled in every family, and the religion of the Savior presented with a fair field for its celestial action. God grant that such a future may be ours to enjoy.

Letter from Austin.

DEAR EDITORS—As you have not heard from us at Austin for some time, I am pleased to inform you, and also the public through the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN, that we are still alive and active at work. Since the annual Conference we have raised for building purposes (not including other collections) upwards of $500. Myself and brethren being aided by our much beloved presiding elder, C. L. Madison, are preparing to have a grand financial rally in June, at which time we hope to raise not less than $1000. Up to this time we have secured by subscription over $700, and we are not through canvassing. We have also had a revival this year, which resulted in 24 conversions and several backsliders reclaimed, 35 have been added to the church. Our Sunday-school is also prospering, numbering over 200 pupils under the management of our worthy superintendent, W. G. Wilson, aided by pastor and teachers. We have succeeded in raising $150 to purchase a first-class Sunday-school library; Bro. W. G. Wilson will purchase our library before returning from the General Conference. Pay for our success.

Your brother in Christ,

Letter from Paris, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I shall always keep on file the SOUTHWESTERN for present and future reference. Our pastor would have sent in more names were it not for obstacles in his work. The annual conference held here last December proved a blessing; it increased Methodism 500 per cent., and Paris shouted its praise. Rev. V. M. Cole, who was appointed to this place, found it gloomy for some time, but he laid close to the altar, commencing there to sweep to the door. In a few weeks a protracted meeting was started and soon 40 persons joined the church. The meeting closed, but still people kept on joining. The revival fire broke out in the school, and children were converted. We are having a grand time. The people come from far and near to hear Bro. Cole preach, and the church is in better condition now than in all its previous history. A good day school is taught in the church by Prof. E. J. Pender. We have raised for the church this year $350. Elder Webb held the quarterly conference April 12, and preached on Easter Sunday, when the church was decorated with evergreens and flowers. 109 communed. We are going to take Paris. CHRIS. JOHNSON.

Christian Love.

BY A. L. RICHARDSON.

The greatest of the ten commandments, consists in love toward God and man. We cannot love God and hate our brother and have Christian love; if we think so, we greatly deceive ourselves. Christian love when it gets into the hearts of men governs their entire being. It is without dissimilation; it gives us consciences void of offence toward God and man. It is that power of the Holy Spirit by which we are enabled to resist evil in its many forms. It is the great anchor line by which the tongue of a Christian is guarded against speaking evil of his fellow men. No, if you have a Christian heart in you, if you have any well grounded hope of salvation through the blood of Jesus, you cannot, dare not do it, because Christ said love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, mind, soul, and strength, and thy neighbor as thyself. Now I would fain hope that no professed Christian can be found who would be guilty of such an evil, (as evil speaking). Christian love who can measure its height, or its depth, who can estimate its preserving and purifing power: it sends an ever swelling stream of life through a household, it binds hearts into one bundle of life, it shields them from temptation, it takes the sting from disappointments and sorrow. However great the difficulties may arise before us; how dark life's pathway may seem, it ever remains the same to sweeten existence, to purify the cup of life on the rugged pathway from the cradle to the grave, and melts to moral pliability the brittle nature of man. It is the sun of life, most beautiful in the morning and evening, but warmest and steadiest at noon. It is the sun of the soul. Life without Christian love is worse than death, a world without a sun. Our entire being is overspread with chaotic darkness; but when this love enters, it throws a ray of light over our existence and we can then see clearly the way of life; and with that inspired zeal, labor earnestly for the salvation of others that they may have light as we have it. The love which does not lead us to labor for others will soon die out, and the thankfulness which does not embody itself in sacrifices is already changing to gratitude. This love is not refined in one day, nor in many, not even in a human life time. It is the oneness of the soul, with soul in appreciation, and perfect trust. It is of such refining, elevating a character that it expels all that is mean and base; bids us think great thoughts, do great deeds, and changes our common clay into fine gold; it gives worth and beauty to the commonest office; it surrounds home with an atmosphere of moral health; it gives power to effort and wings to progress; it is omnipotent.

Burned to Death.

DEAR EDITOR—On the night of April 9th Mr. Buck Franklin and his wife left home to attend church, about a mile from their home. Shortly after getting to the church some one discovered fire in the direction of his (Franklin's) house, the alarm was made, and all started in that direction, but only got there in time to see three dear little children perish in the angry flames. There were four children left there but one happened to be in an adjoining room; the noise, I suppose, aroused her, and she fortunately came out of the house before the fire reached that room. The remains of the three were carefully gathered up and received proper interment. The dear mother is almost insane over the horrible death of her children. Sister Franklin is a faithful member of the M. E. Church, and a relative of the writer. Fire was caused accidentally.

"What is wine made of?" asked an Austin teacher of Johnny Fizzletop, who said he didn't know "You ought to know, for last summer I saw you climbing over a fence to get into a grape arbor. What did you get there?" "A licking."

"Wine talks," says the proverb; and it is true, for when a man is full of liquor he can't hold anything else, not even his tongue.—Somerville Journal

"Did you ever know such a mechanical genius as my son?" said an old lady. "He has made a fiddle all out of his own head, and he has wood enough for another."

Twenty Years of Work.

To the Friends of Church Extension—Twenty years ago the General Conference met in Philadelphia. It was a time of great public excitement. The Army of the Potomac was making its bloody march from the Rapidan to Petersburg. General Grant thrilled the heart of the nation by his message from the Wilderness, "We'll fight it ont on this line if it takes all Summer." Abraham Lincoln sent his message of thanksgiving to that General Conference—"It is no fault of other denominations that Methodism by reason of her greater numbers sends more soldiers to the field, nurses to the hospital, and more prayers to heaven than any other denomination. Thank God for the Methodist Church, and thank God who in this hour of trial giveth us the Churches." Amid these wonderful days—crowded with events which the world will remember forever—the Church Extension movement had its birth. The uplifted hands of the members of that General Conference, by an almost unanimous vote launched this enterprise into being. Ever since that day this Board has been substituting the music of Church bells for the rattle of musketry and the roar of artillery, and helping to bring on the time

"When some sweet bird from the South
Shall build in every cannon's mouth,
Till the only sound from its rusty throat
Will be the wren's or the blue bird's note."

Ever since that day there has been a watch-care over the advancing tides of population sweeping westward, that Methodism never knew before. This Board has been seeing to it that these wanderers, seeking their homes beneath far Western skies, should not be very long without the inspiration of the visible walls of God's house upon which, when consecrated to His worship, He writes His glorious name—and within which, according to His promise, He comes to meet and bless His children.

Forty-five hundred houses of worship attest the wisdom of the men who created this Board of Church Extension. They furnish sittings for over a million people. Their monetary value is over seven millions of dollars. The number is now being added to at the rate of ten churches for every week. Now, therefore, it is meet and right and our bounden duty, that we celebrate with great joy and thanksgiving this Twentieth Anniversary. On the night of May 13th, in the Academy of Music, in Philadelphia, these anniversary exercises will take place.

And now allow me to say that despite the statements above recorded, we have not been able to "catch up" with our frontier work. The rush of population is too great for us. We need $50,000 at least, to enable the Board to meet demands which are imperative at this moment. The Board should have the power to make a special appropriation to each Territory of $5,000, thus leaving more of the regular income to help the Southern work.

Will you not join in this movement and allow me to count on you for a special offering for this Centennial Thanksgiving Frontier Fund for Church Extension? Help me to enhance the atmosphere of benevolence in that great meeting. Allow me to pledge each one to whom I send this circular for at least $10. May I do it? Please reply promptly. If you are a pastor let your pledge be to give or raise $10 as a special offering for Church Extension. If a layman, to give $10 in the same way. Will you do it? Please answer at once, as the time is very short. Do not fail us.

Yours, faithfully,
C. C. McCABE.

Education, Crime and Pauperism.

BY ABEL STEVENS, LL.D.

In a letter I commended to the attention of your readers a book, issued by our Book Concern, entitled "Christian Educators in Council," as presenting the best data on our greatest national problems—the Mormon question, the Negro and Indian questions, education, pauperism, crime, etc. I discussed at some length the moral tendency of popular education, showing that its efficiency in preventing crime is much more positive than is usually supposed by Churchly thinkers, though it may be less so than is supposed by anti-christian theorists. A word of qualification is expedient on this question. Popular education does, as my statistical facts showed, tend most remarkably to prevent crime, but we should distinguish here between vices and crimes. All crimes are, of course, vicious, and all vices are, from the Christian standpoint, criminal; but when we speak of crimes we usually mean the vices only that the laws take cognizance of, as attacks on society, on the public order—crimes against property, and crimes against the person, as the legalists usually classify them. Now nothing is better demonstrated than the power of popular education to prevent this sort of vice. The statistics, both European and American, which I cited, settle this question beyond dispute. They have been accumulating, of late years, in such manner, and with such surprising results, that we need to guard ourselves against an exaggeration of these results. Doubtless the moral tendency of intelligence is against the vices which are not recognized by law, as crimes; but its tendency is much less positive within the range of such vices, than within that of our criminal codes. The highest civilized society (so called) may be the most corrupt, in certain social respects, and yet be comparatively exempt from the grosser crimes—though its tolerated vice must sooner or later, tend to the the demoralization which produces the legally recognized vices, or crimes. There is a species of education, and what is usually considered the highest development of civilization, which history shows can be accompanied with the profoundest social depravity. A great European writer has remarked that the highest arts—those which are commonly recognised as proofs of the highest civilization—do not tend to morality. A nation may be at the acme of this sort of culture—in sculpture, painting, architecture, poetry, the drama, and music—and, at the same time, be thoroughly corrupt in its personal and domestic life, and utterly degraded by despotism and the superstitions, barbarism and crimes of its populace. Ancient Greece and Rome, and later Italy and France, have been proofs of the fact. But never is this the case with the more utilitarian, popular education. This can never long consist with despotism, superstition, crime or panperism. The statistics of both the new and the old world, show that no agency, yet known to commonwealth, is so omnipotent against these evils, as the common school. I have given the proof in respect to crime; it is equally striking in respect to pauperism, an evil allied to crime often as the cause, and oftener as effect.

The reader has but to turn to the address of Mr. Hawkins, in the valuable book I have mentioned, to be convinced of the effect of popular education on pauperism. The statistics of European States prove that pauperism maintains a surprisingly constant ratio to the popular illiteracy—that "it is in the inverse ratio of the education of the masses." The Grand Duchy of Baden has made a thorough investigation of the problem; it established, in 1854, a universal and coercive system of education. What was the result in respect to pauperism? In seven years the evil was diminished 25 per cent. Good statistical authorities estimate that 96 per cent. of pauperism could be extinguished by the utilitarian education of common people in the common school.

We must wait yet for the full light of our census of 1880 on the problem; but Mr. Hawkins, reasoning on the census of 1870, shows that in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Illinois, "three great central States, where self-support is not difficult, one in ten of the 'illiterates' is a pauper, while only one in thr e hundred of the 'literates' belong to that class." That is to say, that a given number of children, uneducated, "produce thirty times as many paupers as when given average common school education."

"In 1870 a special investigation was made, in fifteen States, of the inmates to the number of seven thousand three hundred and ninety-eight of almshouses and imfirmaries. Of these, four thousand three hundred and twenty-seven, or nearly fifty-nine per cent, could not read or write: while in those fifteen States the average percentage of illiterates was only six per cent. of the whole population. From this six per cent. came that fifty-nine per cent. of paupers; or to express it in another form, a given of children in those fifteen States, suffered to grow up in ignorance, produced twenty-two times as many paupers as the same number of children would if given a fair common-school education. Similar results may be obtained from the census of almost every country in Europe or America."

The logical inference from the statistics of the subject is that an uneducated child is "from twenty to thirty times as liable to become a pauper, and a charge upon the public, as one with an average common school education; and that the annual loss to the United States, in the productive power of the illiterates, and in the support of paupers made such by illiteracy, is nearly, if not quite, equal to the amount that would be required to establish and maintain a free common school system, the year round, in every State in the Union, sufficient for the whole fifteen millions of the children of the school age in the United States." The yearly expense for paupers, 96 per cent. of whom have been made such by illiteracy, is estimated, by Mr. Hawkins, to be "at least ten times as great" as would have been the cost of education for each and all of these paupers, sufficient to have enabled 96 per cent. of them to support themselves. "Statistics," he affirms, "proclaim, in no uncertain voice, that education is the surest prevention of pauperism; and that the expense of providing, in season, this preventive, would not be one-tenth that now brought upon society by pauperism."

On this ground alone education commends itself to all governments as one of the highest measures of national economy. I need not pause to show how its relation to pauperism affects its relation to crime. The thoughtful reader needs no proof that its power against the one is power against the other, and that all the arguments in the present article apply to the subject of my preceding one—for is not poverty one of the chief causes of crime and popular degradation generally?

I have hardly space to present another argument on the question, which Mr. Hawkins handles with great force, namely, the effect of popular education on the value of labor. Nothing could more completely demonstrate the economical value of the common-shool. In 1870 the Commissioner of Education, at Washington, addressed to the chief centres of labor in the nation, a minute series of inquiries respecting the relative effects of education and illiteracy on labor. The answers proved:

"1. That an average free common school education adds fifty per cent. to the productive power of the laborer considered as a mere productive machine."

"2. That the average academical education adds one hundred per cent."

"3. That the average collegiate or university education adds from two to three hundred per cent. to his average annual productive capacity."

"By the census of 1880 we had in the United States four million two hundred and four thousand three hundred and sixty-two (4,204,362) illiterate adults—white and colored. Now, putting their labor at the minimum annual value of one hundred dollars each (which is far below the average even for farm labor, while the wages of manufacturing operatives, including fifteen per cent. of women and children, as shown by the census of 1880, average in the whole country $345 each per year), and the annual loss to these persons—from the lack of at least a common school education—would be fifty dollars each. This, for the whole number is two hundred ten millions of dollars per year; a sum twice as large as the entire annual expenditure for public education in the whole country. This sum—two hundred and ten million of dollars—is a clear annual loss, not only to these illiterates, but to the community, by reason of their illiteracy. Three quarters of these four millions two hundred and four thousand three hundred and sixty two of illiterate adults were in the late slave States, and their effect on the production and preservation of wealth there is shown by the last census. In ten of these States, notwithstanding their rich soil and climate, the assessed value of property in the ten years from 1870 to 1880 decreased twenty per cent., while in the State of Maine, with its universal education, notwithstanding its thin poor soil and cold climate, the wealth in the same period increased fifteen per cent., and in the State of New Hampshire, under like hard condition of life, it increased eleven per cent."

I do not believe your readers will tire of these details. Dry as the general subject is, these facts are so salient, so practically important, and, I may add, so novel (as the results of the latest statistics of the problem), that I can not think they can fail of interest, not only to educators and publicists generally, but to all good citizens, who have the public welfare at heart. Such facts afford us hope for humanity. A few generations ago the idea of common-school was unconceived; the education of the whole people undreamed of; now it is fundamental in the theory of all civilized states. It may be soberly said that it is the best solution, thus far found, of the problems of crime, pauperism and labor. "The school master is abroad," said Brougham, as a reason of hope for England; he is the hope for the civilized world; he should be multiplied into hosts until he shall mostly take the place of the armies and police of the nations. He is, as Burke said, "the best defense of nations," and, as we have shown, their best police.—Central Christian Advocate.

The papers are blowing considerably about a Georgia girl who has a magnetic touch that attracts instead of repels. If the people will cast their eyes in this direction they will find a whole territory full of northwestern angels who possess the same peculiarity. The attraction is so great that when a fellow gets his arm around one of them it is almost impossible to drive him away.—Bismark (Dak) Tribune. We once knew one that attracted her fellow over six miles every Sunday night, on foot at that.—Bermingham (Alabama) Review.

Dr. Phillips B rooks never said a truer word than when he declared that, "If we could sweep intemperance out of the country, there would hardly be poverty enough left to give healthy exercise to the charitable impulses."

Many people regard religion very much as they do small-pox. They desire to have it as light as possible, and are very careful it does not mark them.—Kansas Methodist.

A SURE THING.

Baldness is only incurable when the hair roots are dead and absorbed, which is a rare condition. In nearly all cases they are simply torpid, and can be stimulated to put forth a new growth of hair by the use of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, the only preparation that cures baldness and restores youthful color to gray hair.

Baldness Cured and Age Rejuvenated.

J. W. HAMMOND, Lake Preston, D.T., when he was but 40 years old found his hair growing gray. At 50, his hair and whiskers were entirely white. So they continued until he reached 60 years of age, when he began using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, three bottles of which sufficed to restore their original rich, dark brown color.

MRS. AUGUST VALENTINE, of Buffalo, N. Y., had become nearly bald, and though she made use of many of the so-called hair restorers, none had any effect. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR did what nothing else could do, and now the lady again has a fine head of hair, thanks entirely to it.

GEO. MAYER, Flatonia, Texas, presented an apparently hopeless case. Baldness was hereditary in his family. By the time he was 23 years old he had scarcely any hair left. One bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR started a soft, downy growth all over his scalp, and in a few months his head was covered with soft, dark and abundant hair.

Medicinal Virtues.

The rare medicinal powers, emollient, stimulative and tonic, possessed by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR enable it to cure speedily Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Tetter-sores, Dandruff, Humors of various kinds, and other diseases of the scalp liable to cause baldness. It is not a dye, contains no colorlug matter, and effects its rejuvenation of faded or gray hair simply by bringing back the vigor of youth to the roots and color glands of the hair.

The wife of DR. V. S. LOVELACE, Lovelace, Ky., had very bad Tetter Sores on her head. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR cured them.

The son of JAMES N. CARTER, Occoquan, Va., was cured of Scald-Head by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR.

HERBERT BOYD, Minneapolis, Minn., was cured by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR of intolerable Itching of the Scalp.

MRS. O. DAVENPORT, Williamstown, Vt., became entirely bald at the age of 28 and remained so 38 years, during which time she tried many hair "restorers" without success. Eventually she used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, four bottles of which covered her head with a fine growth of silky brown hair, twelve inches long.

MRS. O. O. PRESCOTT, Charlestown, Mass., had lost two-thirds of her hair, by its falling out, when she applied AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and one bottle of it caused her hair to grow out even more handsome than before it began to fall.

MRS. D. N. PARKS, Clio, Michigan, is 57 years of age, and her hair was quite gray, but one bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR restored the color it bore in youth, and she now has "as fine a head of hair as when she was but 16."

VINCENT JONES, Richmond, Ind., lost all his hair in consequence of a severe attack of brain fever. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR brought out a new growth in a few weeks, and it speedily grew long and thick.

A Toilet Luxury.

Where the hair is brittle, dry, harsh, weak, or thin, the use of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR speedily renders it pliant, soft, glossy, and stimulates it to a rich and luxurious growth: it also keeps the scalp free from dandruff, and affords a perfect assurance against the hair falling out or turning gray. No other dressing is so clean or has such a delicate and delightful perfume. Without it the toilet cannot be complete.

Ladies who have once made trial of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR never after prefer any other hair-dressing, and many of them voluntarily offer such testimonials as the following, from MISS KATE ROSS, Ingersoll, Ont., who writes:

"While keeping my head clear of Dandruff, and preventing Scald Head, it has also caused my hair to grow luxuriantly, resulting in my now possessing hair forty-two inches long, and as thick as any one could wish it."

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

THURSDAY, MAY 15, 1884.

The minutes of the sixth annual session of the Little Rock Conference, well prepared and printed, have been received.

At about 10 o'clock in the evening of April 15th, the steamship State of Florida, about 1700 miles east from New York, collided with the bark Panama, both vessels sinking within a few minutes. Out of 167 persons on the Florida only 44 were saved in boats, and from the bark's crew only the captain and two men were saved who were picked up by the boats of the Florida.

Beware of impostors! Every few months some one pretending to be a preacher, or Sunday-school worker or something of the kind, makes his appearance. We all remember one who made New Orleans his headquarters for years, and deceived many. If any strangers come among you desiring aid (as they all do) demand some inevitable evidence that he is true and worthy. Don't be satisfied with anything but the best testimonials. Forewarned, forearmed!

What We May Know.

In the early days of New England all candidates for admission into any of the Congregational Churches were carefully examined as to their knowledge of certain Bible doctrines, as set forth in the Westminster Catechism and Confession of Faith. Questions that had puzzled the brain of Edwards, Emmons and Dwight were frequently put to the uneducated men and women, and upon the correctness of their answer depended the decision of the committee whose report was to settle the question of their admittance into the church. We have frequently been told that the application of D. L. Moody to join a certain church was twice rejected because he could not give satisfactory answers to some of the questions proposed. The Youth's Companion has the following:

Among the young people in a New England village, who professed themselves Christians, was a simple minded youth of the smallest possible amount of wit consistent with moral responsibility. But being sincerely anxious to join the church, he presented himself to the church committee. The first question put to him was,—

"Do you understand the doctrine of the trinity?"

"No, I can't say I do."

"Can you give the committee a definition of regeneration?"

"I don't think I can."

"Well, what do you understand by foreordination? Take plenty of time to answer," said a kind hearted old deacon, thinking the candidate was confused.

"I don't know much about it."

"Can't you give us some opinion respecting God's decrees?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Well then," said the minister, a little impatiently, "what do you know?" Promptly came the answer,—

"I know that I'm a sinner, and I know that Christ died to save me. And I want to join the church to get more help from Christ and His people."

Every member of that committee felt rebuked, and one of them said afterwards, "I learned from that moment to respect the spiritual knowledge of the humblest man or woman, and not to think so much of that knowledge which comes from the head alone."

They did not think that men could reach a point in this life where they could look forward to death without trembling or to the judgment without dismay. Of assurance they knew little. They sang in mournful tones:

"'Tis a thing I long to know
Of, it gives me anxious thought
Do I love the Lord or no
Am I His, or am I not."

The vast majority looked upon assurance as a notion fraught with danger, having no Scriptural warrant. When Jesse Lee first went up to New England they called him a fanatic and enthusiast, said he belonged to the class who think well of themselves when God thinks ill, because he preached the witness of the spirit. He believed in assurance, that men might possibly know that their sins were forgiven them. That each believer might say with John, "We know that we have passed from death unto life."

A Generous Donation.

Edward J. Gay, Esq., of New Orleans, was informed that a portion of land sufficiently large on which to build a church and parsonage was desired by our membership at Rosedale, who have repeatedly suffered from overflows, and are in a condition of poverty. He promptly responded by letter of April 26, in which he says: "I am willing to donate for the use lot No. 5, in block C, West Rosedale, having a front of 68 feet 4 inches on Live Oak street, by a depth of 175 feet on Center street, being the corner of Live Oak and Center streets; according to plat by C. H. Dickerson, surveyor. This donation is made subject to the improvement of same by erection of a church within three years, and the lot shall not be used as a cemetary." The congregation has forwarded to Mr. Gay a letter of thanks for the gift. They say: "The prayer of this people will continually be offered to God for your continued strength; for length of years, and for increased prosperity."

An Awful Disease.

In almost every church there are one or two persons who seem to consider it their imperative duty to watch after the faults of other people, they are continually hunting for some other's imperfections. With a beam in their own eye they are carefully and diligently looking after the moth in their brother's eye, and are never so happy as when heralding abroad the faults of others. Generally these persons labor under the delusion that there are none in the church so well qualified to fill important and responsible positions as they are. They esteem themselves highly, and are surprised when they find that others do not. They are evidently afflicted with a disease known by the name "big-head," a disease said to be incurable. If we had the least faith in Darwinism we should say they sprung from the owl. Sometimes ministers have a touch of this disease. It is a common saying that when a sick person begins to pick his covering, pillow-slips or wearing apparel there is little hope of his recovery. It is true of a minister when he gets the "big-head," there is no hope of him, he is sure to go; there is no remedy for him. We suggest as a preventive a careful watching of one's own spirit. When one begins to envy his brethren, and is tempted to find fault with everybody and everything he did not originate, it is time to halt. The "big head" is near, nearer than one would expect, and the disease once really seated there is no hope for the man till he goes to the bottom. It is a sad sight to see a man die of any, but we know of nothing more painful than to see a Christian minister die of "big-head."

Editorial Correspondence.

The twenty-fourth session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church met in the Hall of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city, May 1st, Bishop Simpson, senior Bishop presiding. All the Bishops were present; of the 417 delegates elected 309 were present to answer at the first call of the roll. The religious services were conducted by Bishops Foss and Foster, assisted by Drs. Hartfield, Taylor, Vernon and Trimble. The addresses of welcome delivered by Rev. Dr. Longacre and Governor Pattison are spoken of as happily conceived, pleasantly delivered and cordially received. The responses by Bishop Bowman and Gen. Clinton B. Fisk were in the usual happy vein. We have no special reverence for relics, to some however it may be of special interest to know that the Bible used at the opening of the Conference formerly belonged to John Wesley. It was sent to Bishop Simpson by J. D. Waddy, Esq., of London, England. A good part of the morning was taken up in "drawing seats," which is done in this wise; the names of the conferences are written on paper and placed in a hat, and one by one they are taken out, no one being able to tell what conference will draw next. Of course there are some solicitude and disappointment, as every delegation desires a good seat and all cannot get them. The plan is a little perplexing to the talkers. It is a providence however which while it allows of a little intensity, it generates no bitterness. The afternoon session of the Conference was mostly occupied in the discussion of Bishop Andrews plan for the organization of the General Conference committees.

SECOND DAY.

Conference assembled at 9 o'clock Bishop Foster presiding, the opening religious services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Gregory of New York. Gen. Fisk moved to reconsider the action of the previous day, adopting Bishop Andrews' plan of organizing the General Conference committees which was carried by a vote of 191 to 141, and after a protracted debate which was cut short by a call for the previous question, the motion to adopt the plan of Bishop Andrews was lost by a vote of 160 ayes and 220 nays. The fraternal delegates from the British Wesleyan Conference were introduced by Bishop Bowman. They will be formally received by the Conference.

The committee on rules presented their report and it was ordered that it be printed in Daily Advocate. It was ordered that each delegation nominate one as a committee on boundaries, and each delegation was ordered to nominate a member of every other standing committee. The bishops were requested to appoint one of this number as the permanent chairman of the committee on boundaries. At the afternoon session Bishop Wiley presided. Dr. Benson of California conducted the religious services. A committee of two from each General Conference district was ordered upon the subject of lay representation in the annual conferences and equal lay representation in the General Conference. A committee similarly constituted was also ordered upon the question of temperance and constitutional amendment. Men will talk some times wisely and sometimes otherwise. After a long and earnest debate on the method of organizing the standing committees, all the nominations of members of the committee on Episcopacy were confirmed, and the committee retired for organization and the Conference adjourned.

THIRD DAY.

Bishop Merril presided and the opening religious services were conducted by Rev. N. Sites of the Foochow conference. The report of the committee on rules was taken up and earnestly discussed, and though the day before Bishop Foster had called the attention of the conference to the rule prohibiting expressions of approval or disapproval during debates, and asked whether it was the wish of the conference to have the rule enforced, and was immediately answered in the affirmative, still there were during this discussion frequent demonstrations of applause and dissent. No speech was more applauded than Ram Chandra Bose the delegate from South India, who always appears in the costume which a native gentleman wears on such occasions in his own country. Bro. Bose speaks English fluently as he does Urdus, Hindu and Bengalee.

Several picturesque scenes enlivened the routine proceedings and a large number of spectators listened to the speaking and seemed to enjoy the hard knots into which the Conference several times tied itself.

Sabbath, the various Methodist churches in Philadelphia were supplied with preachers from among the delegates of the General Conference. There seemed a great desire to see and hear Rev. Robert Newton Young, the Wesleyan fraternal delegate to the Conference. Mr. Young is said to be one of the most prominent Methodist preachers in England. His reputation as an orator induced multitudes to go to hear him preach, but none of those who arrived late could get seats. Those who could get into the church were kept spellbound by the force of his eloquence. He has a pleasant face, a melodious voice and an animated, impassioned manner. The matter and manner of the sermon were of great beauty and strength.

L. P. C.

Philadelphia, May 5th.

When Garabaldi was asked what he had to offer as inducement to followers, he said, "poverty, hardship, battles, wounds and—victory." Garabaldi was a successful commander and leader. His soldiers caught his enthusiasm, and through poverty, hardship, and severe battle he led them on to victory. We have need of such leaders in the church; men who will cheerfully endure hardships and submit to present loss for future gain. The fatal mistake of many people is they seek an easy way, a sort of a close covered carriage where they can ride for little or nothing, and without jolts, secure some position of honor. Of sacrifice they know nothing. There are those who prattle about work but they do nothing, just nothing. A little over a hundred years ago there were multitudes of merchants and bankers and scores of writers in Great Britain who were toiling for fame, and hundreds more were striving for solid happiness in some foolish fashion. They are all gone now and nearly all forgotten. But there was one man whose heart had been strangely warmed, and by whom all things were rigidly held in subservience to the cause and honor of the Lord Jesus. Especially all of those things that pertained to his own personal enjoyment. Personal ease and comfort were by him placed in the class of secondary considerations. Not his own profit but the profit of the many was the rule of his life and the object of his heart. Present loss for future gain was the principle that ruled him. Britain had few whose childhood and youth were more obscure, but to-day in all Christendom there is not a more conspicuous man than John Wesley. Methodism is one of the most solid structures on the globe, it will outlive the fortunes and fame which all the worldlings of Wesley's day toiled for. Methodism lives, Wesley lives to-day, and preaches every Sabbath in more than thirty thousand Christian pulpits. His works do follow him. "This world passeth away and the best thereof but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." Such a man never dies, such labor will outlast the Pyramids. It cost something to lay the foundations, but God never forgets any work and labor of love. Every faithful word, every godly act of the humblest and most obscure Christian links itself with Almighty strength and will "abide forever."

"Let me stand fourth round the cross
But highest they who win a life to some Redeem triumphs crown their toil divine
And all these triumphs, Christian, shall be mine."

Miss Clara Barton, President of the Red Cross Society of the United States, just returned from a visit of relief to overflow sufferers in the Mississippi Valley told the following to a reporter of the Evansville Journal: "One morning I looked out of my window and I saw some gaunt, lean mules in the water, reaching after the floating drift leaves. I immediately ordered the captain to round to, and on reaching the levee, I found that the mules were the property of some negroes. The poor creatures had waded into the water for the leaves. I inquired into the necessities of the little company we found there, and found what I considered a very meritorious case for assistance. They were asked if they needed, and one said: 'O, no, Miss, we ketch fish, an' we sorter git along. But dere's ole Uncle George, he do need a little meat sometimes powerful bad. If you could let him hab some meat, if it warn't more'n two pounds, it'd help him through.' I ordered a generous supply of food to the levee, while these simple-minded people were conversing with me, and there was meat in the supply, too. I appointed a distributing committee, with ther minister as chairman, and said: 'Now can I trust you to divide this food without any bad feelings among yourselves?' 'O yes, Miss. We'll act fair 'bout it, kase de Lord's sent dis here, an' we can't afford to quarrel over His good gifts.'"

Secretary Henry W. Clarke, in his annual report, announced the number of complaints and cases investigated as 2,632, as against 1,626 for the previous year. Cases were itemized as follows: Children looked after and condition remedied, 1,467, as compared with 955 the previous year; sent to charitable institutions, 251; cases of cruelty to animals, 753; parties prosecuted for cruelty, 251; amount of fines, $3,512.15; horses laid up from work, 273; removed by ambulance, 96; overloaded teams relieved, 24; teamsters reprimanded 432; abandoned animals destroyed, 187; inebriates sent to Washington Home, 8; prosecutions dismissed, 5. In the above summary it is to be noted that one case often includes two or more children or animals.

PERSONAL.

—Carl Schurz and his daughters have sailed for Germany.

—The address of Rev. E. Roberts, of Little Rock, Ark., is Ozan, Ark.

—Francis Murphy is described as the Moody of the temperance movement.

—Chas. Reade's fortune amounted to about $100,000. It all goes to his family.

—Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson's daughter Ellen is said to resemble her father closely.

—General Grant sent $550 to the fund for the proposed Confederate Home at Richmond, Va.

—Mr. J. Y. Gilmore, editor of the New Iberia Sugar Bowl, has been chosen Secretary of the Louisana Sugar Planters' Association.

—The Philadelphia Record says Bishop Merrill, of Chicago, now attending the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, looks like Daniel Webster did when he was young.

—Bishop Warren, during his recent trip to Mexico, in company with his son, Superintendent Dreer and Rev. J. M. Baker, made the ascent of Poppocatepetl, the highest mountain peak on the North American continent.

—The death of John F. Slater, who recently donated $1,000,000 for the education of the Negroes of the South, occurred at Norwich, Conn., May 7. The announcement is everywhere received with profound regret.

—President Arthur once taught school in an interior town in New York and boarded with a private family. Afterward General Garfield taught the same school, boarded with the same family, and occupied the very same room.

—On account of ill health, Miss Susan Warner has been granted six months' leave of absence, and Miss Swaney has been transferred to Puebla to take her place there, a Mexican teacher being provided for Queretaro.—Heathen Woman's Friend.

—The Czar of Russia, through the Washington minister, transmitted his portrait for the reading room of the New Orleans Bethel. The gift is highly appreciated by Chaplain Witherspoon, and especially since the work of the Bethel has been brought to the Czar's personal notice.

—The ill health of Bishop Simpson has awakened a deep sympathy in the General Conference. It had been hoped that he would improve as the Spring opened, and that he would not only be able to attend the meetings of the Bishops but also the sessions of the General Conference. But a wise Providence seems to have ordered otherwise. By a special effort he was able to be at the opening session, but has not been able to meet in conference till this morning (May 6th) when he came in and sat upon the platform for a few minutes. There seems thus far to be but slight improvement. We cannot for a moment entertain the thought that Bishop Simpson's work is done. Let earnest prayer be offered that his health may be completely restored, so that he can again take his place as a worker in the church, to the success of which he has contributed so much.

—Perhaps no man is listened to with more attention on the General Conference floor than Dr. Curry. He is one of those men who never speaks unless he has something to say. At the love feast, Sabbath, he said that while he could not, like some of his brethren, tell just when and how he was converted, he knew that he had been converted, and that was to him more important than to be able to say when it was done. For over forty years he had been in the active work of the ministry, always doing as best he could the work the church gave him to do. He had seen and associated with the fathers. They were a noble class of men, but no more devoted and consecrated than the ministry of to-day. He did not think that there was even more piety in the church than now. He did not care to bring back anything we once had, but wanted to press on to the glorious future.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK

LOUISIANA.

M. Fairfax, Gretna: "Allow me to report the condition of my charge as it was at the first quarterly conference held April 23. This is my first year, and I have done all I could for the people, and in return they have done all they could for me. We are working in harmony with all the churches here, and we need a church building. Paid pastor $24, house rent, $17.25, elder, $1."

Henry Richardson, Columbia: "I reached my charge in February. March 15th the water overflowed the land, and I gathered logs and made a camp and conducted on it a school."

The appearance of the St. Peter M. E. Church and its surroundings has been much improved by the substitution of a new board fence, neatly whitewashed, in lieu of the rickety picket fence that so long enclosed the church lot. In addition to this a new bell has been placed in the belfry, and these improvements are only the precursor of others soon to follow. Rev. Wm. Smith, the pastor of St. Peter, is a very progressive and enterprising minister, and proposes to make his church a credit to the town before his term of administration comes to a close.—Donaldsonville Chief.

T. C. Montgomery, First Street, New Orleans, reports three conversions and many at the altar. Rev. A. Rose preached on a Sunday night, and talked about conversion twenty years ago."

Geo. W. Wells, Rosedale: "Our protracted effort was crowned with the conversion of 12 souls. The whole church has been revived. The effects of the revival is not dead, for several are still seeking the pearl of great price. The high water has frustrated many of our plans. There will be a shortage in crops, sugar and cotton. The people promise to do all they can for each cause this centennial year. Rosedale will not be behind."

P. J. Hamilton, Simpson Chapel: "We have had a successful revival of the work, and added 116 to the church; 75 converts, 14 reclaimed, 27 on probation. On the 27th, on the bank of the river, 37 were baptized in the presence of thousands of people. On returning to the church Revs. W. P. Forest, S. B. Robinson and Dr. Williams assisted in services. Collection $50.00. At night I was [illegible] in the church, and [illegible] for the people. [illegible] has been paid [illegible] leaving a remainder [illegible] of $375. Pray for [illegible] success."

B. [illegible] Asbury Church [illegible] a salvation meeting, but [illegible] filled with water. [illegible] some have lost the [illegible] houses of some are three feet in water. I travel [illegible] day, the children can not meet in Sabbath-school, but [illegible] at home [illegible] were [illegible] converted. The church was being [illegible] Sunday-school teach[illegible] actively at work."

Rev. W. [illegible] Christian acknowledges the [illegible] dollars from [illegible] our Church [illegible] help is w[illegible]

H. W. [illegible], Gallatin: "Having served the [illegible] year on this circuit, the conference deemed it best to have me try [illegible], and immediately after conference instead of going to my work, which was not at that time able to give me a good support, I entered school at the Central [illegible] College, remained [illegible] visiting my people, until the 22d of March, and, much to my surprise, my people were making great preparations to receive me after my time was out at school. Our new lamps have been purchased, and prayer-[illegible] have been carried on all through the winter. I am glad to say that I was very cordially received at every church on my work. I have no cause to regret that the conference reappointed me. There has been a general reviving in the minds of my people. We have been laboring to have a new roof put on one of our houses and have, by the use of punch cards raised enough to purchase the boards, build a new pulpit, and have it whitewashed. I can say of a fact that the eye of the Lord is over those who put their trust in Him. I am determined by the grace of God to prove to my people that I am not come to tear down but to build up. I am where there is much opposition in regard to the care of children. I am often brought to ask, 'how long will ignorance and gross superstition prevail?' When I hear the Savior say "suffer little children to come unto me, and for id them not," shall I, or ought any Gospel minister close his doors against them, and say that the church of the living God is no place for them. No, not so long as I live shall I ever exclude one from the fold on account of its infancy. There are 14 to be baptized on the first Sunday in May. The presiding elder is with us, and on account of having to hold two quarterlies at once we are at present unable to give any report."

F. J. Yeargin, Pe ersburg: "There are only 40 members left. The Kansas fever caused a good many to go off. Still we are working right on. The committee has raised $25, and we have $37 in the treasury. I have been unable to raise benevolent claims yet, but will do so soon."

M. Williams: Gallatin: "Our church work has been greatly revived here since the water has passed. We commenced a revival during the month of March, closing second week in April, in which there were 10 conversions and 16 joined the church. Our presiding elder Rev. James Pickett was with us April 19 20, preaching two reviving sermons; the collections during the quarterly meeting amounted to $18.60."

TEXAS.

S. C. Coleman, Waelder: "Rev. L. Carper held meetings at Wesley Chapel and Mount Eden. At the last named place he received 18 converts. The Waelder and Peach Creek circuit is looking up."

R. Beavers, Dallas: "A storm blew down the C. M. E. Church, in which a country school of 32 children were being taught. The house fell flat, and injured 10, some internally and some externally. I learned that one was dead. Mrs. Clossy Williams, the teacher, got one of her arms hurt. A great crowd gathered them out of the ruins. There was no insurance. Our church is prospering. Our pastor, C. Young, has a protracted meeting going on. The church is so small it won't hold the people. We will try to build a new one this year."

MISSISSIPPI.

P. Blue, Enterprise: "The second quarterly conference for the Enterprise charge was held April 19 20 Elder J. Campbell in the chair, with his usual interest in the work of the church. The leaders reports were good; pastor's reports showed that 7 members had died this year, and that 9 had been received into full membership. A very pleasant session of conference we have had, and at night just before service began two young ladies, Miss Neellie Morgan and Miss Lue Buckley, came forward to the pulpit and presented a handsome Bible to the pastor, which was passed by him to the presiding elder, and by him presented to the church with very appropriate remarks. We desire to express our thanks to these young ladies and all friends who contributed to this much needed Bible."

The friendly relations between France and Morocco have been ruptured. The cause is the refusal of the authorities of Morocco to dismiss the Governor of Wazan at the demand of the French representative. The French Legation has hauled down its flag.

For the Southwestern.

Our Future Church at Forest City.

Dear Editor:—The writer being a helpmeet of her husband will in his steid (he being too busy himself) let you hear from our mission work. When we came here the latter part of Dec. 1882, we found matters very discouraging. We had no church, no parsonage nor any school of color in town. Not so now, we have a church, and when completed will be one of the nicest in town. We anticipate on completing it within a few months. We also have a day school numbering over one hundred scholars. Rev. G. N. Johnson principal, the writer and Mr. T. C. Rountree assistants. We also have a parsonage. The school was organized as a branch school to the Philander Smith College, in the conference which convened at Pine Bluff, Ark., Feb. 8th, 1884. Our membership is small, but still the prospect brighteus. Our Sabbath-school under the superintendence of Bro. J. A. Roper is doing well, having near one hundred, and yet the number increases every Sabbath. Bro. Roper is a good man, always at his post willing and ready to do his duty in both church and Sabbath school, may God soon bless our church with more such men. The future of our church was never brighter; thank the Lord, by faithful prayer, hard toil, earnest labor we can see our church getting a foothold. Yes, the dark gloomy clouds are dispersing fast, and the sun as it were sends forth her beautiful rays in our door. Our struggle here has been tremendous. Opposition awaits us on every side, and yet they do us no harm. I am in the hardest battle of my life, but God is with us and glory awaits the faithful soldier of the cross. Our first quarterly conference was held March 9-10, by Elder O. H. Smith. We had a pleasant time. The elder gave a lecture to the Sabbath-school and preached very instructive sermons, after which love feast was held. On Monday night he lectured to a crowded house on education, earnestly exhorting all to educate. The congregation so appreciated his lecture, they gave him a liberal collection to pay his expenses. He is loved here by all. Concerning our school, this school is our future church and the only hope. We have never had a more prosperouse view, every thing is just as favorable as can be. There are over 500 children within 5 miles square of this place, and again its situation is a good one. Forest City is situated at the crossing of St. L. I. W., S., M. and L. R. J. S., forty five miles from Memphis, forty four miles from Helena, ninety-six miles from Little Rock, and two hundred and ninety-six from St. Louis, with direct daily connection by railroad with all these points. It has 1,250, or 1,500 inhabitants, is the county seat and chief town of St. Francis county which, for the fertility and diversity of its soil and variety, quality, and quantity of its timber, is without a superior in the South or West. It is far above the overflow region. We do not make these statements for any merit of our own, but merely to have you know that our church and school has a grand future here, and we believe that if we get a nice school building and our church completed our work here in a few years will compare favorably with any in the State. I know you will be glad to hear that it is strictly against the law here to sell whiskey. We will do all we can to get subscribers for the Southwestern. It is the joy of my home, I would sacrifice many things rather than not have it come weekly. Pray for us.

L. J. Johnson.

The Methodist mission in South America has four missionaries, 4 assistants, 3 missionaries of the Woman's Society, 6 native workers of the Woman's Society, 9 native ordained preachers, 13 unordained preachers, 6 local preachers, 16 native teachers, 315 members, 259 probationers, and 840 children in the day, and 1,944 in the Sunday-schools.

Dedication of Hurst's Chapel.

Mr. Editor.—Last Easter Sunday is one that will be long remembered by our church following of this place, and not soon forgotten by the generous and philanthropic people of other denominations who rallied to our call on that occasion. We have been struggling long and untiringly to build a M. E. Church here, but it seemed all along that fate was against us; but, believing as we did, that there was nothing too hard for the Lord, and trusting Him for help and guidance, we have at last succeeded. Bro. Lacy arrived here Feb 1, 1883, to take charge of this work, but found no congregation nor place of worship. After a short time he succeeded in finding a little band of seven, which he organized anew, and, with this faithful few he launched out, and now has a church membership of 18, besides a nice church edifice which will compare favorably with any of the other colored churches in our little town, when it is ceiled, painted, etc.

Our much beloved and highly esteemed pastor invited several other church congregations of the town to attend the dedication services, nearly all of which responded cheerfully. Rev. J. H. Harper, of the A. M. E. Church; Revs. Brussard and R. Johnson, local preachers of the Macedonia Baptist Church, and Revs. Chas. Webster and McDonald, local preachers of Pilgrim Rest Baptist Church, and others, preached short and pointed sermons on the occasion. Rev. Geo. W. Lacy closed the services. We had a glorious time. The house was filled to its utmost capacity. The audience contributed liberally. The offering for the day was $57 55, and including what was made at a fair given on the night before, amounted to $84.40. Rev. Geo. W. Lacy is an active, earnest and thorough going worker of Christ, and we have learned to love and honor him; and now that we have a house of worship, we hope to do much more good and effectual work in the future than it was possible for us to do in the past under the circumstances.

Yours in Christ,

J. L. Jones.

A Beautiful Letter from a Noble Man.

We are permitted by Mrs. R. S. Rust, corresponding secretary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to lay before our readers the following letter from Bishop Payne, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church:

Baltimore, Md., April 29, 1884.

Mrs. Dr. Rust:

Dear Madam,—In 1881, at the Florida Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop Warren presiding, and your beloved husband present, I promised, as long as life lasts and I am able, to send you $10 annually to aid your work in my native State, South Carolina. Last year I sent $20 for 1882-3. Find, if you please, for 1884, post-office order for $10. May the Lord Jesus, our gracious Redeemer, increase the usefuluess of the association which you have the honor to represent.

Fraternally, Daniel A. Payne.

A righteous decision has just been given at Logansport. An old man eighty years of age had surrendered the deeds to his home farm to his sons, on condition that they would care for him. No sooner had they got the property in their hands, however, than they began abusing the old man and made efforts to have him sent to an asylum. The court has decided the property was obtained by fraud, and given back the farm to the mistaken father, who will now hold on to it.—Evansville Journal.

was organized. The society is historical, and the name is known far and near. Why should it be changed? Do delegates coming from the South ask for the change? Freedmen's schools are opened to every one. Freedmen are in the Church to stay, and do not intend being driven out. They have Southern haters in the South. Southern railroads and Southern Kukiux; they did not want any Southern Freedmen's Aid Society. He stated that there were schools built with the money of the Freedmen's Aid Society to which freedmen were not admitted. The matter was referred to the committee on state of the Church.

A resolution was offered that Mr. Homer C. Meacham, lay delegate from South Kansas Conference, be excused from further attendance, as he was called home to attend important lay business.

Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, opposed excusing Meacham, unless he stated that he was counsel for some murderer or other important case; it was Meacham's duty to remain to transact the business of the Church. The vote being taken Meacham was not excused.

A resolution of sympathy for Rev. Denny Osborn and wife, of South India, in their bereavement in the loss of their daughter, was adopted by a rising vote.

Rev. Dr. J. H. Caldwell, of Wilmington, offered a resolution for the removal of the third restrictive rule, which states that the jurisdiction of missionary bishops shall be limited to their respective missions. He thought the bishop in one country should be bishop all over the world; once a bishop, always a bishop. Cries of "No, no." Rev. Dr. Caldwell—"Very well; I won't insist on that point." The resolution was referred to the committee on judiciary.

Rev. Dr. Lanahan, of Baltimore, offered a resolution that the Board of Bishops be requested to inform the conference how many new bishops were requisite to carry on the work of the Church. Adopted and adjourned.

EIGHTH DAY.

The Conference assembled, Bishop Bowman in the chair. Rev. Dr. Coxe, of Iowa, conducted the devotional exercises.

Bishop Harris announced that it is the judgment of the Board of Bishops that the election of three additional bishops will adequately provide for the requirements of the episcopal office.

Rev. Dr. Carter, of the Church South, was introduced.

The standing committee on missions reported, recommending the fixing of an episcopal residence in Europe and India. A delegate moved its reference to the committee on episcopacy.

Ram Chandra Bose, lay delegate from North India, moved that further consideration of the matter be postponed until Monday.

Rev. D. Alfred Wheeler, of Erie read the minority report, to the effect that resident bishops of India and Europe were not demanded by the interests of the church. He moved its reference to the committee on episcopacy. Ruled out of order.

Dr. Wheeler moved it as a substitute, but was ruled out of order.

Dr. Wheeler maintained that the project appeared to be to establish a residence with permanent occupation. The third restrictive rule forbids destroying the plan of general superintendency. This would result in the diocesean episcopacy. The bishops have greater oversight of missionary conferences than over the annual conferences. They remain only about a week at the annual conference, but many months are spent with foreighn missions.

Dr. Buckley, of New York, said Dr. Wheeler's argument seemed to be as to the constitutionality and expediency of the proposed action, declined to discuss the expediency, but was decidedly of the opinion that it was constitutional. The Methodist Episcopal Church exists as much to-day in China, Siberia and Japan, as in Baltimore and Philadelphia.

The report was referred to the committee on episcopacy.

The committee on the judiciary reported under the third restrictive rule that the General Conference has power to appoint a missionary bishop or superintendent for any foreign missions, limiting jurisdiction to the same, and with the exception of that all our bishops shall be equal in authority and jurisdiction and subject to the same assignments and work.

It is the opinion of the committee that the General Conference has power to fix the residence of all bishops in any part of the country occupied by the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The report was adopted with one amendment by Rev. Dr. Curry, of New York, that the words "other than missionary bishops" be added, so it should read "all our bishops, other than missionary bishops, shall be equal in authority," etc.

Ex-Gov. Evans, of Colorado, offered a resolution that book agents be requested to furnish the conference a detailed statement of officers and employes of each book concern East and West, the duties performed, salaries paid, etc., during the past quadrennium. The main object sought to be accomplished was to consolidate the two concerns.

Amos Shinkle, of Kentucky, did not believe the work proposed could be accomplished within less than thirty days.

Rev. Dr. Monroe, secretary of the General Conference, said if the delegates studied the phraseology of the resolution they would see the impracticability of the work being done in a short time.

Ex-Gov. Evans said his desire was to see how much money could be saved by consolidation.

After debate, Ex-Gov. Evans withdrew his resolution for the present, with the understanding that he would offer it again modified.

A resolution was adopted that any one absenting himself from the daily sessions of the Conference without excuse be considered as having forfeited all claims of traveling and other personal expenses.

Adjourned.

HOMINY BALLS.—These are made light, spongy, and soft enough for toothless persons by mixing with cold mush of any kind sufficient meal to form a soft dough; then rolled to the size of the thumb, and baked in a hot oven twenty or thirty minutes. A few English currants may be added to render them more palatable.

KITCHEN NOTES.—When eggs are near and high, use a tablespoonful of corn starch for each egg required and try the effects. Wash pantry shelves with hot alum and water to rid them of ants, water bugs and other troublesome insects. Zinc can be brightened by rubbing it with kerosene oil, but it is much better to have it painted, as this will save much labor. Stoves blackened when entirely cold will look the clean look a great deal longer than when they are polished when the stove is warm. Hominy chips are good for breakfast. Cut cold hominy in nice, even strips, half an inch think, dip them in flour and fry them delicately brown. A leg of lamb, from which the centre has been cut for one dinner, may be presentable for a second, by filling the vacant space with nicely mashed and seasoned potato, so shaped that the leg appears whole again. It should be browned slightly in a quick oven, basting with a little butter.

TURNIPS.—Wash, peel, cut in thin slices across the grain, and put in a kettle, with as little water as possible; boil them half to three-quarters of an hour, or until you can easily pierce them with a fork. Drain well, season with salt, pepper and butter; mash fine and return to stove, stirring frequently, if water is all dried out. Turnips, when cooked quickly, may be steamed, and the water poured out through a cloth, mashed.

CUCUMBERS AND OLIVES.—To one tablespoonful of cold water, add the beaten yolk of one egg, one teaspoonful of salt, one of sugar, one of mustard, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, and a little pepper over night. The above quantity will do for a small family. Nothing is required.

Beat the white of eggs quickly with a pinch of salt. Salt cools, and the sooner the eggs the quicker will froth.

For chapped hands, there is no remedy better than equal parts of glycerine and cologne. Mix well, and with soft water and soap wash the hands well, two or three times a day, and rub in a little cold cream.

GARDEN SALAD.—Whatever vegetables are in season, cooked and tender, cheese for a soup, in delicate proportions, green peas, new potatoes, beets, lima beans—these, together or separate, are delicious. Boil in salted water, drain, and place in a salad-bowl. Make a salad dressing with beaten raw yolk of egg, a little salt, one of cayenne, one of mustard, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, and a tablespoonful of cream over night. Add the vinegar slowly, and will be as delicious as oil.

DRIED APPLE FRUIT CAKE.—Soak three cupfuls of dried apples over night in warm water; in the morning chop them slightly and then simmer them two hours in two cupfuls of molasses. Add two eggs, one cup of sugar, one cup of milk, three quarters of a cupful of butter, one and a half teaspoonfuls of soda, flour enough to make rather stiff batter. Spice to suit the taste, and then bake in a quick oven.

CHICKEN BROTH.—Clean half a chicken and remove the skin; pour on it a quart of water, and salt to taste, add a tablespoonful of rice, and boil slowly for two or three hours; skim well, and add a little parsley.

THE INNER CALL.

Calm me, my God, and keep me calm,
While these hot breezes blow,
Be like the night dew's cooling balm
Upon earth's fevered brow.

Calm me, my God, and keep me calm,
Soft resting on thy breast,
Soothe me with holy hymn and psalm,
And bid my spirit rest.

Calm me, my God, and keep me calm,
Let Thine outstretched wing
Be like the shade of Elim's palm
Beside her desert spring.

Yes, keep me calm, though loud and rude
The sounds my ear that greet,
Calm in the closest solitude,
Calm in the bustling street

Calm in the hour of buoyant health,
Calm in my hour of pain,
Calm in my poverty of wealth,
Calm in my loss or gain.

Calm in the sufferance of wrong
Like him who bore my shame,
Calm 'mid the threatening, taunting throng,
Who hate Thy holy Name.

Calm when the great world's news with power
My listening spirit stir;
Let not the tidings of the hour
Her sad too fond an ear.

Calm as the rays of sun or star
When storms assail in vain,
Moving unrattled through earth's war,
The eternal calm to gain.

Liquor and Crime.

In 1881 in New York there were 69,351 criminals arrested, of whom 51,007 were males, and 18,574 were females. Of the males, 13,556 were arrested for intoxication, and an additional 5,439 for being drunk and disorderly. Of the females, 6,851 were arrested for intoxication, and an additional 2,623 for being drunk and disorderly, making the total number of inebriates arrested 28,481, which is more than two-fifths of the whole number of arrests.

Besides the number arrested, there were 120,663 indigent persons lodged in the station-houses; more than 35 per cent. of whom were compelled to seek lodgings there by reason, directly or indirectly, of the liquor traffic. The males then seeking lodgings numbered 57,905; the females, 92,778. This is a number equal to one-twelfth the entire population of the city.

The cost of maintaining the police force for the purpose of attempting to "cure" what should be "prevented" was $280,053.

The cost of the various courts made necessary by reason of the traffic in liquor, in New York City alone, reached the sum of $2,000,000 in 1881.

The expenditure of the Department of Public Charities and Correction for 1879 amounted to $1,262,618, over ninety per cent. of which expense was made necessary by reason of the traffic in liquors.

There are 8,034 whiskey-shops in New York City, the keepers of which have certified that they are of good, moral character. Of these, 2,004 have served their time in various State prisons; 2,665 have been confined in county prisons; 1,759 have been "cooled off" in the station houses; leaving 1,616 of the number who have thus far been able to elude the vigilance of the police.

The liquor shops of New York City, if placed side by side, would completely line both sides of a street extending from the Battery to King's Bridge.

Those that can look with dry and undispleased eyes upon another's sin never truly mourned for their own. It is a godless heart that doth not find itself concerned in God's quarrel; and that can laugh at that which the God of heaven frowns at.

Ethel's Book of Remembrance.

Once on a time a friend wrote me that he had more children at his house all summer than he could possible "shake a stick at." Now I had not had so many at that; for although the house was pretty full some days, I could shake a stick at them all, if I wished. And I did it occasionally, when they were very noisy indeed; only I was in fun, and they all knew it, and therefore did not stop. At last, I said one day "Do keep quiet, children, and let me hear myself think."

"Oh, yes," said Charlie, "if you will only think aloud, and let us hear you too."

And his sister Gertie added "Yes, and please think of the little Ethel that you used to tell us stories about."

"Little Ethel, indeed!" replied I, "Why she is seventeen years old, and being a High School senior, will not thank you for calling her little. However, if you will keep quiet, I will let you hear me think aloud about Ethel's Book of Remembrance.

And this is the story I told them:

"When Ethel was about twelve years old, she used to run into our house very often, and tell us about her schoolmates. But somehow she got to telling the unpleasant things which they would not like to have repeated; and we began to hear who had missed, who had been punished, or who had been cross, stupid, mean and hateful, until I said at last, 'Suppose you turn to the next chapter and tell me just as many good things about these boys and girls.'

"'I don't remember these half so well,' she answered quickly.

"'If that is the case,' I replied, 'you have a very poor memory, and the next time I go to Boston I'll buy you a new one.

"And a day or two after that conversation, I bought at Ward and Gay's a blank book, with red covers, on the outside of which I got somebody to print in gilt letters Ethel's Book of Remembrance; and this, together with two bottles of ink, I gave the young girl. 'There's your new memory,' said I. "Fill it up with stories about classmates, if you wish.'

"'But what's the use of two bottles of ink?'

"'O I want you to write the good things they say or do in red ink, and the other things in blue ink; and be as careful to put down all the good as all the bad.'

"She promised; and to my surprise, the new book came back in the course of a week, with simply these words on the wrapper, 'All full.' That was harvest concert night; and the book was put away in my desk, where it lay untouched until the next Christmas eve. Then I opened it while Ethel was with me, and found about two-thirds of the pages filled with red ink items, which showed how many good things she had recorded—a long list of kind words and generous deeds, which I read aloud as she sat quietly on a cricket by the open fire. 'That's the end of the red passages,' said I, as I finished, 'and now for the blue ones, which will tell me how stupid and hateful those same children can be!"

"'No, no! don't read those,' she cried. 'I am ashamed to have you see them, and I wish I hadn't written them down. Give me the book, please, without reading the rest.'

"So I handed to her with a smile, and watched her great astonishment at finding one-third of the book blank; for the blue ink, which recorded the unpleasant items, had entirely faded out, and left the pages almost as white as they were when I bought the book.

"'Why,' she exclaimed, 'what does it mean?'

"'Only that I had the ink made expressly for you. It is called fault-finder's ink, and fades out in a few days. If you must write down all those unpleasant items, be very sure and use this kind of ink; and you cannot get your bottle filled up again, use water, and it will answer every purpose."

"Soon after that Christmas, Ethel moved to another town, and I did not see her until I went west last year. She showed me the lettle red book and said she really did get a new memory when she received that present. And I think she did. For, when I asked her about the high school girls, she told me how pretty this one was, and how smart that one, and the third was so good, and a fourth was so obliging, until I finally inquired if they were all perfect, and had not a single fault. That brought the old times back to her very strongly, and she blushed a great deal, as she replied:

"'The blue ink that you gave me faded out so quickly that I did not think it paid to write the faults down on my memory at all. So I looked for everybody's best things, and wrote those only in my new Book of Remembrance.'"—Christian Register.

The Joy of Decision.

"Do you dance?" we asked a young miss.

"I do not dance now," she said, "I have given it up. For a long time I danced. My conscience opposed it. My mother disapproved it. Becoming a Christian, I found that I could not conscientiously engage in it."

In a later conversation on the same subject, when the decision of some other ladies to dance no more was reported at the family circle, the same young lady remarked:

"I am glad to hear that. There is such pleasure in a fixed decision. I enjoy the right so much more when I have finally and positively decided in favor of it."

In wavering is utter unrest. Indecision is a thorn in the pillow. When the will does not assert itself as intellect and conscience direct, clouds gather over the soul and sorrow smites.

He is the happiest who makes up his mind, puts his foot firmly down, dismisses forever any possibility of going back to his own practice, and walks forward with the self respect which always comes from the consciousness of decisive action.—Sunday-School Journal.

"Ella, is your father at home?" said a bashful lover to his sweetheart. "I want to propose something to him." "No, Clarence; papa is not at home, but I am. Couldn't you propose to me just as well?" And he did, with perfect success.

Convinced Beyond A Doubt.

The editor of the Bridgeport, Conn., Eagle, (Mr. A Cheny,) gives the following emphatic testimoy:

"I have waited to satisfy myself that the cure would be permanent, and I am convinced beyond a doubt. I am free to say that without the Oxygen I should have been hundreds of dollars 'poorer off' to-day in consequence of not being able to attend to business. When I commenced its use I was completely run down, my stomach being in a wretched condition. After a faithful course of the Oxygen, I am as hearty, strong, and vigorous as I ever was in my life. I feel like 'a new man,' all owing to the Compound Oxygen, which deserves all the praise I can bestow."

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address Drs. MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother and two sisters. Mother was Sarah Jane, sisters Ella and Belle. We belonged to John Johnson who brought us from Missouri to Texas. I left them in Johnson county, Texas. Johnson sold me to a Mr. Varnell. Address me at Ross Station, McLennan, county.

MR. EDITOR—Please inform Mr. Anthony Grifuln, No. 50 Jefferson street, Topeka, Kansas, that one Isam Davenport died in Okolona, Choctaw county, Miss., so I learn, but I know not when.

B. L. NEVILS.

MR. EDITOR—I am under so many kind obligations to you for your trouble and my joy at finding my long lost brother. He has addressed me, and is in Texas. He read his name and my address. God bless the labors of your paper.

JOHN H. COPPAGE.

Tullahoma, Tenn.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my brothers, John and Peyton, and mother, Sallie, all by the surname Tucker. We belonged to Wm. Tucker, in Amherst county, Virginia. I have not seen them in 36 or 37 years. My father was named Peyto, and belonged to a Mr. Elliott, in Lynchburg, Va., who owned a tobacco factory. Uncles were Jack and Merchant. I had an uncle by the name of Monroe, he was a leech doctor. I do not know who they belonged to, nor their occupation. Wm. Tucker sold my mother and brother Peyton to the speculators before he did me; left me and brother John at home. The last I heard of her she was on the steamboat going to Richmond, Va., to the speculator's yard. I left brother John with my old master, Wm. Tucker, or with his daughter, in Virginia. I left them when I was 10 years old.

ALFRED DOWD.

Oxford, Miss.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for two friends I left in New Orleans in June, 1880, on Carondelet street, I have forgotten the number. Their names were Dempsey Pearson and his wife, Fanny Pearson. Address me at Bunkie, P. O., Avoyelles parish, La.

S. L. FARRIS.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for some of my people, Charles Evans and his wife Cealia. In 1855 we left them in Texas. We belonged to Col. Evans, and were brought here by D. Rhodes. My mother was Vina Daucia, father Allen Daucia. Read this ont in churches in Texas. Address me at Cheneyville, Rapides parish, La.

PEEER DAUCIA.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother's people, whom she left in Norfolk, Va. Her mother's name was Betsy Ridley; her father Thomas Moseley; sisters, Lizzie, Georgana; brother, William. She was sold from Ridley to Ruskin, and he sold me to a negro trader by the name of Mr. Hall. I left them in 1850 or '51, and was brought to Mississippi, and I have not heard from them since. My name at that time was Katie Ridley. I now go by the name of Catherine Strong. Address me at Aberdeen, Miss., care of W. T. Strong.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to know the whereabouts of my kindred. I left them in Madison county, Miss., when quite small. My father's name was Dave Montgomery, and mother's name was Nancy Montgomery. I had only one brother and two sisters; oldest one was named Hester, and the younger Laura; all went in the name of Mr. Charles Montgomery, who lived in Madison county in the time of the war. Address me at Durant, Miss., care of Mr. J. Fullilove.

ROBT. MONTGOMERY.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to inquire for my three brothers, Albert, Logan and Jordan. We belonged to Mr. Houston, near Danville and Sandford, Ky. I was a child four years old when brought from there by James Cole, a son-in-law of old Sam Houston. He had been married twice, and both wives were named Betty. He had three children. My father and mother are dead; father was Anderson; mother fainted, fell into the fire and was burned to death. Albert was sold before I left. Logan was sold too. I heard that Jordan remained with old Sam Houston. My name was Margaret Ann, but I was called Peggie. I came to Texas with Cole, who sold me to Bledsoe, he sold me to Crekendoll, he sold me to McKay, and the war found me with him. I am married. Address me at Davilla, Texas.

Imitations and counterfeits have again appeared. Be sure that the word "Horsford's" is on the wrapper. None are genuine without it.

A boy astonisheg his Christian mother by asking for a dollar to buy a share in a raffle for a silver watch that was to be raffled off in a beer-saloon. His mother was horrified, and rebuked him. "But," said he, "mother, did you not bake a cake with a ring in it, to be raffled off in the Sunday-school fair?" "O, my son," said she, "that was for the Church." "But if it was wrong," said the boy, "would doing it for the Church make it right? Would it be right for me to steal money to put in the collection? And if it is right for the Church, is it not right for me to get this watch if I can?" The good woman was speechless, and no person can answer the boy's argument. The practices are both wrong or they are both right.

If your mind is well stored with general and varied knowledge, say some, you will be able to speak, or to teach, on any subject within your range of knowledge, at a moment's notice. This implies a bit of advice which no good teacher ought to follow. However much you may know, in general, on the subject of next Sunday's lesson, your teaching of it will lack power and will lack adaptation, unless you have made special preparation for it, in view of the particular needs of your class, and of the several scholars in your class.—*S. Sir Samuel Baker, in a letter, refers to Gen. Gordon's appeal to the millionaires of England and America. The Crump Label Company of Montclair, N. The notification is in the form of a copy of resolutions adopted last Wednesday by the directors of the company. One [illegible] said. "We employ [illegible] hands and the [illegible] an half a dozen of [illegible] have not signed the [illegible] pledge. Some of the [illegible] makers. When the [illegible] temperance awakening [illegible] air, and our men [illegible] influence, we felt [illegible] company ought to [illegible] too. A company can't take the pledge, but this company could show its desire to be with the men by refusing to work for the liquor trade. So the President, Samuel Crump, promised for the company that no more work of that kind should be taken. We have been making for one liquor firm about 10,000,000 labels a year. About $20,000 worth of business a year is what this decision will cost the company."

How He Become an Abolitionist.

Hon. Richard J. Oglesby told the following touching story a few days since to a visitor at his home in Lincoln, Illinois:

"How was it, Governor," queried the visitor, "that you, a Kentuckian, became such a confirmed abolitionist?"

"Well, for many reasons, but one of the principal ones came from a negro man called 'Uncle Tim.' He was a slave who had descended from my grand-father to my father, and was the only one in the family. My father died when I was a small boy, and we became embarrassed, and in order to divide up what little there was left 'Uncle Tim' had to be sold. I well remember him as he stood upon a box to be ready for the sale. He was a powerful man, far above the average height, with a manly bearing, a fine face, and a skin as black as ebony. He had always been very fond of us children, and I thought almost as much of him as if he had been my own father.

"As he stood waiting he implored, with tears streaming from his eyes a brother of my father to buy him. That was impossible, and, observing his dejection and surmising its cause, I said:"

"'Uncle Tim,' I am going to work to earn money, and when I get enough I will buy you and set you free."

"His face lighted up with pride and pleasure as I said this, but which was immediately followed by a look of despair. He came down, lifted me up in his arms, and said sadly: 'Thanks, Marse Dick, you are a pore orphan and won't never be rich enough to buy Uncle Tim.' He was sold, and being past his prime only brought some $400."

"I moved to Illinois in time; I struggled; I went back to Kentucky and grew no richer. I used to see Uncle Tim occasionally, and I always assured him that some day I would buy him. He always seemed to listen to me gratefully, but apparently had no hope of my success. In 1849 I went to California, and after much effort I made a few thousand dollars, and then returned to the states. The first thing I did was to fulfill my promise. I sent the money to my brother, and Uncle Tim was purchased."

"I was standing in front of the porch of my brother's house some days later when Uncle Tim came ont of a piece of woods a little distance away and approached along a pathway. It was a striking picture—such as I never before or since have witnessed. He was a giant in stature; his abundant gray hair was throne back on his shoulders, his face was livid and ashen, reminding one of Moses by Michael Angelo. His countenance was aglow"—and here Oglesby rose to his feet, and with expanded chest brought his upraised arm down with the sweep of a sledge-hammer, and continued—"and shone as if lighted by the very presence of the Holy Ghost. When he caught sight of me he stopped, threw back his head, raised his arms far above him, and exclaimed: 'My God! my God! has the little orphan boy lived to buy and set me free!'"

"Then he put his arms about me and tried to lift me as in the old days, but he had grown too weak, and I had grown too large. "You can't lift me any more, Uncle Tim,' I said. He answered in a sad tone and then with an exalting tone he shouted, as he turned his face towards the sky, 'Hallelujah! Hallelujah! I'se free!'"

The editor of the Boston Journal of Chemistry, J. R. Nichols, M.D., an eminent scientific authority, in a recent article takes the advanced position that alcoholic liquors are no longer needed in medicine or the arts, that if the natural vinous fermentative process should cease, and the art of distillation become a lost art, not a life would be sacrificed in consequence, not a case of disease would be retarded in the process of cure, not a pain would be aggravated, and not one of the art products suffer detriment.

Grass for the Legislature.

Gov. Robinson sent the following letter yesterday to President Bruce, of the Senate:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
BOSTON, April 11, 1884.

The Hon. George A. Bruce, President of the Senate:

MY DEAR SIR: I have the honor to call your attention to the following clipping:

"President Bruce, of the Senate, who was the next speaker, said, in reply to the Governor's fears of a long session: 'Before the grass is two inches high on the green in front of the State-house yon will see the members of the Legislatnre scattered all over Massachusetts, and at 10 o'clock on any day after that yon will see the lonesomest man in the State ascending those stone steps with no one to greet him bnt a private clerk and the messenger.'"

You will recognize the above as a sentiment expressed by yonrself on the afternoon of March 8, in a speech before the New-England Club. I beg to inclose to you herewith some specimens of the grass, gathered at random this morning on the State House lawns, as they fell before the mower's keen blade. Yon will find a considerable part of the grass full six inches in length. Inviting yon to join me in reflection npon these circnmstances, I remain yours very truly.

GEORGE D. ROBINSON.

Hysteria and Nervous Prostration.

We give our readers an extract from a cheerful letter, written by Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, of Richmond, Ind., who says: "Samaritan Nervine cured me of hysteria and nervous prostration." Comment is useless.

The preliminaries of the Egyptian conference have been settled. The conference will meet in London the first week in June and is expected to last three weeks.

The prosperity of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Salt Lake City exceeds that of any period in its history. The finances are in excellen, condition, all the current expenses being met promptly, and the amount apportioned to pastor provided for in advance. This condition shows the able management of the board, as well as the deep interest of the members and friends of the church. Socially the church was never in a better condition.—Utah Christian Advocate.

Indulgence and Sucesses.

Whether over eating or drinking are made harmles by using Hon Bitters freely, giving elegant appetite and enjoyment by using them before and removing all dullness, pains and distress afterwards, leaving the head clear, nerves steady, and all the feelings buoyant, elastic and more happy than before. The pleasing effects of a Christian or sumptuous dinner continuing days afterwards.

Eminent Testimony.

N. Y. Witness, Aug. 15, 1880.

"I find that in addition to the pure spirits contained in their composition, they contain the extracts of hops and other well-known and highly approved medicinal roots, leaves and tinctures in quantities sufficient to render the article what the makers claim it to be, te-wit, a medicinal preparation and not a beverage—unfit and unsafe to be used except as a medicine.

"From a careful analysis of their formula—which was attested under oath—I find that in every wine-glassful of Hop Bitters, the active medicinal properties aside from the distilled spirits are equal to a full dose for an adult, which fact in my opinion, subjects it to an internal revenue tax as a medicinal bitter."

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complant and rheumatism. Since then I have been unble to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water. All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave.

J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct, 1, '81.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost, I know it." THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON VII. May 18, THE UPROAR AT EPHESUS. (Acts xix, 24-34, 1, 2.)

1. The power of money arrayed against the Gospel. The temperance movement which is an important part of Gospel work, affords a striking illustration of the same.

2. The cunning of a demagogue. Demetrius veiled his selfishness somewhat, by giving it the air of zeal for the popular religion. Corrupt politicians veil their designs upon the spoils of office in the righteous garb of patriotism.

3. An epidemic of fanaticism. The greater part of the crowd know not wherefore they were collected, nor why they shouted; but they responded and kept up the clamor from the same. Riots are alike in every age of the world.

4. An undesigned testimony to the immense influence of Paul. Asiarchs were his friends at court. When the occasion arrived they realized it. No doubt every unfaithful preacher has secret friends, who would stand by him upon occasion. It is encouraging to think of.

5. The majesty and authority of law. It was respected in the person of the clerk, as it would not have been had he been a person in private life. The people know the value of a strong government, mostly fear an effective administration of law.—Western.

We say "a word to the wise is sufficient," but we think it takes about five bottles of Bull's Cough Syrup." You can get the article in any drug store for twenty-five cents. Physicians recommend it.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Louisa Gibson, died at Natchitoches, La., May 1st, 1884. Age 85 years.

Sister Elizabeth McCarta departed this life, Jan. 10th, 1884. Sister Eliza Pairie April 6th. Both in the triumph of faith.

P. BLUE.

Enterprise, Miss.

Ella Yates, aged 12 years and 19 days, daughter of Sister Jane Yates, died March 23; and on March 30th her little sister passed away. The mother is a faithful member of our church. J. L. MASSEY.

Marion, Tennessee.

Sister Shelton, a faithful member of the church, died March 27. She was happy in the belief that she would cross over Jordan. She leaves five children. Bro. Mark Harris, died March 27, aged 26 years leaving a wife and two children. Little Frank Ovelton died March 11, the mourning parents have our sympathy. Edward Allen, a faithful member died Jan. 15 leaving a wife and children.

H. DICKSON.

Columbia, Texas.

Death has deprived us of another useful member and class leader of No. 6 class. Just four months ago from this day she lost her leader from among her ranks; now to-day we are called upon to lay all that remains away of Bro. William Henry Harrison, who was a promising man in God's Zion; he told us in speaking meeting that he would not be here long but looks deceived us. He passed away Sunday April 27th; one hour after we left his bedside he was a speechless but we have great consolation in perusing the blessed Book. He lived a Christian and we must believe he died one. He leaves a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss besides a wife, several children and grand children. "Well done thou good and faithful servant come up." H. J. W.

Natchitoches, La., April 28th, 1884.

On the morning of April 26, the death angel came to summons our beloved Sister Jennie Adams to meet her God. She died in the triumph of faith. Her two children filled her thoughts near the last moment and she requested her husband, Mr. Dan Adams, to lead them up the highway. She was a member of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church for five years, a devoted wife and a true Methodist. She did not hide the talents God gave her. Her funeral Will be preached by Rev. Peter Morgan of Galveston, assisted by Revs. R. Weaver, of Jacksonville, and V. M. Cole, of Palestine, on June 22d.

Sister Mary Washington, of First Street M. E. Church, New Orleans, died April 28, after much suffering.

In Beaumont, Texas, Mr. Lee Floy departed this life Sunday, 20th. Mr. Alex. Black died on the 21st. Neither were members of the church. They leave many friends and relatives to mourn their loss.

Fits Cured Six Years Ago.

NEW BOOKS.

At Home with Miss. Streator. By Pansy, Boston; D. Lothrop & Co.

A beautiful story, 40 pages, neat paper cover, by an experienced writer for children.

"Messrs. Wood, Taber & Morse, of Eaton, Madison county, N. Y., were pioneers in the manufacture of Agricultural Engines in this country, having been one of the first firms to engage in it. Their portable Engines have won a national reputation for perfection of principle, finish and durability, and hundreds of them are annually shipped to Foreign countries."

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A series of especially valuable articles on educational subjects will begin in the June Century with a discussion by President Eliot, of Harvard, of "What is a Liberal Education." The July number of The Century will have an exhaustive paper by ex-President Woolsey, of Yale, on the much mooted subject of Honorary Degrees." Other articles will follow these on the study of Greek, on Co-education, and on "The Collegiate Study of Women." This last paper is by Mr. Arthur Gilman, of Cambridge, the manager of the Harvard Annex for women.

Washington Gladden will contributs an article to the June Century on the "Use and Abuse of Parties." Dr. Gladden holds that parties are necessary to all constitutional governments being based on the progressive and conservative tendencies of human nature. While claiming that the "dearth of principles and the strife for patronage are characteristic facts of our recent political life," he comes to the conclusion that—at least outside the cities—more of good can be accomplished by joining one party or another, working earnestly for its success, and beating bad nominations.

The late A. F. Bellows excelled in landscape, and the value of his productions has doubled since his lamented death last year. Four charming lanascapes from his brush are among Prang's forthcoming publications. They are in his happiest manner, with the tender poetic treatment that especially distingnished his work. Essential y American in feeling, his choice of snbjects was always of qniet home scenes, and he is without a riyal in the delineation of landscape, seeking his theme among quiet meadows and in pastoral districts, in preference to the wilder mountain views which tempt so many of onr American artists.

The Musical Herald for May has an invocation for Decoration Day, set to Mnsic; also "Gloria in Excelsis," by W. F. Sherwin. Price 10c. Boston, Mass.

The Sidereal Messenger for May contains editorial observations on the planet Saturn, and a paper on the great Comet of 1882, with others of interest. Northfield, Minn.

The May Wide Awake has a charming frontispiece from a paiating, representing a pretty young romp masquerading in the attic; this, and a fine engraving from a French painting, from the illustrations for Margaret Sidney's story of "Gladys," a school girl Ginevra. Another excellent short story, more especially for the boys, is by Hope Ledyard, a true one of a plucky boy, entitled "The President's Page," in which President Lincoln is one of the characters. Still another is that of "The Last Tale of Charles Perrault;" it is a true accunt of one of the romantic adventures of the widowed queen of Charles I. of England. As interesting as any story, is the history of "A Yonng Antiqnarian and His Society," by Amanda B. Harris; and in the C. Y. F. R. U. Readings Mrs. Bolton furnishes the biography of another poor boy, which is equally romantic and inspiring—that of Elias Howe of sewing machine fame. $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

The Season with the fashions for June, and patterns for needle work has arrived from the International News Co., New York. Price 30c.

The Pacific Christian Advocate, a journal of our church, published at Portland, Oregon, has been greatly improved by a new dress of type.

In Selma, Ala., $6,000 have been raised in cash within the past month for the sole purpose of improving streets and a great deal has already been spent to that end.

Gen. Leon Guzman, formerly Mexican minister to the United States died in Moriterey, May 3. Gov. Fernandez goes to Paris as Mexican minister.

Owing to the discovery at Moscow of a plot to assassinate the Czar the festivities in honor of coming of age of the Czarevitch will be held at St. Petersburg.

The General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, including delegates from Africa and Hayti, assembled in Baltimore, May 5. The body comprises nearly 300 members.

The Pope is preparing another note to the powers protesting against the decision of the Italian Court of Cassation in favor of converting the property of the Propaganda into rentes.

A gale at Burlington, Vt., created mountainous waves which swept away 700 feet of the breakwater, wrecked all the piers at the north end of the harbor, and created damage amounting to $100,000.

Four bandits, in broad daylight robbed a bank in Medicine Lodge, Kan., April 30, first shooting and instantly killing the cashier. Two of the robbers remained outside, shooting to intimidate citizens while the other two were inside. The citizens rallied, began firing in turn, put the four to flight, followed them, and at last captured them. One was shot and the other three hanged.

Some of the leading members of the Methodist New Connexion have expressed their dissatisfaction over the article "Methodism" in the Encyclopædia Britannica. It is understood to have been written by Dr. Rigg, and has been generally spoken of in the highest terms. They declare that his statements in regard to Mr. Kilham, the reputed founder of the "Connexion," are neither correct nor impartial.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

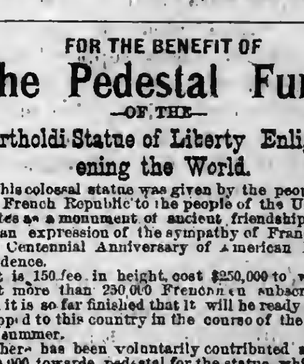
It is 150 fee. in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 230,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard steelengraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:



Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	28x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

The General Conference is proceeding steadily with its work, and reports of its labors are satisfactory.

There has been a great downfall of stock gamblers in New York, which renders it possible to enforce the saying that honesty in business is the best policy.

The Columbus district conference, North Mississippi, Methodist Episcopal Church South, adopted a resolution requesting the board of management of the World's Exposition to close its grounds on Sunday.

A bill to restore General Grant to the rank and pay passed the Senate, April 28th, by a vote of 32 yeas to 16 nays, only one dissenting vote from the West, of Missouri. S. S. Cox, of New York, introduced a bill to the same purpose in the House. The London Times alluded to the great sympathy for Gen. Grant in his recent financial reverses, and says that feeling of sympathy extends beyond the boundaries of friends and countrymen to every quarter.

E. E. Cooper, Oakland: "When we returned from conference we met many smiling faces. The people were glad to have us back. Everything has been moving on nicely all the year. We have just closed a protracted meeting at Brown's Chapel, with 11 conversions and 16 accessions to the church. Our esteemed presiding elder, Rev. P. M. Carmichael, was with us, and in connection with the quarterly conference dedicated the above named church April 23. In this sermon he won the hearts of all who heard him. It was a grand day, because, first, we were out of debt; second, because we had a new house to worship in. We were glad to hear the elder express himself as being well pleased with the people for the work that they had accomplished. We started to build last year, the crops failed, so we applied for help. While we were waiting and expecting help we received a letter from the Secretary of the Conference Board that the money for this district had been let out, therefore we could not get any. As we wanted to give the house to the Lord free of debt, we went to work, old and young, even the little children (some of them gave a dollar). Many of our white friends helped us until the house reached completion. By special invitation we visited Prof. J. A. Isaac's exhibition at Independent, a point on this circuit. It was a grand success. The trustees and people expressed themselves as being well pleased with him as a teacher. The school here, under Prof. [illegible] N. H. Church, I entered upon the same on the 28th of June last, so I am now on my second year's work, and am proud to say that everything looks promising. Our district conference convened here the latter part of March; our number in attendance was quite small, owing to some misunderstanding; nevertheless we had a good time. The Christian people spared no pains in making the brethren comfortable. Elder J. C. Eckles preached a very impressive sermon, on Sunday, to a large and attentive audience, after which the elder administered sacrament to 100, and collected during his stay $20.25. As the brethren of the Holly Springs district conference seem filled with resolutions, I hope they will pass a resolution to discontinue the district conference, or attend when so ordered. It seems that some of the brethren are also filled with excuses—one must finish up his school term in order to get his pay, and another must be at school in order to gradnate in June. Such excuses should be put down, or the above resolutions passed. Our little town is away off in the Northwest, and when the district conference is ordered here the brethren stay away, which is wrong."

J. C. Burton, "Weir's Station is a beautiful town located on the new Canton, Aberdeen and Nashville Railroad, with about 18 or 20 inhabitants and 10 store houses, postoffice and mail three times a week. We have a beautiful M. E. Church near this town in which I teach public school and Sabbath school. Our pastor is B. Baily."

TENNESSEE.

W. C. Miller, McMinnville: "For my second year the people received me gladly. Elder Key held first quarterly, and all officers were on hand with written reports. Collections—paid elder $11.50, pastor $40, Freedmen's Aid $5, missions $5. Shortly after my return, Bros. S. M. Leftrict and J. H. Hill, stewards, Baptists and others surprised us by entering with a load of flour, meat, meal, sugar, coffee, etc. We are moving on nicely. The committee on missions makes good returns."

P. R. Woodson, Liberty: "I think children's day a grand day on which to stimulate the minds of the children and lead them to the church. I propose that it shall be well observed with us."

ARKANSAS.

B. McCain, Sweet Home: "I reached this place Feb. 19, and began the work for the Master. Have made the second round. Rain and bad weather kept elder Sims away from the quarterly conference. Rev. C. B. Donnelly preached an able sermon, and at its conclusion 4 adults and 2 children were received. Have taken in 10 since conference, and raised $3 benevolent money."

Letter From Mobile.

MR. EDITOR—The visit of Rev. E. B. McCauley, and myself was not as pleasant as I expected it would be, yet we found some warm friends. Elder Dale of Wesley Chapel, and his fine family made us welcome with them, and others. Bro. Jo. n Felix, 517 Jackson street, Bro. Davison, of First street Church. I also had the pleasure of meeting with Rev. Dr. Dean, of the New Orleans University. On Sunday, April 27, at Haven's Chapel, the Dr. came to preach, and desired that I should and I did. On Monday at the school I had a pleasant visit, and to assist our church in Mobile he contributed $2. For this cause, we collected as follows: Clinton street Church, $2.30; Sixth street Church, $4.20; Mount Zion Church, $2.25; Pleasant Plains Church, $2.05; Union Chapel, $6.60; Haven's Chapel, $1; Wesley Chapel, $[illegible]; First Street Church, $3.25; Dr. Dean, $2; total $31.66; for which we return thanks to the good brethren, and hope the Lord may bless their labors. The Lord loves the cheerful giver.

Editorial Correspondence.

The prayer service held in the General Conference Room, conducted by Chaplain McCabe, previous to the opening of the session, is increasing in interest each morning. Prominent ministers and laymen are always present in good numbers. Monday morning Bishop Warren made the closing prayer, in which he expressed himself thus: "May all our littleness of vision depart from us, and may the King of the Universe preside over us."

The Conference session was opened by Bishop Andrew, the religions services were conducted by Dr. King, of New York.

Drs. McCabe and Hatfield created quite a sensation this evening. The former by presenting a motion to fix 10 o'clock Wednesday as the time for the election of Bishops, assuming as a reason for thus early disposing of this matter that it would remove the temptation to introduce the methods of the politicians to effect the selections of incumbents for so high and holy an office. While the Conference has given every evidence that free thought could be expressed, whether radical or otherwise, it was evident that Dr. McCabe's remarks were not well received, but when Dr. Hatfield arose and directly charged that unchristian and improper methods had been and were resorted to in order to bring about the election of certain persons to the episcopacy, all over the house voices exclaimed "For shame!" Bishop Andrew, who was presiding, seemed perfectly amazed. Dr. Hatfield continued, "My brethren, the eyes of hundreds of thousands of Methodists in the United States are turned to this body, and there is nothing that will so interest all Methodists as this very subject of electing Bishops. Proceed to it, therefore, in a manner that will not shame all persons who love the Church. I protest against caucusing, log-rolling and wire-pulling. Let us take up the election at the earliest day, so that there shall be no opportunity to prolong these outrageous methods." The speech of Dr. Hatfield fanned the fire Dr. McCabe had kindled into a white heat. Drs. Olin and Leonard indignantly repudiated the idea that improper methods had been resorted to in discussing the question of episcopal candidatures. Dr. Olin said, "If such things have been asserted to I have never heard of them." "Nor I," exclaimed, Bishop Andrew, who was presiding. The resolution of Dr. McCabe was referred to the Committee on the Episcopacy.

When the excitement produced by Dr. Hatfield's remarks had in a measure subsided, the episcopal address was read by Bishop Harris. Bishop Simpson, upon whom the honor would have fallen as the senior Bishop, was present, but too ill to attempt a task so long. The following are some of the facts set forth in the address: The number of traveling preachers was 11,349, local preachers, 12,026; members and probationers, 1,769,534; accessions to membership 158,774; persons ex, 9,815. It was also stated that there were 10 theological institutions, 45 colleges, 66 seminaries, 8 female schools and 19 schools chiefly for foreign missions. The value of these was fixed at $7,394,640, and the endowments at $7,031,176. The value of the churches and parsonages was $79,238,085. Special attention was called to the "terrible crime of polygamy," and the fearful increase of divorces. The number of Bishops to be elected at this General Conference was earnestly discussed. The delegates from our foreign missionary fields plead for Bishops to reside in Europe, Asia and Africa. Delegates, also, from the West and South are pleading for one to reside in the vast regions which they represent. Everything seems to indicate quite an increase in the episcopal force.

FIFTH DAY.

Conference assembled this morning at 9 o'clock, Bishop Warren in the chair. The religious services were conducted by Jacob Kerhbiel. This session was devoted chiefly to the reception of papers effecting the work of the committees. The report of the Trustees of the Episcopal Fund, reflects great credit both to the Bishops and the church. The Church has paid during this quadrennium the full amount necessary to meet every claim of the Bishops, and have a surplus on hand for the commencement of the next quadrennium. The report of the Book Agents shows great financial prosperity. The Agents at New York have paid over three hundred and forty thousand dollars of interest-bearing debts during the past four years. Two millions and three hundred thousand bound volumes have been printed and sold, being an average of 2,000 a day; and 40,500,000 pages of tracts have been printed and sent out on missions of usefulness during the same period. The report of the Western Agents has not as yet been presented, but it is expected that their showing will be equally as favorable to the publishing interests of the Church. The several committees are well organized and are hard at work. The warmest debates will grow out of matters connected with the work of the Freedmen's Aid Society and our general church work in the South.

SIXTH DAY.

Bishop Foss, by a series of loud raps on the table, called the Conference to order this morning at 9 o'clock. Devotional exercises as usual. Most of the delegates were in their places. As the roll of the Conference was read a long list of petitions and memorials were read and referred to the proper committees. Rev. J. M. Shumpert, of Mississippi, sent up to the Secretary's desk and had read a paper declaring "That it is the sense of of this General Conference that no trustee of church, school, college, or university, nor any pastor, principal, president, or any person in authority of church or school property belonging to or under the control of the Methodist Episcopal Church, shall exclude any person or persons from their churches, schools, colleges or universities, of good moral character, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude." After reading the paper Bro. Shumpert made a short but appropriate speech, and was listened to with attention. Several other members took part in the discussion of this question. It was, however, finally referred to the Committee on the State of the Church.

Angry Words.

I read in a late number of the Guide to Holiness the following question, to the editor: "Have we a right to expect that the work of entire sanctification will expel all sinful desires, for instance, the desire to speak angrily, under provocation?" This question, no doubt, was prompted by the fact, that so many, even professors of religion, are daily sinning against God, and ruining their influence for good, by getting angry and speaking unkind words. In fact, angry temper is the bane of many homes, the "skeleton in the house," where God has bestowed many blessings. I have read that it is the cause of fully as much sorrow as intemperance, for it robs people just as surely, of comfort in their homes, of friends, and of the presence of the Savior.

Anger is infectious. Cross words are resented, and echoed and multiplied until home often becomes unworthy of the name, a scene of strife and misery, instead of being the dearest spot on earth, the place where people may find their highest earthly enjoyment.

God has, in the Bible, given many precious promises and encouragements to those who are charitable, and considerate of the feelings of others. "Blessed is the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God;" they shall live in an atmosphere of love, and they shall be peculiarly favored by Him. The example of our Savior was, "when He was reviled, reviled not again." Under great provocation He exhorted people to have forbearance. "Be ye kindly affectioned one to another," is a positive command, which admits of no exceptions. Whenever it is disobeyed, its own penalty is sure to follow. There are those, who have laid up in their memories, many angry words spoken to dear ones, who are now beyond their reach. Such words may be forgiven, but can those who spoke them ever forget! There is nothing in this world more bitter than the remembrance of unkindness, done to those from whom one cannot ask forgiveness.

Satan who is ever busy in assailing people in their weakest points, so manages to blind their eyes, that they make excuses for themselves, when they are tempted to speak angrily. They imagine some, one has said or done something quite beyond human endurance. Such would do well to learn how to "heap coals of fire" on the heads of their offenders, which according to the word of God, is an effective method of retaliation.

Disease of the body is often supposed to be a sufficient reason for indulging in much irritability and abuse of others. I knew a woman, a professor of religion, who was cross all the time. No one could approach her without being wounded by her sharp words, and her family were continually depressed by her spirit, and the whole neighborhood felt the influence. She thought the Lord would certainly make allowance for her, because her health was poor, and she was "so nervous." I knew another woman who was similarly afflicted but who was healed in answer to prayer. In her young days she wes sensitive, and had formed the habit of sharp speaking, it made her unhappy, because she knew it was wrong. She was persuaded to give her heart to the Savior, and for a time her new experience satisfied her heart, and she was changed, but as she grew older, and cares, and responsibilities increased, she became less watchful, and temptations assailed her, and her old infirmity returned. She made excuses for herself, because she was nervous. She grew worse until she drove away her friends, and her husband seldom received a kind word from her. If a child came to her, to unburden its trouble fully as great as her own, it was sharply driven away, to form the miserable habit of bearing its trouble alone; while she nursed her pet nervousness. But she had a conscience, which was by no means at ease, and so she concluded to try, never to give way to her temper so as to speak angrily, then perhaps her friends would love her again. Of course she could not help feeling cross, that was only temptation. The sin was in acting cross. For a time her manners were somewhat improved, but somehow, when she was cross, everybody felt it, if she did not say anything, and she was even more unhappy, and had less respect for herself, for she knew she was one thing, while acting another. At length her burden seemed greater than she could bear, and she took it to her long neglected Savior, and asked Him for help, and He heard her cry, and delivered her out of all her distress, and she became at once, kind, gentle and loving. She found Him "mighty to save." He had forgiven her sins, and He had rooted out the cause of her trouble. I can assert, on good authority, that for several years, she had no apparent return of the old malady.

I have heard that many people get angry because they are nervous; there are others who lie because it is constitutional; others steal because they have kleptomania; and still others, murder because they are insane.

There is a "balm in Gilead" for all such sufferers. God can heal all diseases that lead people to break His laws, and commit such dreadful sins. "Is anything too hard for the Lord!" "He is able to do for us far more exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

MRS. L. C. BRADEN.

The General Conference.

NINTH DAY.

The Conference assembled, Bishop Harris in the chair. Rev. J. E. Wilson, of South Carolina, conducted the devotional exercises. A resolution was adopted providing that all conferences organized outside the United States, or hereafter organized, be entitled to the same rights and privileges as those in the United States. The resolution offered yesterday by ex-Gov. Evans, of Colorado, relative to instructing agents of the two book concerns to furnish detailed statements of the past four years was adopted, with an amendment that the names of employes be stricken from the schedule which the agents are required to furnish.

Rev. Dr. Curry, from the committee on Episcopacy, reported, recommending that India be fixed as the Episcopal residence.

Rev. Dr. Marshall W. Taylor moved to amend by striking out the word "India" and inserting Africa. He had in his mind for the position a gentleman of standard proportions, splendid physique and excellent digestion; he did not allude to any member of the Washington Conference, but the delegate from Baltimore. He referred to his friend, Rev. Dr. Lanahan, of Baltimore. [Great laughter]. He had three reasons for the amendment proposed: first—Poetical. "Your fathers," said Dr. Taylor, "compelled ours to live in America, and I want to compel one white man to live in my country—Africa. [Renewed laughter]. The second reason was a commercial one, and his third—Education."

Rev. Dr. Lanahan, of Baltimore, said there was no room for mirth or trifling here. [Laughter.] It has been said one of the mission churches was in almost a state of disintegration because they have no bishop. He moved that consideration of the matter be postponed, and make it the order of the day for Monday.

Rev. A. B. Leonard, of Cincinnati, confessed his heart was touched by the appeal of Mr. Taylor. The Conference will probably not adopt Mr. Taylor's amendment now, but the time is not far distant, when such a motion will prevail. The Methodist Episcopal Church can do for Africa what no other Church can. If a bishop was appointed for that country, thousands from this country would look there. [Cries of Amen.]

Rev. Dr. Buckley said the proposed action might result in a man going to a foreign country who had no knowledge of the language. Hitherto the residence of bishops has not been considered under the election; now it is proposed to precipitate the matter by practically compelling the conference to neglect the whole work, or else to elect fifty-six bishops.

Gen. Fisk would like the Board of Bishops to answer the questions whether the emergencies of the work would require that there should be a residence in Europe, India and Africa or other country, and if so whether additional bishops were needed.

Rev. Dr. Hare thought there were many reasons why the matter should not be postponed. Our great founder said he gave no bishops in the beginning, and in the end did not attempt to remain in England, and ran a little church in this country.

The motion to postpone was lost—yeas 153, nays 185.

Rev. Theo. L. Flood, of the Erie Conference, referred to the fact that during the past twelve years the Church had been loaded up with traveling expenses of the episcopacy. It has cost $63,000 a year to support the superintendency.

Rev. J. W. Hamilton, of the New England Conference, said as the Pope proposes to vacate Rome, let us have a Methodist move in.

Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley offered a resolution, which was adopted, that the opinion of the bishops be asked whether in their judgment the emergencies of work require that there should be a resident bishop in Europe, India and Africa. The conference adjourned till Monday.

TENTH DAY.

In the Conference, Bishop Harris announced that the bishops met Saturday in Bishop Simpson's room to consider the question presented by the conference and agreed to the following: In view of the action of two of your standing committees concerning the establishment of two Episcopal residences abroad, and of discussion by the General Conference, we are greatly embarrassed in the expression of opinion relative to the question; but yet feel it best to express our deliberate and unanimous judgment that it is not wise to fix an Episcopal residence at this time in Europe, India, Africa or any of these countries, and if so decided, this would not affect our opinion hitherto expressed as to the number of bishops to be elected by the conference.

Rev. S. S. Nelles, representing the Methodist body of Canada and president of Victoria University, was introduced.

Rev. Bennett Mitchell, of North western, then offered a resolution that a committee of twelve, one from each General Conference district, be appointed to organize a society to raise a fund for worn out preachers, widows or orphans. Referred to the committee on temporal economy with instructions to report early.

A resolution was adopted that color is no bar to right or privilege to any office of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. S. P. ALBERT, D. D., Assistant

THURSDAY, MAY 22, 1884.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate commends the freedom from foolish extravagance noticeable in Southern colleges.

After the first of July the Canada Christian Advocate of Hamilton, and the Observer of Bowmanville, will be continued and become merged into the Christian Guardian of Toronto. The Methodist churches in the dominion have united, and the Guardian is their connectional paper.

The California Christian Advocate exposes the shameless attacks of the Monitor, Catholic organ, upon Secretary of War Lincoln. It charged that he refused to permit the erection of a Catholic chapel on government ground where one had already been granted a Protestant church. The Advocate says the chapel at the Presidio, as in every post, has always been open to every denomination, and the government would promptly allow the building of a church by any denomination.

Rev. C. R. Galloway, of the Church South, writes to his paper of the pine region of Mississippi:

"Besides cotton and mulberries, there is a region of good old orthodox large families. We heard of one neighbor whose children aggregated thirty-three; one had six-teen, the other seventeen. Into that religious association we would like to immigrate some of the fashionable sizes of New England. Three or two children in a family up in that latitude are all that respectable society will tolerate."

The vote of the Democratic registered voters of Louisiana has been counted at Baton Rouge. The majority for State officers is about 50,000. All constitutional amendments carried. The General Assembly is in session, and has elected James B. Eustis United States Senator to succeed B. F. Jonas. The colored people of Louisiana, by public resolution, have declared their intention to leave a State wherein their rights as citizens and laborers are ignored, and prospects of an exodus is talked of.

The Christian Witness and Advocate of Bible Holiness in its issue of May 7th says:

"The doctrine of holiness have in the Methodist Church a good field to work in. Here we have not only the doctrine, but we have the theology, and the experience, and we have more friends to help us than anywhere else out of heaven. But as a thing to be received by faith, and loved with a pure heart, the Methodist Church will allow no place in her communion, and thus show by holy living that we love loving that we may be members of the one living body. We will continue this subject next week."

Many men who leave the Methodist Episcopal Church and join holiness organizations do so because, or else they have set their hearts on something and finally cured will make utter ruin. The Methodist Church of Heaven for holiness people in the Methodist Church. We do not believe in merely talking about it and professing it, but to have the experience, and room enough for the Lord to work till they get rid of the fullness of the greater liberty in the Episcopal Church.

He Knows What I Want.

Not long since we were at a prayer meeting where a brother leading in prayer expressed himself on this wise: "Lord wont you please turn me smack aronnd my back toward heaven and my face towards hell." Just then another brother exclaimed. "No, no Lord that is not what he means, he wants you to turn his face toward heaven and his back towards hell." Then addressing the one engaged in prayer he ask, "Is not that what you mean?" "Yes, yes," was the answer "bnt you need not be so particular to tell the Lord, he knows what I mean and what I want." Precious thought. God knows what we need, and what we want, and cares but little about a mere lip prayer; certainly He needs no one to give Him information as to what we mean. He discerns he heart and cares nothing when and where that is silent. Words please the human ear. Men often mease are prayer by the grammar, rhetoric, logic, or divinity it may contain. God cares but little about well contrived sentences, he listens to hear what the heart says and cares nothing for words when this is silent. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

We have received the annual catalogue of New Orleans University. It shows that there are seven teachers and two hundred and forty-nine students. Of the latter only nine are in the collegiate department, of whom two graduate. We think it wise in the faculty not to push the students into higher classes, while they are unacquainted with the lower branches, but to make them thorough as far as they go, whether it be much ground or little that they go over. There are eighteen in the second year of the preparatory department; and it they continue, and make the proper advancement they will make the number in the collegiate department larger than ever before. It is stated, as has already been noticed in this paper, that property has been bought on St. Charles Avenue, at No. 1428, and that the school will be transferred there next fall. We see that the President's address during vacation will be Mystic, Conn. Copies of catalogues can be obtained of Rev. L. P. Cushman, at this office. The catalogue is quite neatly gotten up, by Mr. F. F. Hansell, of this city.

Our neighbor, the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, thinks the caste question will be the leading issue in the General Conference. The action of the New England Conference is warmly commended, and the brethren are exhorted to hold fast their profession. If they prefer mixed congregations and schools, North and South, no outsider has a right to object. But, as a matter of practical wisdom and the best interests of the Master's kingdom and all concerned, we are of the opinion that radical legislation should be avoided. Instead of retarding, it will most surely embarrass their work. As their congregations and conferences are at present organized we see no cause for this great hullabaloo. Why not get in a rage because the Germans and Scandinavians prefer their own organizations? There is in it more fanatical folly than Christian zeal. Some body is coveting cheap martyrdom.—New Orleans Christian Advocate.

We sincerely thank our neighber for his opinion so modestly expressed, for his fatherly advice and godly admonition. The Methodist Episcopal Church would have gone to ruin years ago but for the "outsiders" who, out of a pure regard for the "Master's kingdom and all all concerned," and discerning the difference between "fanatical folly" and "Christian zeal" have been able to make suggestions full of "practical wisdom. "We trust that our neighbor will bear with us, we place a high estimate upon his "practical wisdom" so free from all "fanatical folly." We still approve of the action of our brethren in New England and regard their action as eminently Christian.

Rev. W. A. Knighton, of Santa Barbara, California, was asked by a large number of the best citizens of that city to become a candidate for mayor; bnt Bro. Knighton promptly declined to have his name used for the position for the following reasons:

"First. I am only a young resident of your beautiful city.

Second. I am not a free holder.

Third. I am liable to be removed within the next six months to some other field of labor.

Fourth. In my present calling as pastor I have all that any one person can well attend to. This is the great work of my life, and if it is well done, it is attended with the most arduous duties and the highest honors this world can give.

With many thanks to yon, gentlemen, for the good will and friendship you have evidently intended to myself and family, permit me to decline to be a candidate for any office."

Oneness of pursuit is indispensable to distinguished success in any important enterprise. With the Christian minister the salvation of men should be his one sublime purpose. This should be the good toward which all his energies tend. A thousand things which many good people allow in themselves he cuts off. He is a man of one work, one thought, one wish. Amid all the varied scenes of this life his mind never wonders, the mark of his calling is before him. Perhaps there were never greater allurements presented to the minds of ministers to tempt them to a division of affection, time and work than the present. But there never was a louder call for a race of ministers who have singleness of aim than now. The greatest need of the world is not learning or wealth, but consecration of time and talent, is demanded. There is need of men whose devotion is full, whose dedication is perpetual, who deeply in their hearts purpose to know nothing among men save Jesus Christ and him crucified. The matter stands thus: A sinner is about to be lost, Christ has found a ransom. This man has been commissioned to go and tell the sinner that he might be saved. How can he turn aside and loiter by the way. One work, and to the work.

Dispatches have been sent all over the country to the effect that a court in Copiah county, Mississippi, was engaged in trying the murderer of Mr. Mathews, whose villainous deed, as the chosen agent of a conspiracy, is disclosed in the report of the Senate investigating committee. It was a little surprising that a court took cognizance of the conduct of Wheeler, but we suppose the conspirators, in furtherance of their plans, thought it would be wise policy to keep up the appearance of complying with the forms of law, especially since the report of the Senate committee would be effectively used by Republicans in the Presidential campaign. The mockery of a trial and the supply of dispatches was used to partially ease the conscience of sensitive people who are not disposed to recognize daylight murder, in a public place, in the presence of a hundred witnesses, as a legitimate element in the conduct of a political campaign. The trial was in conformity to the usual custom in all such cases. Conspirators did not criminate themselves, and spectators and friends of the murdered man were not ready to die or leave the community for telling the truth; it logically resulted that no court could convict on such testimony as was presented. Dr. Pitts understood the danger of giving any real testimony, and he refused and fled the place. He was right, since no power, State or national, could have saved him, had he complied, from a fate like unto that of a spy in an enemy's camp. Bas Wheeler shakes hands with his brothers of Yazoo, and is safe in Copiah.

The fifty-ninth anniversary of the American Tract Society was celebrated on the 11th. The number of volumes issued the past year was 279,260: receipts for the year, $357,470; disbursements, $354,062.

Editorial Correspondence.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8—The forepart of yesterday's session was nearly a repetition of the day previous, and may be with propriety called an "unloading session." Every delegation seemed to be loaded with resolutions or memorials, which were read and referred to the various committees that had been ordered. Thus far there has been enough work referred to the committees to keep the Conference in session a full year, should it attempt to legislate on all the matters sent up for consideration. The older members say, however, that this part of the work is nearly all in, and there will be a lull in the proceedings, to be followed by the election of the Bishops and other officers next week. The Conference is larger than any of its predecessors. Some think it is too large and should be reduced. A paper has already been introduced having this end in view. A smaller body would doubtless be handled with more ease, and possess more agility, but the force of its power would be greatly lessened. It must be confessed, however, that the order during the session of yesterday was far from being perfect. At no session has there been so frequent use of the gavel, and at none has there been paid so little attention to it. The Conference is not composed of mere school boys; it consists of the ablest ministers and laymen in the Church. A resolution on the itinerancy created quite a discussion over the "People's Church of Boston." Mr. Smith the mover of the resolution, is a tall, slender man, with a pleasant and scholarly face; he made a speech full of wit, sarcastic humor and logic, creating no little merriment by his reference to this mission in the wilds of Boston. Mr. Hamilton, the pastor of the church, arose and spoke for himself and church, and evidently carried the Conference with him. Dr. Curry stood for the defense of the People's Church. "The case," he said, "was a peculiar one, but there was no violation of Methodist law either in form or spirit." He was thankful that the Church was sufficiently flexible to provide for all such emergencies without special legislation. Dr. Lanahan, of the Baltimore Conference was on hand. Perhaps there is no man more attentive than he is, certainly there is no one that knows better how to shut off discussion when he thinks it has continued long enough, by moving the "previous question," than the Doctor; and here, just as Bro. Hamilton had explained the struggle through which he and the people passed in building the church; for two years he had received only $139, and last year $1000; he concluded by saying "If any of you want my place you can have it," "If any will come after Me let him deny himself." Amid great applause Dr. Lanahan arose and called for the previous question, and the motion to refer this matter to the Committee on the Itinerancy was carried without dissent.

The report of the Western Book Concern was presented by J. M. Walden. It shows greater prosperity than ever before in its history. The aggregate sales for the four years were $2,920 891 53, being an increase of $245,765.11 during the quadrennium. The net earning of the Concern for four years $160,041.26, the gain in the net capital was $101,092.92.

SEVENTH DAY.

The 8 o'clock prayer meeting this morning was a season of spiritual refreshing. Bishop Hurst called the Conference to order at 9 o'clock. The opening devotional services were conducted by Wm. Taylor, D. D., of the South India Conference. The Bishop stated that the order of business was the presentation of resolutions, appeals and miscellaneous business. Quite a spicy discussion took place as to the use of our Hymnal in our Sunday-schools. Dr. Buckley justly said that a good many of the popular hymns could not be read to an intelligent audience by an intelligent man without a blush. Referring to "Hold the Fort" he said that he did not care to sing "See the host advancing, Satan leading on." Dr. Bliss said that he thought that the Conference should take some decided action; he had known love feasts, prayer and class meetings of the Church completely ruined by the "rig, day, day, dong" of some of the foolish hymns now in constant use in some localities. Dr. Curry contended for the use of our Hymnal, said he found in them a better statement of the doctrines of the Church than he could in any system of theology that had ever been published. Quite an effort is being made to induce the General Conference to adopt and sustain the Chattanooga Methodist Advocate and thereby secure its permanency and efficiency as an organ of the Church. Bnt, with the report of the Western Agents fresh before them, and the statement that during the fourteen years the Atlanta Methodist Advocate was published the expenditures were $67,143.49 more than was received, they will not be apt to start soon on another enterprise of that nature.

H. W. Key, of Tennessee, presented a memorial protesting against the change of the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society; also asking the General Conference to rescind the action of 1880 when it sanctioned the building of schools from which persons were to be forever excluded on account of their race or color. Bro. Key supported this motion by a telling speech. He said the Freedmen's Aid Society had a name that is historical, and asked why change so grand a name by adding Southern Educational Society. We have Southern Express Companies, Southern hotels, Southern News Companies, Southern Courts, a Southern M. E. Church, and Southern ku-klux. He did most earnestly protest against daubing the Freedmen's Aid Society with a sectional name.

EIGHTH DAY.

Bishop Bowman called the Conference to order at 9 o'clock. Dr. Cox, of Iowa, conducted the devotional services. In response to a previous resolution Bishop Harris reported from the Board of Bishops that in their judgment the election of three additional Bishops will adequately provide for the wants of the Episcopal office.

Rev. Dr. Carter, of New Orleans, fraternal delegate from the M. E. Church, South, was introduced by Bishop Bowman.

Quite an animated discussion grew out of an effort on the part of Dr. Wheeler's desire to introduce what he called a "minority report," opposing Episcopal residences in Europe and Asia. He thought that it could not be done without violating the Third Restrictive Rule, and that it was not expedient.

Dr. Buckley, who is chairman of the Committee on Judiciary, said there was no doubt in his mind as to the constitutionality of the measure. The whole question was referred to the Committee on Episcopacy, after Drs. Curry, Trimble and others had spoken.

It is hardly possible to give a detailed account of all the discussions. A proposition to publish a map, showing the boundaries of all the conferences, created a lively debate. It was stated that there was not one delegate in a hundred who had definite and accurate knowledge of our Conference boundaries. We live in an age of maps; there are wheat maps, corn maps, gold maps, silver maps, lead, iron, brass, copper and coal maps. We needed Conference maps. Dr. Reid said he should regard it as a great boon if we could have a map, but as we have in some parts of our work four conferences covering the same territory, there must be a black line, a red line, a white line and a green line to indicate the overlapping of conferences. When the Church catches the spirit that is expressed by the Apostle, "In Christ Jesus there is neither Jew nor Greek, barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free," there will be no trouble about publishing a map. Let us recognise the essential unity of all who are in Christ first, then the map will be easily understood. What the action of the General Conference will be on the question of caste it is difficult to say. We are hopeful. L. P. C.

PERSONAL.

—Rev. Richard Pitzer, for many years a member of the Ohio Conference, died at Knoxville, Tenn., April, 22d, in peace, aged 59 years.

—Gen. O. O. Howard, with his son, is said to be on his way to join Gen. "Chinese Gordon," at Khartoum. Our idea of Khartoum is that it is a good place to keep away from.—Standard. Chicago.

—Mrs. E. L. Saxon, well known in New Orleans, now temporarily sojourning with her daughter at Memphis, Tenn., is the newly appointed state organizer for the W. C. T. U. of Tennessee, says a Nashville daily.

—The New York Witness gives as fact the information that Gen. Joseph Hawley, of Connecticut, the man who stands related to the Republican nominating convention of 1884, as Garfield did to the convention of 1880, is a total abstainer and a temperance lecturer. It is also known of him that he dared to vote against the Chinese bill, and closed the Centennial Exhibition on Sunday. His father was known in the early days of reform in this country as an unflinching, heroic advocate of freedom and equal rights. If the son be like unto him, the republicanism that was once based on a platform of "moral ideas" could give no surer manifestation of a return to its first love, than his nomination.—Union Signal.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

James Hartfour, Pleasant Grove: "I came ta Bayon Lotsworth, in 1869, from Tennessee, and as a Methodist was alone. I am a local preacher, and after two years I think God came to my relief, and to-day the church here has 75 members. Brother Samuel Williams is with us and he is doing good work."

G. A. Payne, Hahnville: "There are many sufferers in St. Charles parish who deserve charitable consideration. The water from Davis crevasse has thrown working people out of employment by covering large tracts of land. Elder Williams held our first quarter, and the people were pleased to see and hear him from the pulpit. The Sabbath schools are doing well. I am thankful that despite the overflow I have been able to keep up the Lord's cause."

H. T. Abbott, Musson: "I baptized yesterday (April 27) a young woman who had been a Catholic all her life, bnt was converted from Romanism to faith in the Lord Jesus. She joined the church, and I baptized her. Two young men named John and B. Butler, her brothers, waited at the door of the church when we were holding service, seized her and carried her to her father's house. There she was stripped stark naked and whipped for an hour and a half. She told them she would pray to the Lord any how. Her mother and father are dead, and the young man and woman who raised her beat the poor girl unmercifully. They came to the church and asked me why and by what authority, I had baptized her, and I answered the church that I am a minister in. One George Harris came to the church, and found his children there, and took a grass rope and doubled it and whipped them away from the church. Great excitement prevails. We have had 10 converts and 2 reclaimed. Pray for us."

H. J. Wright, Natchitoches. "Our church here is at a stand. The church law forbids its members to give balls, but in an indirect way some of the members, local preachers, class leaders, and stewards belonging to some of the secret societies gave a ball and thereby got some of our sisters to keep tables and many were carried off. They say it is no harm I read to the Discipline for them, page 145 and paragraph 226, and by my so doing some are up in arms making threats and classing us among the lowest. We have the best elements of the church on our side and Jesus with us, the Discipline to back us. We have set a time for them to meet us and make some confession, and some others can go with us to the quarterly conference. The devil may rage but we are going to stand."

W. R. Butler, Columbus: "I am contending against three things, whiskey, Baptist doctrine and the devil. I do not know which is the worst, but Methodism ought to stand against them. Last Thursday night we had a temperance meeting. Some of the people are very ignorant, and I am trying to bring them up to a higher standard."

Henry Taylor, Waxia: "We are in a bad condition. The water has filled our church, and we have not had service for three Sundays. We are too poor to give our preacher support. We are well pleased with him, and are sorry we are not able to help him. We need help in our distress."

TEXAS.

S. Gates, presiding elder, Waco district, appointed D. C. Lacy to the charge at Pilot Point, Texas, in place of O. Young, who was appointed to Dallas.

Henry Smith, Paris: "We had a grand time at Bonkston, in the quarterly conference April 19th. Elder Webb is the most affectionate elder we ever served under. Bro. Manning of the Church South was with us, and extended Christain courtsies to Elder Webb."

John Hibbler, Mooresville: "Bro. Gates came here April 13, after a delay, preached one of his pentecostal sermons, and administered sacrament to about 40. Collection $4.50. The Sunday-school prospered until lately, when it seems to be going backward. There is need of a spoke in one of the fore wheels."

TENNESSEE.

S. P. Bell: "We found many good things at Brentwood, was well received and are highly entertained at each visit. Among the pleasant things we met there upon our first visit was a good set of officers, a noble Sunday school superintendent, a good set of teachers, a good day school and also a warm-hearted membership. Sunday last, being the fourth Sunday in the month, was a gala day with us. We had, a few weeks previous, put out some cards for the purpose of raising something on our church debt, and the committee reported as follows: Miss F. B. Key, $5.50; Mrs. Judy Lusk, $4; Queen Hunter, $3.40; Maggie Nolen, $3; Harriet Gresham, $4; Claiborne Ridley, $2.25; Olly Johnson, $2; Alice Hadley, $2; Miss J. Kay, $3; James Allen, $2; Miss [illegible] Miss Jamison, [illegible] Sophia F[illegible] Mary Gee, $1.10; D. F[illegible], $2; [illegible] $2.50; G. W. [illegible] Harriet Bayley, [illegible]; [illegible] Y[illegible] [illegible], $10. This foots up [illegible]. This day was also our quarterly collection, and the [illegible] collected $31.90; making a total collection for the day $73.75. This surprised some, of course, for it was so easily done. However, we all partook of the sacrament of the Lord's supper, had a good shaking of hands, some shouting, some resolutions to do better, and so we parted."

H. Primm, Franklin: "Our second quarter was held by Elder Pickett. I had just closed a meeting in which 11 were converted. The sisters are raising money for the Church. They gave a supper March 29 and made $12, and another on April 19 at which $24 was cleared. Seventeen have joined the church. Also I am sitting in the parsonage writing this. The people say they are going to do some work on the church soon. The church is moving; our class and prayer meetings are very good. We have something on nearly all of our collections."

A [illegible] quarterly [illegible] Dr. [illegible] highly [illegible] and gave [illegible] for the faithful [illegible] preached to a large [illegible] and there were 83 [illegible]. The church is prospering.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter From Navasota.

MR. EDITOR—We are getting along nicely here. Four months have passed but not without much improvement in the cause of Methodism here. The church has had her arms extended wide, and has exclaimed to all within her reach to reform, come under her banner, and go with her millions to the kingdom of our God. She has prevailed, too, to a large extent in her undertaking; her Sunday-school in increasing rapidly, her congregation is the best in the city, and besides, she has added largely to her membership, and the outlook for the future foreshadows a much greater enlargement to both Sabbath-school and church membership than we have had in the past four months. We are preparing to carry out children's day in its very best form, and are anticipating a grand success. Our officers and teachers are busily engaged now getting into their own heads what they are to teach to the children on the 8th of June. They can not impart to others what they do not know themselves. Our people are as anxious to go up in the world as any people are, but what they need is the proper instruction to elevate them. The aim of our church is to elevate the people regardless to race or previous conditions. There are a great many ministers who are now filling her pulpits but are not just the men that she wants, but at this period, it may be well to say, that she can not do any better than she now does. She is on the lookout, and will find them shortly perhaps. When this is done, her pulpits will not be filled with mere noise but with real preaching. Which is no more nor less than making full demonstration of the Gospel as it is found in the sacred writ. As I said it is the aim of our Church to fill her pulpits as far as possible with men who are qualified to impart knowledge to her people. To do it she will have to seek such men as have and are now studying to know something themselves, so that they will be prepared to teach others what he does not know himself. So my advice is to all who are expecting to enter our conferences, be sure first to learn yourse'ves what you are to teach the people. No man should be admitted hereafter who is not prepared for the office of minister of the church. Now a great many of our men have to go to the Sabbath-school scholars to do what they themselves ought to be able to do. Is it proper for a teacher of a school to go to his pupils for instruction or to do what he cannot do even though it is just what he is to teach the pupils? If he does, that scholar can not think of him again as an able teacher. Neither can our church congregation and Sabbath-schools have confidence in a preacher who is not prepared to write a letter, to do an example in addition, or to tell whether there are eight or one hundred parts of speech in the English grammar, We are preaching in an enlightened age. The most of our congregations have attended school where they have learned to distinguish sense from nonsense. So our preachers must be able to do the same. The best thing to do is to first seek some of our schools and enter them and there remain until you have learned to go before the people with that which will stand a test at any time. If you are to preach you are to teach the people, and it is certain that no one can teach what he does not not know. I am persuaded to believe that every preacher ought to be able to give proper instruction in all the common branches of an English education before he is capable of rendering satisfaction to a congregation of the Methodist Episcopal Church. But every man that is educated cannot teach school—neither can every man who has been to school, and has learned all the common branches of an English education—and even though he be a first rate Bible scholar, preach the Gospel. "He that preaches must be called of God." But God calls no man to preach the "noise," but to preach the "Gospel." There is a vast difference in preaching a "noise" and preaching the "Gospel." One is acquired with and the other without previous preparation. It requires no previous preparation for one to give the people much noise, but much hard study to give them much Gospel. The first thing that is heard from a babe is noise, but it is several months before it can utter a word; it must be taught how. We, as Methodists, want our people to know what any other people know. Then, to accomplish this, we must close the conference door against who may attempt to enter without the proper qualifications. There are a great many of our now preaching brethren, are greatly inclined to have our pulpits in the future filled with more nonsense than they now are. I know they are, from the fact that in our conferences when men have been examined upon their different studies and the committee reports in their case unfavorably, they are ready to say that "we want the men and cannot do without them;" we must take them, prepared or unprepared." It is the same as if they had said that "it does not "require a very accurate preparation at any rate;" "our people do not know a great deal, and we, therefore, do not want men further than those who are able to read a few verses from the Bible," say they. But is it our aim to lead our people out of darkness, my brethren, or to put them further into it? Every time you send them an unqualified man you are putting them further in. "If the blind lead the blind they will all fall into the ditch together," so look for men whose eyes are clear, because they are to do a great deal more than ordinary men. They are to lead men out of darkness. It requires a pair of clear eyes to guide a man so well in darkness that he will both save himself from ruin and those of whom he is a leader.

Well, I must return again to the the work of Navasota. I want to say further concerning our work here, that here we have, as I think, none less than a stronghold for Methodism. There is no telling just now what we will have here in after days. Our membership is increasing largely. We have just closed a revival which was conducted by us for two weeks, and the results thereof were 46 added to the church, 25 of whom confessed a hope of Jesus. About 90 have joined the church this year. The Rev. W. B. Pullam was with us during the last week of the meeting and he did us a great deal of good. He has taken an active part in the meetings, and did, I am certain, much good. Rev. E. Lee, presiding elder of Huntsville district was also with us. He gave us a couple of able sermons. Rev. A. Alexadder, presiding elder of Plantersville, gave us a wakening sermon one night during the meeting. Two of his daughters were converted to God, and are now members of our church.

Elder Pullam held his second quarterly here on the 10-20. In the conference on the 10th we had nearly all the brethren, and everything passed off nicely. The elder appeared to have been helped up with all the reports, and he gave us many encouraging words in relation to the work here. On Sunday, the 20th, it was very cold. I thought that we would have small attendance, but we had a very respectable congregation in the afternoon, as well as a passable one in the evening at 8 p. m. Rev. E. Lee was also with us in the afternoon, and the day passed off nicely. I can not see but that we are on the go up. Very truly yours,

J. E. SHACKELFORD.

The Rev. J. C. Hill, a Presbyterian missionary at Guatemala, is confident that in the next decade there will be seen a progress in evangelical beliefs in Central America similar to that which has taken place in Mexico. Religious freedom is enjoyed throughout the land, and Protestantism is received with marked favor by those who are at the head of affairs.

The General Conference.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Bishop Wiley occupied the chair. Dr. Martin, of India, conducted the devotional exercises.

On motion of Amos Shinkle, of Kentucky, the rules were suspended in order that reports of committees be sent in printed. The Committee on the Book Concern recommended that the German hymn book be revised.

The Committee on Missions recommended that the missions to Japan, Mexico and Denmark be organized in annual conferences. The Committee on Lay Representation reported in favor of lay representation in the Annual Conference on the basis of one delegate to every six pastoral charges in a presiding elder's district, and an additional delegate for every fraction of two-thirds, to be elected by the district stewards. The Committee on Episcopacy recommend the election of five bishops.

The order of the day was taken up, viz: Memorial services for deceased members. Rev. Mr. Trimble, of Ohio, announced a hymn, and Dr. Hunt led in prayer. A memorial to Bishop Levi Scott was read by Rev. J. B. Quigg, of Wilmington.

A memorial on Bishop Jesse T. Peck was read by Chancellor Sims. A memorial on Bishop Haven was read by Dr. Buckley, These memoirs were listened to with deep interest. Dr. Buckley said, of the bishops who elcomed the General Conference to this city twenty years ago, the only one remaining was the Chrysostum of our church, Bishop Simpson. He made a touching allusion to the love and esteem of the members of the Conference for the venerable Bishop, and their solicitude for the speedy recovery of his health.

A memoir of the Rev. Dr. Fuller, editor of the Methodist Advocate, by Rev. Dr. Manker.

The memoir of the Rev. Dr. George W. Woodruff, late Secretory of the General Conference, was read by Rev. B. M. Adams. The memorials were adopted by a standing vote. Adjourned.

The twentieth anniversary of the Methodist Episcopal Church Extention Society will be held this evening. Bishop Harris will preside. Addresses will be delivered by Bishop Foss, Keys, Kynett, Buckley, McCabe and Gen. Fisk.

TWELFTH DAY.

Bishop Merrill in the chair, Rev. S. Lakin, of Central Alabama, conducted the devotional exercis s. Rev. J. G. Miller, from Lincoln, Neb., subscribed last evening $20,000 to the Church Extension Society in the United States.

A resolution was adopted that a committee of thirteen be appointed to nominate trustees for church institutions. The matter of the report of the Committee on Episcopacy, relative to residence of bishops in India, was taken up.

A preacher from Minnesota was in favor of a substitute, that Bishops for the next four years be requested to give such attention to foreign work as interests demanded. He considered the resolution antagonizes the organic law of the church.

Judge Reynolds said the Judiciary Committee had reported it to be legal to fix a residence in India or Europe.

Rev. Dr. Bell, of Ohio, said there was a provision for diocesian episcopacy in the third restrictive rule, but the question simply is as to the establishment of residence in India.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

The whole of the day session was taken up in discussing the report of the Committee on Episcopacy favoring the appointment of a resident Bishop for India. Two substitutes were voted down. The vote was then taken, by Conferences, on the original report. The names of the lay delegates were called, when it was ascertained that there were 59 yeas and 81 nays. As more than one-third had voted in the affirmative, the vote was taken by orders, and resulted as follows: Ministerial vote—yeas, 144; nays, 110; lay vote—yeas, 59; nays, 81. The report was not adopted, as it required a concurrent vote of both orders. The report of the Committee on Episcopacy was then read, recommending the election of five Bishops. It was amended by striking out the word "five" and inserting the word "four," and then unanimously adopted.

FOURTEENTH DAY.

The election of Bishops was held to-day. Four Bishops were chosen. No election was had on the first ballot. On the second ballot Rev. Dr. W. X. Ninde, of the Detroit Conference, President of the Garret Biblical Institute, and Rev. Dr. J. M. Walden, of the Western Book Concern, of Cincinnati, were elected. On the third ballot Rev. Dr. Mallalieu, was chosen. On the fourth ballot there was no result. On the fifth ballot Rev. C. H. Fowler was chosen.

Rev. Willard T. Mallalieu is the Presiding Elder of the Boston district of the New England Conference, and Rev. C. H. Fowler is a member of the Rock River Conference and is Missionary Secretary of the General Missionary Society, with his office in New York.

In a recent editorial on the General Conference of our Church the N. Y. Tribune pays a beautiful tribute to Methodism. Among other things it says: "Its century of life is filled with stories of apostolic zeal and heroic self-denial. Its evangelists and colporteurs have penetrated to every portion of the land, and its missionary societies have been lavish in their contribntions to the cause of the Church. No other body of Christians has done more to commend itself to the American people. And it is no disparagement to other communions to say that Methodism in some respects is the truest reflex of the religious thought of the common people of America. It represents the great body of the people—the farmer, the artisan and the workingman. Its simple Gospel message, its fervid enthusiasm, its practical ways of expressing itself in its evangelistic work, the elasticity of its services, and the prominent part which it gives to its laity in those services—all these features have endeared the Methodist communion to the people. It is but fair to add that it has been indefatigable in bringing its message of mercy to the homes of the poor and the lowly throughout the land. As a gurdian and teacher of morality, as a preacher of a gospel of peace and good will toward men, it justly takes an honorable place in the ranks of evangelical Christendom."

The Copiah Outrages.

WASHINGTON, May 6—The report of the Senate Committee of Privileges and Elections in relation to the Copiah branch investigations, which that committee have been making, fearing the signatures, of the five Republican members of the committee was laid before the Senate this afternoon. The Democratic members of the committee will make a minority report.

The report says the committee entered upon its task with almost inexpressible repugnance. Nothing could be more justly odious than to use such investigations and disclosures as partisan instruments unless it be to commit, profit by, or screen crimes, which are investigated. But the rights invaded were rights declared by the National Constitution and which the National Congress was bound to secure by appropriate legislation against infringment or violation by any State. If the powers already conferred upon Congress by the Constitution were not ample for their protection, it would become their duty to propose the granting of further powers, that the blessing of liberty and without distinction of race or color, might not fail through the neglect of any State in its duty. The proposition that the protection to right to vote is secured by the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution is a concern of the whole people and needed no argument. The report points out the number of members of the House and electors given the former slave States by the colored population, and quotes the provision of the Constitution relating to the reduction of the basis of representation when the rights of suffrage are abridged, and declares it to be the duty of Congress, and not a matter of discretion, to take action in the premises whenever the conditions warrant it, and adds: "It is to be hoped the returning conscience of Mississippi, or such laws as Congress may enact, may prevent such a condition of things from becoming permanent in that State, as shall compel Congress to entar upon a discussion whether her representation in Congress must be diminished. The committee can not doubt that the methods which determined the election of county officers in Copiah in 1883 will be in full operation, so far as they may be needed, in determining the vote of Mississippi for Presidential electors and members of Congress in 1884."

DEMOCRATIC CONSPIRATORS.

The committee then reviews the testimony of the alleged outrages in Copiah County. From the facts presented them they conclude that a conspiracy organized by the representative young Democrats, with the countenance of that party in Copiah, was entered into to drive their opponents from the polls. To that end a mob was gathered and systematic outrages perpetrated, ending in murder, one of the victims being a wealthy and generally respected white man. During the whole time these outrages were going on the Democratic State and county officers remained passive, and thus allowed the election to be turned into a mockery.

In conclusion the report says the committee had not time to go into the investigation of the security of constitutional rights in Mississippi. It can only refer to the evidence of witnesses who think Copiah a favorable specimen of the counties of that State, to the documenary matter brought to our attention, to the evidence taken by the Senate committee in 1876, to the testimony in the election cases of the House of Representatives, to the numerous declarations of the Democratic press and to crimes, well known and unpunished, such as the murder of Chisholm, of Dixon; of Foote, United States Collector of Internal Revenue, and three others in Yazoo whose

BLOOD STAINED HANDS

Copiah is so eager to grasp. No legislation dealing with Mississippi alone should be enacted without an investigation which should cover all parts of the State. Before such investigation a National election would have taken place, at which the temper and respect for law of the people of Mississippi will undoubtedly be made fully manifest. If the constitution has not powder enough in its arsenal for the protection of all the rights it confers or recognizes, the people, on being satisfied of the fact, will confer others. Each house of Congress is imperatively required by its duty to refuse seats to persons where election is directly or indirectly due to crime, either of violence of fraud.

The committee recommend the publication for the use of the American people of the testimony taken. They further recommend the passage of Senate bill No. 15, which is designed to furnish a remedy for some of the evils disclosed. They further recommend that after the next election in Mississippi, unless the same shall be unquestionably fair and free, there shall be a full investigation of the condition of things in that State, with a view of determining the qnestion whether a republican government exists there and whether it is entitled to its existing representation, or has forfeited it in whole or in part by reason of denial or infringement of the right to vote of any of its people. The question of further legislation the committee reserves for further consideration.

There is sounding all over the Northwest coast a loader call for men to work the fields of Methodism than ever before. Vast crowds of emigrants are swarming over our plains and prairies, and settlements are growing up in a day. The flocks of eastern shepherds are leaving them and seeking the greener pastures and the clearer streams of the Pacific Coast. To meet them at their coming, to gather them into out folds is more than the few pastors who are here are able to do. Men are wanted. From Idaho, Washington Territory, Oregon and all along the shore comes the same appeal. Not a week but the cry echoes to our ears, "Send us men." During the well nigh one third of a century that we have known this field we never saw its wants so great as now. This enlargement of want does not come from any decrease of laborers but from a vast increase of labor. How to meet the demand cannot be so clearly apprehended.—Pacific Christian Advocate.

When Napoleon Bonaparte was besieging Toulon in 1794, he was directing the construction of a battery one day, and the English troops opened a very hot fire upon his party. Wishing to send a dispatch, he called a sergeant from the ranks to write and carry it. Scarcely was the message written upon a scrap of paper, when a cannon ball passed between the general and the soldier, and covered them both with dust. Napoleon made some remark upon the sergeant's coolness, for he had remained unmoved, only saying, "I wanted a little sand to dust over my letter," and soon after the man got promotion. Step by step rose the brave Junot, until he became a general of the French army, and at length Duke of Abrantes, a name often found in the annals of French glory.

A Lame Ox

It is a common notion that oxen are rather stupid. But the Gloucester Advertiser tells of an ox, which belongs to the Granite Company down there, which certainly is not. It seems that of a yoke of oxen which had belonged to the Granite Company, one had become too lame for further usefulness, and in consideration of past faithful services was turned out to grass. A few days since, he was seen limping toward the blacksmith's shop, where he had been often shod; and making his way into the shop, he took his place in the shoeing frame, and held up a foot to the smith, who watched his singular movements. The blacksmith examined the foot and discovered that a small stone had got crowded under the shoe, and pressed on the foot in a way to produce lameness. The stone was removed, and the animal sent away, no doubt rejoicing in his ox heart that there was at least one man who could understand ox language sufficiently to relieve suffering.

Max Muller tells us of the six great religions of the world, three are non missionary: Judaism, Brahminism, and Zoroastranism. These do not extend their faith. The missionary religions are Buddhism, Mohammedanism, and Christianity. Buddhism is the dominating faith in Japan, Corea, China, Thibet, Siam, Anam, Burmah, and Ceylon. Mohammedanism rules supreme in Arabia, Persia, Afghanistan, Asiatic, Turkey, and Northern Africa. Christianity controls Europe, America, and the new Kingdoms springing up in Australia and Southern Africa. The Buddhistic nations are retrograding, Mohammedan nations weak, but the grandest enterprises bearing on man's social, intellectual and moral well being characterize Christian nations.—Foreign Missionary.

Mardi Gras is no credit to New Orleans, nor to San Francisco. It is a big procession in "Vanity Fair," and lacks nearly every thing that an intelligent person ought to wish. It promotes no good end, or office, and is morally and intellectually debasing. It ought to fail, and for that reason will probably succeed. There are asses enough to make a long procession in almost any city.—California Christian Advocate.

Senator George F. Edmunds, at a radification meeting, held in Burlington, Vt., on the 22d of June, 1880, I have long known General Arthur. The only serious difficulty I have had with the present administration was when it proposed to remove him from the Collectorship of New York. No one questioned his personal honor and integrity. I resisted the attempt to the utmost. Since that time it has turned out that all the reforms suggested had long before been recommended by General Arthur himself, and pigeon-holed at Washington.

The Hon. William Pitt Kellogg, who was at first unwilling to seek a "vindication" before even a Washington jury, and who at last, by pleading the Statute of Limitations, escaped trial before a tribunal that has power to inflict punishment upon the guilty, now asks Mr. Springer's committe, which has no such power, to hear his story. Calling to mind the absence of Mr. Price, an important witness for the prosecution, and the attitude of Mr. Walsh, another very valuable witness for the Government, the members of the committee appear to have decided that they would not allow themselves to be transformed into whitewashers. Mr. Springer will kindly suggest to Mr. Kellogg that he shall ask for an investigation before a special committee of the House. Mr. Kellogg ought to be satisfied with the result of his long "battle" with the Government and his numerous enemies, but some persons never know when they have enough.—N. Y. times.

MR. EDITOR.—I wish to inquire for my people, mother, father, sisters and brothers. Father was Sam Hampton, and belonged to a Mr. Hampton, who lived seven miles East of Huntington. Mother was Mary Bledsoe, and belonged to Yancey Bledsoe. They lived in West Tennessee. Brothers—Henry Clay, Judge (my name), Nicodemus, James, Bradley, Paney, Brown, the youngest. Sisters—Harriet Ann, Rebecca Jane, Edie Ann and Julia. We belonged to Yancey Bledsoe. I was brought to Texas in 1851 by my owner; he came the third time from Tennessee, and then sold me to George Holman. I used to correspond with them, but suddenly I failed to hear from them any more until about four years ago I heard they were in Kansas. I am now in Columbus, Texas, and go by the name of J. D. Haskell. Address me, care of Rev. W. H. Davis, box 35.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for some of my relations, my sister, Eliza Boatner and my brother, Benjamin Boatner. My sister and brother belonged to the estate of old Boatner. My sister was sent to either Houston or Galveston, Texas. My brother was sold to Jesse Carney. My mother was Dina Bortner, father was Matt Boatner. I had a sister, next to Eliza, named Fanny; and I am the oldest one living. My address is Pauline Johnson, No. 4 Willow street, between Cypress and Julia streets, New Orleans, La.

MR. EDITOR—After having been away from my people for a period of twenty-seven years, I wish to inquire, through your paper, for the Brents family, whom I left in Clark county, Va., near Millwood, in the year 1857; six in family, myself making seven; two sisters, two brothers, mother and father. My parents' names were Lewis and Louisa, brothers and sisters were Mathew and Spencer, Betsy, Elizabeth and Susan. I believe that Spencer was the name of the babe, his name is next out of my memory. My name is Hamp Morris. The family was raised by a man by the name of Col. James Belle, after whose death mother was sold to a merchant in business at Millwood by the name of James Clarke. My father never lived with the family, he lived in Winchester, where I was from, and brought to Mississippi by a man by the name of Showater. Since the time mentioned above I have never heard from them. Please read this in both Methodist and Baptist churches. Address me at King P. O., Rankin county, Miss. H. P. BRENT.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people. My mother was named Aggie Drummond; she had three children; their names were Lucinda, George and Toney. My name is George. My former mistress says my mother was carried to Montecello about 51 years ago. Please read this in the churches and day schools. Address me at Harrisville, Simpson county, Miss.

GEO. DRUMMOND.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives; first, my son. His name was Absalom. When I left him he was three years old. I left him in Macon, Georgia, with Abner McGuire. McGuire bought me from Mr. Dave Gaines. Was three years in Macon, Ga., at McKelley's factory. Address Ellen Sherdronnd, Brenham, Washington county, Tex.

King Frederick II. of Prussia.

This monarch was a scoffer at the Christian religion. Among his brave officers was General Von Ziethen, who was a man of noted piety as well as patriotism. Frederick liked him as a man and a soldier, but he disliked him as a Christian. The king gave a large and gay party on Sunday, and invited General Von Ziethen. The general failed to appear. When asked why he was absent he said it was communion Sabbath, and he not only thought it was his duty to go to church, but he preferred communion with the heavenly to the earthly king. Frederick profanely laughed at the Lord's Supper, and those who went to it. The respectful reply of the general was:

"My sword is at your majesty's service, but my conscience belongs to God. I cannot listen to any mocking at my Lord and Saviour. I beseech your majesty to reverance him and his religion, which is the real safety of your realm."

All present was astonished. Frederick was silenced. Shortly after he called General Von Ziethen aside, and had a private interview with him. Just what was said by either is not revealed. But after that Frederick, although there is no reason to believe he became a Christian, was never heard to mock at the Christian religion.

We need nothing now, in this country, to obtain entire emancipation from the horrors of the liquor curse but a little fidelity on the part of the church to Christian duty. The liquor traffic is the one great obstacle in the way of the progress of the Gospel, and it seems to me the church should help with all its might to remove it.—Neal Dow.

Senator Kellogg has been acquitted. But the verdict should have been—"not found out in time," rather than "not guilty."—Globe Democrat.

Speaking of Lot and his choice, in a prayer-meeting recently, it was said that he found the region about Sodom a good place to raise cattle, but a very poor place in which to bring up children. How many Christian people are making some such choice as Lot made, and finding what he found, after it is too late, that it would have been better to have gained less of earthly goods, and had more of those influences and helps which enrich the mind and chasten the spirit.—Sabbath Recorder.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

NEVER FAILS.

"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says a skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, and kidney complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as

THE GREAT

NERVE CONQUEROR

It quiets and composes the patient mainly by the introduction of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists. (14)

It now turns out that London is the victim of a new Yankee humbug. The Chopped Bible.

"Take it and read!" said the voice to Augustine, as he lay in the garden with a roll of the Gospels by his side. He obeyed, and the dissipated skeptic became a Christian preacher.

The best way to acquire faith in the Bible is to read it. The Book is its own evidence.

A few years ago a Bible distributor, while passing through a village of Western Massachusetts, was told of a family in whose home there was not even the cheapest copy of the Scriptures—so intense was the hostility of the husband to Christianity.

The distributor started at once to visit the family, and found the wife hanging out her week's washing. In the course of a pleasant conversation he offered her a neatly-bound Bible.

With a smile which said "Thank you!" she held out her hand, but instantly withdrew it. She hesitated to accept the gift, knowing that her husband would be displeased if she took it.

A few pleasant words followed, in which the man spoke of the need of the mind of Divine direction and of the Divine adaptation of the Bible to that need, and the woman resolved to take the gift. Just then her husband came from behind the house with an axe on his shoulder.

Seeing the Bible in his wife's hand, he looked threateningly at her, and then said to the distributor, "What do you want, sir, with my wife?"

The frank words of the Christian man, spoken in a manly way, so far softened his irritation that he replied to him with civility. But stepping up to his wife, he took the Bible from her hand, saying.—

"We've always had everything in common, and we'll have this too."

Placing the Bible on the chopping-block, he cut it in [illegible] with one blow of the axe, [illegible] one part to his wife [illegible] the other in his pocket, he walked [illegible] chopping wood. At noon he seated himself on a log and began eating his [illegible] Bible suggested itself. He took it [illegible] and his eye fell on [illegible] ing, [illegible] sted in the the story of the Prodigal Son. [illegible] with the son's exclamation, "I

"I will arise and go to my father."

At night he said to his wife with affected carelessness, "Let me have your part of that Bible. I've been reading about a boy who ran away from home, and after having a hard time decided to go back. There my part of the book ends, and I want to know if he ever got back, and how the old man received him."

The wife's heart beat violently, but she mastered her joy, and quietly [illegible] the husband her part [illegible].

He read the story through, and then re-read it. He read on far into the night. But not a word did he say to his wife.

During the leisure moments of the next day his wife saw him reading the new joined parts, and at night he said abruptly.—

"Wife, I think that's the best book I ever read."

Day after day he read it. His wife noticed that he was becoming attached to it. One day he said.—

"Wife, I'm going to try and live by that book; I guess it's the best sort of a guide for man."

And he did. A strong prejudice against religious truth, growing out of a partial conviction of its necessity, is often followed by a changed life; and such was this man's experience.—Youth's Comanion.

It is reported that John B. Gough contemplates a departure from the lyceum platform to religious revivalism. He told a reporter that profanity was his besetting sin. He was not at all inclined to intersperse his ordinary conversation with oaths, but when suddenly excited a whopper was apt to pop out of his mouth. "I've got the biggest and tenderest corns that ever grew on feet," he said. I was waiting on a railroad platform last summer. It was a moist day, and my corns were as sensitive as so many barometers. A lubber of a boy tramped along past me, and every step of his would have driven a pile at a single stroke. I pulled in my feet as far as I could, and felt grateful when he got by me. But my safety was fancied, not real. He turned back before I knew it, and brought his feet down square and hard on mine. I let out some of the most direct and unequivocal curses that ever were uttered. He fled in dismay to a remote corner of the platform. I'd made up my mind before that to become a Christian, and the profanity was no more than out before it was repented of. I went to that boy and apologized. That was my last swearing. I don't think I shall ever swear again."

There are just two sides to the prohibition question; a right side and a wrong side. It is hardly probable that the saloon-keepers, gamblers and other criminals are on the right side. If you are with them look well to your footing.—The Lever.

The Lamp of Life will no longer be published in Albion. Dr Smart finding his duties as agent of Albion College require his whole time, has made arrangements by which the associate editorship will be given to Rev. J. The Son of Monte Cristo. Being the Sequel to "The Wife of Monte Cristo," and end of the Continuation of Alexander Dumas Celebrated Novel of "The Count of Monte Cristo," is in press and will be published immediately by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia.

The American reprint of Mr. Egmont Hake's work, Chinese Gordon, is a valuable addition to the library table. The English edition is its expensive form has had a very large sale, and the present one just issued by R. Worthington [illegible] information [illegible] original, and also brings down the narrative to the present. The dangerous adventures and the personal character of a Christian soldier are always attractive, and the work [illegible] at a moment when, abandoned and alone, he [illegible] his energy, and faith. To [illegible] known the true story of [illegible] such heroic self-abnegation is, as Mr. Hake truly says an education. The story is in every respect a striking one—now leading storming parties in China, now teaching in Egyptian schools and the wilds of the Soudan, now alone and at bay against hordes of fanatics, always a disciple of his Divine Master, a sinless conqueror, a Christian in thought, and [illegible] He [illegible] with a sword [illegible] knows neither fear nor ambition, and who has the mysterious power of fascinating his fellow men. The incidents are romantic, the hero is original in our times. The edition [illegible] the only author[illegible] Price, $1.50.

Mr. R. Worthington will publish this week a novel entitled "Professor Conant." The author is the Hon. Lucius S. Huntington, who was lately Postmaster-general, and has been for years a member of the Queen's Privy Council of Canada, and for the past two years has resided in New York. Professor Conant, at the first an "Oxford professor" and afterward a member of Parliament, wins high distinction as a scholar, a publicist and a statesman. He loves the people, and teaches them to defend democracy and imitate the great American Republic. He visits this country and enjoys such an ovation as John Bright might expect. American [illegible] and homes are open to receive him. The book abounds in English, American and colonial social pictures, and while the Professor studies democracy, now in the great cities and anon at the feet of the farmers, the land-leaguers, the workingman and the colored people, the young "folks" of his party weave romances and the great lord woos the "gentle American girl." The book is written in a kindly and fraternal spirit, and should promote acquaintance and good feeling between the English, American and Canadian cousins, from among whom its characters are drawn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Floral Cabinet (New York; 22 Vesey street) has a paper on the Improvement of Home Grounds. Price 12c.

Our Little Men and Women for June is filled with capital illustrations.

We are in receipt of a new Sunday-school singing book by S. W. Straub entitled "Living Fountain." It contains 192 pages and is printed on fine tinted paper. Price 35c. The Publisher (Mr. S. W. Straub, Chicago,) offers to send one sample copy for examination with a view to its adoption in a Sunday school, to any pastor or S. S. Supt. for 20c.

"American Wild Animals in Art" is the title of an illustrated paper, by Julian Hawthorne, in the June Century which describes the sculptures of Edward Kemeys. Mr. Kemeys, it appears, spent years as a hunter and trapper among the Indians, and has studied his subjects closely from life. His work is well represented in the National Museum at Washington.

Louisa M. Alcott, J. T. Trowbridge, Lucy Larcom, Maurice Thompson, Helen Gray Cone, Palmer Cox, Mrs. S. B. Herrick, E. S. Brooks, and Susan Anna Brown are announced as among the contributors to the June St. Nicholas.

In the June Century the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Robinson will continue his series of open letters to be a consideration of the subject of church music from the stand-point of the choirs.

Mr. S. G. W. Benjamin contributes the fifth paper, describing The Century cruise, to the June number of that magazine. It is illustrated by Burns, and describes a French seaport on an island off the coast of Newfoundland—St. Pierre. The city of St. Pierre, famous for fogs and fisheries, is a miniature government, having its own governor, elective council, judiciary (including a chief-justice and all the various grades), an inshore department of marine affairs, a marine court, department of [illegible] finance, etc.

The New Orleans University.

The Commencement exercises of this institution will be held next week as follows: Baccalaureate Sermon, by the President, Sunday the 25th, at 7:30 o'clock, at Mount Zion Church, on Jackson street. Entertainment in Elocution and Music, at Winan's Chapel, First street, on Tuesday evening, the 27th, at 7:30 o'clock. Commencement, with the address of General Robert B. Elliott, on Wednesday evening, the 28th, at 7:30 o'clock, at Wesley Chapel, Liberty street. It is probable that the meeting of the Alumni will be held on Wednesday, at 12 o'clock, in the University Chapel.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; relieves wind, regulates the stomach and bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 50 cents a bottle. An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh Cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper. [may22-24] 5

"A niece of mine, nine years ago," says D. L. Tilliken, the well-known publisher of Cottage Hearth, "was taken at three months from its consumptive mother's arms, emaciated, and placed on Nidge's Food exclusively. At once it commenced to gain, and was soon plump and healthy; and the child still lives." Such testimony as this shows beyond all cavil its true value. Sold by druggists. Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1.25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF The Pedestal Fund
—OF THE—
Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

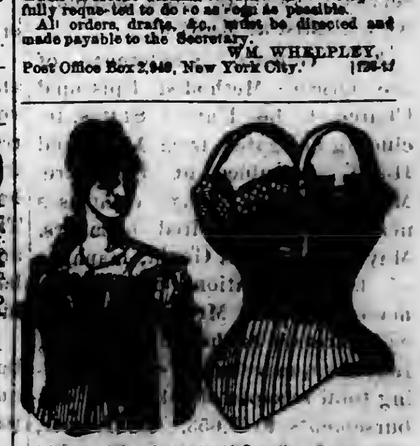
This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of national friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $300,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Stephen F. Andrews, has arranged for a new series of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Steel and Photo-engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.



The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	22x26
Shakespeare and his Friends	22x26
Patrick Mahering his Recruits	22x26
Landing of the Pilgrims	22x26
Departure of the Pilgrims	22x26
Farmer's Saturday Night	22x24
Presenting of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St. Andrew's	22x26

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

The Sanitary Publishing Co., of Chicago, issue a numbet of publications of benefit to persons and households.

We received an invitation to the commencement exercises of Honston Seminary, May 25 20, at Trinity M. E. Church.

The twelfth annual report of the Franklin Reformatory House for Inebriates, of Philadelphia, has been receive!, and records satisfactory results of the past year's work in alleviating human misry and saving immortal souls.

The jubilee edition of the Texas Christian Advocate, Galveston, was edited by Rev. H. S. Thrall. It contains 16 pages, and illustrations of Southern Bishops, churches and prominent men of Texas. There are a number of historical papers on Southern Methodism, especially with reference to its Texas conferences. The matter for a readable book has been presented in a transient newspaper at great cost of labor and material.

The New York Independent recently published a forcible but entirely truthful description of the Howard outrage. The Christian Observer, (Southern Presbyterian) of Louisville, devotes some space under the heading of "The Bloody Shirt," to show "how the men of the North are led by journals that ought to be responsible, to hate and despise the South." Honest men everywhere have reason to despise the pettifogging way in which Southern church journals, the Observer among them, seek to cover up acts of grevious injustice in outbursts of sectional defense and ill feeling.

Referring to the $1,000,000 loan to the World's Exposition, the New York Times says:

What a pity it is that the good people of Louisiana cannot, in return for this favor granted by the tax-payers of the whole country, stamp out that pestilential nuisance the Louisiana Lottery Company before the opening of the great fair! Every other State in the Union has declared the lottery business unlawful by statute or constitution, but the authorities of these States are forced to wage continual war against the agents of the Louisiana Company, who also insolently defy the authority of the National Government. The debasing and ruinous effects of this great nuisance that has its home in New Orleans, and will undoubtedly plunder thousands of those who visit the exhibition, are felt from one end of the country to the other. The people of Louisiana could well afford to make any sacrifice in return for the favor now asked, and suppress it now, before the opening of the exposition.

The General Conference.

SEVENTEENTH DAY.

Fraternal dispatches from the Presbyterians at Saratoga and Bishop Cheney, of the Reformed Episcopal Church, were read and answered.

The judiciary committee reported providing for the appointment of a committee of five lay and two ministerial members to consider the matter of tenure of church property, and it was adopted. The report of the committee on temperance urges the people to use their influence to banish the social glass by the formation of juvenile temperance societies in Sunday-schools. That there shall be one temperance lesson each quarter in the Sunday-school series; State Legislatures are requested to introduce instruction as to the use of alcohol in State universities and public schools. Liquor traffic, which is the chief source of widespread intemperance, is the most gigantic evil of the day.

The committee recommended the formation by the Conference of temperance societies in all the annual conferences. Complete legal prohibition of the liquor traffic is the duty of the civil government. The people ought not to allow themselves to be controlled by party organizations managed in the interests of the liquor traffic. The report was adopted yeas 241, nays 100.

It was announced that Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley had received 281 out of 324 votes for editor of the Christian Advocate.

An election took place for editor of the Western Advocate. Rev. Drs. Bayless, J. W. Mendenhall, F. S. Hoyt and B. F. Rawlins were placed in nomination. Rev. Dr. Arthur Edwards, present incumbent, was nominated and elected editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate.

The report of the committee on Episcopacy, which was presented by Dr. Curry, stated that by a unanimous vote they recommended the election of missionary bishops to Africa. Rev. Dr. Hartzell, of Louisiana, said there were no legal difficulties in the way, and it was time for the Conference to say whether or not they intend to give up Africa. No bishop had visited that country in seven years.

The first ballot for editor of the Western Christian Advocate resulted in no choice. Another ballot was ordered. The Conference then voted for editor of the Central Christian Advocate, and the Rev. Dr. Fry was chosen. The second ballot for editor of the Western Christian Advocate resulted in no choice.

J. M. Phillips, was elected treasurer and Rev. Dr. East Cranston assistant treasurer of the Missionary Society.

Rev. Dr. Bayless was elected editor of the Western Christian Advocate on the third ballot. Rev. O. H. Warren was reelected editor of the Northern Advocate. The ballot for editor of the Pittsburg Advocate resulted in no choice, Rev. Dr. Smith receiving 180 votes, being six less than was necessary.

The committee on the Freedman's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Conference have adopted a report upon the entire question of educational work in the South among whites and blacks. It will doubtless be the subject of a long and lively debate. The report recommends that an appeal be made to the Church to raise $500,000 during the centennial year for work in the South. The committee say in their report that mixed schools and mixed congregations may in many places be most desirable and best for all concerned. In other places one class or other, or both, may prefer separate congregations and separate schools; if so, such is their right, and we heartily concur. The report further states it the jungment of this committee that the entire educational work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States should be under the direction of one society, and that in view of the great success of the Freedman's Aid Society for the past four years, in carrying forward educational work in the South, it believes this society ought to have full charge of the work.

EIGHTEENTH DAY.

Rev. C. W. Smith, It was announced, had been elected editor of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The question of sending a missionary bishop to Africa was taken up, and, after discussion, it was agreed to send a bishop to Africa, and nominations for the place were declared in order.

The greatest confusion prevailed. The secretary announced that the following were proposed to be voted for: Rev. Joshua E. Wilson, of South Carolina; Rev. L. M. Vernon; Rev. C. O. Fisher, of Savannah; Rev. E. W. S. Peck, of Washington; Rev. Wm. Taylor, of India; Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, of Lexington.

The latter withdrew his name.

In the afternoon session the committee on the state of the Church submitted the question of the future policy of the church toward social prejudice in the South, which, in some cases, excludes colored people from church membership and school attendance with whites. The sub-committee presented two reports.

The majority report declared that no person should be excluded from worship in any church or from attendance upon any school on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

The minority report declared that color is no bar to any right or privilege of membership or office in the church, but "recognized the propriety of such administration as will secure the largest concession to persons preferences involving merely social relations," and concluded that therefore there was no need for action upon this subject.

After a long discussion the previous question was ordered. A standing vote showed a tie upon the adoption of the minority report. Gov. Pattison, who presided, thereupon cast his vote, amid applause, against the minority report. By the same vote the majority report was adopted.

The conference elected to the African Bishop.ic Wm. Taylor, of the South India Conference.

Dr. B. F. Crary was elected editor of the California Christian Advocate.

NINETEENTH DAY.

The election of Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, as editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and Rev. Wm. Nast, as editor of the Christian Apologiste, was announced.

The committee on Freedmen's Aid and work in the South submitted a report embodying resolutions, stating that the question of separate or mixed schools was one of expediency, to be left to the judgment of those more immediately concerned, and the entire work should be under the control of one society, and the Freedmen's Aid Society should have control.

A few amendments not materially altering the effect, were made and the report was adopted.

The ceremony of consecrating the bishops-elect was proceeded with.

Bishop Simpson presided, and was assisted by the other bishops in performing the consecration ceremonies.

TWENTIETH DAY.

The report the Sunday-school committee recommending the publication of Sonnday-school hymnal, was unanimously adopted without debate.

The committee of Freedmen's Aid and work in the South submitted a number of reports, which were voted upon without discussion. A report adopted suggested that an appeal be made to the Church for $500,000 as a centennial offering to the great work of the Freedmen's Aid Society, and proposed to authorize the Freedmen's Aid to make similar efforts in the South to increase the fund.

Report No. 5 declared it unwise to change the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society. Adopted.

Report No. 6 advocated changes in the discipline. Adopted seriatim. The report was then adopted as a whole.

Another report concerning the growth of the Church in the South was presented, and a strong appeal for its adoption was made by Rev. Dr. Hartzell. The Conference voted in favor of the report being printed and laid over until to-morrow.

A minute of esteem was presented to Bishop Simpson, the paper being signed by Rev. J. M. Buckley, John Lanahan, Rev. Wm. F. Warren, president of the Boston University, Gov. Pattison, ex-Gov. John Evans of Colorado, Oliver Hoyt, and Judge Reynolds.

The committee on judiciary submitted twenty-one reports, giving legal opinions upon various matters concerning ecclesiastical work which has been referred at different times to the committee. Rulings upon different memorials were adopted. The reading, discussion and adoption of the reports occupied the remainder of the session.

TWENTY-FIRST DAY.

A fraternal address from the Irish Methodist Conference was presented. Rev. J. H. Caldwell, of Wilmington, obtained a suspension of the rules to present a resolution. In reading the objective portion of his paper, Rev. Mr. Caldwell read the preamble as follows.

Whereas, Rev. Wm. Taylor, who was elected by more than two-thirds of the members of the general conference and then solemnly consecrated missionary bishop to Africa, has been invited to occupy a seat on the platform with other bishops consecrated at the same time and by the same ceremony, but declined the invitation. We are therefore constrained to feel a painful sense of the peculiarity of the position he occupies in this body. It is a singular position, eccentric, anomalous and unlike anything that has occurred in the hundred years of our history——

At this juncture Rev. W. H. Olin moved that the regular order be taken up, and by an overwhelming vote Rev. Mr. Caldwell was ruled out of order. That part of the resolution which he was not permitted to finish had for its object the removal of the limitation to the episcopal jurisdiction of Bishop Taylor as a missionary bishop of Africa, and placing that bishop on an equal footing with the other bishops.

An animated discussion followed upon the report of the committee on lay representation in the Annual Conference.

The report provides for lay representation in the Annual Conference on the basis of one layman to every six pastoral charges or presiding elders of a district, and one for every portion of two-thirds, to be chosen by districts, at stewards' meeting. The layman is to be entitled to equal rights with the ministry, except to vote for ministerial delegates to the General Conference or the admission of ministers to the Annual Conference, or on the character of ministers.

The report from the committee on lay representation provided for the equalization of ministerial and lay representation in the General Conference by reducing the ministerial representation from one in every forty-five elergymen to one in every sixty, and allowing one lay delegate to every ministerial delegate. The debate on the subject was general. Rev. J. M. Buckley moved to refer the whole matter of lay and ministerial representation to a special committee. Carried—171 to 140.

The report of the committee on the subject of entertainment of delegates to the General Conference of 1888 was next presented. It provided for the appointment of a commission to make all arrangements for the next General Conference, which was suggested should be held in the People's Church, Boston, or wherever else a majority of the commission should decide.

Rev. Dr. Buckney favored the report, excepting that portion fixing upon Boston as the next meeting place. As the General Conference only meets every four years, he was of the opinion that it should convene in each large city but once in every half century. It met thirty-two years ago in Boston; therefore some other place should be favored in 1888.

Rev. J. W. Hamilton, pastor of the People's Church, Boston, extended to the Conference a hearty invitation to meet there at its next meeting. G. L. Dare moved that the invitation be accepted. Laid on the table. The report was then adopted by a vote of 117 to 105, and the Conference adjourned.

The Common School Teacher.

The future of the race socially and morally depends very much upon the life of the teacher in the common school room. The children will be, in many respects, whatever he is. They are placed under his care while their hearts are young and tender, and can be easily bent in the right or wrong direction. Most good men are made in their childhood. A good education guided by a bad heart will most invariably go to destruction. This however is not an argument against education, but against the heart that directs it. These high considerations leads us to the conclusion that the great need of every school is a pious Christian gentleman at its head. I say Christian because I am certain that the religious demands of the school cannot be met in the unconverted. A man who does not care for his own soul will care but little for the souls of others. The whole discipline of our high institutions both in its spirit and principles is Christian. In private and public admonition these views of right and wrong and those motives to duty which are presented in the Bible are kept prominently in view. The result is the happy conversion of hundreds to God every year. I am persuaded that a like government in the Common school will produce like effect.

The teacher should let his scholars hear him read the scriptures and ask God's blessing upon their studies every morning. This will tend to draw them closer to him, and will give him a pleasant place in their heart and affection. The unconverted teacher seldom attends Sabbath school. If he is not under a legal he is under a moral obligation to it. We suppose they stay away because they know that their instructions there would fall at their feet. Their words would go about as deep in the heart of the child as a feather could be driven into a rock: each child will ask himself can the blind lead the blind? We feel that the Trustees have too long failed to give this all important matter a place in their considerations. We have no sympathy with that grovelling spirit which raises the lips of contempt against every thing in town or country not obviously and immediately subservient to worldly gain. These we consider irreconcilable foes to a sound Christian education and therefore we would not afford them the slightest countenance.

Letter From Waco.

MR. EDITOR—We have not been idle, though silent. Elder Gates has informed you concerning my absence from the charge, but allow me to correct a mistake. I was only absent three weeks and two days, not a month, and that not canselessly. Prior to leaving for San Antonio a prayer meeting was commenced, which seemed to have the desired effect among the people, as many penitent sinners came to the altar for prayers. This meeting was continued during my absence for two weeks, and there was one conversion. On my return I found the stewards and trustees were confused concerning my long absence. I found also that the presiding elder thought it strange, and that I was away from my work unnecessarily. The fact is that on arrival home I found that my mother was dead, and my wife who has been ill since the early part of January, had become apparently worse from the sudden and unexpected death of mother. There was then no one to care for my feeble wife, as mother had done before death. The year has been one of trial and sorrow. I have lost a life with her parents at Alleyton, and returned to my ministerial duties. Church labors have been blessed. The debt of $300 has been reduced to $72 80, which will be paid in a very short time. Our Sunday-school is moving on, and we will have a supply of necessary books in a few days. The church has been revived spiritually. In protracted meetings there were 2 conversions. Revs. J. W. Robinson and H. Swan rendered valuable services for which I feel grateful. Rev. S. Gates, passing through, stopped and preached one night with us. Also Revs. B. W. Roberts of A. M. E. Church, and Miles Irvin, of the Second Baptist Church lent us helping hands. Quarterly conference was held by Elder Gates on the 23d. Class leaders reports were encouraging. On Sunday Rev. A. Foster, of Port Sullivan, preached, and sacrament was administered to 106 souls. Collections during the day $40.50.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK

TENNESSEE.

The Chattanooga correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution reports that our white Methodist friends are in trouble again about their University. The news has leaked out that the land for the site has been deeded to the Freedmen's Aid Society, and that the constitution of the Society makes no distinctions on account of color. It is a fact that this Society refused a lot of land recently because the owner refused to specify in the deed that no building to be built on it should be used for whites. Nothing remains to be done but for the Society to deed the property to the trustees, or disgrace itself by refusing. The University is to be opened to students. We are glad to know that trouble when we see it, and stand by principle for the right.—Atlanta Ele-

A. P. Blackmore, Springfield: "There is too much talk about hard times, and we do not think enough of the experiences of our Lord. We made this the subject of a sermon at one of our appointments."

W. B. Denny, Nolensville: "I have just closed my protracted meeting at Mt. Pisgah which continued 19 nights. The Lord was with us and we felt His spirit present. We had the pleasure of having Bro. H. Prinn with us preaching and listening to his interesting sermons from the Church has been greatly built up. It seems to go ont battle for the Lord. 14 have been converted, 12 added to the Church. We are doing all we can for the Lord. Pray for us."

Embry, Pine Bluff: "We have Wesley Chapel Little Rock, 28, at the order of Bishop Wiley. We were met by a number of faithful brethren, who have comfortable quarters. Our new pastorate, new church, which was erected during his absence. The church is not yet finished. When it shall be completed it will equal in beauty and architectural beauty, anything the white people or colored denominations have. Bro. Johnson, the former pastor, and the faithful few who labored with him, deserve great credit for the marvelous piece of work they have done here. Only a few days building a church worth $5,7000, supported by the people, giving to the support of the church and carrying on the work within $500 of completion with ease is simply wonderful. Bro. Johnson and we will fully appreciate the labors of a white gentleman of energy and enterprise who has so many friends about Little Rock. Give those people a chance and they will build up the country. Many people in the country, having no pastors, having lost sight of the question and the truth which speaks for itself, we say, well after all the Church is doing more for the masses than any other. Address of the Bishops.

To the Members of the Nineteenth Delegated General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church:

(Concluded from last week.)

It will also be remembered that the last General Conference directed the Bishops to devise a plan for the centennial year, reporting to the Church as early as convenient. Under this action they prepared a circular, which was sent to the different annual conferences, and also published in the several Church papers. They did not consider themselves authorized to complete the arrangements for the centennial services, but to take only such action as was necessary before the meeting of this General Conference.

They submit the whole matter to the wisdom and decision of your body, and they trust that your action will lead the Church to a more thorough consecration to the cause of Christ, and to such thank offerings as shall be worthily commemorative of our centennial year.

METROPOLITAN CHURCH.

The Bishops were requested to make an earnest appeal to the Churches in behalf of the debt on the Metropolitan Church in Washington City. An appeal was accordingly issued, but as only a small amount was realized in collections, they appointed, committed the matter as of special interest to, C. C. McCabe, the Assistant Secretary of the Church Extension Board. They have now the great satisfaction of reporting to this Conference that through his indefatigable labors, which merit the thanks of the Bishops and of the General Conference, the debt upon this church, of over $50,000, has, at length, been entirely removed.

DECISION OF LAW.

According to the direction of the last General Conference, the formal decisions of law rendered by us during the last four years are here with submitted.

It has been necessary to convene a considerable number of Judicial conferences during the quadrennium. Our observation leads us to commend to your consideration the question whether these conferences ought to be longer permitted to reverse the findings of the "select number," or of an annual conference, or to remand a case for a new trial on merely technical grounds, or because of errors in the proceedings of the court below; which errors do not materially affect the question of the guilt or innocence of the appellant.

PUBLICATIONS

The publishing interest of the Church continue to prosper and enlarge. The reports of the Book Committee and of the Agents will show, in detail, what has been accomplished.

Notwithstanding the activity of our publishing interests thus set forth, we cannot conceal from ourselves the fact that but little Church literature is read by very many of our members, and that in consequence great numbers of our youth are without the proper knowledge of the history, doctrine, usages and movements of the Church. We note, however, with high satisfaction the energy displayed in the Sunday-school Union and the Tract Society, and the number and value of the publications issued from these departments.

The circulation of our Sunday-school papers has remarkably increased; Sunday-school requisites of the first order have been greatly multiplied; Sunday-school institutes have raised the standard of Sunday-School instruction, and the number of children and teachers has increased during the last four years to 1,932,926.

We note also with great pleasure that during the last quadrennium more attention has been given to Bible classes for adults, and we trust that this Conference will recommend that more attention be given by the pastors and Sunday-school superintendents to this department of the work.

EDUCATION.

The cause of education has been greatly advanced during the last four years. In several instance embarrassing debts have been removed from our institutions of learning, and they are advancing, with brigat prospects for the future. It also gives us great pleasure to say that a large increase has been made in several instances in the endowment of our literary institutions, among which are worthy of special notice the contribution by George T. Seney, of New York, of $600,000 to the Wesleyan University, and of W. C. DePauw, of New Albany, Indiana, of several hundred thousand dollars to the Indiana Asbury University, already paid, with a prospective arrangement by this liberal donor for a much larger sum. A debt of $200,000, which had been pressing upon the Northwestern University, has been removed through the generous liberality of its friends. The Boston University has come in full possession of the large legacy left by the lamented Isaac Rich, and has been enabled to enlarge its systematic work. The Wesleyan College, in Cincinnati, has been relieved from the embarrassment which almost destroyed it, and it is now in a healthful and active condition.

The chief contribution for educational work during the quadrennium has been in the removing of debts and in strengthening the institutions already established. A new institution, however, has been established in Denver, Colorado, and is in successful operation, with good prospect for the future. Hamline University, in Minnesota, after years of suspended animation, has begun a new career of enlarged usefulness, with buildings costing about $100,000, and fully paid for, and a large increase of its endowment. There has been a general increase in the number of students in attendance especially in the seminaries where we believe excellent work is being accomplished for the Church, in the education of large numbers of young men and women.

In the theological departments there has also been marked enlargement. The Garrett Biblical Institute, in Evanston, has been relieved from a serious debt, which was one of the results of the large fire in Chicago some years ago. The Drew Seminary has realized a large portion of the amount which had been subscribed towards its endowment. A theological chair has been established and endowed in the Asbury University, with generous promise of future enlargement in this department.

The statistics of our educational work show in the entire Church 10 theological institutions, 45 colleges and universities, 60 classical seminaries, 8 female colleges and seminaries and 19 schools of high grade connected with foriegn missions. In these institutions the value of the buildings and grounds is estimated at $7,594,640; the amount of endowments is $7,031,176; the number of teachers, 1409; students for the last year, 28,621; with an estimate of students since their beginning of 414,518. Upon these grounds and buildings the estimated debt remains of $592,476, the chief of which part rests upon a few colleges and seminaries. That this debt may be wholly removed during this centennial year is devoutly to be wished.

The Board of Education has increased its efforts, and is meeting with no small encouragement. In 1882 it appointed Daniel P. Kidder Corresponding Secretary. He has devoted his attention to all the interests of the Board, especially the interests of "Children's Day." Through his efficiency the collections have been greatly increased and we believe the celebration of the "Children's Day" will have a large influence over the minds of the youth in directing them to the subject of higher education.

The proceeds of the "Capital Fund," together with part of the collections, have been devoted chiefly to the education of young men for the ministry; these having a foreign field in view have been specially cared for. A number of promising young men and women who are contemplating Church work as teachers have also been aided. Were the funds of the Board to be enlarged a great good would result to the Church.

FREEDMAN'S AID SOCIETY.

Under the vigorous administration of the Freedman's Aid Society, help has been extended to a large number of institutions in the Southern States, chiefly for the education of colored young men and women. The progress of the work of the Society during the quadrennium has been very remarkable. Several valuable new buildings having been erected. A substantial new edifice has been constructed for the Biblical Institute in Baltimore, and a Theological School has been established and partly endowed in Clark University, in Atlanta. The Meharry Medical School, erected during the quadrennium at Nashville, Tennessee, is doing excellent work.

In pursuance of the directions of the last General Conference, aid has also been given to some institutions in the South, designed more especially for white students. Schools of considerable magnitude have been commenced at Little Rock, Arkansas, and at Chattanooga, Tennessee; the planting of such institutions indicate the settled policy of the Church to be national and not sectional.

Especial relief has been extended to the institutions at Athens, Tennessee, and Elijay, Georgia. The report of the Society will show the magnitude of the work which has been performed, and the prosperity which has attended its labors.

MISSIONS.

While the Church has been strengthening its literary institutions and educating its youth, it has not forgotten its great duty of participating in the evangelization of the world. The Missionary Society, one of its grandest and most efficient agencies, not only retains but has greatly strengthened its hold upon the affections of the Church. All our missions have been maintained in working order, and some of them have been exceedingly prosperous. Our work in China comprises one annual conference in South-eastern China, and three distinct missions located respectively in North, Central and West China; that of West China having been established since the last General Conference.

By means of munificent special contributions the educational work in Japan has been greatly enlarged. In India and South India there has been a steady increase of members. The work in Europe, especially in Germany and Switzerland, and in Sweden and Norway, has developed into efficient and energetic annual conferences, and the conference of India is also promising, though yet comparatively young and small.

The Mission in Denmark has maintained its position with encouraging enlargement, while the Missions in Mexico and South America give signs of great promise for the future. The organization of our work in Europe remains the same as it was in 1880, except that the "Italy Mission" has become the Italy Conference. In most of the fields occupied there has been a satisfactory growth in all the elements of Church life. This is also true of the missions in South America and Mexico.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society has been a faithful and successful co-worker in the foreign field. Its income has steadily and largely increased from year to year. It has efficient workers in nearly all the foreign missions; has sent capable medical missionaries to India, to China, and to Japan, and is about establishing a paper designed more especially for the women of India. The Executive Committee has shown marked devotion and energy in its work. While the contributions of this Society may have curtailed to some extent the receipts of the General Missionary Treasury, its work has largely augmented the missionary spirit of the Church, and we doubt not will lead to increased contributions in the future.

Within the last four years a Woman's Home Missionary Society has been organizied, having its centre in Cincinnati. Its object is to furnish teachers and found industrial schools for the women of the Southern States, Utah and elsewhere. It proposes to accomplish in our country what the "Woman's Foreign Missionary Society" is doing for the lands abroad, and to work in harmony with the Missionary authorities of our Church. This Society though young has already accomplished a good work; has established a few model homes and promises to be a potent agency for good among the women of the land. Its officers will make application to your body to be incorporated into the general system of benevolence established by the General Conference.

The working of these societies has also rapidly developed a power higherto largely latent in the Church, and the benefit resulting from the increased activity of so many Christian women is scarcely to be estimated.

In view of the constantly increasing magnitude and the variety of administration in the missionary work of the Church, we desire to suggest to you the importance of considering whether something should not be done to bring our whole missionary work into greater simplicity, harmony and unity of administration.

CHURCH EXTENSION.

The Board of Church Extension has greatly enlarged its work in the last four years, affording help to many churches throughout the land, and especially in the South and West. We are pleased likewise to recognize the excellent work the Society has done in improving our church architecture and in enlarging the Loan Fund, through which much valuable property has been saved.

An increasing spirit of liberality has also shown itself in the establishment of charitable institutions. Homes for the aged have been established in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, chiefly through the untiring labor of the active women of the Church, and the collections made by them in comparative small amounts.

We mention, with profound satisfaction, the gift of Geo. I. Seney, of New York, for the establishment of a hopsital in Brooklyn to be known as the "Methodist Episcopal Hospital." He has already erected commodious and ample buildings on a most eligible site, at a cost exceeding $600,000 dollars.

TEMPERANCE.

On the great moral questions of the day the tone of our periodicals has been earnest and uniform. Especially have we been gratified with the fact that in all parts of the Church our ministry and membership, with scarcely an exception, have been firm and aggressive in their devotion to the cause of Temperance. In the great struggle for prohibition which has occurred in some of the Western States the position of our people has been one of unyielding devotion to the principles of constitutional prohibition. While we may have lost a few members by the firm attitude of the Church, we have no doubt that our high position will be maintained in the future, and that the Church will continue to oppose all forms of intemperance, until legal sanction of the evil shall be removed from the statute books of all our States.

DIVORCE.

We view with alarm the laxity of the laws in many of the States on the subject of divorce, and fear that the sentiment of the Christian people of the country is not up to the standard demanded by the Holy Scriptures on the subject. We ask the attention of the General Conference to the expediency of more stringent regulations in regard to the solemnization of marriages between divorced persons; and also the importance of making some distinct utterance on the prevalence of the terrible crime of polygamy in our Territories.

The success of the Church must ever depend: 1st. Upon an earnest, indefatigable and consecrated ministry; 2d. Upon a devoted and actively co-operating membership; 3d. Upon the rich baptism of the Holy Spirit which God has promised to his true servants.

CONCERNING THE MINISTRY.

We have reason to thank God for the efficient ministers whom he has raised up and given this Church—men consecrated to His service; and we believe no class of men in the world have given clearer proof of devotion to the cause of Christ than the great body of our itinerant ministers. We cannot, however, ignore the fact that in almost every annual conference there are men who have been admitted on insufficient evidence of fitness for the ministry, and who have not proved of real service to the Church. We most earnestly commend to the Church a more thorough examination and trial of candidates for the ministry. The few who fail effect the reputation and standing of the whole body. While not sought for by the people, they often claim, because of their years in the ministry, a right to the more prominent appointments, and failing to secure them, complain of the Church and of its authorities, and spread a spirit of disaffection through the Church. Our observation is that where the ministry is holy and aggressive the Churches prosper, whether in our rural districts or in our cities, but when men remain in the ministry simply to retain positions and to receive support and mechanically preform the duties of the office, our Churches fail. Not only is care needed in admissions to the conferences, but there should be some way in which inefficient ministers might be more easily retired; that the conference might be able to receive active and promising men who are offering themselves for the work.

In exercising the power committed to us of transferring ministers from one conference to another we have endeavored to serve the Church rather than individual interests. Yet we have found an embarrassment not only in relation to this matter, but in making the more important appointments where no transfer is contemplated, by reason of the negotiations which have been made between preachers and people without consultation with those on whom the responsibility rests. In this growing habit of unofficial negotiations, we see the shadow of dangers to the essential economy of the Church.

TIME LIMIT.

There has been some discussion, and some annual conferences have taken action in relation to the removal of the time limit from itinerancy. In every instance where this matter has been brought to the attention of the conferences, the majority—generally a very large majority—have protested against the removal of the limit. In a few instances, however, conferences have desired some flexibility to meet very exceptional cases of great emergency, and some of the conferences have asked the attention of the General Conference to the question whether, without endangering the itinerancy, there might not be some provision made by which, in such cases, the ministerial term could be extended for four or five years, under suitable safeguards; whether these exceptions could be made without endangering the general system we commend to your careful consideration.

REFUSAL TO GO TO APPOINTMENTS.

We have also observed in some of the conferences a tendency to look more leniently on refusals to go to assigned appointments when they chance to be among the less prominent. It is a striking fact, however, that out of the more than ten thousand appointments made every year, there are so few cases in which either ministers refuse to accept appointments, or the Churches decline to receive the ministers assinged them. The attachment to Church order in this respect is, at once, very remarkable and absolutely essential.

NECESSITY OF MORE BISHOPS.

We beg leave to say that the depletion of our numbers and the increasing magnitude of the work of the Church will suggest to you the necessity of adding to the number of Bishops. How many shall be added, we leave to your own wise and thoughtful consideration.

May we also add the suggestion that the business of the Conference should proceed in its earliest hours with as much expedition as possible, so that no more time shall be spent than the necessity of the work shall require.

May we also affectionately ask that every brother who has come as a delegate to the General Conference shall resolve to remain until his duties have been faithfully discharged, and the final adjournment reached.

GRACE OF GOD.

Brethren: We cannot close this brief review without a new magnifying the grace of God which has been so marvelously manifested toward our beloved Church in the past hundred years. When we revert, as we do this day, to our small and unpromising beginnings, and remember how God has been with our fathers, and with us even to this day for three generations, opening up the way before us, honoring us as He has honored none of our contemporaries, building us stately and strong over all the land and to the very ends of the world, making us to be among the great powers of the earth; we are constrained at the same time to humble ourselves and acknowledging that the power has all been of God, to ask that we now devote ourselves more completely than ever to the service of the cause and the building up of His kingdom in the earth. The retrospect of the old and the dawn of the new century find us with high hopes and courage. As the guardians of the precious heritage which has descended to us from the fathers, you will, we doubt not, use becoming diligence to hand it along undiminished and untarnished to the generations following. The interests which come before you will receive that godly attention which their importance demands.

You will, we are sure, discountenance all ends and measures unworthy of the sacred character you bear at whatever cost of vigilance and courage. You will not lose sight of the one thing for which as a Church we exist; namely, to spread scriptural holiness over the earth.

RESPONSIBILITY OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The rulers and regulations you shall make and all other official acts you shall perform while here will be with a single eye. You have come to a time when great carefulness and great wisdom are demanded. We are sure that you will diligently apply yourselves to prayers for the light and help which come alone from God, and without which there can be nothing wise or strong or good. The eyes not simply of the assembled or passing crowd of the city in which you meet are upon you, but the eyes of our entire Church throughout the world, and of other sister Churches and of the nation and nations as well. In reminding you of these things we do not presume to admonish or even exhort you, but simply to arrest your thought. You are human, and it is inevitable that much that is human will cling to your best endeavors; but we are sure that God's spirit is in you and you will wait listening to His voice. In so doing you will not fail to meet worthily the obligations under which you act, and properly to take care of the interests committed to you; and when in a few days you return to your homes and customary vocations, it will be, we trust, with the consciousness of having performed your work with the purest and noblest fidelity to God and His Church. Your decisions and acts will be felt around the globe in the remotest East, in the most distant West, not for to-day only, but for all time, weakening or strengthening the hopes of humanity. Not only the present and especially the future of your own Church will be affected, but the entire brotherhood of Christendom will be hurt or helped by your proceedings. God has placed you in the van in the crisis hours of the world's great struggle. The Master Himself watches from the throne. Let there be no disappointment in the results.

Finally, dearly beloved brethren, we desire now again to commend you to God and the word of His grace, praying that the Holy Spirit may be present and helpful in all your deliberations and conclusions, to the end that His name may be glorified, and his kingdom enlarged and established in the earth.

We are, dear brethren, most sincerely and affectionately your brothers and fellow laborers in the Gospel of Christ:

The General Conference.

FOURTEENTH DAY.

This morning John M. Phillips and the Rev. Sanford Hunt were elected book agents at New York.

The Committee on Itinerancy reported a resolution declaring that direct negotiations between pastors and churches in advance of making appointments by the Bishop are contrary to the spirit of our itinerant ministry, subversive of ecclesiastical polity, and should be discouraged by bishops, pastors and people.

Mr. Amos Shinkle, of Kentucky, said if ministers were ever appointed without having been consulted by the Bishop he was unaware of it. After debate the report was adopted.

The Committee on Itineracy reported it inexpedient to take action as to licensing women to preach or ordaining them.

After a short debate, action on the report was postponed until tomorrow.

The Rev. Earl Cranston and the Rev. W. P. Stowe were elected agents of the Book Concern at Cincinnati.

At the evening session Bishop Foster presided, and addresses were made by the following fraternal delegates: The Rev. Dr. I. B. Aylesworth, of the Methodist Church of Canada; the Rev. Dr. J. Rankin of Washington, representing the National Congregational Association, and the Rev. Jean Paul Cook, of the Methodist Church of France and Switzerland. A few closing remarks were made by the Rev. D. C. John, of the Committee on Reception of Fraternal Delegates.

FIFTEENTH DAY.

The report of the committee on licensing women to preach was adopted. The report was in effect that it was inexpedient to act on the subject.

The report of the committee on Book Concern relative to the German hymn book was adopted.

The Conference agreed that missions to Japan and Mexico be organized into annual conferences.

The motion to refer to committee on boundaries the part of the report relative to enabling the organization of Denmark mission into an annual conference was defeated, and the report enabling for Denmark was adopted.

SIXTEENTH DAY.

The consecration of bishops-elect was fixed for Thursday. The committee on missions reported that permission be granted for a division of the South India Conference into two annual conferences during the quadrennium, if the exigencies of the case demand.

Rev. Dr. Leonard, of Cincinnati, said unless greater harmony prevails in future than in the past, the smaller the delegation from India the better. An appeal was made to Bishop Foster; he stated in his own opinion that there was no demand now for two conferences in South India. The report of the committee was adopted.

The committee on missions recommended the election of two coordinate corresponding secretaries for the Missionary Society. Adopted. Drs. Reid, of Michigan, and McCabe, of New York; Goucher, of Baltimore; Hare, of New York; Fitzgerald, of Newark; Olin of Wyoming, and Todd, were placed in nomination.

The committee on nominations presented a report recommending the adoption of the following:

Resolved, That we recommend to the favorable consideration of the general mission committee at the next session, the subject of the establishment of missions at such places among the Roman Catholic population of this country as they deem expedient, and an appropriation of moneys for the same, such missions to be administered as foreign missions.

Dr. Frampton, of Ohio, moved to strike out the words "among the Roman Catholic population."

Rev. Dr. King moved to strike out the words "to be administered as foreign missions."

The motion to lay the report on the table was lost; both amendments were then laid on the table, and the report of the committee was adopted.

Tellers reported that Rev. Dr. J. M. Reid and Rev. C. C. McCabe were elected missionary secretaries.

Rev. Kynett, of Upper Iowa, was elected corresponding secretary of the Church Extension Society.

Rev. Dr. Rust was elected secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society. Rev. Dr. Vincent was elected secretary of the Sunday-school Union. Rev. Dr. Buckley, of New York, and Rev. Dr. Crooks were nominated editors of the Christian Advocate. Rev. Dr. Lanahan, of Baltimore, was authorized by Rev. Dr. Crooks to withdraw his name. Rev. Dr. Curry was elected editor of the Quarterly Review.

A Reminiscense of Anti-slavery Times.

BY THE REV. DANIEL WISE, D.D.

The decease of Wendell Phillips, with numerous comments of the press upon that gentleman's character, brought freshly to mind many reminiscences of the old anti-salvery movement, with which I was more or less identified from 1835 and onward. Among these recollections was that of a spirited scene which I witnessed in Boston during the session of the General Conference of 1852. The Massachusetts Anti-slavery Society was holding its quarterly meeting in the Melodeon; Garrison, Phillips, Edmund Quincy, and other magnates of the party, were present. The hall was crowded with their followers, many of whom were Hicksite Quakers from Lynn, mingled with devotees of Garrison mostly belonging to Boston and its immediate vicinity. Besides these were a few anti-slavery men not affiliated with the Garrrison Society, but attracted to the meeting by curiosity to hear what orators might say in their expected assaults on the Church generally and on Methodism in particular.

That the reader may fairly comprehend the character of the singularly constituted assembly, he needs to be reminded that the Churchly elements of the Massachusetts Anti slavery Society, of which Garrison was the idol, had withdrawn from it as far back as 1839. And this not because their devotion to the cause was less pronounced or less self-sacrificing than that of those who remained in it, but because Mr. Garaison, having abandoned some of his original opinions respecting the duty of taking political action for the overthrow of slavery, and having adopted certain non-resistance, disunion, and anti-Church notions, had insisted on using the Liberator for their dissemination, and on their discussion at the meetings of the society. Many clergymen, and many members belonging to various evangelical Churches, who had been pioneers, or at least early Abolitionists, protested against this perversion of the society from its original aim. Some of its lecturing agents—the writer among them—joined this protest. Garrison and his devotees denounced both the protest and its motives. The result was, that in the latter part of the year 1838 a new society—the Massachusetts Abolition Society—was organized, and in January, 1839, a new paper—the Massachusetts Abolitionist—was started as its organ, and flourished until merged in the Emancipator. When the astute Joshua Leavitt, whom John Quincy Adams called the ablest political editor in the country, removed that powerful sheet from New York to Boston, this new society speedily drew into itself the great majority of evangelical antislavery men and women throughout the State. Henceforth the Hicksite Quakers, anti-Churchmen who called themselves Come-outers, non-evangelical religionists, and here and there an orthodox believer, constituted the chief strength of the Garrison party.

Of these latter classes, therefore, the above named meeting at the Melodeon was mostly composed. The chair was filled, if my memory is not at fault, by Edmund Quincy, Esq., a high-bred, refined, delicate Bostonian, whose thin voice uttered words which, however lacking in weight, were seldom lacking in bitter spitefulness toward the clergy and the Churches. Garrison was among the speakers. Innocent, almost saintly, in aspect, not an orator, yet a speaker whose sharp, earnest words always struck home, he, as usual at this period of the antislavery crusade, hurled his javelin, no only slavery so much as on the Churches which he regarded as its chief bulwarks. Phillips with his incomparable oratory spoke also in the same vein. Both were exceedingly bitter that day against Methodism. A report had reached them that one member at least of the General Conference, then sitting in Bromfield Street Church, was a slave-holder. This allegation moved them to make the Methodist Episcopal Church the butt of their oratorical arrows. Their indictment of its historical and existing connection with slavery was terrible, fiery, and apparently conclusive. It captured the willing audience, who cheered its principal points to the echo, and seemed won to a belief that Methodism was pro-slavery that from the crown of its head to the soles of its feet there was no soundness in it, and that its overthrow would be a blessing to antislaveryism, if not to civilization.

After the applause of the excited assembly which followed the brilliant peroration of Mr. Philips had subsided, and Methodism lay prostrate before its imagination like a knight of the olden time wounded to death by the champion of the tournament lists, the tall, lithe, manly figure of the Rev. Mark Trafton was seen to rise from a seat not far from the platform. Fixing his clear, piercing eyes on the chairman, with a smile of suppressed humor playing upon his lips he addressed the chair in a voice which, though not wholly free from embarrassment, was yet indicative of self-possession and of consciousness of ability to effectnally answer at least the main charge of those doughty antagonists of his Church. All the circumstances considered, it was an act of moral daring in him or any other man to attempt to stem the torrent of indignation against Methodism and other Churches which was surging through the assembly. He knew that those people were not there to learn the truth through calm inquiry into facts, but only to enjoy an eloquent putting of their own foregone conclusions. They were possessed by an anti-Church passion which blinded their judgment and rendered them incapable of listening, in a judicial frame of mind, to aguments which were opposed to their received opinion.

Mr. Trafton knew this. He knew the hopelessness of all endeavor to reverse their opinions. He knew that the utmost he could was to defend his Church. This he did. He had armed himself with written testimony which utterly disproved the allegation that a slave-holder was then sitting in the General Conference. While not denying the past historical relations of our Church with the system of slavery, he exhibited such facts as greatly qualified those relations; he showed by authentic documents what Methodism had done against the system in her General and Annual Conferences. He told of the antislavery zeal of multitudes of Methodist Abolitionists, and made it clear to any unprejudiced mind that the unqualified charges of utter abandonment to pro-slaveryism made by their orators could not be sustained. In spite of frowns, interruptions, and hisses, he spoke undauntedly nearly two hours, until he had uttered all he wished to say. But intrinsically conclusive as was his speech, it did not move Garrison or Phillips or any of their devotees, then or subsequently, to cease their thunderings against either Methodism or other evangelical Churches. They were reformers; but they were also intolerant of all but those who pronounced shibboleth otherwise than as the Liberator dictated.

As to my old friend, Dr. Mark Trafton, he had his reward in the reflection that he had served his Church well in that hour of excitement. He has done much other valuable service for both the Church and the slave, but he never displayed a higher moral courage in public speech than when he defended Methodism in the Melodeon against the excessive censures of men who were too self-sufficient to see truth through any other medium than their own prejudices and prepossessions.

Serpent Poison.

It is now pretty generally known that no remedy has yet been discovered for the bite of the cobra. Its poison is deadly, and when once it has fairly become diffused through the system, the victim may as well make up his mind to die. His days are numbered. The earth has been searched, in all its depths and through all its forests, for a remedy, but in vain. Learned physicians have devoted years to experiments and study, but without result. The poison of the more deadly kinds of serpents defies all antidotes, and quickly prostrates its victim into the stupor of death.

There is a more deadly kind of serpents poison from which the whole human race is suffering. "That old serpent the devil, and Satan," infused the deadly poison of his own horrible nature into the fountain head of our common being, and thence it has descended through all the long course of human existence on earth to the men and women of to-day. Sin in the heart is but another name for the nature of the Old Serpent. Our Saviour used no words of coarse abuse when He called the Scribes and Pharisees "serpents," or a "generation of vipers." They were proud of their ancestry and trusted to the fact that they were the children of Abraham, and hence the awful words of Jesus had a double force when He said, "Ye are of your father, the devil." The nature of the evil one had become incorporated into their moral being, and hence their moral condition was as deplorable as it could possibly be made.

For this deadly poison of sin man has yet found no remedy. A million men have tried, but no one has succeeded. No one can tell a sinner how he can be saved from his sins and sinfulness. Thousands talk about it, but no one actually comes forward to tell how the work can be done. The poison is deadly, and its victim must die. The devil is cut off from life, and his children must share his fate. They must die, and die that worst of all deaths, the extinction of all life in the spiritual nature. This death knows no resurrection. Its nature is darkness, and its abode shall be darkness forever.

The most singular of all the symbols used in the Bible to represent the Saviour was that of the serpent of brass lifted up before the gaze of a people dying from the effects of serpent poison. When Jesus came into the world He was "made in the likeness of sinful flesh," i.e., made in the image of the serpent race whom He came to save. His death is our life. As in the days of Moses so now, One in serpent form, "in the likeness of sinful flesh," is lifted up before the gaze of a dying world. The awful poison of sin loses its power when the sufferer looks at the Crucified One. There is healing in the look of faith, if only it is a look cast upon Him who hangs upon the cross, wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities. The serpent nature disappears to give place to the Christian nature. The poison of sin is displaced by the spirit of holiness, and man, smitten and suffering from sin, is healed and made a possessor of a new life and a new nature.—India Witness.

The prospect of any effectual legislation at present against the polygamy of Utah is not very clear. The House Committee having the subject in charge has doubts of the "constitutionality" of a measure taking away the privilege of self-government from the Territory of Utah. That only signifies the ill-will nguess of the committee to us. For the Constitution of the United States nowhere mentions such a thing as a territorial government. Congress is authorized to make "rules and regulations" for the Territories; without any limit to its discretion. Constitutional lawyers of the genuine sort, are very scarce days, and are worthy of all respect. But the allegation of such scruples in a case like this seems ridiculous like burlesque. Some politicians can strain gnats and swallow camels.—Boston Watchman.

There was a time when betting, prize fighting, dueling, chicken fighting, gambling, pool selling, and similar misdemeanors were allowed to go unpunished in a majority of the States. Now they are prohibited in very many, and the list is receiving additions every year. In the same manner we expect to see prohibition spread and hold territory as the world becomes better educated.—Advertisement Herald.

"Why, how did you get past Modoc's heels?" asked mamma.

"Oh," said she, "I just shut my eyes, so he couldn't see me, and runned right by!"

The Chicago Inter Ocean in an article on "Copiah County Piety" severely handles the paper of the jury in the Matthews' assassination case. Every Christian man or woman in the land may safely approve the unusually severe expressions of the Inter Ocean, as in every respect warranted by well known facts.

The city government has exhibited unusual activity in the direction of street improvements, which it would be well to continue, as it will take several months of earnest labor to put the city in a present fine condition for visitors to the World's Exposition.

Towards paying the expenses of the delegates to the General Conference the Louisiana Conference has secured $100. This amount is to be divided equally among the districts, giving to each the sum of $20 to raise. Of the $100, only $40 has been secured. New Orleans district raised $27.50; Monroe $20.80; LaFourche and the LaTeche and Shreveport districts both raised $20.

We have received invitations for the Vanderbilt University Commencement exercises including the baccalaureate sermon by the president on Sunday, the annual exhibition on Monday, and orations of the graduating class on Tuesday, May 27, at Central Church. Also for anniversary exercises of Ireland University, and of the University Chapel. We are glad to learn that these institutions are prospering and are doing great good in the cause of universal education.

United.

Years ago at a camp meeting Love feast we witnessed what was to us a novel but deeply affecting scene. As a brother arose to speak his wife stood behind him holding his hand; while he spoke, she lifted her right hand in attestation of the approval and adoption of his words as her own, and as he closed both sat down. The effect was thrilling, a wonderful tide of glory seemed to sweep over the entire congregation. By their tears, shouts, smiles, and songs the vast multitude showed their appreciation and approval of the simple but honest act. The adoption by this wife of her husband's words was an expression of wifely love, and the husband's hands joined in hers was a like expression of the true union of each with the other in the Lord. But alas, how many husbands and wives there are who let each other serve God alone. Ministers, class leaders, and stewards, steal away to church with some other woman and leave their wives at home.

As a matter of course, a wife thus neglected has no opportunity to identify herself with the work and words of her husband, but the sin does not lie at her door. The men are not few who by some mishap sustain the relation of husband that never utter words of Christian experience which their wives can solemnly and with uplifted hands affirm to be their own. They may be in the Church, perhaps in the pulpit, but they are Christless, haughty, over-bearing, and make their wives chop the wood and build the fires. Only God knows the agony of such a woman. We have a desire that all who read this incident whether husband or wife will seek to make their hearts and lives so completely one, one in Christ, that they can at all times unitedly testify to the unity of love and faith in each other and in the Lord.

Charity.

We are told in classic history that an old painter was employed to sketch the Macedonian Emperor. In one of his famous battles the Emperor had received a wound upon his right temple and an ugly scar was left. It was the desire of the artist, if possible, to conceal the scar. To accomplish this the monarch was sketched leaping upon his elbow, with his forefinger covering the scar. Every one who saw it admired and applauded the ingenuity of the artist. His story has been often told and good use has been made of it. Genuine charity, like the Emperor's finger, covers faults. It takes no satisfaction in exposing the faults of others; it never holds them up to scorn and ridicule, but covers them with the finger of love. It finds no pleasure in the report that others have done wrong, or in following up or establishing that report, only when truth and justice require them to be openly rebuked. The way of the world, and not a few in the church, is to expose scars and probe sores; they are never so happy as when they are setting them off in an exaggerated ugliness. Not a few find pleasure when others fall into sin and have disgraced themselves. Charity does none of these things. It does not desire that an enemy, a persecutor, a slanderer should do evil, or should disgrace and ruin himself. It does not love wrong, and finds no pleasure in the fact that it has been done. While it never excuses manifest iniquity even in the nearest friends, it always treats the failures of others with forbearance. They are never the subjects of gossip and keen satire in the social circle. Much better is that spirit that "rejoiceth in the truth." This is the foundation of all that is good and true; it "binds society together, unites the Creator and the creature, and blends the interests of all the redeemed, and all the angels, and of God into one.

Editorial Correspondence.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—The General Conference entered upon its tenth days work yesterday with a most important debate. Many of the delegates came into the hall a little late, some of them looking tired and jaded. To many of them, Sunday had not been a day of rest. Saturday the Conference had requested the Bishops to give their opinion concerning the establishment of Episcopal residences in India, Europe and Africa. Contrary to the expectation of a number of delegates they reported this morning that it was their unanimous opinion that the fixing of episcopal residences in either of the above named places would not be wise at the present time. The debate upon this question occupied nearly the entire session. Three of the speaches on the question were made by Messrs. Bose and Osborne who are natives of India, and Rev. Mr. Parker who has had twenty five years experience in that field. Mr. Bose was opposed to fixing an episcopal residence in India. Messrs. Osborne and Parker were in favor of it. Doctors Fowler, Buckley and Kynett made telling speaches against the report of the committee. Most of the speeches in favor of the measure were magnificent exhortations such as men sometimes make just before calling a collection. To us no more dangerous and impractica ble idea has been presented to this conference than that of fixing episcopal residences in Europe, India and Africa. We have little patience with the flippant talkers who have so much to say about the Methodist Episcopal Church taking the world for Christ and yet persistantly decline to do any work that does not agree with their taste. There is a large family of would be parlor Christians. After three days debate on the question Dr. Phaxon moved that the main question be taken, and it was carried. Hon. G. H. Foster moved that the vote be taken by orders and the motion was adopted. But on calling the roll the report of the committee was not adopted for a lack of a concurrent vote; the laymen voting against the measure and the clergy for it. Had the vote been taken without a division of the house, the report would have been adopted by a majority of twelve. In this instance the laymen were the conservators of the house. The Bishops had recommended the election of three bishops. The Committee on Episcopacy reported in favor of electing five. An amendment was offered naming four instead of five, which was carried by a large majority, and the report as amended was adopted.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

The Conference was opened at 9 o'clock; Bishop Andrews in the chair. The crowd that had gathered to witness the election of the Bishops was immense. Every seat was occupied, and hundreds stood in the aisles. At 10 o'clock on motion of Dr. Leonard, the order of the day was taker up. Bishop Harris announced the names of the tellers selected, and the position assigned them in the hall. Each conference was called by the Secretary and the delegation stood up. Then the name of each member of the delegation was called, when he dropped his ballot into the hat he said "voted." Never have we seen a mass of human beings more intensely interested than this vast audience was while the balloting was going on. The calling of the roll and voting occupied over 30 minutes; when the tellers retired to count the votes. While the tellers were out the Conference resumed its business. The people were anxious to hear the result, and but few left. In due time the tellers came in and made the announcement that no one had been elected. A second ballot was taken and the Conference adjourned to meet at 3 o'clock p. m.

At the afternoon session Bishop Warren presided. Dr. Hatfield conducted the devotional exercises. Most of this session was consumed in taking of the ballots—six were taken. On the second Drs. W. X. Ninde and J. M. Walden were elected; on the third W. F. Mallalieu, D.D.; on the fourth no one having received a majority of all the votes there was no election. At the fifth ballot some mistakes occurred making it necessary to take another, which resulted in the election of C. H. Fowler, D. D.

Of these honored ministers we have but little to say save that they have each displayed superior abilities, and have been eminently successful in the performance of the work the church has given them to do. We think that in this instance no mistake has been made. One of them will doubtless make his home in New Orleans.

—A young African Prince, David P. Louding, who has been studying at Dayton, Ohio, to prepare himself to be a missionary to his native land, died of consumption, May 10; after a short illness.

—Mr. Blaine, in his new book says: "In affluent and exuberant diction, Mr. Conkling was never surpassed in either branch of Congress." This will catch Mr. Conkling for one copy at east.—Tribune and Farmer.

—Mrs. Hannah Haven, mother of the late Bishop Gilbert Haven, died Saturday noon, May 17th, at her residence in Malden, Mass. She had reached the advanced age of 94 years, but retained her mental faculties unimpaired to the last.

—Bishop W. H. Hillery, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, deposed by the General Conference, now in session in Baltimore, was charged with buying and using intoxicating liquors, and refusing to pay for them and for some groceries. Other grave compiaints were reported against him.

—The New York Tribune, speaking of the high public esteem bestowed on the late Charles O'Conno , says: "The lesson of this exceptional honor is the value of personal character. It is safe to assume that the repute of Mr. O'Connor, for integrity and high mindedness, has carried his fame into quarters where merely professional eminence would hardly have made him known. He carried into the court room, as well as into all the circles of private life, uprightness, simplicity, sincerity, and independence. These manly virtues not only adorn his career, but enhanced and extended his professional celebrity."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

G. Norman, Austin: "My second quarterly conference was held by Elder Madison, and only five were present when fifteen ought to have been, but it seems to be the best Manor circuit can do. The elder preached a glorious sermon Sunday on works and faith, and administered sacrament to 34. I hope the brethren may do better and realize the importance of exhibiting more work with their faith."

M. H. Robinson, Victoria: "There are too many clubs to engage the members of the church. I was pleased to read the article on this subject you published lately. We need pastors who will be firmer and better examples to the members."

W. McKenzie, Cold Springs: "The church at Camilla Hill is in good condition. The people though hard pressed, are doing all they can for the cause of Christ. Elder Lee met us in conference and we had a good old Methodist time. Collection $10.60."

John Hibbler, Marlin: "We try to do the best we can for our pastor."

E. Henderson, La Grange: "Bro. Lee Posey and son, and an ox were killed by lightning April 28, at 5 p. m. Bro. Posey stood high in the church, and will be long remembered. He leaves a wife and six little ones."

J. C. Mays, Victoria: "We are moving on gradually with our work, praying for success. Dr. G. J. Starnes, a late graduate in the medical department of Nashville, Tenn., is now with us. He lectured Monday, May 4th, to our Sabbath-school, and preached to our congregation an excellent sermon. Pray for us."

Green Bragner, Spring Hill: "My people are cheerful, and propose to build a church on one of my points. The old church will soon fall down. We expect to build a frame structure, on plan No. 5, 24x40 feet."

Funeral services for Bro. Gabriel Hendress will be preached at Floresville June 5, by Revs. J. T. Gibbons and W. H. Moseby.

J. Morton, Gibson: "Elder Webb met us and his sermon woke up the people. His salary was fixed at $40; pastor's at $350. Collection for elder $10.50."

G. A. Armstrong, Georgetown: "We have a faithful and intelligent pastor. Bro. Watkins has done a great deal of good in the past four months."

E. Jones, Hallettsville: "Our work is growing. There is a good Sunday-school. In protracted meeting there were 12 conversions; this year we have added 21 to the church."

The members of the Richmond charge desire Rev. S. Hardwell's grave to have have a nice marble tomb upon it, in remembrance of his faithful labor among them. Brethren of the conference who desire to assist may send their contributions to Wm. Mathews, Richmond.

Abner Thomas, Pitt's Bridge: "In protracted meeting there were 2 converts and 28 additions. We have repaired and seated the church. We spent a delightful day at Zion Hill. Our work prospers all over the circuit. We need a church at Caldwell badly. There are some members there and we are trying to build. A little help will be asked from the Church Extension Society. Bro. Sam Pollard is teacher of the Sunday-school, and is doing all he can to instruct the children."

TENNESSEE.

A. F. Land, Perryville: "The people received me gladly on the Linden circuit. The elder visited us. We have raised some on all benevolent causes."

John Crawford, Chattanooga circuit: "My third quarterly meeting was held May 3-4. Our presiding elder, Rev. E. Provine, was with us. His counsel in the quarterly conference and preaching will doubtless have a lasting effect on the congregation. We have adopted the rule to raise the presiding elder's money before he comes to hold the quarterly conference. On Saturday half of the money was reported, on Sunday finished out his salary, $15, for this quarter. Our Sunday-school work is growing, and our church is increasing in strength and numbers all along the line. We expect to commence building a new church at Pleasant Grove soon.

J. L. Massey, Marlin: "At second quarterly conference we had Rev. E. M Manson, of Brownsville, with us. He lectured the Sunday-school and preached acceptably. We raised for elder $11.25; for pastor $27, and something for all benevolent purposes. Sister Caldwell and Martin are good mission workers. We raised from subscribers $52 for the new church. Our Thursday night class meeting adds much to the spiritual condition of the church."

MISSISSIPPI.

F. T. A. Mahan, Macon: "The quarterly conference was held by our pastor. Reports were good. Collections $8,20. Bro. Ivy has 5 appointments, and it is sometimes very hard to get to all of them. The people love him."

J. B. Holiwell, Greensboro: "Elder D. A. Williams visited and left the members in better condition than they have been in for several years. I hope the Lord may fill the church with such men."

LOUISIANA.

Elijah Clark, Shady Grove: "The first quarter we have started off well in the labor of building up Christ's Kingdom. The people are poor, and the high water damaged their fences, cattle and hogs. We were pleased with the first visit of our presiding elder, and his sermon is well remembered. Six have been received in full connection; 2 on probation. There are four flourishing Sunday-schools. The young men and women are taking an active part."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

From Columbus District.

MR. EDITOR—When you last heard from me I was at Oakland, Texas. From there I was to go to the Boxville work, where on the 19-20 of April, I was to hold Bro. R. H. Ponton's quarter. I was able to reach a part of the work, but the rain prevented me from holding it. Our church may do some good here but it is doubtful. My next appointment was on the Flatonia and Schulenberg work, where on the 16th I met the pastor (P Johnson) and some of the brethren and held the quarter; on Sunday preached to a good congregation from the Oakland circuit. This work is in a bad condition. Collection at this place was $5.75. May 3 4 found me at Waelder and Peach Creek, where I found Bro. Carper at his post but very near ready to give up from heart trouble. Here I found that the church had went under some repair, the young men had put in some window sashes of which it had been destitute. Waelder and Peach Creek is doing finely at present. Collection at this place $8.15. The 10-11 I met Bro. Reed and the brethren at Luling and I was very sorry to find Bro. Reed sick, and wishing to be discharged from his work; but every brother voted for him to remain and manage for them except three; and two of them were local preachers. You can easily judge why they did not vote. There are few men who succeed like Bro. Reed, besides he is beloved by every body. Bro. Reed has done a good work at Luling. He has taken in the church on probation over 50 and some 8 or 10 in full connection. There are also a good set of local preachers and exhorters on this work that hold up his hands. There had been raised during the quarter $12 for benevolent purposes, also had in hand $100 for the new church edifice. He has also completed a nice little parsonage; besides taking up a collection of $16.20 for presiding elder. May God bless Luling with her 300 full members and 50 probationers to soon get them up a house of worship. From here I went to Lockhart, and on the 17-18 enjoyed a happy time. There are some men that can hold people spellbound and can carry them any way, well in short they are leaders of men; that is the kind of a man Bro. Harris is at Lockhart. He is in a fair way to take that whole region of country for our church. He had 35 conversions, and 38 accessions, three of which were from other churches; and also raised for benevolent purposes $5-56. Bro. Harris' congregation gave the presiding elder $13.30. I make it a rule to visit the schools all along. Our people are beginning to unbuild themselves and their children now and send them out to Sunday school. If they would give the children money to get books and paper, the pastors and superintendents could make the schools what they ought to be. My district is being blessed with conversions. I can number about 150 or 160 since conference. I want to mention here the firm of A. L. Manard and A. Bright established in the town of Lockhart, and that they are doing a good business, and I hope the people will give them their trade. Will not hundreds of our able colored men in Texas go and start groceries and build themselves up in business

P. M. CARMICHAEL.

Columbus Texas, May 20th, 1884.

Our New Bishops.

William Xavier Ninde, was born in Courtlandville, N. Y., in 1832. At the age of twenty three he graduated from the Wesleyan University, and the next year joined the Black River conference. In 1861 he was transferred to the Cincinnati Conference, where he filled three charges in its chief city removed in 1870, to Detroit, becoming a member of that conference, and pastor of Central Church. At the end of his pastoral term he became professor of practical theology in Garrett Biblical Institute. After three years he was returned to Central Church, Detroit. At the close of this second term he accepted the position of president of Garrett Biblical Institute, which he held at the time of his election to the office of bishop. Bisop Ninde has spent 20 years in the pastorate, and eight in our educational work. He was a member of the General Conference of 1876, and led the delegation of the Detroit Conference at the present session. In the full strength of his maturity, with a remarkably symmetrical as well as finely cultured intellect, a character whose power tells so evenly that its strength is best shown by results, the Church has good reason to hope great things of him as a master workman "that needeth not to be ashamed."

John Morgan Walden was born near Lebanon, O., in 1831. He graduated from Farmer's College, College Hill, O., in 1852. He taught for two years, and then went into journalism, acting as correspondent for the Cincinnati Commercial, and later edited a paper at Quindaro, Kan. Afterward he was made a member of the Topeka Legislature and superintendent of public instruction. He was converted and joined the Church in 1850, licensed as a local preacher in 1854, and was admitted to the Cincinnati Conference in 1858. For ten years he acted as pastor, city missionary and presiding elder; when he was elected one of the agents for the Western Book Concern. He filled the position of junior agent for twelve years, when, in 1880, he was made senior agent. He has five times represented the Cincinnati Conference in the General Conference, including the present, which elected him a Bishop. Having lived in Cincinnati or one of its suburbs for over twenty-five years, Bishop Walden is well known, and has a multitude of friends in our patronizing territory. He has been an active leader in the temperance work in Ohio, notably of late through the columns of the secular and religious press. He has also taken part in the educational interests of Cincinnati, as a member of the board of education and president of the board of trustees of Cincinnati Wesleyan College. Officially related to the Freedmen's Aid Society, he is well known in the South through his connection with its work. As is evidenced in the facts above stated, [illegible] a busy life even for this busy age. The determined, industrious, far-seeing, and forceful energy with which he is so largely endowed will give him great power against the legions of darkness as one of the leaders of the Lord's hosts.

Willard Francis Mallalieu was born in Sutton, Mass., in 1828, and is of Huguenot descent. He was converted at the age of twelve, having signified his desire to seek Christ at the first Methodist meeting he ever attended, held in the kitchen of a widow lady. After a preparatory training he entered the Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn., where he graduated. He entered the New England Conference in 1858. Two years ago he was made presiding elder, the preceding twenty-four having been passed continuously in the pastorate. Bishop Mallalieu has become favorably known to the Church outside of his Conference through his able contributions to our literature, and his platform addresses at Chautauquas and elsewhere. As a valued friend of Bishop Gilbert Haven, he was appointed to prepare the memorial of him for the General Conference of 1880. He was a member of the General Conference of 1872, returning in 1884 at the head of his delegation. He is a practical, wide-awake minister, makes a good speech in a way that assures you he could preach a better sermon, and will no doubt make an able and useful bishop.

Charles Henry Fowler was born in Burford, Canada, 1837, but at the age of four years was taken to Illinois. After spending some time at Rock River Seminary he entered Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, at Lima, New York, (now Syracuse University), where he graduated in 1859 receiving the honors of his class. His conversion changed his plans from the law to the ministry, and he entered Garrett Biblical Institute, from which he graduated in 1861. The same year he became a member of the Rock River Conference. His twelve years in the pastorate were spent in the city of Chicago, for whose embarrassed churches he collected $40,000 in eastern cities soon after the great fire. Dr. Fowler accepted the presidency of the Northwestern University in 1872, having declined the same position in 1861, serving in that capacity four years. In 1876 he was elected editor of the New York Christian Advocate. In 1880 he was made one of the missionary secretaries. In this office his gifts as a public speaker found a large field of opportunity. Bishop Fowler, though the youngest of the new members of the episcopal board, has had large experience in the work in all different departments of Church, and will fill the high office to which he has been called with honor to himself and advantage to the Church.

Copiah County Piety.

In the trial of Wheeler for the murder of Matthews, in Copiah County, Mississippi, it appears that the jury handed the reporter of the Inter Ocean a card, which he was requested to publish, informing the public (1) that none of the jury were politicians, and that politics had nothing to do with their decision; (2) that knowing it was impossible to give satisfaction the jury determined to defy criticism from the press or the public; (3) that before rendering their verdict they had united in a solemn prayer to God to enlighten their minds and purify their hearts, so as to enable them to see their duty and decide the case upon the evidence delivered from the stand, and (4) this decision has been rendered without partiality and in the fear of God alone.

We are inclined to think, not withstanding the show of religiousness about all this business, that the particular god the jury was afraid of was not the Creator of the Universe, but merely the public opinion of the little burgh of Hazlehurst and of Copiah County. If their fear of God could have taken the form of a belief that He would appear in the form of a man on horseback and shoot each one of them dead on the doorstep within twenty four hours if they should render a false verdict knowing it to be false, they would have found Wheeler guilty.

Our reason for this conclusion is that every juror who joined in the verdict knew that the killing of Matthews by Wheeler was not denied; no provocation for the killing was pretended by the defense; no justification was even sought to be proven; nothing was alleged even by counsel, nor sworn to by any witness, which if wholly true would have been a defense, or would have formed the least contribution toward a defense. No theory was invented or alleged, suggested or supposed, by any mind which if true in all respects would have justified the crime or mitigated it in the least degree. The accused simply shot the deceased in the back, without quarrel or warning, without anger or warm blood. The deceased was wholly unarmed, but if it had been proved that he was armed it would have made no element in a defense. The murderer brought his gun to the polls in order to commit this particular murder. He shot Matthews solely because the latter voted the Republican ticket and for no other reason. The jury and each one of them fully agrees with us as to each one of these facts, and the only possible point on which they could have sought the divine guidance was whether a white man who votes the Republican ticket in Copiah County ought to be shot, and if he is shot, whether his murderer ought to be convicted of murder.

We do not impeach the sincerity or honesty of any member of the Copiah County jury. We can readily conceive that the longer they remained on their knees the more conscientiously they would rise up in the belief that Matthews ought to have been shot for voting the Republican ticket, and hence that Wheeler ought to be acquitted.

Still there are certain inconveniences, having the nature of a conflict of opinion, where such eminently prayerful gentlemen as the Copiah County jury happen to dwell in a country nearly fifty millions of whose people believe that a man ought to have the right to vote any ticket he pleases. These inconveniences, having the nature of a conflict of opinion, cause all these fifty millions to look upon each one of the Copiah County jurors as a thoroughly prayerful and sincere accessory after the fact to the original murder. They will therefore feel a determination to proceed in the case if they get a chance exactly as they would do with Dr. Mudd or any other of the accessories after the fact in Booth's assassination of President Lincoln, or in any other political assassination in a republic. The Copiah County jury have simply said to the country: "We assume the responsibility of killing Matthews. We are all alike down here. We are! To vote the Republican ticket in Copiah County is a crime, and we'll punish it with death. We'll punish it prayerfully, kindly, and piously. But we'll punish it with death, and we'll precede and follow every murder with an earnest invocation of the divine blessing upon the purity of our hearts and the lamb like peacefulness and sweetness of our daily walk and conversation. Amen and amen." It is these little peculiarities that make it interesting to be citizens of the same country with our Southren brethren. But we purpose to stand by the flag "for a spell" yet—Inter Ocean.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Among the prominent illustrations of the June number of the English Illustrated Magazine will be an engraving of Mrs Siddons from Gainsborough's well known picture in the English National Gallery, and a design by George DuMaurier under the title of Der Tod as Freund. Mr. H. Sutherland Edwards contributes to the same number an interesting article on Drawing Room dances with illustrations after Watteau and Hugh Thomson.

Macmillan & Co., have in preparation a complete Library Edition, in seven volumes to be published monthly at $1.75 each, of the works of Lord Tennyson, the first volume containing a steel portrait after a photograph by Relander, will be published about June 1; there will be also be a limited edition printed on the best hand made paper which will be sold only in sets.

The North American Review for June opens with an article on "Harboring Conspiracy," by Prof. Henry Wade Rogers, who examines, in the light of international law, the diplomatic history of the United States and the national constitution, the question as to how far our government may and must go in suppressing plots against governments with which we are at peace. Henry D. Lloyd, in the same number of the Review, shows how every branch of production is coming under the control of "Lords of Industry," corporations and monopolies. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has an article marked by rare philosophic force upon the "Struggle for Immortality." Other articles of not less importance are: "Sociological Fallacies," by Prof. W. G. Sumner, "The Rise and Fall of Authority," by President J. C. Welling; "Walt Whitman," by Walker Kennedy; and a symposium on "Expert Testimony," by Rossiter Johnson, Dr. W. W. Godding, T. O'Conor Sloane and Dr. Charles L. Dana.

The June Century will contain two very timely editorials, one on the Cincinnati riot and the other on our militia. Speaking of the editorials "Mob or Magistrate," which appeared in The Century just previous to the Cincinnati riot, the London Spectator says, "The Century may fairly claim to be reckoned among the prophets."

President Eliot, of Harvard, will discuss in the June Century the question, "What is a Liberal Education?" Among other things he makes a strong plea for the study of English, and in a historical review of the changes in university curricula shows what a hard fight was necessary to procure the introduction of Greek three centuries ago.

The numbers of The Living Age for May 10th and 17th, contain The Monastic Knights, London Quarterly; A Hampshire Trout, National Review; Euripides as a Religious Teacher, Contemporary; Frederick Denison Maurice, Fortnightly; An Idle Hour in My Study, Blackwood; A Social Study of our Oldest Colony, Macmillan; The Bloody Assizes, Gentlemen's; Madame Tallien, Temple Bar; Heine's Reminiscences of his Father, Pall Mall; The Removal of the Pope from Rome, Economist; Hampstead Heath, Chambers' Journal;; The Trade in Modern Antiquities, British Trade Journal; The Proposed Mounment to Coligny, Saturday Review; with instalments of "Beauty and the Best," and Bourgonef," and poetry. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

The June number of Harper's Magazine brings with it the first breath of summer in two of its descriptive papers. One of these, "Biarritz," by Lucie C. Lillie, is full of the charm and romance of the Basque coast, and is beautiful ly illustrated; the other "The North Shore," by John A. Butler, illustrated, describes the north shore of Lake Superior, and gives a delightful retrospect of the old voyageurs and fur-traders. "Sheffield," an article by W. H. Bideing, is effectively illustrated. Dr. Wheatley gives an admirable and thorough review of the complex operations of the New York Custom-house. W. M. Dickson contributes reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln's visit to Cincinnati—the occasion of his first meeting with E. M. Stanton. Colonel Higginson, in his chapter on John Quincy Adam's administration, gives not only an interesting glimpse of Washington society in that period, but also a comprehensive review of the national progress, and of the great western march of the centre of population. There are several short stories, including a very strong character sketch by Mary E Wilkins, entitled "A Humble Romance." Poems are contributed by Dinah M. Craik and Louise Chandler Moulton.

Mr. George William Curtis, in the Editor's Easy Chair, pays a high tribute to Mr. Gladstone, closing with the pertinent question whether the American system of selecting the Chief Magistrate is surer than the English method to bring the real chief of a party to the Executive chair. Mr. Charles Dudley Warner, in the Editors Drawer, gives a characteristic view of our annual migration.

The June "Popular Science Monthly" is a number of especial excellence. The series of articles from Herbert Spencer, is continued, and he has probably never written anything more powerful, and conclusive than this second paper on "The Sins of Legislators." The kind of mental training and the kind of knowledge that the lawmakers should have, either to act upon social questions or to let them alone, are presented with the conclusiveness of demonstration. Let every honest young man with political aspirations lay these principles to heart. "Evolution and Dissolution of the Nervous System," by Dr. J. Hughlings Jackson, is a remarkable article, and is elaborately discussed by the editor, while an allied subject is considered in "Physiology versus Metaphysics," by Walter H. Walshe, M. D. Professor Mattieu Williams continues his papers on "The Chemistry of Cookery," and devotes the present one to the culinary transformations of starch. He agrees with Cobbett in denouncing the potato, other articles are "Coal and the Coal Tar Colors," by M. Denys Cochin; "Ensilage and Fermentation," by Manly Miles, M D.; "Geography and the Railroads," by Dr. J. Jastrow; "The Life Work of Pasteur," by his son in law; "Clean Drinking Water," by Edwin J. Howe, M. D.; "Professor Dvorak's Sound Mills," (illustrated); and a sketch of Arnold Henry Guyot (with portrait), by W. B Scott. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

The long-promised new cover appears on the June number of The Manhattan. The design is printed in a rich carnation on old gold paper. The contents of the number are worthy of the cover. The frontispiece is an airy figure piece, entitled "Spring," illustrating some lines of Willis Gaylord Clark. An American painter, Henry Roderick Newman, who has long lived in Florence, is the subject of the opening articles, written by H Buxton Forman, the editor of Keats and Shelley. Letters from Mr Ruskin express his high opinion of Newman's work, and the article is illustrated with a portrait and a number of illustrations. Another brilliant illustrated article is a second paper on "The Gunnison Country," by Ernest Ingersoll. Edgar Fawcett's "Tinkling Cymbals," is concluded, and there are two short stories, one "A Boston Man," by Nora Perry, in her best vein, and which was inspired by her stay two summers ago at Bethlehem, N. H., which here figures under the name of Bethany. In the "Town Talk" there is a solution of the vexed question as to who is "Obermann," made famous by the New York Tribune boax, and there are some laughable things in "Salmagundi."

Our Little Ones for June is on time with stories of a little dog called Scamp, birds with an umbrella, and pleasan pictures.

TURPENTINE IN INFECTUOMS DISEASES.—The Medical Record tells us that H. Vilandt writes in the Ugeskrift for Laeger, concerning the value of the oil of turpentine in the treatment of prophylaxis diphtheria and the exanthematous diseases. He states that he has never seen any of these diseases spread from a sick child to other members of the family when this remedy was employed. In many of his cases no isolation could be attempted, as the mother was the only female in the family, and was obliged to take care of both the sick and the well, continually passing back and forth from one to the other. His method was to pour from twenty to forty drops of a mixture of equal parts of turpentine and carbolic acid into a kettle of water, which was kept simmering over a slow fire, so that the air of the sick room was continually impregnated with the odor of these two substances. He claims also that by this means a favorable influence is exerted upon the exudation in diphtheria, although it is by no means curative of the disease, and should never be relied upon to the exclusion of other remedies.

Appetizing dressing for fowls is made of mashed potato, well seasoned, for ducks or for wild game a flavor of onions is desirable; herbs also may be added.

INDELIBLE STAMPING INK.—E. Johnson, of St. Petersburg, gives the following formula for a convenient ink for marking clothing by means of a stamp: Twenty-two grains of permanate of soda are dissolved in 45 parts of glycerine, and thickened with 20 parts of gum arabic. In a small flask are dissolved 11 parts of nitrate of silver in 24 parts of official water of ammonia. The two solutions are then mixed and heated to boiling. After [illegible] a dark color, [illegible] of Venetian turpentine are added to it. The quantity of [illegible] may be varied to suit the [illegible] of the letters. After stamping, [illegible] to the sun or apply a hot [illegible]. —Scientific American.

Young Folk's Conerr.

THE TWO GATES.

A pilgrim once (so runs an ancient tale),
Old, worn, and spent, crept down a shadowed vale:
On either hand rose mountains bleak and high;
Chill was the gusty air, and dark the sky;
The path was rugged, and his feet were bare;
His faded cheek was seamed by pain and care;
His heavy eyes upon the ground were cast,
And every step seemed feebler than the last.

The valley ended where a naked rock
Rose sheer from earth to heaven, as if to mock
The pilgrim who had crept that toilsome way;
But while his dim and weary eyes essay
To find an outlet, in the mountain side
A ponderous soulptured brazen door he spied,
And tottering toward it with fast-falling breath,
Above the portal read, "THE GATE OF DEATH."

He could not stay his feet, that led thereto;
It yielded to his touch, and passing through,
He came into a world all bright and fair;
Blue were the heavens, and balmly was the air;
And, lo! the blood of youth was in his veins,
And he was clad in robes that held no stains
Of his long pilgrimage. Amazed, he turned;
Behold! a golden door behind him burned
In that fair sunlight, and his wandering eyes,
Now lustrous and clear as those new skies,
Free from the mists of age, of care, and strife,
Above the portal read, "THE GATE OF LIFE."

S. S. CONANT.

Thou To-Morrow.

O thou to-morrow! Mystery!
O day that ever runs before:
What hast thine hidden hand in store
For mine, to-morrow, and for me?
O thou to-morrow, what hast thou
In store to make me bear thee now?

O day in which we shall forget
The tangled troubles of to-day.
O day that laughs at duns, at debt.
O day of promises to pay!
O shelter from all present storm!
O day in which we shall reform!

O safest, best day for reform!
Convenient day of promises,
Hold back the shadow of storm.
O blessed to-morrow! Chiefest friend,
Let not thy mystery be less,
But lead us blindfold to the end.

Stephen Allen's Pocket-Piece.

In the pocket of Hon. Stephen Allen, who was drowned from on board the Henry Clay, was found a printed slip, apparently cut from a newspaper, of which the following is a copy. It is worthy to be put in every newspaper, and engraved on every man's heart:

Make few promises.
Always speak the truth.
Never speak evil of any one.
Keep good company or none.
Live up to your engagements.
Be just before you are generous.
Never play at any game of chance.
Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors.
Good character above all things else.
Never borrow if you can possibly help it.
Do not marry until you are able to support a wife.
Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy.
When you speak to a person look him in the face.
Make no haste to be rich if you would prosper.
Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income.
Save when you are young, to spend when you are old.
Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it.
Never run in debt unless you see a way to get out again.
Small and steady gains give competency with a tranquil mind.
If any one speaks evil of you, let your life be so that none believe him.
When you retire to bed think over what you have done during the day.
Never be idle; if your hands can't be employed usefully, attend to the cultivation of your mind.—Kansas Methodist.

"No," said the sad-eyed man, "I never press a young woman to play upon the piano. I tried it once to my sorrow." "Why, what followed?" asked a half-dozen eager voices. "She played," replied the sad-eyed man.

Fifty-eight million dollars is the estimated value of finger rings of this country actually worn, and still there are people mean enough to go hacking and coughing because they do not want to invest 25 cents for a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Playthings of African Children.

The girls in Africa, as elsewhere, are fond of dolls; but they like them best alive, so they take puppies for the purpose, and carry them about tied to their backs, as their mothers carry babies. Some of them "play baby" with little pigs. The boys play shoot with a gun made to imitate the "white man's gun." Two pieces of cane tied together make the barrels the stock is made of clay, and the smoke is a tuft of loose cotton. In one African tribe the boys have spears made of reeds, shields, and bows and arrows with which they imitate their fathers' doings; and they make animals out of clay, while their sisters "jump the rope." Besides, the African children, like children all over the world, enjoy themselves "making believe." They imitate the life around them, not playing "keep house," "go visiting," or "give a party," because they see none of these things in their homes; but they pretend building a hut, making clay jars, and crushing corn to eat.

An Irish Blessing.

At Jeffersonville, Ind., during the late flood, an Irish woman whose little shanty and contents—her all—had been swept away, was visited by one of the relief boats whose captain sent her from the stores on board a liberal supply of food, clothing, bedding, and fuel. When the things were all placed on the floor before her in the little room where she had taken temporary refuge, she looked up in wonder and asked,

"Captain, are these things fur me?"

"Yes, they are for you," he answered.

"Be'es they all fur me?"

"Certainly, they are all for you."

"All these things fur me! all fur me! an' may God bliss ye furiver, captain, an' may ye be in heaven six months before the divil knows ye're dead!"

The Hands on the Plow.

The march of temperance is striking terror to the hearts of liquor dealers all over the country. They recently formed in New York city a society for the protection of their business. Their organ thus frantically arouses them to the conflict: "Sooner or later the unrelenting and uncompromising aggressiveness of the advocates of local option, Main liquor laws, and total abstinence; the hopeless obtuseness of government officials and amateur legislators; the supine disregard of the masses to the gross and malignant incursions that are being made by blatant moralists upon their personal liberty, must drive the trade and all connected with it to a position in which it will have to stand at bay in order to preserve its very existence. Let us therefore, one and all, strike while the iron is hot, and steadfastly refuse to turn back when we have once put our hand to the plow."

It would indeed be a blessing if all who are connected with this terrible business of drunkard making should "once put their hand to the plow" and stick to it, and earn an honest living. Many distracted wives and poverty stricken children would rise up, and call them blessed.

It is not possible for a Christian man to walk across a rod of the natural earth, with mind unagitated and rightly poised, without receiving strength and hope from some stone, flower, leaf, or sound, nor without a sense of a dew falling upon him out of the sky.—Ruskin.

I feel convinced that every man has given him of God much more than he has any idea of, and that he can help on the world's work more than he knows of. What we want is the single eye, that we may see what our work is, the humility to accept it, however lowly, the faith to do it for God, the perseverance to go till death.—Norman Macleod.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inqure for my brother Linn Pates Bute. I called him Jack, and I have not seen him since 1861. Mr. Pates was Governor in Jackson during war time. I heard that he went to Texas. Father was Robert Hawkins; brothers, Richard, Lawson, Nicholas. Robert Hawkins was sold to T. B. Say, who lived in Alabama a little before the war.

REV. A. B. ANDERSON.
Jackson, Miss,

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my relatives that I left in Franklin, Tenn., during the war. Three sisters, Nannie, Patience and Julian, who belonged to Mr. Ellis, of Franklin. My sister Nannie's husband used to belong to a Mr. Floyd; she had four children when I left Franklin for Louisiana, Sarah, Mag, Eliza and Mary. When I left Tennessee I went by the name of Agnes Ellis; it has been changed since by marriage to Agness Collins. Address me, care of N. J. Stith, Cotton Gin, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inqnire for my people. They lived, in the time of the war, in Appomattox county, Va., and the old man was Thomas Mosbey that they belonged to. My father's name was Edmond Jane, he is dead. My mother's name is Jennie Mosbey. I had four brothers, the oldest was James Mosbey, Davé Mosbey, Reader Mosbey, Ben Mosbey, and two sisters of us, Charity and Nancy Mosbey, but now I am Nancy Williams. My young Mistress name is Marsham Elliott, and I got a letter from her in 1880. Please address me at Red Land, Pontotoc county, Miss. J. B. WILLIAMS.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to inqnire for my brother. He left Okolona, Miss, in 1870, and went to St. Charles parish, La. Last year, May 14, I suppose, he went to Trenton, Ark., to practice physic and to teach school. I have not heard from him since July, 7, 1883; he was then in Black Hawk, La., on his way to Trenton, Ark. There are three brothers of us, the oldest Henry Williams, Benjamin Williams and John P. Williams, M. D. He has practiced medicine now more than eight years. Address me at Red Land, Pontotoc county, Miss. J. B. WILLIAMS.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my father whom I left in Steward county, Ga., near a town named Boxankle. My mother brought me from there before the war. I was about 2 years old; my little sister's name was Edepy; we were our father's two children. My father's name was Bill Bridges, he belonged to a man of that name. My mother's name was Belle Blakey; she belonged to Jack Blakey. She is now living in Mars, Texas. My name whs Peter Blakey; went by that name after the white people, but by right my name should have been Peter Bridges, after my father. This statement is from my mother. If any one knows his whereabouts please let me know. My name now is Peter Stroman. Address me at Millwood, Little River co., Ark. PETER STROMAN.

Lives Prolonged.

Many to whom no encouragement could be offered, disease having progressed so far that no chance of arresting it seemed to remain, have been promptly relieved, and their lives prolonged and rendered comparatively comfortable, by the new Vitalizing Treatment of Drs Starkey & Palen 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia Many more, who have been sufferers for years and almost incapacitated for work, are now in the enjoyment of a good degree of health and able to engage actively in the business, porfession, or household duties which had been wholly or partially abandoned. It is wonderful what cures in so called "desperate cases," are being made by this remarkable Treatment! If any one, requiring the aid of such a treatment, will write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, they will promptly mail such documents and reports of cases as well enable him to judge of its value for himself.

The needs of overflowed people in Louisiana are urgent.

Better than Gold.

So easily is a cold taken that not infrequently one is at a loss to tell when or how it has originated, and is prone to expect it will go HEALTH as lightly as it came. Perhaps it may go easily, if helped a little; but every cold that comes is liable to stay. It may happen just at a IS time when, from other causes, the normal strength of resistance in the system has been lowered. A little inattention or delay may give it a dangerous BETTER hold. Let it once become firmly seated, and the work of dislodgment will be very difficult. The simple Coryza, or cold in the head, may THAN develop into a Catarrh, and is indeed exceedingly likely so to do. That such is the case is evidenced by the fact that seven persons out of every GOLD. nine, in the Atlantic and Middle States, have catarrh in a severe form. Or, if it does not take that turn, the little cough that is at first but an annoyance, is almost certain to become dry, hard, racking and constantly recurrent, worrying in waking hours, banishing sleep, and momentarily weakening the patient. The larynx, vocal cords, and tonsils, become inflamed. The inflammation extends into the bronchial tubes. "Laryngitis" and "Bronchitis" AYER'S are the easiest words that the doctor, called in about that time, will use. The trouble goes on working down the CHERRY bronchial tubes to the lungs, ultimately threatening Pulmonary Consumption. Or, perhaps, the malady assumes the quickly PECTORAL fatal phase of Pneumonia. Just about as unwise a thing as an ordinarily sensible person can do, is to neglect a "little" PRESERVES cold or cough and give it a chance to develop in any of these ways. And when it comes to the treatment of children, neglect is criminality. All HEALTH. the dangers to be feared from colds and coughs may be averted, in the very outset, by the administration of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a medicine ineffably beneficent, which allays the coughing, soothes to refreshing rest, and brings back health.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Is the only medicine that can be relied upon to break up a cold and cure a cough, and is invaluable in the treatment of all affections of the throat and lungs.

The following are samples of what people say who know it:

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."—PROF. F. SWEITZER, (Maine Medical School) Brunswick, Me.

"AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL affords more relief in cases of Whooping Cough than any other medicine."—DR. ARTHUR Y. COX, St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for 20 years. It is a wonderful remedy for Throat and Lung Diseases."—L. GARRETT, Texana, Tex.

"My children have taken AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for Coughs and Croup, and have found it give immediate relief, followed by cure."—MRS. J. GREGG, Lowell, Mass.

"I find nothing else so efficacious as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in the treatment of Colds and Coughs, and have used it in Croup, Asthma, and incipient Consumption, with great success."—DR. J. H. WILSON, Centerville, Iowa.

"My wife, troubled with violent coughing, hard and dry, for 30 years, got so low I thought it would kill her. She took AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and is entirely cured.—G. M. CARR, French Camp, Miss.

"Several members of my family suffered severely with Influenza. All were cured by AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in a few days."—HENRY RUSSELL, Somerset, N. J.

"The best remedy that can be had for Coughs and Colds is AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."—E. M. SARGENT, Lowell, Mass.

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. E. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO
Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practial route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

The Savannah News asserts that without boasting, the schools of Boston and Philadelphia are below those of Savannah in the scale of general excellence.

At Bei Bazar, a city of Asia Minor, 950 dwellings, 544 warehouses and shops, 11 mosques, 15 nichols, 9 khans and 146 other buildings, were burned. Eleven persons perished.

The Senate passed a bill the other day providing Alaska with a government. A provision of this bill prohibits the liquor traffic in the territory except for medical and scientific purposes.

The Blue Ridge of West Virginia is believed by the State Geologist to contain a slumbering volcano. There is one place of about an acre in extent where the ground never freezes and the snow always melts. Vegetation is always a month in advance of the season. The volcano is believed to be below this spot.

The Church Extension Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church has been in existence twenty years and has built 4,500 houses of worship, that furnish sittings for over one million of people, and have a monetary value of over seven millions of dollars. This same society is now building ten churches a week, and thank God every church is dedicated to prohibition.—Christian Statesman.

In Kansas, one of the largest Bahama communities, a local veto was placed on the saloons of a certain ward by the united veto of men and women. The legislature promptly came to the relief of the exiled prohibitists, whereupon the inhabitants appealed to the crown, and to her eternal glory be it spoken that Queen Victoria promptly made the legislature of none effect where The People had spoken.

Gen. B. F. Butler addressed the Senate commitee on education and labor on the general features of labor. He asserted that the present difficulties were due to over production. We had, he said, a year's crop grown on hand and were within three months of another crop. Nearly a year's crop of cotton was now stored in warehouses. After referring to other commodities which were in stock in excess of current requirement, he said: "Why, we have twenty years' supply of whisky on hand."

The united family is the family that rises in the world. Union, mutual love, and mutual helpfulness, are the means by which families, sloughed apparently in hopeless and involuntary poverty, have raised themselves to more comfortable circumstances.—Freeman's Journal.

NEW BOOKS.

Sabbath Bells: For Sabbath Schools, Prayer, Praise, and Gospel Meetings. By Wm. B. Blake 35 cents per copy; $3.60 per dozen by mail; $3.20 per dozen by express, Published by Fireside Friend Pub. Co., Springfield, Ohio.

Chamber's Encyclopædia, new revised edition, 1884. The articles have undergone thorough revision, and have been brought up to the present date, many of them having been entirely re-written. The reissue is thus virtually a new edition, and represents the actual state of things. The revision has been effected under the careful superintendence of Andrew Findlater, LL.D., who has throughout taken charge of the work and imparted to it that practical and reliable character which has rendered it so universally acceptable. It is the most comprehensive, as well as the cheapest Encyclopædia ever offered to the public.

Queen Victoria's new book has inspired Mr. R. Worthington with more confidence than any other American publisher, for he is the only one who has brought it out in cloth binding, suitable for the library shelf. In this edition we are given the portraits that enriched the English edition, and the book is printed in handsome style becoming the literary production of a Queen. A reviewer of the book in the Critic has given this excellent summing up: "In brief, we can honestly say of the book that it is one to give the simple pleasure which was all that the loyal author expected it to give, while at the same time deepens our respect and sympathy for a Queen who, through fifty years of sovereignty, has retained simplicity; who has learned from fifty years of absolute deference to herself to be deferent to others, and who has not yet learned, after fifty years of absolute away in her household, to accept any service as a matter of course."—From Critic and Good Literature, N. Y.

ANTI-SLAVERY DAYS.

Mr. James Freeman Clarke has produced in the volume just published by R Worthington a sketch of the struggle which ended in the abolition of slavery in the United States, which is intended for the generation which has grown up since those stormy scenes. It will thus supply a desideratum most felt in our Sunday Schools. Mr. Clarke dwells mostly on the events with which he was personally familiar and the persons with whom he was best acquainted. The scenes are chiefly laid in Massachusetts and the characters are New England men, yet he hints at the way in which men felt and thought in other sections. The story of the emancipation will be as intensely interesting as any series of events in the records of mankind, and those chapters call fitting attention to some of the most important men and actions in that crisis. Time has elapsed since the great event, and both parties can now afford to retrace that period of contest and to do justice to both contending interests. Mr. Clarke's work is a valuable contribution to the future history of those days. Price, $1.25.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permaneutly cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh Cold in twenty-four hours. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-ly

By General W. W. Loring, of Florida.

Late Colonel in the U. S. Army, Major-General in the Confederate Service, and Forrest Pasha and General in the Army of the Khedive of Egypt.

1 Vol. Large 8vo. With 47 Illustrations. Handsomely bound. Price, $3.50.

From the Preface.

General Loring who was for 16 years in high command in Egypt, has given in graphic style an account of his own experiences and observations. His opportunities for study of Egyptian history and affairs, and of the social life of the people, high and low, were unlimited, and his narrative is of intense interest. For terms apply to

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 9-12, 1883.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund
—OF THE—
Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 fee in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250 000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to cause a magnificent Standard, steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends.....28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends.....28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits.....28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims.....28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims.....28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night.....26x24
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's.....28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed, and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

At the centenary meeting at Carondelet Street M. E. Church. South, Bishop Keener preached. The collection exceeded $1000.

The catalogue of Central Tennessee College for 1884 is a pamphlet of 40 pages, giving all the necessary information for those about to become students.

"Oriental Education," "Presiding Elders in Council," and "Lifeless' and Corrupt Forms of Christianity,' are tracts received from the Missionary Society of the M. E. Church

A preliminary circular, respecting the exhibition of education at the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition, has been issued by Hon. John Eaton, Commissioner of the Bureau of Education.

We have received a pamphlet copy of the proceedings of the New England Methodist Historical Society, fourth annual meeting, Jan. 2, 1884. The address of Rev. Daniel Dorchester, D.D., on the struggle of the introduction and growth of Methodism in New England is valuable and interesting.

The United States Supreme Court, in the case of the New Orleans Slaughterhouse Company, decided that a State cannot lawfully divest itself of the police power, or its sovereign right to legislate for for the general welfare. This applies equally well to the saloon people and the Louisiana State Lottery Company.

Our Paper is issued in the interests of Houston Seminary, and says: "The second school year has been very much more successful than the first in every respect. The work done has been systematic. Great improvement has been made in reducing the number of tardinesses. Good order has been maintained and the study much more thorough."

The communication we publish to-day, in which a visit to Howard University is described, is from the pen of a native Southern woman of slave holding antecedents; and in a private note accompanying it she says: "I am really and truly rejoiced to see such a noble and well conducted institution, open to what are termed 'colored men and women.' Quite a number of its recent graduates are of another race, yet all were taught in class together, a most signal and worthy evidence that the class distinctions often times complained of, are dying out in this section of the South at least."

The Southern Christian Advocate finds in the election of Bishops "A concession to the Gilbert Haven type of Northern Methodism."

At the great anniversary meeting, held in Philadelphia, of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, the audience contributed the munificent sum of $4,100. The addresses were very impressive.

The action of the General Conference on the majority report on the subject of caste in the church is hailed with joy all over our Southern work. It was a signal vindication of the course of this paper.

Before this issue reaches all of our readers the Republican national nominations will likely be made. In the order of their strength the candidates stand: Arthur, Blaine, Edmunds, Sherman. While President Arthur's chances are very flattering, there is a good prospect for some new name to be introduced to carry away the prize.

Last Friday, Decoration Day, was observed with increased interest and ceremonies here and elsewhere. Two steamers and railway trains on the Shell Beach road conveyed visitors to Chalmette. Ex-soldiers of both armies during the late war participated, and ladies of Confederate associations graced the ceremonies by their presence and gifts of flowers.

The striking spinners at Fall River were defeated, after losing sixteen weeks wages, and spending from $10,000 to $16,000 accumulated in four years, and $10,000 more contributed by sympathizers. This is a terrible result of action wrongly determined upon, and of a condition of affairs between employers and employes that deserves careful attention with a view of supplying a remedy.

The proposition to submit a constitutional amendment to a popular vote, for the abolition of the Louisiana State Lottery Company, failed to get a two thirds vote in the House. The pledges of candidates made on this subject are disregarded, and it is convenient to have a moneyed corporation within reach to supply campaign funds, etc. The general public that can submit to fraudulent elections will not be characterized by a vigorous reform spirit.

Agents will please address all business communications for this office relative to books, papers, etc., to Phillips & Hunt, 32 Natchez street. The communications for publication should be written on separate paper, and may be addressed to the editor or Phillips & Hunt, at the option of the sender. Please observe these rules; it will greatly facilitate our office work, and often enable us to comply with requests of correspondents at an earlier date.

The Catholic bishop of Soudan has just arrived at Cairo from the south. He reports seven Italian priests and four Sisters of Mercy massacred at El Obeid. He also reports that three priests were exposed naked to the sun for four days, and died from the effects of their exposure.

Placards were posted throughout the provinces reminding the Czar of the Nihilist proposals of 1881, that, in order to avert his father's fate, he should grant constitutional amnesty to political offenders.

The General Conference.

TWENTY-SECOND DAY.

The Conference amended the report from the committee to redistrict the General Conference districts so that the present number twelve was increased to thirteen.

There was an exciting debate on the proposition in the report of the committee on cooperation in Church work, which provides that at each General Conference every minister shall be asked a series of questions, and that his answers be published in the church manual. Rejected by a large vote. The report of the committee was adopted, with the following amendment:

Resolved, That a commission be appointed to consider the subject of consolidating and unifying benevolent societies, and devise a plan and report to the General Conference.

The following-named were recommended to be elected trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church for the term to expire in 1892: Luke Hitchcock, Charles W. Ketcham, Earl Cranston, M. B. Hagans, W. Cumback and P. M. Bigney. The report was accepted.

The report of the committee on episcopacy recommends the establishment of episcopal residences in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Chattanooga, New Orleans or Austin, DesMoines, Denver and Buffalo. Adjourned.

TWENTY-THIRD DAY.

Rev. Wm. X. Ninde, one of the newly-elected bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as presiding officer at the morning session of the General Conference exercised for the first time the Episcopal functions. A resolution was adopted creating a commission of five business men and five ministers to inquire into the methods of transaction of business by the Book Concern. The committee on itinerancy submitted a number of reports already printed, which were adopted. The committee to whom was referred papers and memorials on the extension of the time limit of pastoral terms, reported adversely to any change. Several substitutes were tabled, and the report, as introduced, was adopted. Recess.

When the Conference reassembled Bishop Walden occupied the chair for the first time.

Rev. Dr. Goodsell, chairman of the committee on fraternal greetings, presented a beautifully illuminated message of greeting from the Methodists in Turin, Italy. The message was in Italian. The chairman was directed to make reply.

The report of the General Conference of districts was discussed at some length and adopted with a slight amendment. The report of the itinerance committee upon the condition of the journals of the annual conference was read. The delegates laughed heartily at the sober statement that the "Alabama Journal was damaged by a cyclone." The report criticized each journal with great detail and was adopted. The detective journals will be reported to the conference concerned.

The itinerancy committee also reported a resolution relating to the relief of conferences in Germany and Switzerland from the restriction of term limit and placing them under the missionary rule. The motion to table the resolution was lost.

Dr. Liebhard, of Cincinnati, urged its passage.

Dr. Doering also explained some of the reasons why the change is desired. The resolution passed.

The delegations from conference districts then prepared their nominations for members of the various general committees of the Church.

TWENTY-FOURTH DAY.

Bishop Fowler presided.

The conference refused to suspend the rules to reconsider the report of the committee on lay representation.

The report of the committee on temporal economy came up. The recommendation that not less than two nor more than thirteen stewards be in any circuit was adopted, and a change ordered in the discipline to conform with this action. The present number is nine.

The committee on state of the Church called up its report for final action; Gov. Pattison, chairman, presented a report on marriage and divorce. It recommends that no divorces be granted except on grounds justified by the Scriptures, and also that a commission be appointed to confer with the Governors of all the States to endeavor to secure the enactment of uniform laws on this subject. The report was amended making it the sense of the conference that divorces should not be granted but for adultery, and any one divorced for such reason, if he be the guilty party, cannot be married again by any minister of the Church. The report, as amended, was adopted.

The committee presented a report declaring it the policy of the Church that no member of any society within the Church shall be excluded from public worship in any and every edifice of the denomination, and no student shall be excluded from any school of the Church on account of race, color or previous condition.

The minority report stated that in view of the action already had on the question further action was uncalled for. The minority report was voted down.

Mr. Pattison made a warm defense of his report and was frequently interrupted by applause.

A layman called for a vote by orders.

Not sustained.

A clergyman did the same with the same result.

A motion to postpone was lost.

Finally the main report was adopted by an overwhelming majority.

The committee reported a series of resolutions denouncing polygamy and declaring it to be the sense of the Representatives of Methodism, in General Conference assembled that is the duty of the legislative department of the government to proceed without further delay to enact laws which will summarily depose from political and official power in the Territories in the United States those who practice or advocate polygamy or favor it as a religious right.

An effort was made by Rev. Drs. Buckley and Curry to amend the report by striking out the clause which proposed to deal out summary chastisement, not alone to those who practice, but those as well who advocate the Utah system.

Gov. Pattison made a strong appeal for the adoption of the report. His remarks had a telling effect upon the delegates and the audience, and the report was adopted with applause. The two remaining reports of the committee were also adopted. One submitted certain provisions to be inserted in the discipline concerning official boards, and the other was as follows:

"Your committee on state of the Church, having considered the memorial referred to them from the Philadelphia society for alleviating the miseries of public prisons, recommend in accordance with the society's request that a committee on correspondence be appointed, who shall communicate with this and similar organizations throughout the country in the interest and promotion of such philanthropic institutions and work."

A multiplicity of reports of minor importance were submitted by different committees and adopted with slight amendments.

The committee on itineracy presented an additional report, establishing points for examination of conference journals.

One of the most important of papers thus presented was the report of the committee on the Book Concern, which shows that the profits accruing in New York and its depositories were $281,022, Cincinnati $101,092, making the sum of $382,114 as total profits. In addition the Eastern and Western houses paid dividends to the annual conferences amounting to $45,000. The report stated that the affairs of the Book Concern past quadrennium are more prosperous than ever before. This report, as well as a number of others submitted by the same committee were adopted.

At the afternoon session Bishop Harris presented a report of the Minadid Home at Morristown, N. J. The trustees of the institution were authorized to make such disposition of the property as might seem proper. A resolution from the book committee, authorizing book agents to sell the property on Fourth street in Cincinnati and on Sixth street in St. Louis, was adopted.

A petition for more religious publications in the Norwegian language was referred to the book agents.

In the last report the committee congratulated the conference upon the conduct of book depositories, which had all shown profit, and recommended the continuance of all present agencies.

Mr. Briggs, of Minnesota, asserted the profits of the Book Concern arose chiefly from Sunday-school publications. He offered as an amendment a plan providing for the sale of books by canvassing agents. The amendment was laid upon the table.

Gen. Fiske remarked that the best property the Book Concern had was the Christian Advocate, which Mr. Briggs had not mentioned.

Dr. Sanford Hunt moved that in case any paper did not pay expenses without any aid, whatever the subsidy voted it be discontinued. The motion was carried and the report adopted.

The work of editing the books published at Cincinnati was assigned to the editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

The committee on missions presented its reports. The first was a long document reviewing the work in various fields, and was adopted without debate.

The recommendation that special work be done among seamen was adopted.

Another report, which caused much discussion, recommended a union of Japanese missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church and of the Canadian Methodist Church under a central organization. The power of this central conference would be limited by the discipline and rules of the General Conference. The report was adopted.

Dr. Vernon presented a resolution, which was adopted, that a General Conference be formed in India, and authorizing one in Japan.

Items recommending a missionary magazine and the reading by candidates for preacherships of missionary books, was adopted.

Dr. Kynett caused general merriment by moving that the last business of the General Conference be to call the roll, and the names of all absent without leave be published in all the Advocates. Carried.

Another report of the missionary committee was presented establishing the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, all of its work to be under the same direction and supervision as the work of the General Missionary Society of the Church, and none of its money to be raised by church or Sunday-school collections.

The report, with a slight amendment regarding the collections of money, was adopted. A recess was taken.

In the evening and final session the tables were expeditiously cleared of all remaining business.

The report of the committee on itinerancy, requiring the Conference examination of all candidates for the ministry was adopted. It was also the report of the committee on Sunday-schools, which advocated greater public use of the Catechism, the publishing of a book a week for the next four years by the Book Concern for the use of Sunday-school libraries, and the aiding of the French Church in publishing books in French.

A resolution was adopted amending the book of Discipline so as to prohibit any preachers presiding in public service in any [illegible] which they do not belong, and requested by the regular pastors to do so. Another change in the disciplinary laws was adopted allowing a minister to withdraw from the conference to which he belongs without thereby losing his membership in the Church.

A proposition was agreed to for the change in the ratio of ministerial representation in the General Conference be made from one delegate to forty five ministers to one for every forty five to ninety ministers, and referring the subject to the annual conferences.

The other business of the evening consisted in the passage of resolutions asking that the gates of the New Orleans Exposition be closed on Sundays, and recommending a celebration in 1885.

A flood of complimentary resolutions and motions of thanks to bishops, secretaries, and officers, "to the pastors and people of the City of Homes for hospitality," were passed.

The closing devotional exercises then began. Bishop Wiley offered prayer, and Bishop Simpson, senior bishop of the Church, made a brief and feeling address. The doxology was sung, and the venerable bishop pronounced the benediction, and the Conference adjourned sine die.

Letter From LaTeche.

The first quarterly session of the LaTeche M. E. Church was held by the presiding elder, Rev. E. Williams. All reports being in order the business of the Conference was somewhat expedited. The stewards made a good financial showing; ninety odd dollars having been collected during the past two months for all purposes. The weather being inclement the presiding elder was unable to remain and preach for us, so taking the train at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning bade us good bye. The presiding elder met us in the midst of a great revival. The church having been aroused to a sense of her obligation to God for the salvation of her immortal souls, commenced a series of special meetings to arrest the tide of sin. Thus far their efforts have been successful. Eleven have been captured and the mercy seat is surrounded with anxious inquirers after salvation. Among the number is a little girl seven years old. Her experience is clear and her confidence in Christ is strong, nothing counterfeited. There is a lot of work to be done. Sin is rampant and strife and iniquity abounds on every hand. As the Lord has promised to help us in the pulling down of the strong holds of sin and Satan we propose at this time to stem the tide and to shake old Satan in the kingdom of his wickedness. Let me give you an incident of interest. Last Sunday morning about 1 o'clock a young man who was raised in the Orphan's Home in this place came into the church a few minutes before we dismissed apparently somewhat intoxicated. After the benediction the Rev. J. W, Richardson approached him, being an intimate acquaintance of his, and inquired of him how his soul prospered. "Aaron," said Brother Richardson, "I have been away for a long time and have come back again and have met you pursuing this same course of sin." "O!" replied the young man, "I have got the spirit of the Lord upon me now." "What do you call the spirit of the Lord?" asked the brother, to which he replied, putting his hand upon a black bottle concealed under his coat "this good old whiskey." He left the church that day boasting in his strength; but on the morrow he was found dead upon the railroad track, having been run over by the resistless locomotive while in a state of intoxication.

While the revival meetings were going on the political machines were going to and fro the country advocating the principles of their several parties. Ever and anon scores of hacks and buggies and men by the hundreds could be seen marching to the tap of the drum and to the strains of brass music, through rain and sunshine to the scene of political mass meetings. The Sabbath of the Lord offered no exception, as to ministers of the Gospel, some were chief actors in the arena of this political excitement. Pulpits were swapped by some for the stump, while others stayed at home to pull the wire upon the innocent and unsuspecting. We beg to submit a few facts which we trust you while take and use for the good of the Master's cause. At one of the political meetings held at Baldwin the President called upon the first deacon of the Baptist church in this place to offer prayer. Being a constituent of the other faction he refused. In order to be concise we shall give his own words:

"I won't pray for you." "I know that you are agains our party," said the President, "but you can pray for us, that won't hurt you;" but he replied, "I won't pray for you, pray for yourself." This is another instance of a modern Peter. Alas! what shall be done with these Peters. We can't reprove them. The only way to reach them is through the columns of your paper. A gentleman accosted another one of these Peters at Morgan City, a Baptist elder of that place, "well Mr." calling his name, "what are you doing now?" To which he answered, "I am preaching politics just now." "Well," said the gentleman with a sneer, "What have you done with the other kind of preaching." "I have suspended that for a while. I have got no time to attend to that just now; but as soon as the campaign is over I will go back to it again," he said. Across the Bayou Teche opposite Baldwin is Pleasant Hill. In this settlement the African Methodist and Baptist have churches; between these two denominations the people are pretty much controlled. The call issued by the Parish Executive committee to the presidents of the several ward clubs to convene, elect, and send delegates to the Parish convention for the purpose of nominating Parish officers created much excitement. When the time came for the assembling of the clubs, the President of the Pleasant Hill Club (the club in question) being either absent or some where concealed in the crowd, a portion of the members headed by A. M. E. preachers grew somewhat impatient; whereupon this divine, willing to satisfy the popular wish, undertook to assume the responsibility of President and to call the club to order, but no sooner had he ascended the stand, and he was arrested by the president de facto, who may well be represented as a man standing six feet in his stockings. A scene of disorder and confusion followed, which ended in the preacher being thrown by his antagonist into a gutter full of mud and water. Don't you think, Mr. Editor, that this man of God was well served? Please say whether you think such transactions worthy of ministers.

Yours truly

ERNEST LYON.

Bible Distribution in Texas in April, 1884.

The following is the Bible distribution by fourteen Colporteurs of the American Bible Society:

Days of service, 317; Miles traveled, 3632; Families visited by them, 3306; Families found without a Bible, 450; Families supplied by gift or sale, 353; Destitute individual supplied in addition, 148; Number of books sold, 1575; value, $692.08. Number of books distributed by gift, 388; value, $82.23; Contributions received from churches and individuals, $33.80. Returns were received from four Auxiliary Societies. Four mission churches were given pulpit Bibles. Other grants were made to needy Sunday-schools, mission fields, prisons, etc. Galveston Bible Society has engaged Andrew Benner to canvass its field. Brenham, San Antonio and De Witt Co., Auxiliary Societies are arranging for the work. The fourth general supply is being vigorously carried on. Help is greatly needed. Contributions may be sent to A. L. Taylor, Asst. Treasuer, Bible House, New York, or W. B. Rankin District Supt. Austin, Texas.

Eyes to See.

How wondrously beautiful must this world have looked to our first parents, when they were in the image of God, perfectly pure and good, and with a capacity of understanding and enjoying the beauties by which they were surrounded, and with hearts capable of love and gratitude. Their eyes were open to see only good. But there came a time when they were tempted to disobey God. They had trusted God naturally, but when sin came, they began to doubt, and their hold on Him was weakened, and misfortunes came. They had departed from Him and He left them, and their eyes were open to see evil. From that time, sin, and sorrow, and suffering, were to be the inheritance of man. But God was merciful, and at length, the Saviour came to remove the blight of sin, and to teach man how to regain the favor of God. He came to break the bondage of darkness, and let the soul go free, to grow more and more like Him.

"And Christ shall give you light," is promised to all who seek it; a light to point the way to Heaven by showing us our duty, day by day; a power superior to mental effort in those who depend upon God for it.

The whisperings of the Holy Spirit is an unerring guide, through the journey of life, to the goal to which we are all tending.

The light from God may shine down into the humblest walks of life, and be taken into all practical duties. It is the privilege of every one—indeed it is the duty of all to be continually guided by it. In preaching the Gospel, in teaching, in business life, and in the home circle; in fact, in anything that can interest any human being.

I find many people who really believe that God car s not for our small, everyday affairs. Why should He not? Our lives are mostly made up of small things, and need we wait until some big blessing comes for which to be thankful, or a big trouble, for which to ask special help? The Bible is very explicit in its assurances to those who seek to see God in everything that He is just the refuge they need, and a present help.

I could give many instances in my own experience, where God has been to me a "present help in time of trouble" but I prefer to write a few cases of which I have read and known, quite as reliable as my own.

In a school, not far from here, there was a girl, who was trying to get an education, and who had to pay her way, by her own work, and so her studies were often interrupted, and she was compelled sometimes to go to her classes without a proper preparation. At one time she was called to the blackboard to solve a difficult problem. She found herself much bewildered, when the thought came to her, "Jesus can help me." After asking for light, she was able to work out the problem with ease, and explain it to the satisfaction of her teacher. She said, to a friend, as she took her seat, "the Lord helped me in that." Another instance was told to me by a music scholar, she had given her by her teacher a lesson, in which was a strain, which she seemed entirely unable to conquer. She was ambitious and she wished to comply with her teacher's requirements; so she asked the Lord for help, and immediately she went through the exercise quite easily. She said, "O how happy it made me to think that the Lord would help me, even in my music lesson."

I heard of a milliner who had among her customers, a lady, who was very difficult to please, who had a hat trimmed, which did not at all suit her. The milliner had tried to do her best, and as it was a hurried time, she was wearied and troubled, but the lady's command to change the trimming was an imperative one. She took the hat and went away by herself, and there she told the Lord her trouble, and asked Him for help, after which, she took up her work and did it much to the satisfaction of her customers.

I could mention more instances where God has seemed to interpose, and lift people over their burdens in answer to prayer for light. It is pleasant in our communion with God, to tell Him our joys, but it is sweeter still to tell Him of our sorrows, and recieve comfort and help.

O how often we forget, and try to guile ourselves, and fret and worry because things go wrong. We have not money enough; our homes are not what they should be; we cannot dress well enough. We do need so much; we cannot see where everything is to come from to supply our wants. We would like to see what the future is going to bring us, of joy, or sorrow. O, how blind we are, and we grow more so, the more we distrust God. But He is ever near and He can open our eyes to see how rich we are. "All are yours; and ye are Christ's,"—if we only will.

It is only those whose eyes are open to the light, who are truly happy, and live to good advantage. It casts a halo of love and beauty over everything, such as God's children only, can enjoy. Why need people wait until they get to Heaven to see beauty and happiness? Really, Heaven may not be more beautiful than earth, to those whose eyes are open to see God, and who can feel His goodness, and His love. It is sin, and its results, that close people's eyes to the wondrous beauty that is all around. Some people can see only deformity and discord in everything. To them the world is hard and cold, and common place. There is nothing in others, that is attractive. The fact is, there is deformity in their own hearts, that blinds them to all good. O how lonely and weary are the hearts that see no love or joy! What slaves they are to selfishness! Let us open our eyes to see God, and the love that is all around us, and be happy.

MRS. L. C. BRADEN.

David's Desire.

"One thing have I desired of the Lord."—Ps. xxvii. 4.

1. We have here what David desired and sought after—that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life. David desired to have his residence with the priests, or like them to wait continually on the Lord in the sacrifices and ceremonies of the tabernacle. Or rather, perhaps, he desired to live so near the tabernacle that he might be present at every stated season of public worship; that he might visit the house of the Lord, not only on the Sabbath and the great feast days, but also at the offering of the daily morning and evening sacrifices, and on every public occasion. He would be so regular and punctual in his attendance on divine worship, that he might be said to dwell in the house of the Lord; and he would have this so, not only for a year or two, but uninterruptedly—that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life. This he desired, and after this he sought. Alas! how few desire and seek after what David did! What God said of the Jews by Haggai is too often true of this people now: Mine house is waste, and ye run every man to his own house.

2. We have here the singleness of David's purpose and the earnestness with which he sought what he desired. One thing have I desired of the Lord, that I will seek after. One thing, as if he desired and sought nothing else. Thus in another place, As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God? And again, How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of Hosts! My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth, for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. Blessed are they that dwell in thy house. For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness. Ps. xlii., and lxxxvi. 1, 2, 4, 10. Whatever else David desired or sought after that he might dwell in the house of the Lord was the chief thing. Every thing else must be subordinate to this one thing. The service of God and the celebration of his worship was that for which he lived. Alas! how few desire and seek this one thing. As the prophet said of the Jews of old, so it may be said of many now: Their heart is divided. Their regard for the world is greater than their regard for the house of God. They have not a single purpose, as had David. They do not live for one object. And though they may have some faint desire to dwell in the house of the Lord, yet they do not seek it with earnestness—this desire does not subordinate and absorb every other; it is not the one thing they desire and seek as supreme and above every other.

3. We have here, too, David's desire to be incorporated among the visible people of God. This idea is implied and included in his wish to dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of his life. Without the associating of God's people under some external, visible form, the public worship of Jehovah could not be maintained for any considerable length of time. If, therefore, we really desire the privilege of attending upon the ordinances of divine worship, we should also be willing to profess publicly our attachment to God and his service, and enrol ourselves among his visible people. So David felt; and so every one who has faith in Jesus Christ should feel, and come out and be separate from the world, dwell in the house of the Lord, be a member of his family, and so enjoy his protection and fellowship as his people, his children—one of his divine household. Come out and be separate, one of the Lord's people.

Dry Good Christians.

Along the outskirts of the sabbath audiences you see here and there are a packet of fashion. But down in the middle of the church are the solid columns, blazing away all through the service. Five hundred "broken and contrite hearts" covered up in rainbows and spangles, followers of the meek and lowly Nazarene, all a jingle and flash? Ten cents for the missionary cause and two hundred and fifty dollars for trappings? Unsophisticated persons, traveling on two yards of silk dragged by the lady going up the aisle in front of him—diamonds enough to give the Gospel to all India. The item of dress among the Christian people on the Sabbath-day is an outrage on the Christian religion. Our ladies' hats and shawls are so fine, on rainy days we are afraid to go to church lest we should get a drop on them. Our headgear is worth more than our souls. Enough money is expended by Christians of a large city in excess of the requisite outlay for dress, to relieve all the poverty and educate all the ignorance, and baulk all the crime. Show these religions peacocks out of the house of God. By your example make subdued and modest costume more popular than gaudy apparel. Do not put so much dry goods on your back that you cannot climb into glory. You cannot sail in the harbor of heaven with such a rigging as that.—Dr. Talmage.

"Doing a Grand Work For Me?"

In sending for a new supply of Compound Oxygen, a gentleman at Walnut, Iowa, says:

"I cannot get along without it, as it is doing such a grand work for me. You would not believe me to be the same miserable man I was a year ago to see me now, I am gaining so fast in flesh. I weigh more now than I ever did in my life before, but I still have pains through my lungs when I do any work; but other ways I am feeling as well as ever I did.

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. France Has Her Will With China.

By the treaty of peace signed at Shanghai by the representatives of the Chinese and the French Governments, the whole empire of Annam has virtually passed into the hands of France. Henceforth the latter country will be a formable rival of England in Farther India, and although, of the remaining prizes, independent Burmah may fall to the power which already holds Rangoon, the kingdom of Siam is likely to be absorbed by the masters of Cambodia and Tonquin. At Pekin, also, British influence will deservedly be weakened, for China never would have entered on a contest which has ended in her abject humiliation but for her reliance on the moral support received from the British Foreign Office until the disatrous consequences of Mr. Gladstone's Soudan policy produced indifference to French aggression in the East.

The rights conceded to France by the convention now concluded, far exceed the original claims against whose enforcement China earnestly protested as long as there was any hope of British intervention. All that the French Government nominally contended for by the operations begun last year, was the execution of the treaties of 1874, which, while they acknowledged the complete independence of Tu-Duc, guaranteed religious liberty and freedom of trade with Tonquin. But in August, 1883, after the capture of its coast forts had left the Annamese capital defenceless, the French Commissioner, De. Harmand, exhorted the so-called treaty of Hue, which practically transformed the whole empire of Annam into a province of France, the latter country assuming entire control of the fortifications, diplomacy, and police, of the customs, taxes, and expenditures, and of the general administration, and exercising exclusive jurisdiction over all foreign residents. In a word, Annam was placed by these stipulations in precisely the same position occupied by Tunis since the annexation of the Regency. It is this compact which China now binds herself to respect, as well as any future treaties which may still further tighten the relation between the protecting and the dependent State. As for the Black Flags, who seem to have fallen back to their stronghold at Laokai, France reserved to herself by a clause of the Hue treaty the exclusive right of dealing with these marauders, and inasmuch as China covenants to give them no assistance, it will probably not prove difficult to remove the sole remaining obstacle to the continuous navigation of the Song-koi.

The fact that Dr. Harmand was enabled to obtain by a clause of the Hue treaty, which has just been recognised at Shanghai, control over all the Annamese public works, which consist mainly of the elaborate appliances required for the maintenance of the Tonquin irrigation system, indicates an intention to vigorously stimulate rice culture in the Red River delta. It was pointed out twenty years ago to the Government of Napoleon III, by Capt. Cesare Moreno, a high authority on the affairs of Farther India, that the acquisition of the Tonquin rice fields would enable France to oust British Burmah and British India from the rice markets of southern China. To discharge, however, this profitable function of purveyor of a great food staple, it was needful not only to lay hands on Tonquin, but to stand on such a friendly footing with China as to gain free access to the consumers. The first condition was met by the successive victories of the French troops in the Song-koi delta, and the second is now satisfied by the present compact with China, whose most important clause provides for freedom of trade between Annam, France and China, the detailed arrangements of which are to be set forth in a supplemental treaty of commerce that will be presently drawn up.

It is hardly necessary to add that consideration of such weighty concessions, which permit France to plant herself at the door of China, and are likely to give her more influence at Pekin than has yet been exercised by any European power, the demand for a pecuniary indemnity, put forward by the Ferry Government in mere bravado, has been discreetly waived. The treaties of 1874, not being ratified by the suzerain of Tu-Duc, were but so much wasted paper, and China had a better right to defend her traditional authority in Tonquin than France had to assail it. But the wolf, we remember, once demanded compensation from the lamb, on the pretext that the latter animal, lapping at a point down stream, had polluted the water which the former drank above. There was a grim joke in the French claim for an idemnity; yet the Christian nations of Europe have always behaved like wolves toward the weak States of Asia, and France has only copied unscrupulously and successfully in her dealings with Annam and China the example set by England in Hindostan.—New York Sun.

Mirthfulness and Religion.

There is a great diversity of opinion as respects the relation of mirthfulness to religion. A considerable portion of good people associate mirthfulness with levity and irreverence. They speak of it as their easily besetting sin, and suspect the Christian character of those who indulge and promote it. Others have no conscience in the matter, and not only give full play to their own hilarious sentiments, but are so provokingly funny in their conversation and spirit as to incite it in others. It is not easy to reconcile these conflicting opinions, or to give conclusive arguments on either side. That the Scriptures furnish no decisive precept as respects mirthfulness, is a strong presumption in its favor. They condemn various kinds of mirth, but leave us to the inference that uncontaminated with impurity, irreverence or cruelty, it is as innocent as breathing. The classification of all mirth with the "idle words" of our Lord, or with the "foolish talking and jesting" of the Apostle Paul, is an intolerable assumption. The joy which is constantly recognized as the result of a filial trust in God, and one of the fruits of the Spirit, can scarcely fail to predispose to a mirthful frame. Nature itself prompts it. The young of almost all animals gambol and sport. We see the insects of a day perfoming their antics, and the birds their hilarious flights. We term this excess of physical and mental activity—life, vivacity—and regard it an estimable quality. But man has more than this overflow of animal spirits and exuberance of life. God has given him a sense of the ludicrous, the power to perceive and enjoy the grotesque and absurd groupings in nature, art and society. Language is infiltrated with this sentiment. It constitutes the small coin of the social mart, the delicate attenuation of the spiritual nature. It gives the most attractive expression of countenance, and chisels the features into the highest ideal of grace and beauty. Its purest outflow consists with innocence, kindness, and mutual confidence. It intricates both soul and body, quickening the flow of blood, abating the tension of care and sorrow, and relieving despondency. It equalizes more than all else the mutual force which individuals exert upon each other. The greatest talents, force of character or dignity of position, may be balanced by an exuberant and well balanced mirthfulness. The grave and thoughtful are peculiarly sensitive to its power in social life, deriving a strange fascination from those who are perennially jubilant. Mirthfulness is the natural reaction from the stress of religious emotion. A company of Methodist ministers or devoted earnest people at a camp meeting after a hard day's work, have an almost irresistable tendency to laughter and merriment. A class of genial virtues consort with a lighthearted and effervescent spirit. But perpetual sobriety is like a dense shade that soon renders the earth bare and unattractive. Who could endure a family with no merry-making? Childhood would lose its grace and attractiveness, youth its charm and friendship its aroma, if perpetual sobriety should freeze over the rippling surface of life. True mirth is individual, native and inexhaustible. It does not require stock anecdotes, puns and quips for its sustenance. It is not a retail shop for others' wares, but a furnace that glows with molten thought ready to be cast in the ever varying mould of time and circumstance. It is very far removed from professional buffoonrey, whether in literature or upon the stage, and gains nothing by any such expedients. It consists with the greatest earnestness, seriousness and decision of character, and is not averse to devotion and piety. Levity—which is any form of mirth that travesties or discounts the sober realities of duty and religion—is not to be commended, nor any mirth that wounds or disheartens our fellows. It must be conceded that though mirthfulness is a virtue, it is one that requires to be carefully guarded. The depravity of human nature is nowhere more evident than in the disposition to find gratification in that which is impure or irreverent. And when the mirthful faculty is aroused it is liable to accept forbidden topics, and, carried on by the power of association, to indulge in "jesting." A passion for amusement, as a relaxation, as a palliative to an evil conscience, or as the antidote to despondency, may lead where no further capacity of innocent mirth will remain.

Any form of fanaticism, any mono-mania or habitual monotony of feeling and sentiment tends to repress and extinguish genuine mirth. Insanity can hardly supervene till the mirthful faculty is paralyzed. The insane cannot laugh naturally, but live under perpetual melancholy or perpetual delusion. It is important to give such a salutary impulse, the utmost freedom of exercise, and development consistent with the sober virtues of life. The interstices of time in the intervals of business and study serve a worthy purpose if they kindle a zest of social delight in hearts that else would hardly feel a kindred sentiment. Those who serve as the medium between other hearts, or as the flint to the steel, are genuine benefactors. And in adjusting the appointments of life, and in the crystallization of its sentiments, principles and habits, it should engage our most drtermined effort to maintain, even to old age, a basis of cheerfulness.

How to Help the Church.

1. Give your heart to God and consecrate your life to his service.

2. Always make it a rule to be a regular attendant upon all the meetings for public worship.

3. Give liberally to the support of the church and all its interests. Let your rule of giving be, "As God has prospered me."

4. Make your religious engagements the first engagements of your life.

5. Let it be a rule of your life to always attend the prayer-meeting and the Sunday-school and to discharge whatever duties may be presented to you there.

6. Always speak approvingly to your minister and his work in the presence of the ungodly. Never criticise your pastor nor find fault with any of his plans and methods of work in the presence of your children. If you cannot say anything favorable of the sermon or man, it is better to say nothing.

7. Never bewail the low spiritual condition of the church. Take hold and do what you can to make it better.

8. Live a prayerful, humble life; live near to God, trust in the merciful providence of his grace, do right now and always though the heavens fall, and God can make you a helpful instrument in building up his blessed kingdom in the world.—Religious Telescope.

Only One Fault.

I was riding through a bowery country town in Vermont, when I chanced to notice a concourse of people in the churchyard evidently encircling an open grave.

It was a warm day and I had ridden ten miles, and I drew the rein under some trees that arched the road, to allow the horse to cool and rest.

Presently a villager came toward me, and I said.

"There is a funeral to-day in your town?"

"Yes—Stephen. He was one of the largest hearted men I ever knew. We all owe something to Stephen." Then he added in a tone of regret, "He had but one fault."

The light fell in pencil rays through the trees. I sat in silence enjoying the refreshing coolness.

The man resumed the subject: "He had great abilities, Stephen had. We sent him to the Leislature three times. They thought of nominating him for Governor. But," he added sadly, "Stephen had one fault."

I made no answer. I was tired, and watched the people slowly disperse, leaving the sexton to his solitary work.

"A very generous man Stephen was. Always visited the sick—he was feeling—when any one was in trouble. The old people all liked him. Even the children followed him in the streets."

"A good man indeed," said I indifferently.

"Yes; he only had one fault.

"What was that?" I asked.

"Only intemperance."

"Did it harm him?"

"Yes; somewhat." He didn't seem to have any power to resist it at last. He got behind-hand and had to mortgage his farm, and finally had to sell it. His wife died on account of the reverse—kind of crushed and disappointed. Then his children, not having the right kind of bringing up, turned out badly. His intemperance seemed to mortify them and take away their spirit. He had to leave politics; twouldn't do, you see. Then we had to set him aside from the church, and at last his habits brought on paralysis, and we had to take him to the poorhouse. He died there—only forty-five. There were none of his children at the funeral. Poor man, he had only one fault."

"Only one fault!"

The ship had only one leak, but it went down. The temple had only one decaying pillar, but it fell.

"Only one fault." Home gone, wife lost, family ruined, honor forfeited, social and religious principles abandoned; broken health, poverty, paralysis, and the poorhouse.

One fault, only one.—Youth's Companion.

Revival Preaching.

Says The Presbyterian, "'Preach the word; be instant in season and out of season;' for there is no movement toward the salvation of men that has not the preaching of the word as the jewel sparkling on its brow. It is the hammer in the Spirit's hand—the sword fitted to the cleaving between flesh and spirit; all else is but anxiliary, and must follow in its wake. The preaching must be direct, with a definite purpose, to be gained immediately. Peter preached with reference to immediate results — to puncture hearts then and there, and he did it. He did not utter a word superfluous. Earnest men who feel the value of souls never do. Genuine fervor burns the stubble as it moves, and only real value is left. Revival preaching is doctrinal in the beginning—first in clear statement of its relation to the soul rejecting, and its saving relation to the soul accepting; but it will be stripped of theory and every diversion which theory can suggest, and will be dogmatic in the sense of positiveness. The preacher will show no doubt in his mind and manner, and hence give no opportunity to his hearers to doubt. He will preach on what he knows and feels to be true, which needs rather forcible statement than argument."

"Let the argument addressed to the sinner urge to the acceptance of that about which there cannot be a shadow of doubt. Such preaching must show progress in intensity. It will not do to beat about in circles. There must be advance seen and felt toward conviction, acceptance or rejection, and the sinner must be made to feel that he must do one or the other ere he leaves the house. The best type of this incisiveness can be only gained by the preacher by introspection, self-examination and the testing of the motives which he offers by the effect they have had on himself. What has affected his heart into reformation unto life will reach other lives. There is nothing gained by reproducing the arguments of other men like Edwards, or Finney, or Nelson, because they are dead for the present emergencies, and reproducing them would be contrary to the Scriptural assumption that men would not be convinced if one rose from the dead. A pastor of experience in this work knows well that the sermons which have moved his people one year will not do it the next; and there are but few sermons which will make great religious impressions on an audience more than once."

Most Needed.

The kind of education most needed in the South, and in the North as well, is moral rather than intellectual —education that will teach and induce or enforce truth versus lying; honesty and industry versus stealing and idleness; temperance and peace versus drunkenness and murder; faithfulness in fulfilling contracts and promise versus dodging and fraud, and independence that will refuse to vote for a corrupt or incompetent aspirants for office, albeit he may be the nominee of a clique or ring who would fain cover their clandestine intrigues by a "convention" mantle. Education along this line is needed ten times more than education in "literature, art and science." If the State or the United States should be taxed to overcome "illiteracy," why should they not be taxed to counteract the greater evil —immorality. Why should not a teacher of morals be supported from the treasuries of the State and Federal governments as well as the one who teaches spelling, reading, writing, arithmetic, or the higher branches, as in college, university, citadel or institute? The demand for morality is far greater than that for mere head education. The missionary is needed more than the school-teacher; the Bible is needed more than "school books."—Christian Neighbor.

"Art" In The Family.

In the name of art a vast amount of sensuality is introduced into Christian families. That the godless world should delight in pictures that excite the animal passions is not strange, but no sound-minded man can but be startled when he sees naked Venuses, Danaes, and Selenes in every variety of color and posture adorning a Christian parlor. Is the simple-minded mother astonished to find her growing sons are dissipated and alienated from home? Does she suppose the native propensities of youth are fireproof in her children? Has she depended for safety on a purity which never yet resided in any young man's heart? It is doubtful whether a young woman can go through her youth, beholding lascivious pictures on every side and preserve her soul in cleanliness, but that a young man can do it is as sheer impossibility. That there may be a style of nudity in statuary which is not provocative of base thoughts we will not deny; but what we see in the homes of Christians is not this. We see, on the contrary, everything that the cunning of French art can do to make vice attractive. It is but a step, and a short step, from this to full-orbed obscenity. And the young men of Christian families are taking this step in battalions. Their parents have systematically prepared them for it. They have sustained the fashionable [illegible] about art, which comments with an air of superior breeding on nudeness, and breaks down all the modesty which should exist between the sexes. They go to see and praise as a work of art, a figure that would have made the fortune of a Pompeian bangio, and they chat at the dinner-table, before their children, on the exquisite roundness of the limbs.

It is not strange, where such an education is given, that the young ladies should appear in the parlor with bold exhibitions of their persons, and that young men should enjoy the waltz which brings them, with the approval of parents, to encircle these young ladies with their arms, and come into close contact with their persons. Nor is it strange that these same young ladies should devour Zola's novels, and then talk to their young beaux of their contents. Nor is it strange that headache and lassitude and disordered nerves should prevail among a youth thus trained to nurse the sensual feelings.

Let not any verdant reader suppose that this is a Quixotic attack on windmills. The conditions of things here animadverted upon are the actual condition of fashionable circles in New York city, in which, alas! many Christian families are drawn from a false desire to "set up" their children in ways of affluence or position or influence. It is the danger to the Christian families which should cause the Christian pastor to sound an alarm, and it should be no uncertain one. He must speak plainly, or else be responsible for the spiritual wrecks about him.—Rev. H. Crosby, in the Episcopal Recorder.

What is Needed.

The church needs a change of quality as well as quantity of membership. One half the professing Christians amount to nothing. They go to church. They have a kind regard for all religious institutions. But as to any firm grip of the truth, any enthusiastic service for Christ, and cheerful self-denial, any over-mastering prayer, and capacity to strike hard blows for God, they are a failure. One of two things these half-and-half professor ought to do, either withdraw their names from the church roll, or else go so near the fire as to get warm. Do you know that your present position is an abomination? You profess to be living for God and Heaven, but all the world knows you are lying.

Wake up! Do something before you are dead. Either help pull in the Lord's chariot, or get out of the way. We want more old-style holiness, the kind they had before railroads, steamboats and telegraphs. A consecrated heart is momentum for all Christian work. Young guns is well enough, but the gun-carriage is rickety, and so unfit for the Lord's battery. The Lord give us all a higher life, a deeper life, a broader life. We can not do much toward saving others till we ourselves are more surely saved. We cannot pull others out of the surf when our own feet are slipping on the rock. More piety, more faith, more consecration will be more momentum.—Christian Work.

A writer in Nature is authority for the statement that small birds that are unable to fly across the Mediterranean Sea a distance of 350; are carried over on the backs of cranes. When the first cold weather comes, the cranes make a peculiar cry and fly low. Then the birds may then be seen flying up to them, and the twittering of those already settled may be heard. Many species of small birds would become extinct but for this provision for their migration.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D., Editor.

THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1884.

"Let your moderation be known unto all men."—Phil. iv, 5.

Salutatory.

We raise our hat and, bowing to those, respectfully salute the patrons, likewise those who should be though they are not now patrons of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. We have mounted the editorial tripod in simple obedience to the command of two-thirds of the delegates of our whole Church throughout the world, lately convened in Philadelphia for General Conference. It is a great honor to be thus elected, by a body of men most excelled in any good quality by any ecclesiastical convention ever brought together on this continent. This honor has come to us without personal solicitation on our part. We are profoundly impressed with a deep sense of the numerous and difficult responsibilities involved in this position. It calls forth our gratitude, not only because it is an acknowledgement of our past faithfulness in the service of the Church, but also an attestation of her confidence in our fitness for the important trust conferred upon us.

Naturally of a diffident and retiring disposition, a modest and unassuming habit, loving retirement and quietness more than publicity and conspicuosity, we instinctively shrink from, and, if left free to follow the inclinations of our own will in the matter, we should gladly decline this call to duties which present to us no special attraction whatever. But in such a case, and so expressed, to us the voice of the Church is the voice of God, "Vox Ecclesia, vox Dei." It must hence be obeyed. Therefore, trusting in God, and with unfaltering confidence in the people, especially in our own race, that we shall be sustained by their patronage and support in every way, we accept this new post of duty, with its high and multiform concerns, after much prayerful consideration.

1st. Because we dare not disobey the will of the Church when so clearly made known as it has been in this case.

2d. Because the selection of a man for this position was designed to illustrate the theory and practice of equality, the doctrine already established in the law of the Church that color is not a bar to office in the Church.

3d. Because we regard it as the duty of the Church to the utmost to grant the request of her colored members for General Conference representation by the judgement to the election of some one of their number.

Although the election possesses this representative element, we do not propose to interpose our personal preferences. We are at liberty to accept or decline it. The interests of God, the Church, our race, demand more than of self, constrain us to undertake this difficult work, with its manifold and responsible duties.

Before us as our work before us as the Hindoo Myth—represented with three faces, one looking toward their supposed creator, another toward their preserver, and the other toward their destroyer—so that we look to God, reverence the Christ, and also carefully chronicle the movements of the destroyer in whatever guise or disguise he may appear. Like Janus, the Latin deity, we shall face two ways—toward our allies in right-eousness we shall look with approval, but confront its opponents with words of no uncertain sound. We hope to do all with such evidence of sincerity and singleness of purpose as to strangle in its very birth the most apprehension of duplicity. We shall remember them that are in bonds as bound with them; and them which suffer adversity, as being ourself also in the body. We may indeed need to speak out thus freely sometimes because we are not unmindful of the men of our race who have failed to be in position to render as important service have not always been found to do so. We now throw open the Temple of Janus, so to speak, and shall not again close it while the common foe of God and Godliness stands in battle array before us. We shall contend for purity first, and afterwards peace. "The fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace." We wish and hope to see the last barrier to the social and moral elevation of the NEGRO removed." "We regard social equality as a condition of society, and shall therefore allow and wait for it to make itself." Since no legislation can aid in its development, we shall expect and ask for none, and as much as in us is, we shall resist any statutory prohibitions to it, where it would be otherwise desirable. "Permanent success depends upon intrinsic worth." "The best way to have a public character is to have a private one." "The great struggle for our elevation is now with ourselves." "We must imitate the best examples set us by the cultivated whites, and by so doing we will teach them that they can claim no superiority on account of race." We shall contribute everything we can to the accomplishment of this purpose. But we shall insist upon determining what is the most appropriate method of procedure. It is good Methodist doctrine that the mode of doing anything is not essential to the thing done. We shall yield to no man in our zeal for this. It will be unnecessary for us to pursue any new line of action in the execution of this design, as the work of our whole life has tended to it.

We do not address you as a stranger in the South. We were born, and wrought and suffered on this soil. Here the ashes of our parents, brothers, sisters, children, relatives and associates lie mingling with the dust. Here, when the work of life is finally done, we hope that ourself shall be laid away to rest.

We send out to the people of the South, and of the nation, our most cordial, Christian and fraternal greetings. We hail the preachers as fellow-workmen, and brethren beloved in the Lord. We have received many warm assurances of sympathy and all needful co-operation from you, for which we are sincerely grateful. It is our intention to merit the retention of these kindly sentiments by a manly devotion to the task assigned us.

We esteem this paper as in the highest sense an organ of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in a more limited sense it is the official paper of the South. Its editor is without restrictions, and ranks as the official peer of all the editors of the Church. Wherever we can get subscribers is our patronizing territory, and we call upon the colored members of our Church, in the name of their denominational pride, and of their race pride as well as of their Christian duty, to secure for it a subscription list equal to any other periodical of its class in the Church. We have now enrolled 3,000 subscribers, but we have more than 200,000 members. We can, and surely will, more than double this list at once. We appeal to our white members and friends to aid us by subscriptions—let us place this paper on a sound, self-supporting basis.

We shall support all educational, industrial, civil and political interests of the Church, our members, and the country, with a national rather than a sectional view and feeling. We shall strive, by all honorable and Christian endeavors, to secure and maintain the utmost friendliness, confidence, and such relations as shall be mutually most beneficial to the white and colored populations of the South, of the nation, and especially of our own Church. We shall esteem a failure on this line preferable to success on any other. We shall demand fair wages for fair work, and the legal recognition of the rights of all citizens. We shall condemn all forms of vice, and honor every type of true virtue. We shall contribute by precept and example to the creation and maintenance of pure personal and home life. We shall encourage and call for legal protection of chastity in women, and the prohibition of lewdness. We shall expect the firm support of all good people, especially ministers, more especially of our own church in doing this. We shall at any and all convenient seasons be glad to aid the pastors with their work, and to form personal acquaintance with them and their families. We shall strictly maintain, and defend the doctrine, polity and status of our colored membership, if occasion requires. We have no new departure to announce for this paper, and no hobby to unveil or vindicate. Our policy is to be wise according to what is written in the Discipline until it is changed, and to follow God's word wherever it leads. We entertain sentiments of Christian regard for our respected predecessors in this office, Dr. J. C. Hartzell and Bro. L. P. Cushman, also for Bro. A. E. P. Albert the former assistant editor.

We desire contributions from all persons who may have a thought to express; we intend to express ours vigorously and freely. We shall be conservatively progressive, and loyally free. We trust there is room upon this broad platform for us all to stand upon and work together, for the advancement of all connectional interests without the sacrifice or compromise of a single correct principle. "With charity for all and malice toward none, with a firmness in the right as God shall give us to see the right," the editor assumes his labor for God and humanity.

Springfield, O., May 23, 1884: "Rev. Marshall W. Taylor—Dear Brother: Permit me to say that I am highly elated to receive the intelligence of your election to the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE by our General Conference. It satisfies my wishes and strengthens my confidence in our beloved Methodism that it recognizes the worth and ability of her sable brothers, and that she wishes to encourage and elevate us in defiance of all opposing elements. To me this is but a stepping-stone to higher and nobler trusts which lie in wait for those of our ranks who are worthy. As a member of the Lexington Conference I recognize we are honored above others, in first, having the man for the position, and second, that the august body wisely selected him out. May this be a stimulus to you to renew your past energies in future prosperity and usefulness for God, humanity and the Church. My best wishes and sincerest respects shall go with you in your new field of usefulness for good. Please enroll my name as a regular subscriber from now on for the SOUTHWESTERN and an occasional contribution. Sincerely yours,

HENRY W. TATE."

Troy, Ohio, May 24, 1884: "Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D.D.—I must congratulate you on the promotion you have received from the great Methodist Episcopal Church. I think the General Conference has acted wisely in your election. God bless and crown your labors with success. Margaret is shouting; she has been praying for you to be elected Bishop, but I tell her the Lord heard her on the other side.

Springfield, Ohio:—"I congratulate you. W. C. ECHOLS."

Chicago, May 24, 1884—"I congratulate you on your election. It is a fitting thing. A. C. GEORGE."

Louisville, May 24, 1884:—"It seems that your grand old Church is destined to be the hand that saves the race. I congratulate you.

GEORGE TAYLOR."

Steubenville, Ohio, May 24, 1884: "Dear Dr. Taylor—I have been watching with much interest the doings of the General Conference, and no action of it is more worthy of commendation than your election to the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN. Accept my congratulations. J. J. HOLLAND"

The New Editor.

Marshall William Taylor, D.D., editor elect of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, was born of free parents at Lexington, Fayette county, Kentucky, July 1, 1846. He was converted to God and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1863. His early education was received at a school at Louisville for free colored people; he also attended school in Indiana and Ohio. He was licensed to preach in 1869. The year 1871 he spent in doing missionary work in Arkansas. In 1872 he joined the Lexington Conference, and was ordained deacon by the late Bishop Scott in 1877. He has served the Church as a pastor and presiding elder ever since he joined the itinerancy in 1869. In 1872 and 1884 he was elected delegate to the General Conference. In 1880 he was appointed fraternal delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church to the A. M. E. Church, and also to the Ecumenical Conference at London, England. Dr. Taylor has been a frequent contributor to the different periodicals of the Church, and has published a number of books. His last production was a collection of "Plantation Melodies," a book that is now in general use throughout all the South. He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from the Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn. Bro. Taylor is a firm friend of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is regarded by those who urged and secured his election as a conservative man. With reference to the course he will pursue as editor of the SOUTHWESTERN we are not prepared to speak with any degree of positiveness, save this, we have not the least thought that the general tone of the paper will be modified. We expect that he will make it a better and a stronger paper than it ever has been; while on all questions that affect the interests of our church work in the South the SOUTHWESTERN will not, under the management of Dr. Taylor, give any uncertain sound. A few weeks since, in a personal note to the writer, he most heartily approved of the course of the SOUTHWESTERN. We wish for him the greatest measure of success. L. P. C.

The Danville Report.

The following is the conclusion of the report of the Senate subcommittee, which investigated the riot at Danville, Virginia. The report is signed by Senators Lapham, Sherman, Hoar, and Cameron, of Wisconsin. The recommendations made in the Copiah report were adopted as part of this one:

The object of the Democrats in their efforts to raise the race issue, to arm the blacks and to excite the whites was two fold. First to intimidate colored voters in localities where they were strong, as in Danville. Second, but chiefly, to produce such a frenzy of feeling in the State as would induce the white electors to join with their own race and escape the contumely and reproach to which they would otherwise be subjected for fraternizing politically with 'niggers.' The efforts which were made to gloss over this terrible outrage by the committee of forty needs only a moment's notice. It was done upon ex parte affidavits taken before magistrates. They were wholly extra judicial, and no one incurred responsibility for his statement. The real facts were not called out. It was a partisan effort to screen the perpetrators of wrong from punishment. The report of the grand jury is equally open to criticism. Three at least of its members were on the committee of forty. The published report of that committee was before them and used by them. There were only seven members, and the foreman was one of the committee of forty.

The transgressions of the law at Copiah are clothed at least with the merit of a frank avowal on the part of those who were concerned of the purpose they had in view. Not so in reference to Danville. The guilty authors and instigators of violence resorted to the murder of four unoffending colored men and the wounding of many others, and seek to cover up and conceal their deliberate purposes, and to have it appear that they acted only in self-defense. The evidence is entirely satisfactory. Indeed it is overwhelming that it was a consummation of a deliberate purpose for which they had fully prepared. Hence the effort to magnify and distort the character of the collision, and to make it appear not only that the blacks were the offenders, but also that the whites were standing in their doors, with guns in their hand, to protect their families against the insolence of a negro mob, when in truth the white Democrats were a mob in possession of the town, and no negro dared to make his appearance on the streets. The occurence was one which caused rejoicing instead of regret, as we have shown. No one has been arrested, indicted, tried, or punished for the crimes committed on the 3d of November.

There should be found some remedy for such a state of affairs as this investigation discloses. The constitution of the United States provides that when the right to vote is denied or in any way abridged in any State, the basis of representation shall be reduced accordingly. While these resorts to terrorism and violence are kept up from year to year, and the party in the ascendancy, instead of providing laws to prevent their recurrence or punishing the offenders, enacts measures designed to throw obstacles in the way of a free ballot, and enjoys the benefits politically which are the necessary consequences, the States where it occurs should be responsible for the results. An individual would justly be adjudged liable in reaping a similar advantage under like circumstances and by like means. The rule should equally apply to State for its action or its failure to act in order to redress such grievances and punish such offenses.

The recommendations made in the Copiah report are adopted as part of this report. The report is signed by Senators Lapham, Sherman, Hoar and Cameron. Senator Vance submitted a minority report.

PERSONAL.

—Rev. W. P. Gardner, of Mermentau, Louisiana, called last Thursday, while in the city on business. He presented us with an orange stick, neatly trimmed for use, as a substantial cane.

—Dr. Carter returned on Thursday last from Philadelphia. He speaks pleasantly of his trip, his cordial reception and the doings of the General Conference.—N. O. Advocate.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

A. Greenlee, Walthall: "We are pleased with our pastor, Wm. Gatewood. We are doing all we can to raise our collections before fall."

I. W. Davis, Trenton: "I have traveled on foot 278 miles, preached 36 times, and received $18.90 as support for myself and family. I encountered some difficulties caused by my predecessor, but I feel strong and shall labor cheerfully Have received 3 in full connection, 1 by letter, and three on probation, have three very promising Sunday-schools and five churches, the nearest eight miles, the farthest twenty.

TEXAS.

S. Coleman, Waelder: "At Mt. Edom Rev. L. Carper held a protracted meeting, and there were 18 converts. There have been 32 on the work this year. Paid pastor $73.85. The times are hard; it has been raining for five weeks, and Peach Creek has overflowed. Elder Carmichael held the second quarterly conference."

C. Young, Dallas: "I took charge of St. Paul Church in March. The people were a little discouraged, but we took right hold and the work is going right on. We have some converts, some reclaimed and seven have joined. R. J. Brice is a grand Sunday-school superintendent, and Mary Colton is a good teacher. We are trying to pay off some of the church debt."

George Davis, Richmond: "We have had a great time; 36 converted; raised $26.55."

E. Henderson, LaGrange: "My second quarter was held by Elder Gates, and was an agreable occasion. The people are improving, and we are paying off old debts."

Jeremiah Smith, Willis: "The work here is moving on slowly. A protracted meeting is in progress. I have received from probation 8, from Baptist church 2, by conversion 4, on probation 16. The children are being cared for and are deeply interested."

Sarah Yancey, Columbus: "We are preparing to have a grand time on childrens' day. The Sunday-school is geting on splendidly. On May 11, Miss Nancy Shropshire, aged 18 years, a faithful scholar, died. Never before was there such a funeral witnessed in Columbus. She came home from Tillotson institute, and was sick for several weeks. She was highly esteemed, a refined young lady. Rev. W. H. Davis preached her funeral sermon at St. Paul's Church."

LOUISIANA.

H. J. Wright, Natchitoches: "The Reapers Missionary Society had their annual parade on the day of their anniversary, April 30, 1884. The Society is composed of 105 of all denominations, ages, colors, sizes and conditions. They have their banner and six class banners namely, Reapers Missionary Society; "Bible Class No. 1," "Disciples Class No. 2," "Gleaners Class No. 3," "Lambkin Class No. 4," "Buds of Promise, No. 5," "Band of Hope, No. 6." On either side of the floating car read "Our Anniversary." We received four white steeds from our friends, two and the driver from Samuel Parson, Esq., one of the leading white business men of the parish; he is a large land-owner and keeps the undertaker establishment of our city. One from a white lady of the city, Mrs. Continier, and the fourth from one of our friends, Mr. George Dotson. Friday evening at 5 o'clock the children of the Reapers Missionary Society met at the church. Just imagine the crowd, my patience! Oh, a Christian ought to have the patience of Job. I made a table for the children of single planks 40 feet long, white cloths spread; assorted cakes, candy and lemonade was put on the table and justice did; we had plenty and some to spare. Now we are preparing for the second Sunday in June."

J. Qualls, LaHarpe Church, New Orleans: "Being asked by R. C. Barrow, pastor, and members of Algiers M. E. Church, to talk to them about three departed saints, I found a crowded house. The building in which we worshiped is being rapidly completed, and people are being converted. There is victory ahead for that congregation."

ARKANSAS.

L. W. Elkins, Little Rock: "I have just learned through Bro. Duncan that Rev. E. Roberts, pastor of our church at Washington, is seriously ill of heart disease. He has the sympathy and prayers of his brethren."

TENNESSEE.

M. Williams, Gallatin: "Yesterday, May 25th, was a lively day at Key's Chapel. Raised for our new building in contemplation, $70.80. We hope to have our plan here by Sunday, June 1.

A. P. Blakemore, Springfield: "My second quarterly meeting was a pleasant occasion. Elder Pickett gave us a grand talk. Paid elder $9.10; pastor $34.70; 2 joined the church."

G. C. Harden, Lawrenceburg: "Bro. Collier, of Waynesboro, held our second quarter. The reports were enconraging. For elder $9.65; paid pastor $29.40. Rev. E. Manson preached the sacramental ser-

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Howard University.

This splendid institution for the almost gratuitous education of the youth of both sexes and races, but more especially designed for colored pupils, occupies an elevated and beautiful site on the western edge of the city of Washington, on a campus of twenty acres. The University edifice, four stories in height, contains recitation and lecture rooms, chapel, library, reading and philosophical rooms, museum and offices. The Medical building is on the south of the park. Miner Hall is set apart for lady students. Industrial Hall is devoted to instruction in carpentry, iron, and tin work, printing and shoemaking. Clark Hall is for young men and will accommodate two hundred students. No tuition is charged in the theological, normal, preparatory and collegiate departments, but all applicants for admission must sent satisfactory evidence of good character. There are no classes for those in the first stages of study. The expenses of living in the institution are very moderate, and means of self support easily obtained in the city of Washington, where many of the students pursue various forms of business during the day, and attend the lectures in the evening. It is no small education simply to live in Washington, and mingle, if only a few years, in the political, religious, scientific, artistic, and social circles. The hospitals, museums and libraries, the common and higher courts of law, the sessions of Congress, the numerous government departments, the literary and scientific conventions, and the general atmosphere of intelligence and freedom in the national capital, furnishes valuable facilities to effect a broader culture of mind and heart than can be gained in small places, or remote locations.

The announcement in a morning paper, of a number of rare and beautifully colored clay deposits in the excavation now being made for a new reservoir contiguous to the campus of this university, led your correspondent to the premises accompanied by a lady who is largely interested in the art of molding in clay, now so much in vogue in aesthetic circles. In order to see the specimens mentioned, we were directed to Prof. Robinson, dean of the university, a most intelligent and courteous gentleman, to whom we are indebted for the points given in regard to the institution contained in this letter.

There is no doubt that the number of visitors to this most worthy institution will be greatly increased when this new reservoir is completed. It will be a beautiful lake in a hollow, covering thirty-five acres, surrounded by a broad driveway or boulevard to which carriages will daily resort on their way to the Soldier's Home and the adjacent pleasure parks. Then will not only strangers, but many of the citizens of Washington, discover the magnificent and commanding outlook over the splendid city below, the lofty and unrivaled site of this far famed university, which even as it is, is an honor to all concerned in its inception and management. A new era is now dawning upon the institution, and henceforth they will not only train the minds, but also the hands of its students, a department of trades having been recently established here, designed to teach that "no education is thorough which unfits one for industrial as well as mental pursuits. The little paper which accompanies this letter is a good specimen of the work being done in this department in type setting, etc.

The Southern Fraternal Delegates.

At the reception of fraternal delegates from the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at the Arch Street Church, Philadelphia, on the evening of May 15th, Bishop Harris presided and Bishop Warren conducted the devotional exercises. Rev. Dr. Carter, of New Orleans, was introduced and made an address, from which we make extracts, Dr. Carter said:

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN,—"I think myself happy" in the fact that I appear before you as the accredited messenger of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and bear her commission to present to you her fraternal greetings in this centennial year of your organized existence. Why she should have selected, as one of her representatives on this occasion, a man unknown by face or by name to any of you is a mystery, whose perplexity is relieved only by the fact that my associate is a man well known to many among you as a true and loyal Methodist, and well known in the councils of this great nation as a true and loyal statesman. We come to you then "as unknown and yet well known." As representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, we bring you greetings in the name of John Wesley, whose faith we still follow, and in the name of Charles Wesley, whose glorious hymns we still sing. We come to you with greetings in the name of the humble man who formed the first Methodist Society in the South—Robert Strawbridge. In the names of Coke and Asbury, who, at the Christmas Conference in Baltimore, 1784, gave organic life to the Methodist Episcopal Church, from which organization all the different branches of Methodism on this continent have sprung. The Methodist Episcopal Church South comes by us to-day not only with Christian salutations on her lips, but with hallowed memories of the heroic days of the past thronging all the avenues of her mind and the chambers of her soul filled with beautiful hopes of more heroic days for our beloved Methodism yet among the possibilities of the future! In the name of God the Father, "whose we are and whom we serve;" in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, whose last command is as fresh in our hearts and as inspiring to our works as ever; in the name of the Holy Ghost, whose guiding hand we recognize in all this Methodist movement, we give you cheerful greetings that with such health and vigor you have reached the anniversary of your hundredth year. May you live until the cycles of your history shall be measured, not by centenaries, but by millenniums, full of glorious achievements for God and humanity!

Brethren, we come not only with greetings, we come also with a report. We think we have some good news to tell. When we were assembled in the city of Nashville, Tenn., two years ago, you sent us not only greetings, but a good, strong report, through your honored representative, Dr. Ridgway. It was my good fortune to see him and hear him; and now it becomes a great pleasure to me to return the compliment by bringing to you a report of our doings; and we feel that the report will give pleasure to all "who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity.

Dr. Carter then referred to the bereavement and loss suffered by their Church in the death of Bishops Robert Paine and Kavanaugh, the latter dying in the harness, at 82 years of age.

The speaker said that the Church South still conserved the itinerancy in all its phases, and also maintained the integrity of the doctrines of Methodism, have not been troubled with the so-called new theology. According to the latest statistics their Church number 904,000 members, an increase of 114 per cent in eighteen years, which is a much larger ratio than that of the increase in population. In the support of the ministry their denomination compares favorably with any other Methodist body, taking the ability of the membership into account. The contribution to foreign mission work last year was 50 per cent larger than the year before, and to domestic work 10 per cent larger. The part taken in missionary enterprise by the women of his Church was referred to as having promise of great good from its encouraging success. The good accomplished in the cause of temperance, under the leadership of Miss Frances E. Willard, was cited, as illustrating the efficiency of women as Christian workers. After reference to their Sunday-school department, Dr. Carter closed as follows:

And now, brethren and fathers, allow me to close this already too long address, with what is to me a most pleasing part of my task. We have given you greetings in the name of our Church; we have reported somewhat on the progress of our work in the past and our aims for the future; and now it becomes my agreeable duty to present to you the congratulations of our Church upon the success of your operations. She congratulates you upon the success you have had in pushing forward the work of Christ in this land and in all lands where you have gone. She congratulates you that for the accommodation of the increasing numbers of the worshipers of our Lord you are through your Church Extension Society building ten houses of worship per week. She congratulates you that through your profound Quarterly and your vigorous Advocates and your bright Sunday-school literature, you are furnishing healthy and nutritious food for millions of minds. She congratulates you that among the various denominations of Christians, you were among the first to discover in the Gospel of our Lord a special message to the children, and your various plans by which to carry that message to them attest the fact that this part of the Gospel has taken strong hold upon your hearts. She congratulates you that your mission stations encircle the world with a cincture of love and mercy. She congratulates you that your educational enterprises are in the hands of men whose Christian culture manifests its genuineness stooping down to the ignorant and putting under them the arms of power and lifting them up to that pure atmosphere in which their own lives are passed. She congratulates you that at this conference you are beginning to round up a hundred years of good work and noble achievement in this city where first the bells of freedom rang out their joyous peals upon the purified air of a continent redeemed from tyranny. In all this work, which all true Methodists are doing, there is something permanent. We believe most heartily in the permanency of the results of religious Church work. This is the spiritual department of life's labor, and of the workers, it is said "Their works do follow them." And as we stand here together and look back from this halting place in the march, through the hundred years of time we have come, and the hundred years of history we have made, we must all feel comforted in the fact that no true work which we have done for our fellows has been lost, nor has its influence been weakened by lapse of time nor its out-going power been circumscribed by impassable limes. When men work in the mechanical department, hardly has the ring of the hammer and the rasp of the saw fled out of hearing before the stateliest edifice begins to crumble. Men build their imposing speculations, and lie down to dream that their theories are wrapping the world in good, but they wake up in the morning to find out that during night humanity, pursuing the track of its own imperious wants, has marched past all their theories and speculations. But when men do solid and substantial work in the spiritual department it is permanent work. That work which through spiritual agencies touches and reconstructs and renovates sinful souls, abides in the indestructible characters of men and women and children moulded after the pattern of Jesus, and stamped with the image of God. Every sinner, who through these means and agencies, is transformed into a saint, becomes a monumental column reared by the Holy Ghost to the memory of the workers; and on its lofty peak and adown its shaft of beauty, the light of the City of God will shimmer forever. You are engaged in this work! Accept congratulations from your fair sister in the Southland. She sends them with heartiness from the heart that they may be received with heartiness in the heart; that the connection established by them may be the channel through which the vitalizing current of our beloved Methodism may flow from her heart to yours and from your heart to hers; that thus may be seen to-day in this city of brotherly love, two Methodist "hearts that beat as one."

At the close of Dr. Carter's address, Hon. A. H. Colquitt, United States senator from Georgia, was introduced, and made a very telling address. He said.

MR. PRESIDENT AND BRETHREN,—My colleague seems to have been troubled to determine why it was that he was appointed a clerical delegate to this General Conference. In one aspect of the case, I have no difficulty in determining the reason why I was appointed. I know the bishops of the Methodist Church South; they know me, and they know very well that there would be no man of the Church South, either preacher or layman, that would be more delighted to convey a message of love.

But there is one thing that they did not consider, which is a disqualification. As my dear friend brother, Governor Evans said. I am born of Methodist parents for generations back, and if there is any body of whom I ever stood in awe, it is Methodist preachers. I have been accustomed to stand upon platforms and in forums of one kind and another, addressing miscellaneous audiences, but it did not occur to the mind of this college of bishops who gave me this commission, that I always stood abashed in the presence of Methodist preachers. From the days of my boyhood, when I used to see them coming away over the hills with their old-fashioned cut-away coats, and their white neck-ties, and their saddle-bags, and their grave countenances, and their solemn gloom, I have never been able to recover my self-possession and have any sort of liberty in the presence of Methodist preachers.

Therefore, I am very little at ease to-night, and I would infinitely prefer if you could get a few drums and a mob outside, to stand an a dry-goods box and make a speech. Nevertheless, I do not feel like a stranger or a foreigner here. I looked to-day in the General Conference room into the faces of those who were present; I look into them to-night and I see the true Methodist stamp with which I am famliar. I hear in your language the same sort of talk, and the same sort of terms, and the same sort of nomenclature that I hear away down South at our General Conference—bishops, presiding elders, deacons, class leaders, stewards. Why, brethren, if instead of having a delegation here from the Methodist Church South, we should summon our office bearers, in their own persons, to stand here, you would find presiding bishop shaking hands with bishop, and presiding elder with presiding elder, and stationed preacher with stationed preacher, local preacher with local preacher, class-leader with class leader, layman with layman, and brethren with brethren and then I have no doubt if there was such a union, and such Methodist congratulations, and such hand shaking here upon this earth, that if we could look over yonder and see our sainted dead of the Methodist Church, we would find their hands outstretched, and we would hear them pronouncing their benediction upon this union of hearts and hands. "Brethren, love one another, and thus fulfill the law."

We have had differences, Mr. President, haven't we, in the past? There is one way that I always recognize as the very best in the world with a view to heal alienations and divisions. When two brothers fall out, it is not worth while for each one to stand upon his own dignity, and say: "I was right and you were wrong," and each to argue his case, as though they were not born of the same blood and united by kindred ties and affections. The best way for them to do is to say nothing about the right or wrong of the matter, but to rush into each other's arms, and say: "God bless you, my brother." So I am not afraid to talk about old differences and alienations, or to refer to them. I know this, that whatever men of the world may say, politicians may say, and statesmen, as they are called, may say, that if this country is ever to be reunited, and this old wrangling, and these disputes are to be forgotten and to be buried, it is to be done through the influence of Christian love and Christian sympathy.

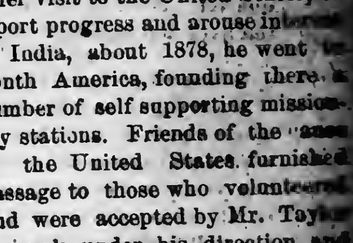
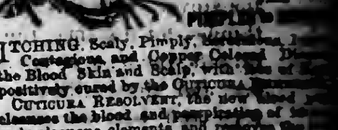
In another aspect of the case it is important that there should be a union in the sentiment and in the sympathy of this great Methodist family, outside of its bearings in a purely Church sense. There is not a man who loves his country, there is not a man who has studied the philosophy of the republics of the past and of the civilization of other governments, as well as of our own, who will not be satisfied, after a thorough investigation and examination of all the elements that enter into the progress of these various governments, that the true foundation of all these is in "righteousness, righteousness that exalteth a nation." We say a great deal about reform, and a great deal about progress, and a great deal about expedients, in order that we may correct political errors. The root of all evil will be removed when we make every man virtuous, every woman a lover of Christ, and every boy and girl a follower of father and mother. If you will make the families of the land pure, if you will establish the domestic altar, if you will make the men of the country, to whom have been given the right of suffrage, make them pure and virtuous, there is the best safeguard of our liberty, and the best assurance of the perpetuity of our institutions. And that is the main thing, my dear bishop, that the Methodist Church as well as other Christian Churches of this land, should have for their object.

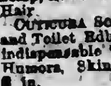


Now, sir, there is not a Church in this land to which I would not extend the right hand of fellowship. I can feel the sentiment that is announced in this blessed book, when it is said, "Grace be unto all that love the Lord Jesus Christ." And while I love the Episcopalians, Baptists, Presbyterians, and the other denominations, they will not think that it is unreasonable when I say that most of all, and dearest of all to me, I love the Methodist Church.

Governor Colquitt referred, in conclusion, to the perils of Methodism, warning our people against subordinating the Church to fashionable ideas. He would restore the old days of simplicity and impassioned appeal in the manner of preaching; it is the way to reach the heart of the sinner, and that is what we are after. He also believed in old fashioned singing and responses, altogether in old fashioned Methodist ways and means. Like the old-fashioned preachers, he had no notes, and had made a long speech.



The Bishop for Africa.



William Taylor D. D., elected missionary bishop for Africa during the present session of the General Conference, was born in 1821, in Rockbridge, Va. At the age of twenty he was converted and united with the Methodist Church, and two years later was received into Baltimore Conference, having already traveled one year under the presiding elder. In 1849 he went as missionary to California, organizing the first Methodist Church in San Francisco. In 1856 he entered upon evangelistic work in the Eastern States and Canada, in which he spent five years. In 1862 he went to Australia by the way of England, Ireland, and Palestine, reaching his destination in June, 1863. For two years and eight months he labored in Australia, Tasmania, and Ceylon, the result of which was a remarkable work in the conversion of sinners, and large additions to the Church. From there this Pauline itinerant went to South Africa, visiting Cape Colony, Kaffraria, and Natal, gathering great numbers of converts into the Church from both colonists and natives. Next he went to England, spending almost a year laboring in London chapels. In 1870 he began his great and successful work in India, a year later inaugurating a separate, self-supporting work, the foundation of the South India Conference, whose ministers are sustained by their respective fields. After another visit to the United States, to report progress and arouse interest in India, about 1878, he went to South America, founding there a number of self supporting missionary stations. Friends of the cause in the United States furnished passage to those who volunteered and were accepted by Mr. Taylor to work under his direction, and risk getting their support from the people for whom they labored.

On account of the irregular character of his work Dr. Taylor a few years ago asked that his Church relation be changed to that of a local preacher in connection with the South India Conference from which he was afterward sent as a delegate to the General Conference. The idea of limiting a world-wide evangelist like Bishop Taylor to one continent seems at first too contracted; but after all there is considerable room in Africa and the adjacent islands. Let this Methodist Livingstone then be a living sacrifice to the cause of Christ in the Dark Continent, will be the prayer of thousands of friends that Bishop Taylor has made in the course of his remarkable and successful career.

STEAM ENGINES
may8-6t

The Housekeeper.

A LIGHT CAKE.—One pound flour, one quarter pound butter, one quarter pound sugar, four eggs, a very little soda, as much milk as will make a thick batter. Bake in a shape, butter, and serve hot.

GINGERBREAD.—Rub a quarter of pound of butter into one pound of flour, then add half an ounce (or less if liked) of ground ginger and quarter of a pound of moist sugar; then stir in three-quarters of a pound of molasses and a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda dissolved in as much milk as will make the mixture rather stiff.

STEWED LIVER.—Cut up into slices one-half pound of calf's liver and the same quantity of fat bacon; put first a layer of bacon at the bottom of the pie dish, then one of liver, sprinkle with pepper and salt, add one medium sized onion and one apple, both cut up; cover down, and let it stew gently in the oven for about one hour and a quarter. No water is required, as the liver makes sufficient gravy.

ORANGE CREAM.—Take the juice of six oranges and the rind of two grated, put them into a stewpan with a pint and a half of water and twelve ounces of white sugar, stir till the sugar is dissolved, then add the well beaten whites of six eggs, stir over a slow fire till it thickens, then strain through a hair sieve or muslin, and stir till cold. Put back into the pan and add the yolks of the eggs well beaten, stir over the fire till the mixture begins to simmer, then pour into a basin and stir again till cool enough to be transferred to glasses.

ORANGE PUDDING.—Peel and cut five oranges into slices and take out all the seeds, pour over them one quarter of a pound of sifted loaf sugar. Make a paste with a tablespoonful of cornstarch or arrowroot and a little cold milk. Beat the yolks of two eggs well and mix them with the cornstarch paste and a pint of boiling milk, simmer for a few minutes, then pour over the oranges, beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth with a tablespoonful of sugar, spread over the top of the pudding and harden for a few minutes in the oven.

PEA SOUP.—An economical soup.—Have a brown pot with a lid, which must be kept on the top of the fire. Put in all sorts of vegetable refuse, for instance, the heads of asparagus, the legs of fowls, bones of beef and mutton, bacon rinds, the tops and bottoms of onions and turnips, the peel of turnips, the green tops of celery, &c. I make no stock, however, between meat and vegetable scraps, but put every bit of meat that is left from table into the pot. I always put in the vegetable scraps at once, and in small quantities. The liquor is strained off into a basin before it is wanted for use, so that the fat can be easily removed. The pot is emptied and thoroughly cleaned out once a week at least, or three times a week in summer, according to the state of the weather. Of course the quantity of stock varies, but it is enough to provide soup for a family.

ICE CREAM.—Cut cold custard in small pieces into an earthen pan, mix well with salt, and the juice of a fresh lemon; let the meat stand one hour in a fritter batter, and fry pieces into it. Drop, a few at a time, into boiling fat, and fry a light brown. Drain and serve hot. Any kind of cold meat can be used in this way.

[illegible]—Take two pints of rich milk and two tea spoonfuls of flour well together [illegible] with ice and [illegible] around it. Have ready a quart of peaches, mashed [illegible]. When the milk is [illegible] them in and freeze

Young Folk's Corner.

THE FOUNTAIN.

Into the sunshine,
Full of light,
Leaping and flashing
From morn till night;

Into the moonlight,
Whiter than snow,
Waving so flower-like
When the winds blow;

Into the starlight,
Rushing in spray,
Happy at midnight,
Happy by day!

Ever in motion,
Blithsome and cheery,
Still climbing heavenward,
Never aweary;

Glad of all weathers,
Still seeming best,
Upward or downward:
Motion thy rest.

Full of a nature
Nothing can tame,
Changed every moment,
Ever the same;

Ceaseless aspiring,
Ceaseless content,
Darkness or sunshine
Thy element.

Glorious fountain,
Let my heart be
Fresh, changeful, constant,
Upward, like thee!

A Glass of Beer.

"Mamma," said Bessie Ashton, "didn't you say that a glass of beer made a person feel good; that it was healthy and harmless?"

"Why, yes, Bessie, I think I did," answered Mrs. Ashton, slowly, somewhat puzzled at Bessie's question.

"Mrs. Thompson don't think so, mamma. The poor woman just cries nearly all the time."

"Cries?" interrogated Mrs. Ashton, in surprise, for she believed her neighbor to be one of the happiest of women.

"Yes, mamma, cries all the time," repeated Bessie, with emphasis. "Mr. Thompson's cheeks looked puffed away out, and his face is always so red. She says he is cross and scolds continually. But he didn't used to be that way. He only drank one glass of beer then; now he can drink six and eight, and he gets mad at everything. It don't seem to make him feel good or look healthy."

Mrs. Ashton's countenance assumed a serious change. She felt keenly the force of the rebuke, but answered:

"Mr. Thompson should not give way to his appetite for drink. I'm sure one glass can do no harm."

"That's just what he thought," spoke up Bessie. "But Mrs. Thompson says it had him down on his back before he was aware of it."

"Well, I don't know," answered her mother, abstractedly. "I drink a glass occasionally; it don't seem to affect me."

"It don't puff your cheeks out, mamma; but it makes your face awfully red sometimes, and you can drink more than you used to."

Mrs. Ashton stopped to think. She could drink more than she used to. Bessie had told the truth.

When supper time came, instead of beer, a glass of fresh, sweet milk stood near her own and her husband's plate. Mr. Ashton opened wide his eyes when he sat down to eat, and as his wife finished relating the conversation between herself and Bessie, he caught the child in his arms and kissed her affectionately, remarking: "Not another drop of beer shall ever enter my home!"

And he kept his word.

Housewifely Girls.

A bachelor, writing to me lately, says: "Why don't you advocate the admission of housekeeping among the fine arts, and see if the girls of the day will take to it more?"

I do not think it will be an advantage to make a profession of this part of a girl's education, and my belief is, that there is more housekeeping taught and learned in domestic circles than is dreamed of in "Horatio's" philosophy. But it has become the fashion for girls to ignore any knowledge of this subject, and I feel sure the young men of their acquaintance would be surprised to learn the real cause. But our observing girls find that if any of their number is of the butterfly order, and affects to do nothing but soar in the sunshine of idleness and prosperity, she is more attractive than the wall-flowers, who may possess housewifely skill. And so it is, girls do not parade their knowledge of the domestic art, though often doing a great deal to make home-life pleasant. I have hopes that it will yet become the fashion for the daughters of a household to know how to arrange a savory and appetizing dinner, and to cook, or at least superintend, its daintly dishes, when to broil a steak or chop, to make an omelet and a loaf of bread, will be acknowledged as creditable as Kensington work. The time has not yet arrived, and it is this false estimate of work that keeps back progress in this direction. It is the fashion to work at crewel stitches but let us have a change. Make cooking fashionable by your acknowledged praise, oh, epicure, for "Where is the man who can livewithout dining?"

Our Bug-Catchers.

We have a garden around our house, where we try to raise fruits, and flowers, and peas, and beans, and lettuce, and cucumbers, and such like. But we have one trouble; there are lots of little bugs and worms that seem to like our provisions as well as we do, and that are always on hand to take their portion; and, in fact, they sometimes seem to want to take the whole. Well, what is to be done in such a case? I will tell you what to do. We have several little bug-catchers, curious creatures; in color and shape they look almost like a lump of earth, and one would hardly know them from the clods among which they travel about. The children see them about the fields or highways, and wherever they find one they speedily pick him up, and invite him to make his home in our garden; and so they have their dwellings in holes and corners about the yard. The little fellows have a queer way of catching bugs. They have a long, sticky tongue, though where they keep it is a mystery, as it seems to be longer than its owner. Perhaps they take a reef in it, as the sailors say, and stow it away. But when one of them gets near a little bug, he sits and looks at him, and winks in a kind of solemn way, till all at once his mouth opens, and as quick as a flash the tongue goes out and in again, and the bug is among the missing! And then our little friend sits winking and blinking, and waiting for another bug to come that way. He is said to have an ear for music, and to do some singing in the warm spring evenings, but we do not count much on this; nor do we brag much about his good looks. His skin is not smooth, nor his complexion fair: but for real usefulness, he is about the best kind of live stock we have on our farm; and if people want to keep their gardens free from bugs, the best thing they can do is to get on friendly terms with the little bug-catchers and make pleasant homes for the toads.

An old gentleman who had provoked the hostility of a fashionable lady whom he had known in boyhood, was asked by his wife what he had done to incur the lady's displeasure. "Nothing at all," replied the innocent old man: "on the contrary, I was cordial to her, and spoke of the time when I used to draw her to school on a go-cart nearly half a century ago!" His wife threw up her hands and murmured, "How stupid men are."

When Jesus called his disciples it is a remarkable circumstance that he never called a single idler or loafer. They were all busy people. It is by these busy classes that every thing is done, and it is to them that the world looks for all enterprise and progress. When any thing is to be done in the Church, no one ever thinks of calling upon the people of leisure. The busiest men and women are the only ones that have time to work for God, and they are the ones that bear most cheerfully the heat and burden of the day.—Methodist Advance.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find the whereabouts of my mother and father and three sisters. Mother's name was Caroline Dupree, father Alfred; sisters Mary, Zelphia and Rachel. I left them in Alabama near the town of Campelton; we all belonged to Mr. John Dupree; after emancipation mother hired us to a Mr. Bob Echols. We (myself and brother, Ben Dupree,) being very small, he stole us away and brought us to Bryan, Texas. While at Bryan we got, through Mr. Echols, several letters from them, but have since lost their postoffice address. The friends round about Campelton will please assist me and my brother in finding our relatives; if found, address me at Brenham, Texas, care Rev. Willis Hartley Jackson.

MRS. MALINDA POWELS.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my friend's relations, whom she left in Mississippi, near Vicksburg; Lucinda Samuel is her name. Her relatives are: Mother, Phillis; father Blacksmith Ben; brothers, Jefferson, Charles, Harris, and Preston; sisters, Polly, who was burned up, was the oldest, and Nancy; these are all the sisters that I know; if mother had any more I don't know them; uncles name was Shoemaker Ben. These all belonged to Jim Steward. I left them when 10 years old, and have not seen them in 50 or 55 years. I came off with Billie Wade; my name was Lucinda Wade when I came from Leon county to Matterson county, and from there to Texas. Please address Lucinda Samuel, Hockley, Texas, care Lewis Bunton.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister, born and raised in Simpson county, named Betty Brown. She left the year the war closed with her young master, Samuel Brown. Father went by the name of Brown, but changed his name to Edmond Johnson. Brothers were Jackson, Wesley, William and Aaron Brown; sisters Harriet and Winnie Brown. We now all go by the name of Johnson. Address me at Steen's Creek, Miss.

A. JOHNSON.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sisters and brothers. One was Charlotte Claw and the other Jane Philip. Brother was Henry Williams. I have not seen them since the second year after the close of the war. Sister Charlotte was in Bell county; sister Jane was in New Boston, Texas, the last I heard from her. Address me at Negreet, La. FANNY LOWTOIEL.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother. She belonged to Mr. Royal; after he died Mrs. Royal married a Mr. Denison, and we were divided. I went to Miss Virginia Royal, and the last I saw of my mother she was standing on the beach at Matagorda, Texas, on her way to San Antonio. Mother's name is Sallie Denison; my name is Sarah Royal. I heard from a white lady that my mother was in Houston City, belonging to the M. E. Church. Please address Mr. Jacob Marshall, at Sherman, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother, father, brothers and sisters. Mother was Katy Bradford, sisters Jnan and Snetary, a half sister was Caroline White, and she was sold to Bill Collee in Alabama. I left them in Tolbert county, Brothers were Louis, Armstead, Aaron, Benjamin, Emile Crawford, Harry Allen. Jim Crawford sold him to a man named Allen when he was a little boy. Then my name was Eliza Crawford, now it is Eliza Bell. I came to Texas with William Stanford, son-in-law of John Bradford. A friend was Sadie Bradford, who married Mr. Caplan. I have a brother, London Sims; when they left father he was a Harper. Brother Stephen belonged to Stephen Pace. Julia Ann belonged to Wm. Bradford. Address me at Austin, Texas, care Rev. G. Pleasant. ELIZA BELL.

The True Elixir of Life

Is AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, a highly concentrated Medicine, scientifically compounded of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Mandrake, Stillingia, Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great strength and curative virtue.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Has been tested by and has received the unqualified commendation of 4,000,000 families in the United States, and 7,000,000 families throughout the world.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Is the only Blood Purifier that has gained and retained the confidence of the people of tropical countries, where such medicines are in great demand.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Is the most popular Blood Purifier among sailors, and is in nine-tenths of the medicine-chests of the best class of American, English, German, and Danish vessels.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Contains no Arsenic and Aloes, as do many falsely called Alteratives foisted upon the credulity of the public.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Has been for many years recognized as the best Alterative and Tonic Medicine in all civilized countries.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Promptly relieves from General Debility, Nervous Prostration, and Derangement of the Vital Organs.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Effects radical cures of all maladies arising from the taint of Scrofulous or Contagious Diseases, or the corruption of Mercury in the system.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Is endorsed by the medical profession and regularly prescribed by many leading practitioners.

HON. F. JEWETT, ex-Mayor of Lowell, and ex-State Senator, says that the only preparation of Sarsaparilla that seems to do "real, lasting good" in cleansing the blood and expelling poisonous matter from the system, is

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

MILTON FOX, the largest land-owner and farmer of Middlesex Co., Mass., credits his cure of Scrofulous Humor and Dyspepsia to the thorough purification of his blood by

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

WARREN LELAND, the famous New York landlord, testifies, from his own knowledge, that for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, Salt Rheum, and various results of high living, there is no medicine equal to

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

HIRAM PHILLIPS, Glover, Vt., attests the cure of Hereditary Scrofula, in three generations of his family, by

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

THOS. N. COOK, West Somerville, Mass., was cured of severe Eczema, and rescued from a rapid decline, by

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

THE SISTERS OF CHARITY, Dorchester, Mass., vouch for the Alterative and Curative virtues of

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

JOHN J. RYAN, Philadelphia, Pa., professional base-ball player, was cured of Rheumatism by

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

D. B. KERR, Big Springs, Ohio, testifies that his son, fifteen years old, was cured of Catarrh in its worst form, by

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

AMHERST WHITMORE, Brunswick, Me., retired sea-captain, was cured of a Cancer by

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

The attestations of a myriad of unimpeachable witnesses might be cited, were it necessary, to prove the almost miraculous cures effected by this only really Blood Purifying Medicine.

Plantation Melodies

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.
